SANTA BARBARA LAUNCHES HUGE BUILDING PROGRAM

Plans To Reconstruct Damaged Business Center of Stricken City Are Already Underway—Leading Bankers Broadcast To Nation's Clearing Houses Request For Flotation of Reconstruction Loan Through Santa Barbara Clearing House Association—Gas Service Is Still Cut Off But Electric Power Is Expected To Be Restored Within 24 Hours.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., June 30—(By the A. P.)—The city of Santa Barbara, yesterday the victim of one of the most disastrous earthquakes in Pacific coast history tonight closed its biggest business day with the formulation of a program for reconstruction that foreshadowed a great rejuvenated community.

Facing an estimated loss of between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000, with possibly $2,000,000 of earthquake insurance, the banking, business, industrial and civic leaders launched a program of immediate building based on a $20,000,000 loan and a $2,000,000 earthquake relief fund.

Leading bankers broadcast to the clearing houses of the nation a request for the flotation of the $20,000,000 reconstruction loan through the Santa Barbara clearing house association.

Simultaneously the business and civic leaders accepted the offers of San Francisco and Los Angeles to send their best engineering talent here immediately to direct the demolition of the earthquake damaged buildings and to outline the plans of the new Santa Barbara.

"We have a wonderful opportunity to build the type of a city that we have been talking of and dreaming of for years and years," said Dr. Rexford Brown, president of the Santa Barbara chamber of commerce, who presided at the reconstruction meeting. The $2,000,000 earthquake aid fund was explained by the clearing house association is to wipe out mortgages on the business section, thus paving the way for the utilization of the entire $20,000,000 loan for new buildings.

One of the bank presidents said that of the hundreds who came to the temporary housing quarters amid the ruins today the great majority made inquiries and only a few withdrew funds.

It was dawning up day in Santa Barbara. Firemen from Los Angeles stood over the twisted buildings where dangerous overhangings of brick and stone; storekeepers returned to the pages of business and began the task of getting rid of the wreckage and salvaging what could be used themselves went to market as they had done before.

On the grimmer side of the picture was the death toll mounted to ten when the body of R. M. Litchfield, wealthy Santa Barbara resident, was found under a pile of bricks on a State St., corner. Earlier Harrado Charis, injured Mexican, died at the cottage hospital. This left the list of injured at 29 and hopes for the recovery of all were held out by the attending surgeons.

By nightfall the work of temporary rebuilding was virtually completed in the Santa Barbara Telephone Company's plant.

Following tremors of dwindling tendency throughout the day, the people of the city, or the majority of them, made preparations to spend another night on their lawns. The confinement within four walls of a bedroom still was considered undesirable in the light of recent happenings.

The water and sewerage systems, never interrupted, are in good shape. While the Sheffield storage reservoir went out the Gibraltar dam stood intact and although the pipe lines have been reduced, there is plenty of water for all. The gas still is cut off.

Electric power is expected to be restored within 24 hours.

NAVAL TUG SAILS FOR SANTA BARBARA

SAN PEDRO, Calif., June 30—(AP)—The naval tug Algerma on orders from the navy department today followed the battleship Arkansas to Santa Barbara to assist in relief work. The supply ship Vega and the battleships New York and Utah were held in readiness to join the two other navy vessels at Santa Barbara if further assistance should be necessary.

CARRIED TWO MILLIONS IN QUAKE INSURANCE

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., June 30—Some two million dollars in earthquake insurance was carried on the business district wrecked by the Monday earthquakes, according to estimates by insurance brokers here. A meeting of adjusters was called for this afternoon under direction of D. O. Daniels, manager of the San Francisco underwriters.

Jewels and bonds valued at $150,000 property of Mrs. Charles E. Perkins of Burlington, Iowa, earthquake victim, were found intact in ruins of the Arlington hotel by Detective Lieutenants Carl Williams and Allen Baldridge of Los Angeles. The detectives, crawling in back of the pile of debris located Mrs. Perkins' trunk and extracted the treasure of gems.

SIXTEEN FINED FOR VIOLATING SHERMAN ACT

CHICAGO, June 30—(A. P.)—The second group of manufacturers to admit operation of a trust in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act, today pleaded guilty here when sixteen refrigerator manufacturers entered pleas of guilty before Federal Judge Cliffe. A few days ago a group of chain manufacturers also entered guilty pleas and were fined.

The firms pleading guilty today denied they were cognizant of wrongdoing. While they might have violated the letter of the Sherman Act, they did not fix prices, they claimed. They were fined from $2,000 to $5,000 each.

The refrigerator manufacturers are the second of three groups named in the indictment of 265 members of the Associated Furniture Trust. Fifty of fifty-seven persons and firms engaged in chair making recently pleaded guilty and were fined a total of $166,000. One hundred and ninety manufacturers and trade association officials engaged in the manufacture of bedroom, dining room and living room furniture have yet to enter pleas.

Two refrigerator manufacturers refused to plead guilty today and may stand trial later. Roger Shale, special assistant attorney general, indicated that he expects most of those in the other group to enter guilty pleas.

An indictment against William H. Case, credit accountant for the Furniture Manufacturers Association was dismissed by the court on motion of the government attorneys. No retail dealers were involved in any of the indictments.

MARLIN CORPORATION MUST PAY BACK TAXES

HARTFORD, June 30.—(AP)—The Marlin Fire Arms corporation, of New Haven, which went into bankruptcy in 1923, must pay the government back taxes of $52,000 and a five per cent penalty tax before any other creditor can collect a claim, according to a decision made by Judge Edwin S. Thomas, of the United States district court today.

Judge Thomas took as authority a recent decision of the circuit court of appeals which gave the United States priority of claim when a question of taxes arises. The period of back taxes was from October 22, 1923 to July 23, 1924. The suit to determine the law upon this point was brought by George Ramsey and others.

The Marlin Fire Arms company, of New Haven, is an entirely different concern than the corporation which was the defendant in the government's suit and was in no way a party to the action which was decided by the court.

FOUR NEW BANK EXAMINERS FOR STATE

HARTFORD, June 30—(A. P.)—Four new bank examiners have joined the staff of the state banking department and formal announcement of their appointment is expected to be made soon by Bank Commissioner John B. Byrne. They are Representative Sherwood B. Potter, of Brooklyn Frank E. Irving, of Bristol; R. Gordon Baldwin, of Bristol, and George B. Hotchkiss, of Hartford.

ENGLISH MINE OWNERS TO TERMINATE AGREEMENT

LONDON, June 30—The Mining Association, representing the coal mine owners, gave formal notice of intention to terminate the agreement with the Miners' Federation on July 31, at the same time intimating that the basis of a proposal for a new agreement had been considered and would be communicated later.

The terms of the proposal are not known, but undoubtedly include an increase in hours and a reduction of wages. It is practically certain the miners will refuse this offer. Hence, unless negotiations in the meantime reach a compromise there will be a serious mining crisis at the end of July.

Secretary Cook, of the Miners' Federation, characterizes the owners' action as "a declaration of war."

The present action is likely to stimulate the movement already afoot to revive the triple alliance of miners, railwaymen and transport workers, which collapsed on the famous "black Friday" a few years ago.

The prime minister's suggestion to subsidize industry meets with only lukewarm comment. In the meantime, unemployment, which showed a slight reduction the previous week, is again increased by nearly 20,000 in the past week.

GOVERNORS WILL MAKE TOUR OF MAINE

POLAND SPRING, Me., June 30.—(AP)—In order to make an early start on a tour of Maine which will occupy the remainder of the week, the state executives in their 17th annual conference here today speeded up their program and concluded the public business of their annual meeting. An executive session is scheduled for tomorrow morning. Subjects discussed today included federal and state distribution of governmental powers, cooperating marketing, the problems of agriculture, prison administration and state co-operation in prison-made goods. The program for the day concluded with a banquet tendered to the visiting governors by Gov. Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine, and Mrs. Brewster.

SHEPHERD FREED OF ALL CRIMINAL CHARGES

CHICAGO, June 30—William D. Shepherd, acquitted last week of charges of the murder of his millionaire ward, William Nelson McClintock, today was freed of all criminal charges. The grand jury voted a "no bill" in the case involving the death of Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, young McClintock's mother.

POLICE CARE NOW FOR RECKLESS PEDESTRIANS

NEW YORK, June 30—Reckless pedestrians like reckless motorists, will after tomorrow be handed cards by traffic policemen after each offense. They will not be summoned, however, but police warnings, tendered without comment, that the offending one is guilty of jaywalking and that he is courting an accident.

Moroccans Continue To Attack French

Are Directing Efforts Toward Taza As Preliminary To An Advance on Fez.

PARIS, June 30.—(AP)—Moroccan dispatches report that Abd-El-Krim, the Moroccan leader, is still attacking the French, directing his efforts towards Taza as a preliminary to an advance on Fez.

A special dispatch to the Temps says that although the attack has spread along a fifty-mile front it is really concentrated against three points. The correspondent estimates that Abd-El-Krim's losses in the offensive are a thousand killed and four thousand wounded.

Prince Aage, nephew of the king of Denmark, is cited in the orders of the Foreign Legion, in which he is a captain, for bravery, he having volunteered for dangerous tasks.

ISSUES STATEMENT ON MOVIE TAX LAW

HARTFORD, June 30—Construing the regulations and restrictions in regard to the delivery of films under the new motion picture law as not applicable to postal officials, their agents, or interstate carriers, Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett in a statement issued today outlines the procedure under which the new statute is to be administered and the regulations which will apply beginning tomorrow.

All films delivered subsequent to tomorrow are taxable, the statement says, but films delivered prior to this date will not be subject to the tax. However, on and after July 8, all films will be presumed by the tax department to have been delivered after July 1, and as such will be amenable to the tax law and regulations. The tax is $10 for each 1,000 feet of film and fifty cents for each additional 100 feet.

That deliveries by postal authorities and interstate carriers are not to be held in violation of the new statute is expected to answer some of the objections raised at a hearing before Governor Trumbull by opponents of the measure. Commissioner Blodgett said today. At that time it was declared that under section four of the tax bill these carriers might be unable to deliver films unless the tax on each had been paid. No effort will be made to collect the tax through these carriers, the commissioner said but the regulations will require that each film be registered and the tax paid before it is exhibited.

HOTEL EMPLOYES HELD FOR LIQUOR VIOLATION

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP)—Four employes of the Mayflower, Washington's newest fashionable hotel, were arrested today under the prohibition laws as a sequel to an alleged "pre-Volstead" banquet June 17, attended by 17 government agents.

Jules Venice, maitre d-hotel; Rinardo Blazi, assistant chef, and John Mendas, bell boy, charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, and Ralph E. Jones, a waiter, accused of illegal sale of liquor, were the men arrested.

United States Commissioner Turnage, before whom the men were taken late today, fixed bond for Venice and Blazi at $5,000, for Mendas, whom he characterized as a "fool," at $1,000, and for Jones at $1,500.

One of the agents, posing as an "iron and steel man" from San Francisco, registered at the hotel and, when he suggested to Venice that he would like to have good liquor served to his guests, it was alleged, the maitre d'hotel said he could "fix that all right." The information filed with the commissioner stated that 24 cocktails and more than five bottles of whiskey were supplied at the banquet.

NEW HAVEN ROAD RATES TAKE JUMP

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP)—An increase of 44 per cent. in communication rates goes into effect on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad July 1, it was learned today, when commuters went to the ticket office to get the July tickets.

The public service commission, which, on May 18, concluded hearings into the rate case, has not yet reported a decision on the merits of the case.

Judge Van Auken, corporation counsel of New Rochelle, who led the legal fight before both the interstate commerce commission and the public service commission said the action of the New Haven in proceeding with its rate increase while a case was still awaiting settlement was unprecedented and might be punishable for contempt.

Judge Van Auken said he was preparing to begin legal action which is expected to take the form of an injunction restraining the company from enforcing the higher rates.

COLLEGE OF PREACHERS TO TRAIN MINISTERS

WASHINGTON, June 30—(A. P.)—The establishment of a college of preachers to train ministers particularly to win to the church those known to be outside of and possibly alienated from it, is contemplated by the Washington cathedral.

Tentative plans for the college, made public in a statement today by the National Cathedral Foundation, provide that the permanent director of the proposed college be an officer of the cathedral who is to be assisted by men called in for stated period of service."

"As soon as clergymen complete their training at the college, the statement added, "the cathedral plans to arrange, through co-operation with local churches and other agencies, suitable opportunities for them to present to masses of Americans, outside rather than inside the church, the fundamental principles of Christianity."

NEW YORK CENTRAL TRAIN RAN PILOTLESS

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 30.—(AP)—The west-bound Empire State express, crack limited of the New York Central lines, today ran pilotless and enveloped in scalding steam for more than an eighth of a mile after a steam cap in the engine blew off near Palmyra, driving the engineer and fireman from the cab to cling on the side of the swaying engine.

Port Morien Customs House Is Stormed

Customs Guards Forced To Surrender 43 Kegs of Liquor By Gang of 100 Men.

SYDNEY, N. S., June 30.—(AP)—The customs house at Port Morien was stormed today by a gang of about 100 men, who smashed the windows with rocks and carried away 43 kegs of liquor which had been seized last night at Lorway Beach. Some of the raiders wore masks made of flour sacks.

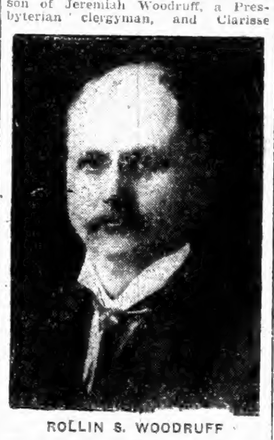
The raid was the result of sentiment against seizure of the liquor. Customs guards in charge of the contraband were forced by threats to surrender it.

EX-GOVERNOR WOODRUFF DEAD AT GUILFORD

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 30.—(AP)—Rollin S. Woodruff, governor of Connecticut from 1907 to 1909, died suddenly this morning.

An attack of heart trouble came almost without warning, it was understood, while the former governor was in his home at Rollwood in Guilford. Dr. G. Franklyn Anderson, of that town, was called but death came to Mr. Woodruff before he reached the farm.

Rollin Simmons Woodruff was born July 14, 1854, at Rochester, N. Y., a son of Jeremiah Woodruff, a Presbyterian clergyman, and Clarisse



ROLLIN S. WOODRUFF

(Thompson) Woodruff. After attending school in his native city, his parents moved to New Haven, where at the age of 15 he took his first employment in a hardware store as an errand boy.

He next entered the employ of C. S. Mersick & Company, one of the most extensive wholesale iron and steel dealers in New England, and in this concern he held all the offices from the ground up to that of the president, which he held at the time of his death and for many years previous.

Mr. Woodruff was also at different times director in the American Hardware company, New Britain; director in the Mechanics bank, New Haven; president of Cott-a-lapp company, of Sommerville, N. J.; director of the Computing, Tabulating, Recording company, of New York; president of the New Bedding Machine company, and connected with numerous other noted corporations.

In 1906 he became a member of the Governor's Footguards. He was a member of the Union League club, Mr. Woodruff was married in 1879 to Miss Kaomeo Elizabeth Perkins, of New Haven.

Mr. Woodruff, as governor of the state, became early in his administration the center of legislative controversies owing to his advocacy of the creation of a Public Utilities commission for the then existing railroad commission. He had had two years previous service as lieutenant-governor of the state and had served a session in the senate. It is claimed that the present Public Utilities commission, grew out of the stand of Governor Woodruff for such a body during his administration.

It was during Governor Woodruff's administration also, that the present attorney general, Frank E. Healy, then state tax commissioner, was relieved from office after a hearing before the governor who had as his legal adviser Marcus H. Holcomb, then attorney general, later the war governor of the state, judge of superior court and now retired.

Mr. Woodruff's executive secretary was Charles S. Julin, of this city, now deceased.

The 1907 legislature did not adjourn until August 1, and it has been claimed for it that it was the most animated one in the history of the state.

Mr. Woodruff had not been in good health for a number of years, having suffered, it is understood, with heart trouble, which at times was so severe that his condition was regarded as serious.

In fraternal life Mr. Woodruff was identified with the Masonic order in this city.

The funeral of former Governor Woodruff will be held from his home in Guilford, Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock with services conducted by the Rev. Richard H. Clapp, pastor of United church, this city. Burial will be in Evergreen cemetery.

The funeral rites will be marked by simplicity in accordance with the wishes of the former governor, although it is expected that the services will be attended by prominent men in public and private life.

LOS ANGELES SENDS $10,000 FOR RELIEF

LOS ANGELES, Calif., June 30—The Los Angeles city council today appropriated $10,000 to be used as Mayor George E. Cryer may direct in relief measures at Santa Barbara.

Since yesterday 12,775 pounds of freshly baked bread, donated by Los Angeles bakeries have been sent to the earthquake zone. Five hundred gallons of milk also went north and more will be sent tonight if needed.

Returning from the damaged city today Dr. George Parrish, city health commissioner, reported that health conditions there were excellent and that ample nurses and doctors were on hand to control the sanitation and health situation as well as care for the injured.

ITALIAN DEBT CONFERENCES COME TO SUDDEN HALT

Delay Arose From Desire of the Italian Commissioners To Obtain Additional Data From Rome Relating To Italy's Capacity To Pay—Mario Alberti To Leave Immediately For Italy To Supervise Preparation of the Needed Documents—No Furthur Conversations On the Subject Are Expected Until August.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP)—Negotiations for the funding of Italy's war debt to the United States came to a sudden, although temporary halt after two conferences today, and no further conversations on the subject are expected until after August 1.

The delay, it was announced, arose from a desire of the Italian commissioners to obtain additional data from Rome relating to Italy's capacity to pay. Mario Alberti, the technical member of the mission, will leave immediately for Italy to supervise preparation of the documents needed.

It became increasingly evident as a result of today's conferences between the American debt commission members of the Italians that Italy will delay making a concrete proposal until her representatives here have detailed every phase of Italy's economic, demographic, financial and momentary situation. Some progress has been made in that direction at the sessions last week and today, but it is admittedly a lengthy task.

Signor Alberini's plan to visit Rome served to recall that neither he nor Ambassador De Martino, titular head of the mission, has ever talked over the debt question, with Premier Mussolini.

The ambassador was ill when he was appointed to the post, and when he recovered, the premier was ill. The ambassador, therefore, departed for the United States with only meagre instructions.

Signor Alberti's visit home will make it possible for him to lay a definite account of the whole question as developed here before the premier and to receive such instructions as the government desires to give.

Members of the American commission participating in the conversations, meanwhile, appeared to be in no haste to draw up a funding agreement. The official view was that American officials were willing the Italian government should be kept fully informed on every phase of the discussions and be satisfied that it was not entering into a settlement the success of which might be doubtful.

Some observers, however, made the point that the Italian negotiations have gone far enough now, in their opinion, to commit the Rome government to a funding policy, and it was suggested therefore, that no harm would come from allowing time for negotiations to get under way with Belgium and perhaps France, Jugo-Slavia and Czecho-Slovakia before Italy actually concludes a settlement

REFUTES CHARGES OF INFIDELITY AGAINST MOTHER

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP)—The defense in the Symington divorce suit closed today after Dorothea Webber, 13, daughter of Mrs. Ida May Symington by a previous marriage, had been called as the last witness to refute charges of infidelity made against his wife by Thomas H. Symington, wealthy manufacturer and clubman.

Corroborating her mother's testimony, Dorothea told of a raid on their home in Morristown, N. J., last winter led by "Daddy Symington," who with two other men broke down doors and rifled Mrs. Symington's desk of papers.

She was certain that John Wallace Young, Symington's counsel, was in the party, but the attorney, taking the stand in rebuttal, denied this.

Dorothea also confirmed her mother's version of an Easter party when it was alleged that Maurice Fatt, named as co-respondent, visited Mrs. Symington's bedroom in light attire. She described the ejection of herself and her mother from the house after an all-night siege by Symington and others in which food and bed clothing were confiscated and the water turned off.

POPE RECEIVES K. OF C. AT PRIVATE AUDIENCE

ROME, June 30.—(AP)—The pope, at a private audience granted today to a delegation of officers of the Knights of Columbus, paid an unusual tribute to the humanitarian work of that organization by conferring upon Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty, of Philadelphia, the medal usually conferred only on bishops. The pontiff also delivered a cordial address in which he characterized the organization as "a select body rendering truly knightly service and always ready to break a lance for a good cause."

The pope gave high praise to the knights for the establishment of playgrounds for children in Rome. He imparted the apostolic blessing on the members of the party and, through them on all the knights and their families.

The pontiff displayed great interest in the movement for boys, remarking that it had been one of the principal efforts of his pontificate to take care of little children, who constitute the foundation of society, and he concluded with: "Let us co-operate so that we can combine the two principal aims of modern times, a healthy soul in a healthy body."

VICE-PRESIDENT OF D. APPLETON & CO.

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP)—Frederick Roy Martin, formerly general manager of the Associated Press, will tomorrow become vice-president and general manager of the book publishing house of D. Appleton & company, which is this year observing its centenary. He has acquired a stock interest in the company and will be a member of the executive committee with Howard C. Smith, chairman; John W. Hillman, president, and L. W. Sanders, treasurer of the company.

Mr. Martin was graduated at Harvard in 1893 and is now a member of the Harvard board of overseers. He was for 14 years editor of the Providence Journal and for 13 years with the Associated Press, first as assistant general manager and later as general manager, resigning the latter position last April.

BOARDMAN HELD FOR U. S. DISTRICT COURT

MERIDEN, June 30—(A. P.)—At four o'clock this afternoon, six hours after his release in local police court on $7,500 bail, Floyd D. Boardman, alleged bank embezzler, was rearrested at the home of his uncle in Berlin by Deputy U. S. Marshal Albert R. Marsh.

Accompanied by his father and one of his attorneys, I. G. Smith, Boardman was immediately taken before U. S. Commissioner Frederic C. Cortett at Hartford and, waiving examination was released in $11,000 bail for trial at the next term of the United States district court in New Haven, the fourth Tuesday in September.

The federal warrant charges embezzlement from the Meriden National bank of $11,000. The entry into the case of federal authorities automatically ends states prosecution, it is stated, and $7,500 bail furnished here probably will be returned to the bondsman tomorrow morning.

PRES. COOLIDGE BACK AT "WHITE COURT"

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., June 30—(A. P.)—President Coolidge arrived at the summer White House early tonight from Plymouth, Vt., where he had been called by the illness of his father, Col. John C. Coolidge.

The presidential party, traveling by automobile, traversed 206 miles of Vermont, New Hampshire and Massachusetts roads in a little more than eight hours. Without police escort and on an unfamiliar route, the motor caravan, made up of a dozen cars, most of them filled with newspaper reporters, and photographers, lost its way half a dozen times.

Leaving Plymouth shortly before noon, after he had been assured that his aged father was on the road to recovery, the President and Mrs. Coolidge traveled for a while over dirt roads that were alternately muddy and dusty. For about 10 miles the presidential limousine went up hill and down over narrow winding roads in a driving rain, the chauffeur travelling slowly for safety. Soon, however, the skies cleared and for the most part the remainder of the journey was made under ideal touring conditions.

Losing his way for the first time near Springfield, Vermont, making it necessary to double back for a short distance, the president's car was halted at a toll bridge over the Connecticut river near Charleston, N. H., a woman toll gate tender assessed the president the customary 15 cents, explaining later that she didn't know who it was as "he didn't announce himself."

As his car sped through the village of Gilsum, the president spied a lunch room along the Main street. Stopping his automobile, he went in unannounced and enjoyed lunch with Mrs. Coolidge of sandwiches and coffee.

Continuing his journey through Keene, N. H., where the first people in considerable numbers recognized him, the president crossed the state line and went through the heart of the Fifth Congressional district which was holding a special election today to fill the seat made vacant by the death of the late Representative John Jacob Rogers.

In Lowell, the president's car passed a parade of automobile floats placarded with slogans for former Gov. Foss, the democratic nominee. A short distance further, the presidential caravan lost its way for the first of four times in Lowell and the president's chauffeur received a rebuke from a traffic policeman for stopping in a "no parking" zone while he got his bearings. Finding its way out of Lowell, the president's party got mixed up on the route several more times before slowing up at White Court gate an hour before dark.

At his summer home here the president found waiting advices from Dr. James F. Coupal, his personal physician who remained at Plymouth, that his father was continuing to gain ground.

HAYNES TO RUN FOR GOVERNOR OF OHIO

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP)—Roy A. Haynes, federal prohibition commissioner for the last four years, is expected to resign in time to enter the race for governor of Ohio next year.

Plans for placing the prohibition commissioner's name in the Ohio gubernatorial primaries are to be considered at an early conference in Washington. While it is regarded as almost certain that he will enter the campaign for the Republican nomination, formal announcement of his candidacy is not expected for several weeks, perhaps longer.

CONDITION OF COL. COOLIDGE "SATISFACTORY"

PLYMOUTH, Vt., June 30.—(AP)—The condition of Col. John C. Coolidge, father of the president, was announced as "satisfactory" by the four attending physicians after their consultation late today. Col. Coolidge sat up for 40 minutes and will sit up for a few minutes more this evening. His heart and pulse were not sufficiently above normal to cause anxiety, the physicians' bulletin said.

NEW GASOLINE TAX IN EFFECT TODAY

NEW HAVEN, June 30—(A. P.)—The new state tax on gasoline, amounting to two cents will go into effect tomorrow morning. The tax is to be levied on each gallon of gasoline sold within the state.

WILLIMANTIC

Ex-President Harry W. Standish of Willimantic Rotary club gave a very interesting account of the recent Cleveland convention which he attended as a delegate from the local body, at the weekly meeting and luncheon held in the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday noon. There were several guests present at the meeting including Harold W. Baldwin, of Danielson, with C. Harry Branch, Royden W. Sweet, of Portsmouth, N. H., formerly manager of the local F. W. Woolworth & Co. store and Carl Erikson, of Ridgefield, N. J., who is in charge of Camp Yankee at Crystal Lake, Eastford. The song leader for the day was Raymond A. Parker. The meeting was in charge of President John F. Ahern. Cigars were passed to the assemblage by Prof. "Dick" Dodge.

Announcement was made of the Eastern Connecticut Rotary club field day at Ashland Park, Jewett City, July 16. The committee in charge of the music from the local club comprises Gerard E. Loiselle, Harry W. Standish and G. Everett Harrington. George H. Shafer was excused from attendance at the regular meetings of the club for the next six weeks. The secretary was instructed to send a letter of sympathy to Mayor George W. Hickey, a member of the club, in his recent bereavement in the loss of his brother, Louis F. Hickey.

The program was then turned over to Richard E. Dodge, chairman of the program committee who announced that the regular noon-day meetings would be held throughout the summer with short programs and evening sessions once each month. The next evening meeting will be on July 28. An entertainment feature for this gathering is being prepared by Gerard E. Loiselle, Frank H. Foss and James P. Bath.

A ceremonial was staged in connection with the official adoption of the new club banner with remarks by Frank H. Foss, expressing and interpreting the symbols thereon and the hanging by Aime J. Martineau. It is planned to preserve the old banner as a memento of the birth of the local organization, which was sponsored by the Norwich Rotary club.

Delegate Standish stated that Rotary International now embraces 2,975 clubs representing 130,000 members in every section of the globe with a continued and healthy growth in every instance. Several hundred clubs are awaiting charters. Mr. Standish presented the club a group picture of the delegates assembled. There were fifteen thousand in attendance of whom over two thousand were accredited delegates.

An agreement has been reached between the local guarantors' committee for Chautauque and the central office that it would be best, both for this city and the future of the movement here to pass up Willimantic this year, due to the American Thread company strike and the local industrial condition in general. Considerable regret has been expressed by the many strong supporters of Chautauque because of this decision. However, all who are closely connected with the work, approve the considerate action of the Chautauqua association in releasing the guarantors and taking the loss resulting from the change in plans. It is believed generally that the contract entered into by the present guarantors was one which could be carried out without a deficit, if conditions were normal here. Therefore the project is abandoned for this year with considerable regret. There is a determination however, to make next year's Chautauqua successful from every standpoint. There appears to be no doubt but that the contract for next season will be signed by all of this year's guarantors and a number more who desire the best things for this city. Dr. William E. Bohn was in Willimantic a few days ago consulting with Rev. Frederick C. Williams, chairman of the local committee and others interested with the result that this action was decided upon.

It is possible that a game will be played between the South Windham All-Stars and the local West Ends before the end of the season. Manager "Sammy" Heller of the West Ends has issued a sweeping defi to the suburbanites and is doing more than his share in making arrangements for such a game or series of games, but he has been notified that the All-Stars are booked solid for July and will not have an open date of any kind until August. These two teams represent the best in this section this year. A comparison of them, player by player, would seem to indicate that they are very well matched. The ace of the West Ends' pitching staff is DeMarchi, former Windham High school captain and it is gossip that he has improved remarkably since leaving school. The premier boxman in the All-Stars' collection is Alfred Mathewson, formerly affiliated with the American Thread Athletic association games for a number of years. Both teams have been signally successful in their contests to date, this year. The West Ends, who opened their season about ten days ago after some of their college players had returned, have won all three of their starts, while South Windham has been going along in an equally successful manner.

Leonard Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Davis, of No. 122 Bridge street, played Monday evening in a violin recital at the Hartford School of Music for the closing of the season. Master Davis played the March from Tannhauser (Wagner) for his part of the program. He has completed a two-year course under the direction of Prof. Alfred Troemel, of New York. Previous to this he had been instructed by Miss Mary Rose Blanchette of this city for two years. Now at the age of eight he is equipped as a solo artist.

Arrangements have been completed for a second automobile sunset service at Columbia Green, Sunday next, when C. C. Haun, pastor of the Columbia Congregational church, is to take charge of the music and promises the attendance of an orchestra and several band pieces. Rev. Frederick C. Williams, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church of this city will have charge of the service and will preach. There will be a number of well-known hymns sung by the congregation, accompanied by the orchestra, special solos and the impressive vesper service. The time of the service has been arranged for 6:30 o'clock so that it may be possible to gather on the Green at twilight. William S. Johnson, Emil Bernet and Herbert Dawson are making the arrangements in this city.

Richard Spellman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Spellman, of No. 426 Pleasant street, was given a birthday party on his eighth birthday recently, on the lawn at his home. Ms. Walter Atkins and son, Oliver Atkins, of Tariffville, were out-of-town guests. A luncheon was served and many games were played. Master Spellman received many gifts.

The season's first card party at Willimantic Country club, held Monday afternoon, proved a very successful affair. There were about eighty present, including guests. The room had been decorated with foliage, the corners being banked solidly. Fruit punch and cakes were served during the afternoon. Mrs. Chester M. Scripture won the first prize at auction and Mrs. James H. Johnson, of Scotland, at 500.

More than thirty members of Willimantic lodge, No. 130, American Benefit Society are expected to attend the second annual excursion and outing to Rocky Point Saturday. The excursionists will leave this city by automobile at 6:30 o'clock. The committee of arrangements for the affair consists of Joseph Steiner, chairman, Eugene J. Randall, Charles Buckingham, William Greene, George Dutton and William Lonergan.

Some time ago it was announced that plans of the street department, committee of the common council called for the resurfacing of that portion of Church street from Main to Valley. Delay in the shipments of stone to be used in making the repairs has held up this work but now it is intended to commence operations within a short time. The work will be under the supervision of John S. Sullivan, street superintendent. The thoroughfare will be ploughed up, filled in with stone to a depth of about twelve inches, layers of fine trap rock and siftings added and the whole rolled and oiled. This section of the street has been in poor condition for some time, so the change will be greatly appreciated.

The plant of the Holland Silk Manufacturing company closed down Tuesday afternoon for the balance of the week, for the annual inventory. The Goyer Manufacturing company which turns out radio parts and other accessories is shut down for two weeks for a similar purpose.

The carriers and clerks at the local post office will start their annual vacations today (Wednesday) each man having fifteen days away from duty. The first to start will be Captain Joseph R. Morrison and Louis Moran, clerks and Dwight Wi lde and William Harold, carriers. Captain Morrison is to off duty for the entire month, fifteen days of which will be spent with his command, Company C, 169th Infantry, Connecticut National Guard, at Niantic.

Word was received here of the death Monday morning, in Haverhill, Mass., of Mrs. Elijah Hatch, 93. For many years she had made her home with her son, Ernest N. Hatch, in Haverhill. Besides the latter, she is survived by two daughters, Misses Grace and Ada Hatch, of Haverhill.

DWYER-DRISCOLL WEDDING SOLEMNIZED AT ST. MARY'S

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, June 30.—The marriage of Miss Mary J. Driscoll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Driscoll, and William J. Dwyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dwyer, was solemnized with a nuptial high mass at St. Mary's church, Tuesday morning. Rev. Alfred F. Driscoll, of Bridgeport, a cousin of the bride, officiated, assisted by Rev. J. J. McCabe and Rev. J. J. Tyler. Rev. John J. Reilly, of St. Patrick's church, Norwich, was seated in the sanctuary.

As the bridal party advanced to the altar, the wedding march from Lohengrin was played by an orchestra composed of Miss Mary Boylan, violin; James F. Boylan, cello, both cousins of the bride, from Providence, and James Olson, the church organist.

The bride wore an exquisite gown of ivory satin with court train and garnitures of real lace and pearls. Her tulle veil was caught with orange-blossoms. Her arm bouquet was of Easter lilies. Her bridesmaid was her sister, Miss Nora C. Driscoll, who was gowned in coral satin and georgette, with hat to match and carried a bouquet of butterfly roses. The best man was Richard Provost, the groom's nephew, of Plainfield. During the ceremony, at the offertory, Ave Maria, by Chase, was sung by Miss Sadie Driscoll, the bride's cousin, from Norwich. After the nuptial mass she sang O Perfect Love.

Following the church ceremony, a reception was held at the Wauregan in Norwich and breakfast was served to eighty guests. The beautiful table decorations were by Geduldig. Guests were present from New York, Newark, N. J., Portland, Ore., Providence and Westerly, R. I., Norwich, Plainfield and Jewett City. Following a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Dwyer will live in a newly furnished apartment in New London. Both are well known and very popular in Jewett City. The bride received many valuable and useful gifts.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Out of the south, as June was dying, there came at regular intervals Tuesday night, section after section of the Bar Harbor express, bearing northward to Maine's summer resorts hundreds who find no great difficulty in setting aside the time and money for a summer vacation in a real holiday land. Danielson people who rather enjoy watching this northward flight of the elect each June 30th, were out in numbers Tuesday night to see the Bar Harbor expresses roll through. Today (Wednesday) bringing the opening of July and the week bringing the great holiday of the summer, means that the traffic northward on the luxurious trains referred to will reach the peak of the season, unless the period at August 1, tops it.

Due to the fact that this bank is closed on Saturday, the Fourth of July, and Sunday, the fifth, all money deposited in the Brooklyn Savings Bank on or before July 6th, will draw interest from the first.—Adv.

Anent the furore that publication of features of the will of Irving Wood, of Boston, has created in eastern Connecticut, where there are various beneficiaries of the deceased, Edward Y. Cutler, of Central Village, writes The Bulletin that Mr. Wood's father, Darius Wood, kept a store at Central Village a number of years before moving to Webster to engage in business and that Irving was resident in Central Village about 1850.

Another link associating Mr. Wood with this section was mentioned Tuesday by Attorney Arthur G. Bill. Attorney Bill acted as representative here, years ago, for Mr. Wood in handling certain high grade investments, a basis of the Wood fortune. Attorney Bill disposed in this area of a half a million dollars worth of certain securities for Mr. Wood, with whom he was in periodical touch up to within a very few years.

Bass fishermen will note that fishing in Alexander's lake is restricted to Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays; that fishing on other days is illegal under the statute. Tomorrow (Thursday) will be the first day on which sportsmen may rightfully take their first try of the season for bass in this lake.

Tuesday morning, funeral services for Octave Cusson, one of the oldest residents of Wauregan, were held at the Sacred Heart church in that place by Rev. J. C. Mathieu, with relatives and many friends in attendance. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery. The bearers were Joseph Cusson, Marjorie Cusson, Alpherie Poirier, Arthur Poirier, Henry Poirier and Ernest Poirier. L. E. Kennedy was the funeral director in charge.

June was a quiet month in the town court of Killingly, an evidence of the tranquility in the communities of this township. The few cases that came before the court had to do with misdemeanors of a minor nature.

It is understood that the New Haven railroad is giving serious consideration to giving constant gate service at the Main street crossing in Danielson. No gate tender is on duty at this crossing after 9 p. m. yet two trunk line highways carry heavy traffic over it after that hour.

Windham county dairymen have shown interest in the announcement that Windham County Fair plans a great cattle exhibit in September and that Lester B. Williams is in charge of this feature of the show.

Publicity relative to the possibility of a strike of hard coal miners in August has not escaped the attention of those here who always keep one eye looking straight at the future.

Samuel Rosoff, who recently disposed of his automobile interests in Putnam, was a visitor in Danielson, Tuesday. Mr. Rosoff is to locate in Worcester and will be associated with the L. A. W. corporation, which was established in Putnam.

As in other recent years, the coming exhibit of Chautauqua in Danielson will be on the graded school grounds, off School street.

Today—July 1—brings into actuality the newly authorized town court of Plainfield, over which Judge George R. Torrey will preside. Hereafter this court will hear all criminal cases arising in the town of Plainfield, a duty heretofore devolving upon justices of the town. The court will be at Central Village.

Sisters of St. Joseph from the convent of St. James' parish are making their customary summer vacation stay in Hartford.

Manufacturing plants here will close Friday evening for the holiday period, giving employes a full double holiday.

The Alice-Eleanor shop will be open Friday evening. The shop has many beautiful things that are exactly suitable for holiday wear and invites your inspection.—Adv.

Extra police officers will be on duty here, Friday evening, to see that the night before the Fourth does not become too boisterous and that proper decorum is maintained.

The end of the first half of 1925, finds Danielson more generally prosperous than is the lot of many textile communities in southern New England. The same is true of all the town of Killingly.

Cassuis A. Hamilton, a veteran of the Spanish-American war, is listed in the roster of the Service battery, now en route to Tobyhanna, Pa. Mr. Hamilton is serving as a company cook, a post in which he has had long experience with military companies.

This area was benefited by another rainfall amounting to practically one inch, the storm ending during the early hours of Tuesday morning. The rain of the past ten days has brought the surplus supply of water up to a standard not reached since early spring.

Scores who went from Danielson, Tuesday, for the Union Sunday school picnic at Webster lake, had a delightful time and one of the ideal days of the season. Basket lunches were served and there was a program of sports and other entertainment.

July 1, the day that an extra cent per gallon state tax goes on gasoline, and the day the bass fishing season opens. Like other days, something to grouch about and still something to make one happy.

During the past six months, the Windham County National bank, Danielson, Conn., has added to its surplus account $50,000, which now makes the surplus account three times that of the capital account, and consequently means more protection for depositors. The savings department of the Windham County National bank, Danielson, Conn., offers more protection for the depositors.—Adv.

Gone away in a fleet of motor trucks shortly after daybreak, this morning, the officers and men of the Service battery will not return to Danielson until July 22. They are the first unit of the 192nd field artillery to leave for the annual tour of field service at Tobyhanna, Pa., and will be about the last to leave that place, the special duties assigned to them making their field service longer than for most other outfits of the regiment. In camp the Service battery will have a complement of about 110 officers and enlisted men, for the battery roster includes the regimental band of 31 men, stationed at New London, and other members especially assigned for the camp period.

The doctrine of a safe and sane Fourth is being advocated for Danielson. This does not mean, however, that there is to be a damper on having a good time and making note of the anniversary of national independence by indulging in the time-honored use of firecrackers, other explosives and fireworks. The Fourth may be safe and sane and at the same time as noisy as the forefathers used to make it. Advance sales of fireworks here indicate a very liberal display on the holiday. Use of revolvers, as in other recent years, is prohibited by celebrators, and police will seize and confiscate such weapons at first opportunity. This rule will be rigidly enforced. A point of interest is that no alien has a right to carry firearms and will be doubly guilty if caught shooting one on the Fourth.

PUTNAM

The annual tournament for the Washington cup is to take place on the Woodstock Golf links, Saturday, July 4. As Owen J. White of Putnam was the winner for three years in succession, the cup, given to the club by W. Lanie Washington, of New York, is now Mr. White's property. A new cup, called the Washington cup, will be given by the Woodstock Golf club, to the person making the best eighteen-hole score on the fourth of July. The cup will be held by the winner for a year.

Prizes will also be given to the woman for nine holes, and for men for eighteen holes, on the fourth of July.

Score cards are to be turned in to Miss Sylvia Holt, either at the golf links on July 4, or at her home at Roseland, Woodstock Hill.

The Faucher bakery, established by Arthur Faucher has been sold to people from Boston and will hereafter be known as the Boston Bakery.

Miss Katherine Noyes of Stamford is visiting her aunt, Miss Noyes at Topsfield, Pomfret.

Miss Elizabeth Bigelow, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. F. H. Bigelow of Pomfret leaves this week for a girls' camp in Maine where she will spend the summer.

Mr. Delie with John Bigelow and Frederick Wicks left Monday for Lone Pine Camp in the Adirondacks to spend the summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Clarke of Hartford are spending their honeymoon at the North Cottage of the Ben Grosvenor Inn, at Pomfret. Mrs. Clarke is well known to Pomfret people as Miss Mabel Perkins. Mr. Clarke is secretary of the Hartford Courant. Miss Perkins and Mr. Clarke were married last week at the bride's home in Hartford.

Among those at the Ben Grosvenor Inn, Pomfret, who attended the Porter-Van Name wedding were Mrs. Walcott Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Betts, Mrs. Calvert, the Misses Cook, Mrs. G. B. Wells, Miss Theodora Van Name, also Messrs Sterrett, Mendel, Sargent, Dann, Ralph Van Name and Willard Van Name.

Mrs. Duncan Wood of Long Island will visit her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Hopnin for a few weeks before sailing for Europe.

Mrs. Edward Bell of New York is spending the summer at Pomfret.

Miss Mary McGarry of Church street met her sister, Miss Margaret McGarry in Boston and they left from there for San Francisco, to visit their brother, Patrick Connell, formerly of Putnam.

Members of Putnam Grange are to visit Brooklyn Grange on the evening of July 14, for Neighbors' night of the latter organization.

Misses Elizabeth and Marguerite Grosvenor of Malden, Mass., are spending the summer with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Grosvenor at Pomfret.

Camp Woodstock, the tri-county Y M. C. A. camp located on Black Pond at No. Woodstock will be opened today (Wednesday) for the season. For the past five days there has been a leaders' training period at the camp and there have been about thirty men and boys enrolled for that. Those from Putnam include E. S. Duffey, Sidney King, Harvey Delorme, J. C. Stoddard Jr., and Augustus Wilson. John Bova of Holyoke, Mass., formerly of Putnam has also been there.

The first period of the boys' camp begins today (Wednesday). For this many boys from Putnam are registered, also a number from other Windham county towns. This period is for two weeks. Beginning July 15 and lasting until the 29th is the second period, while a third period of only one week starts July 29 and ends August 5.

The registration by committees for camp is as follows:

	1st.	2nd.	3rd.
Hartford county	66	34	19
Windham county	46	37	20
Tolland county	8	18	2
	120	89	41

Applications are being filed with County Secretary John H. Corbett at his office in Putnam. The capacity for the first period is practically reached but for the second and third there is still room available.

Ensign W. J. F. Rafferty of the U. S. S. Utah, and now at Boston spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Rafferty, of Grove street.

FATHER DONAHUE EXPLAINS WAYS TO IMPROVE PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, June 30—The Putnam Chamber of Commerce celebrated the closing of its membership campaign, in which more than 100 new members were secured, by a public meeting last evening at Odd Fellows' hall at which Rev. George L. Donahue of Pomfret was the speaker. In spite of the rain there was a very large attendance.

Father Donahue has attained a reputation as an orator of unusual ability, a reputation that was fully justified by his address at the meeting.

George L. Padgett, chairman of the committee for the evening presided. He referred to the exceptionally hearty response in the campaign for new members. "One of the arguments advanced to secure new members was," he said, "the fact that in normal times the Chamber of Commerce was a very desirable thing, that in times of business and financial stress, such as Putnam had known for the past year, the Chamber of Commerce was a positive necessity."

He presented Thomas H. deCoudres, the new president, who spoke briefly on what the Chamber of Commerce stood for, what it had accomplished and what it was striving to accomplish. "An infinite amount of work," he said, "is being done constantly by the directors and other officers of the Chamber looking to the welfare of the community. Part of the work reaches the attention of the public and a very great amount is never known about except to those engaged in it. To be a working member of the Chamber of Commerce means that you give a great deal and draw nothing out, except what is represented in improved conditions."

As an instance he cited the fact that four of the directors had that day driven 130 miles in the furtherance of a project of interest to the entire community. He also mentioned some of the things that had been secured by the Chamber, or with the co-operation of the Chamber and he urged everyone who had any grievance or any suggestions to bring it before the body. His talk was heartily applauded.

The chairman said that it was a good thing for communities as well as individuals to know what others thought of them. They would be told by the speaker of the evening the estimation in which Putnam was held by its nearest neighbor, Pomfret, and that this viewpoint would be given by one of Pomfret's prominent citizens, one most capable of judging and who would express that judgment frankly and sincerely.

The subject of Father Donahue's address was "A Pomfret View of Putnam." It was a scholarly, interesting, eloquent address. He said that although a resident of Pomfret he felt that he belonged to the family of Putnam, that he was interested in its success and would gladly aid in any way to help forward its interests.

"One of the most vital needs of Putnam," he said, "is for its business men, its merchants, to convince the people of Pomfret and other surrounding towns that they adhered to a fair and unfior mprice in the sale of their goods. Press that conviction home to the people of your surrounding towns and they will invariably and always think of Putnam as their trading center. Let them believe the opposite and in these days of swift traveling automobiles and motor buses their trade will be diverted to other places."

He laid especial emphasis on this point and urged the Chamber of Commerce to make it one of the accomplishments of the coming year. The necessity for securing such confidence, he declared, did not need any argument.

He paid a compliment to the way in which the citizens of Putnam had faced the business disaster which befell it a year ago, but he urged its hearers not to dwell on it more than is absolutely necessary; it is a thing of the past and they should look to the future.

There were two main criticisms he had to offer regarding the town. One was its deplorable lack of interest, as far as he could judge, in reading, in the love of literature and a realization that only through the knowledge contained in books could a community elevate itself to a higher place. The other was, what seemed to him, a lack of Americanism. There is too little of the American spirit, its citizens do not exhibit a proper realization of what it means to be an American and to take pride in that fact.

He instanced the recent failure of a proper observance of Memorial Day, that but for the efforts of a few citizens, even the graves of the soldier dead would not have been decorated. No attention was paid to Flag Day and apparently the Fourth of July will pass without public celebration.

Father Donahue possesses a well modulated voice which he uses with fine oratorical effect, he has a splendid command of English, he has traveled widely, read comprehensively, all of which contributed to make his address interesting and impressive.

PLAINFIELD

Complaints have been made about parking automobiles too close to the intersection at Winsor avenue, on the Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Gilbert Charron and Miss Agnes LaSarre plan to attend the shoe show at Boston July 7, 8, and 9th.

The Plainfield band is to hold its rehearsal at the Community house tonight (Wednesday).

Gurdon Holmes, one of the liveliest newsboys in town, has held a clear record for over a year. Holmes delivers over one hundred copies of the morning Norwich Bulletin to subscribers before eight o'clock and not one complaint has been registered against him.

Canterbury band, Arthur Holmes leader, will hold their rehearsal Thursday night.

Plainfield this year is to have a safe and sane Fourth. There will be no parade or any public demonstration, as the townspeople will cooperate with Jewett City.

A few men employed on the state highway were laid off Monday, as the completion of the road is near.

Officer Vincent has issued a warning that arrests will be made of boys caught or reported setting off fireworks before Saturday morning.

Richard Provost, local tree surgeon at Great Neck, N. Y., is home for a few days' vacation. Mr. Provost was best man at the marriage of William Dwyer and Miss Driscoll of Jewett City, Tuesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Provost and son, Byron, attended the Dwyer-Driscoll marriage at Jewett City.

Mrs. Fritz Allard is spending a few days' vacation at Ocean Beach with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Moreland, of Darlington, R. I., have spent a few days at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Moreland.

Mrs. John Nolan has returned, after two weeks' visit at the home of her son, William, at Long Branch, N. J. Mr. Nolan is a successful cartoonist.

Albert Bebeau and Ralph Veit have returned from a short visit to relatives at Oak Bluffs.

A number of fishermen took advantage of the last day of trout fishing by calling Tuesday a holiday and whipping the surrounding streams.

The electric car that left the iron Monday afternoon stood on the track at Lawton Siding over night, until inspectors arrived Tuesday.

With the new movie tax going into effect on Wednesday the motion picture men in this district will have to advance admission price.

Tree surgeons are trimming and getting the trees of the village in shape.

Many from the city come to Plainfield as a pleasant resort for the summer. The town has a fine community home, a place for swimming and buildings that a great number of cities lack.

Miss May Evans, student nurse at St. Joseph's hospital, Providence, is home on a few days' vacation.

Miss Irene Evans and Miss Kathleen Ryan, with several other students of Norwich Free Academy, are leaving for Fishers Island, to spend the summer months.

Miss Margaret Dodwell is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Evans.

Contractor J. J. Goggin, of Hartford, sent back two of the hauling trucks, Tuesday as one truck can easily finish up the few yards of cement to be laid.

Tuesday was the first clear day the village has had in a week, a big relief to the tennis players.

This fall at the Plainfield Community house plans are being drawn up to turn the community auditorium into a regular gym. Director Dissinger contemplates starting a men's gymnastic club. The director has received a tennis challenge from the lawn club at Willimantic. Mr. Dissinger has asked local players to give their opinion on this challenge.

People passing by the Dean homestead Thursday afternoon, saw a large crowd of women on the lawn and just a few men. The Woman's club of Plainfield held its annual meeting and picnic as has been the custom for several years. Mrs. George Dean and Mrs. Turner Greene were hostesses, providing a most enjoyable day for the forty-eight members and the several guests. The president, Mrs. Jennie Mathewson, presided at this meeting. After a short business session a fine program was given, including a song by Mrs. Struthers accompanied on the harp, which was encored loudly; a song by Mrs. Albert Gallup, with Mrs. Harold Burke at the piano, followed by a song and dancing by little Miss Rita Fillmore. Then followed a comedette by Mrs. Burke and Mrs. Gallup, who came from Sterling and generously gave these acts to entertain. Later Mrs. Dean and Mrs. Greene served a dainty lunch, with refreshing iced drinks. A most enjoyable afternoon was spent. It was pronounced one of the most interesting sessions of the year. There will be no more meetings until October.

ROCKVILLE

The business meeting of the Seventh Day Baptist church was held Saturday evening at the home of Albert S. Babcock.

The following officers were elected at the Bible school Saturday, to serve for the ensuing year: Superintendent, D. Alta Crandall; assistant superintendent, Rev. Paul S. Burdick; treasurer, Leslie B. Kenyon; secretary, Mrs. Florence Lewis; assistant, Miss Grace Jordan.

Rev. and Mrs. Paul S. Burdick and three children and Mr. and Mrs. Erlo G. Barber spent Tuesday of last week, at Quonset Point.

Mrs. Carlton Irish and three children, Mrs. Elbert Blacklock and son, and Mrs. George L. Barber spent Wednesday at Charlestown Beach.

Mrs. Z. L. Kenyon has been ill for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hill and daughter, Miss Helen Hill, of Ashaway, who are spending the summer at their cottage at Yawgo pond, attended church here Saturday.

Frank H. Saunders has moved to Moscow.

Chicago Playgrounds Provide Varied Entertainment

Recreation and entertainment, indoors and out, at all seasons of the year are planned by the Chicago playground department. During 1924, 58 events were promoted as city-wide projects in the public schools. These varied from ice skating and junior police to clay modeling, and from pet shows to clean-up campaigns. In the Hallowe'en celebrations arranged by the department as many as 5,000 people took part on some of the grounds. A city-wide balloting on preferences, participated in by 10,583 boys, gave first choice to playground ball. The girls, with 3,957 voting, gave first choice to ice skating, with volley ball a close second.

That parent-teacher associations are valued by public-school officials becomes every year more apparent. An official inquiry conducted in Massachusetts showed that 112 superintendents consider parent-teacher associations a vital factor in promoting closer relations between the home and the school, and 82 superintendents rely upon these associations for support of programs for educational improvement.

POETRY

THE LITTLE BEACH-BIRD.

Thou little bird, thou dweller by the sea,
Why takest thou thy melancholy voice,
And with that boding cry
Why o'er the waves dost fly?
O, rather, bird, with me
Through the fair land rejoice!

Thy flitting form comes ghostly dim and pale,
As driven by a beating storm at sea;
Thy cry is weak and scared,
As if thy mates had shared
The doom of us. Thy wail,—
What doth it bring to me?

Thou call'st along the sand, and haunt'st the surge,
Restless and sad; as if, in strange accord
With the motion and the roar
Of waves that drive to shore,
One spirit did ye urge—
The Mystery—the Word.

Of thousands, thou, both sepulchre and pall,
Old Ocean! A requiem o'er the dead,
From out thy gloomy cells,
Form of mourning tells,— Tells of man's woe and fall,
His sinless glory fled.

Then turn thee little bird, and take thy flight
Where the complaining sea shall sadness bring Thy spirit nevermore.
Come, quit with me the shore,
For gladness and the light,
Where birds of summer sing.

SEA-BIRDS.

O lonesome sea-gull, floating far
Over the ocean's icy waste,
Aimless and wide thy wanderings are,
Forever vainly seeking rest:—
Where is thy mate, and where thy nest?

Twixt wintry sea and wintry sky,
Cleaving the keen air with thy breast,
Thou sailest slowly, solemnly;
No fetter on thy wing is pressed:—
Where is thy mate, and where thy nest?

O restless, homeless human soul,
Following for aye thy nameless quest,
The gulls float, and the billows roll;
Thou watchest still, and questionest:—
Where is thy mate, and where thy nest?
—Elizabeth Akers.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Stea—It does my heart good to see red mix punch!

Med—How's that?

Stea—He puts everything he's got into it.—Darthmouth Jack O' Lantern.

What's the national sport of England?

Soccer, I guess.

No, the Prince of Wales.—Penn. State Froth.

He—Would you go out with a man who has a yellow streak in him?

She—That depends on whether he spends it or not.—Denver University Parrakeet.

Hern—Isn't this a stupid party?

Her—Yes.

Hern—But why not let me take you home?

Her—Sorry, I live here.—Columbia Jester.

Gertie—Did you see that street car conductor look at you as if you had not paid your fare?

Dora—Yes, and I looked back at him just as if I had paid it.—Parie-Le Rire.

Old Lady (visiting state Prison)—I suppose, my poor man, it was poverty brought you to this.

Counterfeiter—On the contrary mum, I was just coining money.—New Haven Register.

Two workmen were wheeling dirt in wheelbarrows. The boss went up to one of them and said:

"Look here you! Your mate's wheeling four wheelbarrow loads to your one!"

"Well," snarled the workman, "don't blame me. I've told him about it a dozen times already.—Los Angeles Times.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Soldiers of the Norwegian army last year planted 41,600 trees.

The original Magna Charta is in the British museum and is protected by every means known to science.

Italian senators receive no fixed salary but receive 100 lire (about $4.50) for each sitting they attend.

It is estimated that a man working hard on a summer's day loses 7.7 per cent of his body weight in 24 hours.

Aerial photographers are being used in field artillery practice for computing the positions of targets invisible from the gun position.

The number of motor cars manufactured in the United States in a month is more than four times as great as the number of bathtubs shipped from factories during the same period.

Ham and eggs have replaced porridge as the popular breakfast dish in Scotland. The decline of the use of porridge, it was brought out recently at a board of agriculture inquiry, is attributed to a change in the national diet and began ten or twelve years ago.

The great pyramid of Egypt erected more than 5,000 years ago, is still unequaled in massiveness of construction. It far exceeds anything that any other nation, ancient or modern, has ever attempted. Its original height was just over 480 feet, and the length of each side at the base is 764 feet.

A party of Japanese, including expert divers, expects to leave soon for Port Said to engage in salvaging the government transport Yasaka Maru, which was sent to the bottom of the Mediterranean by German submarines during the world war. The transport had on board gold bullion valued at $500,000. The Japanese will attempt also to salvage the British liner Egypt, which was sunk by submarines near Marseilles with $1,000,000 on board.

The U. S. S. Saratoga, built to carry seventy-two fighting planes for the navy, with the most powerful engines ever put into a vessel, was launched recently at Camden, N. J. The ship dynamos and steam turbines were constructed for extraordinary speed and would carry her across the Atlantic in less than four days. The ship is 888 feet long, making her the longest naval craft in the world. The flying field which covers her is long and wide enough to hold two old-time battleships set end to end.

That highways should be designed with extra thick edges is indicated by a survey made by the United States bureau of public roads. This investigation showed the motor trucks are habitually driven closer to the edge than passenger vehicles and that the heaviest load placed on the pavement comes about six inches from the edge. Drivers of speeding vehicles tend to crowd closer to the center. Too high a crown to the highway or a bad shoulder also causes machines to run nearer the middle. Highways should be at least 18 feet wide and not over twenty feet wide for two-way traffic, the experts declared after the observation.

FEDERAL AID

When the governor of Maryland spoke to the governors of the country assembled at Poland Springs he voiced his opposition to the plan of giving federal aid to the states. When such aid is extended it is realized of course that some one has to pay for it. The bulk of such payments come from less than half of the states and it was the contention of Governor Ritchie that they get only about ten per cent. of what they furnish in the way of taxes. Thus when he argued that it would be much better for them to raise the equivalent of what they receive in taxing themselves than it is for them to endorse and support federal aid the greater part of which goes to other states whose contributions are decidedly meagre.

The idea of the federal aid proposition is for the government to encourage a general development throughout the nation, and particularly in those sections which are disposed to be backward because of large areas and small populations. It is a case of many states not only bearing their own burdens but shouldering those of the others, pouring their funds into a government pool from which they get only a small part of what they save, while others turn in little and draw out much. With 31 states paying 95 per cent. of all the federal taxes he asks how long they are going to continue to stand for such a policy which works so beautifully for the benefit of others.

When he insists that such a scheme as federal aid destroys the resourcefulness and initiative of the states which are made the beneficiaries of it he furnishes much food for thought. There has been much opposition to so much centralization of government as sought by certain federal legislation. The Maryland governor furnishes a strong plea for decided changes in the matter of federal aid.

WEARING OUT A WELCOME

Is the time coming when the motorist will find that he has worn out his welcome? There have been evidences that there are points where such an attitude prevails today because of the manner in which the rights of others have been abused. Privileges which have been allowed in the past have been curtailed because those who availed themselves of them proceeded to take advantage of good nature. Having made a nuisance of themselves and created conditions which no reasonable person could tolerate they find permission is now denied them to enjoy the pleasures as in the past, and the restrictions of necessity apply to all others as well.

Never before has it been possible for so many people to get into the country as it is now with the good roads and the automobiles. This means getting into close touch with what the countryside has to offer in the way of attractions. But even as there is a disposition to tear down and destroy there is also the inclination to uproot and waste.

This brings forth a plea for the preservation of the wild flowers. They are attractive and they make a strong appeal. It might even be urged that picking them does no one any harm. This would be admitted even by the ardent lovers of the wild flowers if discretion were used. But it is too often the case that everything in sight is taken, and with such a policy followed by the great number of motorists it can be appreciated that the days of even the numerous wild flowers will soon be limited. The rarer the flower the more serious the raids. Strange as it may seem such onslaughts are seldom direct against the too numerous wild carrot.

"TOO MUCH EASY MONEY"

President L. C. Palmer of the United States Fleet corporation has been talking to the National Foreign Trade convention about our government owned merchant marine and he furnished the interesting information that one of the great difficulties with the handling of this enterprise was the fact that it had no difficulty in getting funds for all purposes and as the result it gave too little attention to earning money. When such a government undertaking gets to the point where "instead of getting down to real business and trying to come somewhere near living within its income it was depending unduly upon the national treasury" as declared by President Palmer, there is indicated a tendency which is characteristic of government ownership.

It makes a big difference whether the merchant marine is being operated on a good business basis or whether it is simply being operated with the knowledge that there are plenty of government funds to be drawn upon no matter what returns are received. President Palmer has not gotten the merchant marine to the point where it is making money, or where it is breaking even. The expenses are still larger than the revenue and yet by the methods he has introduced he is cutting down the losses perceptibly. When cargo vessels have been run at a loss of $25,000 a voyage and he reduces that loss to $17,000 the reduction isn't keeping the outgo within the revenue but it is nevertheless an appreciable gain and most certainly progress in the right direction.

It shows a different attitude in regard to administering a government proposition from what had been manifested. At the present time consideration is being given to something else than the easy money which has been available in the past. The head of the fleet corporation is working hand in hand with the administration in the interest of sound business and economy. It is getting results, but it is quite apparent that there is still opportunity for further improvement, which if we mistake not is within the plans of the present head of that corporation.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT WORKING

In the 15th annual report of the National association for the Advancement of Colored People attention is directed to the reduction in the number of lynchings in this country from 65 in 1920 to 16 in 1924, and the belief is expressed that this change has been largely brought about because of the effort, and the publicity attending it, to pass a federal anti-lynching law.

Perhaps it would be impossible to put the finger on the most effective cause of this commendable reduction. That the endeavor to get the anti-lynching law had its good effects is entirely probable. It no doubt caused many in the so-called lynching states to realize that unless they dealt with this problem themselves the job would be turned over to the government. But it unquestionably created an increased amount of discussion concerning mob rule and the defiance of law and order. It thus served to aid in the education of many people. It gets consideration where it had never received it before, and it undoubtedly served to rouse the state authorities to a different conception of their responsibilities.

The fight against lynching has been going on for several decades. It is to be expected that the present generation will take a much different view of it than did those which have gone. Lynching places a blot on the good name of any state. It is a practice which no civilized nation should think of tolerating. It has been decreasing under the fight that has been waged against it. The threat to deal with the evil through a federal law has probably reacted in much the same way that the attempt to get an amendment to the Constitution of the United Sates dealing with child labor has upon child labor conditions in many of the commonwealths. The leaven appears to be working even though the laws have not been secured, and those who are concerned are looking at the conditions with different eyes and facing the problems in a different manner than was the disposition in the past. Public sentiment is being brought to the point where it bids fair to guide the mob spirit without the necessity of federal enactment. There could be no better solution.

CUTTING VISA FEES

It doesn't appear that much progress has as yet been made in reducing or abandoning the visa fees exacted of foreign visitors, but with a start having been made there is hope that it will mean that all will see the wisdom of similar action and adopt a similar course.

Because one nation adopted and exacted an admission fee it was inevitable that all should do likewise. One could not see its subjects mulcted to the tune of $10 each without making up its mind to treat the people of other countries the same way when they knocked for admittance at its boundary. The result has been that those who have traveled in Europe have been crushed heavily every time they crossed from one country to another till it became evident that such a practice was having its effect upon the tourists and the curtailment of their itinerary was being felt.

A general understanding between nations for the elimination of, or a substantial reduction in the amount of such charge would quickly overcome the protests and opposition to the visa charge, and it would likewise check the disposition to avoid it. It is therefore an important step which has been taken by Spain in coming to an agreement with this country whereby the visa fee is reduced to $1.50 and certainly that should remove one of the impediments which those with the small pocketbook have discovered in making their tour of Europe.

The countries of Europe are looking for the benefits which come from the tourists. There are some which are disposed to offer discouragement rather than encouragement to such visitors and the effect is to cause them to go elsewhere. It is not solely the visa fee which is responsible for this attitude but the high costs in such countries are in keeping with the unfavorableness of the visa fees. The effect is just the opposite of what they desire. Spain has come to a recognition of this fact and it is not improbable that it will be followed by similar action on the part of others.

A DISILLUSIONED WOMAN

"I am a disillusioned woman," said the fluffy haired blond, removing her Peter Pan hat with one hand and waving the other dramatically. "And I'll have you to understand that's a dangerous frame of mind for a spinster like me. It might lead me to desperate lengths, like going into the movies or even into literary clubs. And then," she added, gloomily, "I should get ideas about modern poetry, so called, and the lady-chairman manner."

She shuddered, and helped herself to chocolate peppermints.

"Indigestion?" inquired the young matron with the auburn wave, sympathetically.

"Far from it," affirmed the fluffy-haired blond. "I have been eating chicken a la Wales and lobster salad at unheard of hours of the night for weeks, not to mention three assorted meals a day and a ton or two of candy. You see, I'm recently back from a visit in Baltimore, and all the time I was gone I was worried for fear the family was needing me at home. It distracted my mind."

"Yes, your postcards sounded like it," interrupted the young matron, ironically. "I suppose you spent the entire afternoon when at the football game, for instance, wondering whether Uncle Jim was getting enough of his favorite dessert. And, by the way, who was the Col. Somebody who figured so prominently in your bulletins?"

The fluffy-haired blond smiled. "An offering from my hostess," she explained affably. "A widower retired, and living in Washington. He has a bristling mustache, four married daughters and pays a large income tax. And he told me all about his golf game. All," she added sadly.

The sewing circle chuckled with glee. "No wonder you had leisure to worry about the home folks' desserts," said the young matron, "but I suppose you made a couple of cakes and some mince pices before you left?"

"Three cakes," corrected the fluffy-haired blond. "But it wasn't that I was uneasy about. I had an idea that the family was going to droop and pine for lack of my effervescent society. My hostess did point out to me that I was probably mistaken. She said she had an idea the family was having the time of its life without anybody bossing around."

"The colonel pointed that out, too, I presume" interrupted the young matron, in parentheses.

"Oh, certainly," the fluffy-haired blond agreed. "He said that while every one of his daughters had been reluctant to marry and leave him and had assured him with tears in her eyes that no man could ever be as good as he had been, still, after all," he said, 'after all—'"

The listeners shouted again with glee; all but the newest and youngest member, who looked reproachful. "Really, girls," she said, "I think this colonel person sounds awfully nice and considerate. And I expect your family really did miss you terribly."

"Well," said the fluffy-haired blond, doubtfully, "I could do with quite a good bit of reassurance, believe me."

"The day I got home one of my best friends called up and asked me to go to his fraternity ball. Said he'd been waiting for my return, though I think he simply wanted a substitute at the last minute. And I declined his invitation because I wanted to spend my first evening home in the bosom of my family."

"I suppose," I said, 'that you've had rather a quiet time while I was away, and not much company?'

"'Oh no,' said dad. 'We had some one to dine nearly every night, and we went out much more than usual. When you make that visit in Kansas City that you've planned for March,' he added, 'I think your mother and I will take a suite down in one of the loop hotels, so as to be near the theaters.'"

She paused and glanced around.

"Hmmmmm," remarked the young matron with the auburn wave, finally. "Whom do you visit in Kansas City?"

"Oh, I'm not going to Kansas City," said the fluffy haired blond.

"The next morning at breakfast dad said, 'About that trip of yours, what d'you say to putting that off, and you and your mother and I can go somewhere together? We sort of miss you when we don't see you hangin'

Stories That Recall Others

It Hurt Anyway.

Little Paul who is just past two, came running to his mother the other day crying, "Mamma, fix it, fix it."

Being questioned as to what was the matter, he said: "I got a stomachache in my shoe."

"Please Notify."

This tale offers a delicious commentary on the driving ability of a certain young motorist. This motorist, before setting out on a trip by himself recently, stopped in an office to see his brother. In the course of the farewell, the departing motorist, idly feeling through the pockets, seized some bit of paper which he had run across in his fumbling and drew it forth, gazing at it curiously. On opening the folded slip he read the legend: "In case of accident please notify Mrs. ——— ———avenue." This find in itself would have been puzzling enough, but it was only the start. A slip of paper similarly folded was found in three other pockets of his clothing, and on each was the request to notify the certain young man's mother at her home.

The wondering motorist looked at his brother and smiled. "I guess she doesn't believe I am much of a driver," was his observation.

London is to have its first electrical guideposts. This is a device by which one will be enabled to find the way from any point in the city to any other point without asking questions. The device consists of a map of London inclosed in a dial on which the names of the streets and corners are marked. The questioner turns the dial until it indicates the spot to which he wishes to proceed. Then he presses a button. A stream of light will then shine across the map exactly the right route to follow. The first of these devices has been prepared for installation near London bridge.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Chester H. Rowell, who will have a prominent part as one of the American delegates to the new Institute of Pacific Relations which begins its sessions in Honolulu today, is a California publicist and journalist in movebeen especially prominent in movements for political reform. Much of his work for political and social reform has been done as a journalist in Fresno, as a contributor to many publications both in and out of his state, as a lecturer at the University of California, and as a prolific writer for the best organs of civil opinion on the Pacific coast. As a politician he has served on state and national committees, and been chairman of state conventions. He was one of the founders of the Lincoln-Roosevelt republican league and was prominent in the campaign by which Hiram W. Johnson was sent to the United States senate. Mr. Rowell is a native of Illinois and received much of his education abroad.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Freaks That Were.

Mr. Editor: I have read "Uncle Billie's" letter and the replies to it, on the modern mode of dress, and think uncle must have left off his "smoked glasses" for a little while at least. The freaks of years gone by, who wore the hoop-skirt, the street-sweeper, the bustle as large as a water pail, the chignon like a gigantic hornets' nest, with a waspish waist, would attract more attention for a short time, until they could be taken care of at an institution where their sanity could be determined, than the women of the present time. Short skirts and bobbed hair are very comfortable and sanitary. "Evil be to him who evil thinks." All of these should be banished to the Fiji Islands where the birthday suit only is worn. On their return (unless conditions suited them so well that they decided to remain there) they would think our women were amply clad. Long may the short skirt and the bobbed hair stay with us and all to whom they are objectionable should turn their back, instead of straining their eyes until they are "bugged" out of their heads to see what is attractive or otherwise.

MODERN.

Jewett City, June 27, 1925.

Modern Fads.

Mr. Editor: Replying to "Nephew Billie" would say that I think he is entitled to more or less credit for championing the deserving of the fair sex. I feel quite sure, however, that he fails to grasp my estimate of the up-to-the-minute female or rather of the class that she belongs to. I mean those idle-rich and well-to-do loafers who seem to have no object or aim in life except to be disgustingly up-to-date and put out a lot of fool notions and forms that are picked up by their satellites and soon become fads. For instance, they go to Florida in the winter and to other popular resorts in the summer and fool away their time in posing for their pictures taken in abbreviated bathing suits and other semi-nude costumes for the Sunday papers printed in the large cities. It is enough to puke a stump fence to look at the stuff. They do other things fully as ridiculous.

As for "Uncle John" I am ashamed that one of my sex as old as I suppose him to be should take the stand that he does. Every little while we read in some paper or magazine an article expressing an idea which is contrary to all established philosophy and it has more or less adherents because it creates a sensation. Some of these work out; many of them don't. There is no reason why a woman can not be healthy without being vulgar or immodest. There may be a time and place when and where a woman's bare legs look well, but not on the street, or any other public place off the stage. How about the women who were born 75 to 100 years ago and who are living today. My grandmother lived to be 89, my mother nearly 80, and in this neighborhood within a few years one woman lived to be over 100, one 98, one 86, two over 80, and others at an advanced age. I am 75 and have seen many changes and consequently feel that I am in a position to judge of the merits and demerits of old and new ideas. The new ones are not all bad and the rising generation has no right to condemn all of the old ones simply because they are old. Plain and regular living with regular sleep, daily exercise at some occupation that produces something or is a benefit to somebody, the mind supplied with subjects that keep it healthy; will do vastly more to promote and sustain a comfortable and happy existence than silk stockings or bare legs, or any other fads of like character. Painting the face is a vulgar one.

UNCLE BILLY.

Eagleville, June 27, 1925.

From Small Beginnings

Stefan Stambolov, the Tailor, a Great Diplomatist

People in the United States often say that they live in the only land where men can rise from poverty and obscurity to the heights of power. The history of all lands has shown that any man has the ability and who chooses to exert it has the opportunity to become great. The career of Stefan Stambolov, the great Bulgarian diplomatist, is one illustration of this.

There was a time when Stambolov was master in Europe; he dealt with all the great powers; he won the Sultan of Turkey to his will; he mastered men and policies, and held in his hands the reins of peace and of war. He was the great Prime Minister of Bulgaria. When Stambolov was at the summit of his power there were many people in Bulgaria who remembered his father, the poor, ignorant inn-keeper. There were tailors who sat on their benches and gossiped with one another about the days when Stefan Stambolov went with me to the school at Odessa. Would he behave? No! Would he study? Not he. He was off, no one knew where, with secret societies, and he was put out of the school. The rest of us stayed and worked hard—and look where he is today?"

It was all true. Stambolov had been wretchedly poor, had worked as a tailor, had been driven from his school, and then, because he was a patriot for Bulgaria because he was willing to give his life for his country, and because he had the personality that made men follow him, he became recognized as a national hero. The people made him their representative; he fought again for Bulgaria, choosing the position of private soldier, and thus, rising step by step, he moved from being a representative to being Prime Minister. He made Bulgaria greater and more powerful than it had ever been before. He was only 45 when his enemies brought about his assassination.

CHILD TRAINING

FOOD FOR THOUGHT
Harriet W. Waters

Just a little simple story, but in it there is food for thought.

The family were at their summer home at the seaside and little Charles, an only child was delighted to have other children to play with. One day he transgressed in something and mother told him that to make him remember another time, he must stay in their own dooryard all day and not go to the beach to play with the other children. He recognized the justice of his sentence and acquiesced in it quite cheerfully.

For a while he amused himself with his ball, then, hearing the merry shouts of his playmates on the beach, he went and sat on the doorsteps with his head in his hands and murmured to himself, 'I wish I was there. I wish I was there." Then he walked down to the gate, listened, came back to the steps and sat down again very dejectedly. After a few tears had trickled through his fingers, nearly breaking the heart of Mother who chanced to pass by, and almost deciding her to remit the small boy's sentence, Charles again went to the gate and climbed up on it. From this vantage ground he could just see the heads of his playmates. It was too much for him. He burst open the gate, exclaiming, "I can't stay!" ran to the beach as fast as his sturdy little legs would carry him and joined the children.

When he came home Mother said, "Charles, I shall have to punish you."

"Yes, Mother," came very faintly.

"I saw you when you went first to the gate, and I saw you when you ran to the beach."

"Where were you, Mother, when you saw me?"

"I was at the window."

"Well, Mother, before you punish me may I ask you a question?"

"Certainly, my son."

"Why didn't you tap on the window, Mother, and help your little boy?"

More than 10,000 farmers wives in California cook by electricity, according to figures compiled by the largest power distributing company in the state. In the interior valleys, where wood, coal or oil is not readily available, cooking is done to a large extent by electricity. The statistics indicate that there are in the state 167,504 such light and power consumers, and they are served by 16,515 miles of distribution lines. Practically all the farms are lighted electrically.

A Shameless Beggar

Who values not his own good name
Is lacking in a sense of shame.
—Old Mother Nature.

The orphan son of Sally Sly the Cowbird, who now had all to himself the nest from which he had kicked the babies of Mr. and Mrs. Chippy the Chipping Sparrows, was not at all inclined to leave that comfortable nest. It was much easier to remain there and be fed than to get out and learn to fly. Had there been no other children to claim the attention of Chippy and Mrs. Chippy, it is probably that greedy orphan would have been satisfied to remain right where he was for considerably longer. But he wasn't getting all the food he wanted. He wasn't getting as much as he had expected to get when he had deliberately kicked the others out. The latter, now safe in the nest of hay in a berry basket up in a neighboring tree where farmer Brown's Boy had placed them, were getting plenty to eat and were growing fast. The greedy orphan didn't like it.

So it came about that one day as Mrs Chippy flew away after feeding him a worm, he tried his wings for the first time and fluttered after her. By this time he was almost twice as big as she. Yes, sir, that young Cowbird was almost twice as big as the little feathered foster mother who had brought him up.

When he was on the ground he discovered what his legs were for, and at once began to make use of them. He followed little Mrs. Chippy with his mouth open, and crying for food as if he were half starved. He had no shame at all. Feathered folk who were watching would cry, "Shame! Shame!" but he had no shame. Little Mrs. Chippy had to leave the feeding of her own children wholly to Mr. Chippy. This shameless beggar was always right at hand whenever she found a bit of food, and if she didn't give it to him made such a fuss that she would give it to him just to stop his cries.

If the neighbors had talked before, it was nothing to the way they gossipped now. They didn't hesitate to say just what they thought, and it wasn't at all complimentary to poor little Mrs. Chippy. Even those who had felt sorry for her when the shameless little beggar had been in the nest now said that she had no business to be so imposed upon.

"That rascal is quite capable of taking care of himself," declared Mrs. Scrapper the Kingbird. "I'm not a bit sorry for Mrs. Chippy. She ought to send him about his business. The idea of thinking that she must feed that great beggar just because he runs around after her crying to be fed! He'll keep that up as long as she'll feed him. It's a disgrace to the Old Orchard."

"It is so," spoke up Welcome Robin. "It certainly is a disgrace to the Old Orchard. I don't know what Mrs. Chippy is thinking of. Why she doesn't get rid of that youngster now I don't understand. He is imposing on her and has been for some time. I think it would be an excellent plan if we all got together and drove him out of the Old Orchard."

He even hinted at this to little Mrs. Chippy, but she was so distressed at the idea and so upset that he said nothing more about it. You see, she had fed that shameless little beggar so long that by now she seemed to feel that it was quite all right, and actually sorry for him. Meanwhile her own four babies, having been well taken care of by Mr. Chippy, were beginning to look out for themselves. In fact, they were becoming quite independent. Yet they were no older than this young son of Sally Sly's, and they were not half his size. Whenever he came near they made fun of him. But he didn't mind this at all.

How long this shameless young beggar would have continued to tease little Mrs. Chippy for his food had not Black Pussy one day given him a dreadful scare. No one knows. Black Pussy sprang for him from behind an apple tree and all but caught him. It frightened him so that he took to his wings and kept flying till he reached the Old Pasture. He never came back and no one was sorry.

MRS. BORGELIN'S REMARKABLE RECOVERY

Gives Credit for Restored Health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. All Women Interested

MRS. OSCAR F. BORGELIN
FOREST CITY, IOWA

Forest City, Iowa.—"My first child lived only a short time and I was sick for a year after. When I bent over and raised myself up again I could almost scream with pain in my back. One day I was so bad that I had to leave my washing and get ready to go to the doctor. He gave me medicine, but it did no more good than if I drank just water. Once when we had been in town a little book telling about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was left in our car. I have taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound now and I do all my housework and help with the milking, and taking care of chickens and garden. Besides I have a fine baby girl eight months old, just the picture of health, and I am feeling fine myself. You may use this letter as a testimonial and I will answer any letters asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Oscar F. Borgelin, Route No. 5, Forest City, Iowa.

A Bad Case of Nerves Relieved

Denver, Colorado.—"I was very despondent, blue and sad all the time, which is worse than real pain, and extremely nervous, with no appetite. I was this way for about two years and thought no one cared for me. My mother had had the same trouble and had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for it. I tried everything else, then I began to take it. I soon had a better appetite and restored mental condition. I moved to a bright, sunny house, began calling on different people, and changed many other things. I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash for my female weakness. With the aid of your medicines I am now a fairly healthy, happy and contented woman. I've used the Vegetable Compound at different times and will say it always helps me over the bad spells that come to every woman past 40 years."—Mrs. Helen Fine, 35 South Washington Street, Denver, Colorado.

HARTFORD, June 30.—(AP)—Personal income returns aggregating $474,421,971, on which a tax of $11,102,890 was paid, were filed by 149,120 Connecticut persons during 1924, according to statistics supplied by the internal revenue department. The number of returns and the net income was the largest for any year in the history of the state.

In this state the increase in the number of returns was 21,359 or 16.65 per cent. The increase in the total net income amounted to $74,691,858, or 18.69 per cent., while there was a decrease in the amount of tax of $1,127,912 or 14.65 per cent.

The number of returns filed by Connecticut persons has greatly increased since 1916 when 27,713 were filed. In that year the total net income reported was $2,824,846 as compared with $474,421,971 in 1923. The average tax paid was higher in 1916 than in any subsequent year, being $291. There was also a marked decrease in the average tax per return until last year it amounted to $75. The greatest amount of tax collected in any year in this state was in 1919 when $17,-520,212 was paid on returns.

Connecticut returns showed three incomes in the million dollar class the year receiving between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000. One was registered in the $500,000 class, five in the class between $200,000 and $500,000, six between $250,000 and $500,000, five between $200,000 and $250,000, nine between $150,000 and $200,000 and forty-nine between $100,000 and $150,000.

WEDDINGS

Martin-Atwood

The marriage of Miss Florence Atwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Atwood of Station 6, Waterford, and Alphonse Martin of Grantsville, took place Monday at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. George H. Strouse of Waterford performed the ceremony. Corinne Martin, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor, and Charles Atwood, brother of the bride was best man. The bride wore pink crepe de chine and carried white roses. The maid of honor wore pale blue crepe de chine and carried white roses. Following the ceremony, supper was served to 25 guests. The bride was employed as a clerk at a New London market and is a graduate of the business school. Mr. Martin is employed by the Thames Lumber company. After a motor trip to Providence and Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Martin will live with the latter's parents.

Ofsovitz—Bendett.

Miss Edith Bendett, sister of Mrs. Sarah Goldblatt of 432 North Main street, and Sam Ofsovitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Ofsovitz of 47 Providence street, Worcester, Mass., were united in marriage Sunday evening at 6.30 o'clock at Mr. and Mrs. D. Goldblatt's home, by Rabbi Max Stamm.

The bride was charmingly gowned in a white silk dress and carried white roses. Refreshments were served, covers being laid for 60 couples of the Goldblatt family.

The couple will reside in Worcester, Mass. Guests were present from Mystic, New London, Westerly, Worcester, New Haven, New York, Passaic, N. J., and Chelsea, Mass.

Hasson-O'Connell.

Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock, at the Sacred Heart church, Norwich Town, Miss Ellen Grace O'Connell and John Leo Hasson were united in marriage in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends.

The marriage was solemnized by Rev. Charles W. Brennan, the pastor who also celebrated the nuptial high mass which followed. Rosewig's mass was sung by the choir; at the offertory, Mrs. Morgan Cronin sang Millard's Ave Maria.

As the bridal party moved down the aisle, the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin was played by the organist, Miss Elizabeth A. Malone, who played Mendelssohn's Wedding March for the recessional. During the ceremony Miss Malone played O' Promise Me, and To A Wild Rose.

The altar was attractively decorated with pink and white rambler roses. Miss Julia O'Connell, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Nicholas Doyle was best man. The bride was gowned in flesh color crepe chiffon; she wore a large hat of flesh color maline and carried an arm bouquet of butterfly roses.

The bridesmaid wore a dainty gown of honey dew crepe de chine, with large Leghorn hat trimmed with two large silk roses, one pink and the other honey-dew, to match her frock. She carried a bouquet of Larkspur, which shaded from blue into lavender.

Following the ceremony a breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. John J. O'Connell of West Town street, a large company of guests being present from New Britain, Hartford, Torrington and Norwich.

The bride, who is the daughter of the late John J. O'Connell and Mary McNally O'Connell, received a large number of beautiful wedding gifts. She is a graduate of Norwich Free Academy and Willimantic Normal school and for the past ten years has been principal of the Laurel Hill Avenue school. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hasson, of New Britain. At present he is superintendent of construction work for the H. Wales Lines company, having recently completed a mill in Westerly.

Later in the day, Mr. and Mrs. Hasson left by automobile for a wedding journey.

Johnson-Johnson

Miss Claribelle Viola Johnson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivar Johnson of 5 Johnson Place and Alrik Theodore Johnson, son of Oscar and Augusta Peterson Johnson of 23 Margerie street, were united in marriage Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. Due to the fact that a death had recently occurred in the bride's family the wedding was a quiet affair, only immediate relatives and a few friends attending. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Henning Johnson, the pastor of the Swedish church. Bristol, formerly pastor of the Swedish church of Norwich.

The bride was prettily gowned in white embroidered georgette with tulle veil caught up with orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, the gift of the groom. The couple were attended by George Johnson, brother of the bride, as best man and Miss Anna Johnson, sister of the bride as maid of honor. The maid of honor wore blue georgette and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The gift of the groom to the bride was a string of pearls and to the best man a pair of white gold cuff links. The bride's gift to the groom was a green gold watch chain and to the maid of honor a string of pearls.

Following an extensive wedding tour Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will reside in their newly furnished apartment on Margerie street. The groom is employed in Norwich as a machinist.

Coughlin-Sutty.

Miss Zeta Sutty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sutty, of Pittsfield, Mass., and William Joseph Coughlin, of Indianapolis, Ind., were united in marriage, Thursday morning, June 25, at 10 o'clock in St. Malacay's church, New York city, by Rev. Dr. Joseph A. Noonan, a close friend of the groom, who also sang the nuptial high mass.

Miss Edith Sutty, of Pittsfield, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Dr. Daniel A. Keegan, of Bridgeport, a college classmate of the groom, was best man.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served in the ballroom of the Commodore hotel, covers being laid for 50 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Coughlin will be at home after October 5, at No. 373 Creek Boulevard, Indianapolis, Ind.

The groom is the son of Mrs. William H. Coughlin, of 31 Prospect street, who attended the wedding in New York, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Mary Coughlin.

$200 VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT ON COUNTER-CLAIM IN ACCIDENT

A verdict for $200 for the defendant on his counter-claim was rendered by the jury in the common pleas court here Tuesday afternoon in the suit of Michael Schwartz of New London against William H. Beckwith of Waterford, which was brought for damages to automobiles in a collision on Nov. 30, 1924.

The jury was out about half an hour when its verdict was returned through foreman E. T. Bunyan of Colchester and was accepted by Judge C. P. Waller.

Schwartz brought suit for $500 damages and Beckwith made a counter-claim for $1,000 damages. Each blamed the other for the accident, which occured at the corner of Montauk avenue and Perry streets, New London. The Schwartz car was turning from Perry street northerly into Montauk avenue and the Beckwith car was proceeding southerly on Montauk avenue.

Attorneys Morris Lubchansky and C. V. James appeared for the plaintiff, while the defendant was represented by Attorneys Arthur T. Keefe and DeLancey Pelgrift.

The jury on the case was Norwich, Henry C. Hensler, Everett M. Rogers, Francis McNamara; Preston, Frank Palmer, John F. Richardson; Griswold, William R. Palmer, Edmond Herbert; Colchester, Timothy F. Kelly, E. T. Bunyan; Lisbon, Paul Geist; Sprague, Curtis L. Hazen, Voluntown, Albert R. Dawley.

Testifying in the case were Michael Schwartz, the plaintiff of the Schwartz Furniture Co., of New London, Patrolman Manice, Thornton Lathrop, a garage man; Mr. Beckwith, the defendant in the action, an employe of the Babcock Printing Press Co., and a farmer of Waterford; and George Capwell of New London.

BOZRAH MEETING VOTES TO REMODEL SCHOOL

At the special Bozrah town meeting held Tuesday night at the town hall there, about fifty voters were present and favorable action was taken on both matters brought up for a vote.

The meeting was opened by First Selectman Frank L. Lathrop and John F. Fields was chosen moderator. It was voted that the sum of $1,500 be appropriated by the town for the remodeling of the Leffingwell school house, and to give the selectmen power to authorize notes or bonds of the town to cover the cost of the work.

The second matter for consideration was whether or not the town would sell all its interests in the real estate owned by the late Dwight W. Spencer, to Mrs. Gustie Chesebro and to execute and deliver a deed of the property to her. Favorable action was taken on this matter and adjournment followed.

The Spicer property involved real estate estimated in value at about $2,-500. This property was held, two-thirds by the late Dwight W. Spicer and one-third by Mrs. Gustie Chesebro, and at the death of Mr. Spicer, his sister, Mrs. Chesebro, was given life use of the property, the whole to go to the town of Bozrah at her death, the money to be used for the roads of the town.

Action taken at the meeting was that for the sum of one dollar all claims of the town would be withdrawn and that the property in total would become the property of Mrs. Chesebro.

COUNTY POMONA WAS HEARD OVER RADIO

The New London County Pomona grange, under the supervision of the New London county lecturer, Mrs. Richard J. Whitham of Groton broadcasted from station WCAC at Storrs Agricultural college at 9.30 Tuesday evening. The program included a short address on agricultural matters by F. H. Bartlett of Jewett City, piano selection by Master Dwight Richardson, the 13 year old pianist of Norwich, two vocal selections, Just A-Wearying for You and Pirate Dreams, by Mrs. Richard Butler of New London, a pupil of David Ross, Southern Melodies played by Frederick Bacon of Groton on the banjo and ukulele selections broadcast for the first time over the radio by Mrs. Frederick Bacon, monologues by Mrs. Flery Burdick of Mystic.

This was the last of a series of four Pomona radio concerts given by various counties in the state. Prof. Charles A. Wheeler, state lecturer assisted Mrs. Whitham in arranging the recital.

FUNERAL Ozias Dodge

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends from many out of town places at the funeral of Ozias Dodge, held Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at his late home at No. 8 Mediterranean lane.

The service was conducted out in the open by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church of which Mr. Dodge was a member, and fitting tributes were paid to the life of the deceased.

Burial took place in the old Norwich Town cemetery, not far from the house, the bearers being the following, Raymond Dodge of New Haven, brother of the deceased, E. D. Sprague of South Norwalk, W. D. Sprague of Flushing, L. I., and R. H. Boyd of Flushing, L. I., while the following intimate friends of Mr. Dodge acted as escort, John P. Huntington, E. W. Perkins, O. Houghton Gilman, Grosvenor Ely, Walter T. Camp, E. Harris Metcalf of Providence R. I., and H. L. Butterick, member of the Connecticut Forestry association. The committal service at the grave was conducted by Rev. Mr. Abbott.

NEW STATE LAWS IN EFFECT TODAY

HARTFORD, June 30—(A. P.)—All general acts passed by the 1925 session of the general assembly will become effective tomorrow except in a few cases which were otherwise specified. Among the acts of general interest which will go into effect is the increase in the tax on gasoline from one to two cents a gallon and the tax on motion picture films. The first will increase state revenues about $1,600,000 a year and the picture tax is expected to bring in between $150,000 and $200,000.

Also of particular interest is the act concerning the appointment of county detectives. The state tomorrow will be without the services of these officials in any county, as, although two reappointments have been made, in New London and Windham counties, the officers have not qualified as state policemen under a ruling made by Governor Trumbull who approves all county detective appointments by states' attorneys under the new act. Formerly the appointments were approved by the superior court judges.

The medical practice act, which established the state board of health arts, is in effect tomorrow. The act creating a one-man boxing commission, under which Thomas E. Donahue, of New London, has been appointed commissioner begins operation also.

Commissioner of Agriculture Philo T. Platt takes office tomorrow under the act which established the state agricultural commission. The general motor vehicle, fish and game, and forest and wild life acts will also become effective.

COOLIDGE SENT AIRPLANE MESSAGE TO GROTTOS

The Atlantic City club of Nemrod Grotto arrived home last Saturday from their pilgrimage to the 36th annual supreme council session of the order, where they had been guests during the entire week of June 22nd.

Their pilgrimage included their stay at the convention in Atlantic City and [illegible] stop-over and sight seeing trip in both Philadelphia and New York.

So enthusiastic and pleased were members of the club, with the itinerary as outlined that steps are already being taken to organize a St. Louis club of the Grotto to attend next year's convention in that city. It is also hoped that the local Grotto will be able to take its uniformed bodies along for this trip and take part in the St. Louis activities.

Some features of the Atlantic City convention of special interest to the Nemrod delegation was the awarding of first prize in the band contest to Syria Grotto band of Hartford and third prize in the competitive patrol drills to Aziz Grotto of New Britain, thereby giving Connecticut Grottos two of the elaborate cups awarded in each event.

At the session of the supreme council the Grotto was distinguished as being the first organization ever to receive a message from the president of our country by special convoy, this being delivered by airplane. Congressman Tuttle was the messenger and conveyed both the message and the reply.

Miss Ney is an expert in her line (folk dancing), and a very interesting forenoon is promised. The public is urged to attend. The institute starts at 9:30.

SEWER BREAK CAUSES CAVE-IN ON BROADWAY

A break in an old concrete sewer main on Broadway, in front of the court house, caused a cave-in of the highway Tuesday morning. The hole was first noticed after a number of automobiles had passed over the spot, part of a funeral cortege proceeding from St. Patrick's church to the cemetery following a requiem mass.

Immediately following the cave-in the police department placed two barrels across the opening and hung a red flag there to warn vehicular traffic of the danger. Street Commissioner J. C. Donovan had his men working there shortly afterwards and when they had dug to the depth of ten feet they found a break in a sewer main, which had allowed the sewerage to leak out and undermine the road.

A brick archway was built over the break to prevent a recurrence of the accident and the hole in the highway was filled with new material.

NEW WATER DEPARTMENT OFFICERS TAKE DUTIES

Frank H. Quinley as president of the water board, William H. Callahan as supervisor of the department and Thaddeus Leahy as cashier assume the new duties to which they have been chosen today (Wednesday).

The rainfall of Monday night measured .38 of an inch, which gave 3.86 inches for the month. The two reservoirs are holding their own under the present conditions of rainfall, assisted by the pumping station. Stony Brook is within a few inches of full pond measurement before the extra five feet were added to the dam, and Fairview is about 4 feet down from full pond.

DOUBLE WEDDING AT NORWICH TOWN RESIDENCE

Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock at the home of the brides' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight W. Avery of Norwich Town, Miss Ruth Freeman Avery and Rev. Hollis Myron French of Potsdam, N. Y., son of Rev. Myron R. French, formerly of Norwich, and Miss Helen Barrows Avery and Harold Chapman Bailey of Hartford were married by the latter's father Rev. Gardon F. Bailey, pastor of the Norwich Town Congregational church.

The brides, who were given in marriage by their father, were attended by two little flower girls, Harriet Risker and Catherine Topliff, cousins of the brides, and a page, Master John Browning, Jr.

Ferns, bay leaves and rambler roses were used in decoration. The bridal gowns were crepe de chine and lace with a veil of embroidered tulle and satin and lace with a tulle veil caught with lilies of the valley. Each bride carried a shower bouquet of white bridal roses. The flower girls' dresses were of yellow organdie; their baskets were filled with rambler roses and ferns.

Before the ceremony Maurice Walton of Hartford sang Oh, Promise Me. The wedding march was played by Miss Marian L. Bailey.

Rev. Mr. French is pastor of the Methodist Church at Potsdam, N. Y. where Mr. and Mrs. French will make their home after a short stay at the Thousand Islands. Mrs. French is a graduate of Norwich Free Academy in the class of 1915 and of Connecticut College in the class of 1919, and has been assistant to the treasurer of the Massachusetts Hospital school at Canton, Mass.

Mrs. Bailey graduated from Norwich Free Academy in 1918 and from Connecticut College in 1923 and during the past year has been a teacher in the Norwich Free Academy. Mr. Bailey is associated with the United States Security Trust Co. of Hartford where, after a brief wedding trip to Nantucket, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey will make their home.

Guests were present at the double wedding from West Stamford, Middletown, Hartford, Southbury, Danbury, Wethersfield, Hanover, Groton, Fall River and Canton Mass.

Just prior to the wedding letters and a cablegram of good wishes were received from Miss Gertrude Avery a sister of the brides, who is doing missionary work at Ahmednagar, India.

THREE WIVES BRING SUITS FOR DIVORCE

Three divorce cases which are returnable before the superior court in Stamford, were filed here Tuesday with the clerk of the court.

Victoria Stinski Suchocki of New London seeks a divorce from Alexander Suchocki, now of parts unknown whom she married Dec. 27, 1913; Desertion on Jan. 5, 1922 is alleged and the custody of three minor children, aged 11, 9, and 5 years, is asked.

Bronislawa Gorska Hohowska of New London who married Walter Hohowska, alias Walter Hicks, formerly of New London, and now of Newark, N. J., sues for divorce from him on the ground of intolerable cruelty since June 1, 1917. They were married Jan. 4, 1915. She asks the custody of a seven year old daughter.

Desertion on Jan. 1, 1922, is the ground on which Marie Hamie Davidson of New London seeks divorce from Frank Davidson, now of parts unknown. They were married Dec. 24, 1921. She asks change of name to Marie Hamre.

FINED FOR SELLING REVOLVER TO STANKIEWICZ

Nathan Weisinger, who runs a second hand store on Market street was fined $25 and costs, a total of $34.03 in the city court, Tuesday morning, by Judge Arthur F. Libby. Weisinger was charged with violation of the fire arms law, for selling a firearm without having a license to do so. He received a warning from the court regarding such violations of the law.

Weisinger was arrested Monday after state and local police had worked upon the shooting of John Bosko, who is now in a critical condition at the Backus hospital, by Paul Stankiewicz, who has confessed his act. Evidence brought out showed that Weisinger had sold the revolver in the case to Stankiewicz on the morning of the alleged offense, and that he had no license to sell firearms.

The case of Joseph Wisnewski of 102 Roosevelt avenue also came up in court and after considerable testimony by the accused and officers who figured in his arrest, Wisnewski was fined $200 and costs with a ten day jail sentence, being found guilty of the charge of keeping liquor with intent to sell. Wisnewski appealed to the criminal term of the court of common pleas, bonds fixed at $1,000 being furnished.

Wisnewski was arrested on Preston bridge on the morning of June 27th by State Policeman Bohnick of the Groton barracks while the latter was working on the Bosko shooting case. The officer testified that Wisnewski tried to mislead the officers in the arrest but a search at his home on Roosevelt avenue disclosed 32 quarts of moonshine in a clothes closet in his house, and a still and 50 gallons of mash in a barn at the rear of the house. The officer testified that the moonshine and still were confiscated and Wisnewski taken into custody.

Wisnewski's testimony was varied at one time claiming that the liquor he was carrying when apprehended, at the Preston Bridge was to be a gift to his god-father in Versailles and later that he intended to drink some of it himself and give the rest to fellow workers at the paper mill in Versailles.

Wisnewski also testified that his wife made the liquor and that he had a big stock on hand because a new member of the family was expected and the drink was being aged for the expected christening, as it was better if it stood for a time.

The trial took the greater part of the morning and at the conclusion of the evidence Judge Libby found against the accused and pronounced the judgement on which the appeal was taken to the higher court.

FIELD ARTILLERY VANGUARD STARTS FOR TOBYHANNA

The vanguard of Battery B and the Combat Train of the 192nd Regiment, C. N. G., left Norwich Tuesday afternoon for Tobyhanna, Pa., where the 192nd will go into camp for two weeks. Three motor transports, two from the Battery and one from the Combat Train, went to Hartford, where they will be loaded and will then go to Danbury to meet the other transports from the regiment and then all will form a train and go to Tobyhanna, arriving in camp some time Friday night. The Norwich detail was in charge of Sergeant Kurt Seifert with Sergeant Charles Anderson, 1st Class Private George G. Gladeau and Private Joseph W. Colesky driving the Combat Train truck and First Class Privates Joseph T. Beausoleil, Raymond W. Coderre and John Fitzgerald with the Battery trucks. Gilbert Dennison, son of Captain William R. Dennison accompanied the detail.

James M. Kelly and Leslie H. Gordon will leave today (Wednesday) for the camp by motorcycle and Wilfred J. Gaffney and George E. Robertson will leave later in the week by automobile. The main body will entrain on Sunday morning for camp.

Air excursions between Paris and London have become so popular that extra planes often are necessary to carry the passengers.

EAST ENDS WIN SENSATIONAL GAME FROM YANTIC IN TWILIGHT LEAGUE

In a spectacular and well-played game, the East Ends nosed out the Yantic Mills team, Tuesday evening, 1 to 0. The large crowd of fans who were fortunate enough to take in last night's contest witnessed the best game yet played in the league. The fielding of both teams was little short of sensational, and it was due to the fine defensive work of each that the score was so low.

Twice the East End infield turned back their opponents by fast double plays, one in the first inning, and again in the fifth, the combination of Roy Leonard, Jim Murphy, and Tim Coughlin turning the trick both times. Not to be outdone, the Yantics also featured with two double killings. In the sixth with Jimmy Murphy on second, Ainsworth, Yantic's centerfielder, made a fine one-handed catch of Tim Coughlin's short fly and doubled Murphy at second for the first of the double plays. In the final inning the combination of McKiernan, Howard and Couillard turned back both Gaudette and LeBlanc for the second one.

Harry Mills started the game for the East Siders, but was forced to retire at the end of the second inning, as his split finger was bothering him. During his stay on the mound, Harry held the Yantics to one hit and no runs. Normandin relieved him, and held Yantic scoreless for the remainder of the game. Jerry Lamphere twirled for the Yantic Mills and with the exception of the second when the East Ends bunched two hits for the only run in the game, was invincible. He allowed but five hits, the same number as the combination of Mills and Normandin, and had it not been for his brief lapse in the second inning, the two teams would have played a scoreless tie.

Bill Austin opened the eventful second with a sharp line hit to right field for two bases. "Muggsy" Ellsworth, running for Austin, then scored with the only run of the game on Murphy's long clout to left, also for two bases. Murphy took third while Tim Coughlin grounded to Howard and was stranded at the far corner while both Gaudette and Duffy fanned.

Yantic passed up their best chance to score in the third. With one out, Jerry Lamphere got a Texas Leaguer single over third when Couillard shot a double into right, went to third. Foote then hit a grounder to Jim Murphy at second, and Jim seeing that Lamphere was but a short way off third threw to first, retiring Howard. Lamphere in the meantime started for the plate and was caught in a run-up, Coughlin, to LeBlanc to Mills, to Normandin.

In the fifth the East Ends also blew a chance to score. Gaudette walked. LeBlanc singled to left and when Marchand let the ball go through him, Gaudette went to third and LeBlanc to second. Normandin then grounded to J. Lamphere and Gaudette was trapped between third and home, LeBlanc taking third on the play. The East End catcher was left there however as the next two men were retired in short order.

In addition to the four double plays, there were other fielding thrills that brought the fans to their feet from time to time. Ainsworth's one-handed catch of Coughlin's fly in the sixth was a fine bit of fielding, and Murphy's one-handed leaping catch of Couillard's liner was nothing short of highway robbery. Roy Leonard's third base play was exceptionally good, while Jimmy Murphy showed the fans a thing or two in the art of playing second. The score:

Tonight's Game

Barnum and Bailey may have to go abroad to sign up their stars but the Norwich Twilight league don't have to go out of New London county for their's as has been seen in the games pulled off at the Duwell field this season. Day by day the games are getting better and better and last night they brought it down the limit, when the East Ends nosed out ahead of Yantic by a 1 to 0 score. Every play in last night's game was a feature all by itself, let aside those four fast double plays that were pulled off. The fans that missed last night's game must have felt like the kid who woke up on Christmas morning and found his stocking empty and for their benefit here will be a game played tonight between the St. Joseph's team and the Eastern Conn. Power Co.

Although it may not be a one to nothing game there is no reason at all why it shouldn't be a game well worth watching. Both of these teams have strengthened considerably within the past few weeks and now are real contenders for the pennant.

The E. C. P. team last week practically had the league leading Central team licked, until an error in the last inning with two out allowed the Centrals to cross the plate with the winning run.

The Polish boys also lost a tough game last week when Sullivan — the Hallville team stole home on them in the last inning with the winning run after two were out. Both of these teams have been followed by a jinx and tonight will try to break it.

Either Simcox or "Big Ed" Harris will do the twirling for the E. C. P. while "Tony" West or "Bullet Joe" Bucsh will twirl for the Saints. It would be a real treat should Harris and West hook up in a pitcher's duel as both of these boys are dartsiders and have plenty of speed and hooks.

The E. P. C. will lineup as follows: Cormier catch, Harriss or Simcox, pitch, Stanley, 1st base, Davis on second, Whitney at third Bill Ringland on short and either H. Hull, J. Hull, Eddie McKay, Fillmore, L. Hull or Risley will play the outfield. In the Saint's lineup will be Hoffman, Milesski, Labicki, J. Bucsh, Stroubei, Mish, West, Koglowski, Stankiewitz, Keller, Cimmykowski, Sabinski, Chmielski, B. Cimmykowski, E. Bucsh, F. Bucsh, Goobowski and Kamos.

Honest "Hank" Morin will again call them from behind the bat.

BOOMER LEADS FIELD IN PROFESSIONAL TOURNEY

GLENEAGLES, Scotland, June 30—Aubrey Boomer of the St. Cloud Country Club near Pris, with a sparkling score of 69, led the field of more than 100 professional golfers today in the first qualifying round for the annual Gleneagles thousand guineas tournament. Abe Mitchell, English pro, was only one stroke behind.

Boomer was one of the favorites in the recent British open championship at Prestwick, but after two fine rounds to qualify he slumped and in the championship proper did not finish among the leaders.

Joe Kirkwood, the only American entrant in the Gleneagles tournament took 80. He will have to do much better tomorrow to survive, for from the scores turned in today there is little hope for any entrant with an aggregate above 153 being among the thirty-two selected for the match play later in the week.

George Duncan, who won the tournament last year, is in an even more precarious position as he took 81 today. Macdonald Smith at the last moment decided not to enter the competition, preferring to make a short trip to his native town of Carnoustie and then hurry back home to the Lakeville club on Long Island.

MASCART SAILS FOR EUROPE UNDER BAIL

NEW YORK, June 30—Edouard Mascart, featherweight champion of France, sailed for home today on the liner Suffren under $1,000 bail following his arrest last night on complaint of Coney Island stadium promoters. He will be sued for $10,000, the stadium management announced, for failure to observe a contract requiring his appearance tonight in a bout against Babe Herman of California.

Information reached the promoters yesterday afternoon that Mascart had booked passage on the Suffren after having failed to obtain release from the contract on grounds that an injured hand made it impossible for him to box. Physicians representing the boxing commission after an examination pronounced him able to fulfill the contract.

Jose Lombardo of Panama was substituted for Mascart as an opponent for Herman tonight.

FRENCH TENNIS TOURNAMENT REACHES THE SEMI-FINALS

WIMBLEDON, June 30—(A. P.)—Three Frenchmen and an Australian will fight out the semi-final battles in the All-England men's singles championship at Wimbledon. The Frenchmen are Jean Borotra, the champion, Rene Lacoste and Henri Cochet. The Australian is J. O. Anderson.

The French colors fluttered gaily at the masthead in every match in which Frenchmen played, Cochet and John Hennessey, the last American competitor in the championships. Hennessey looked like a world beater for two sets but he went to pieces and lost the next three and the match to the Frenchman. The score was 7-9, 4-6, 6-1, 6-3, 6-0. Barclay, the Tasmanian, and Jacob, of India, could do nothing with the super-play of Borotra and Lacoste. Borotra won from Barclay 6-3, 5-7, 6-3, 6-3 and Lacoste defeated Jacob 6-3, 6-8, 6-0, 6-4.

In the fourth big match Anderson did not have to use any of his reserve to beat the young Oxford student from India. C. Fisher, winning in straight sets 6-1, 6-1, 6-4.

RIVERVIEW TO CLASH WITH PROV. FIREMEN TODAY

The Riverview club will play the Providence Fire-Fighters this afternoon on the hospital grounds. The game will start at 2:30 p. m. (D. S. T.) The Providence club is composed of members of the city fire department and each week they journey to different parts of New England. There are many experienced ballplayers on this club and they should give the Riverview club a busy afternoon. The Riverview club will send its usual strong lineup into the game, Zemke will pitch with Joe Hamel on the receiving end. The infield will be taken care of by Couillard, 1b., Mills, 2b Normandin, ss., and Dugas 3b. The outfield will be taken care of by Noel and Allard and Stanley.

GREB WILL DEPEND ON SPEED TO BEAT WALKER

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP)—Although Harry Greb, of Pittsburgh, will outweight Mickey Walker by between eight and ten pounds, the middleweight champion will call upon an abundance of speed centered in an aggressive attack to defend his title against the welterweight king, Thursday night. The match will be one of the two fifteen-round feature fights of the Italian Hospital Fund boxing show at the Polo Grounds.

Walker, at 24, is five years the junior of Greb and expects to scale between 150 and 152 for the fight. The middleweight champion will have height and reach in his favor in addition to his weight advantage.

Greb, training at Atlantic City, is said to have already attained the weight limit of 160 required by the contract, and will finish training tomorrow. Walker expects to wind up his workouts today for a rest tomorrow.

Charley Weinert, of Newark, N. J., who faces Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, in the champion 15-round feature, took only a short road run today. Wills boxed with several sparring partners and said he expected to weigh approximately 210 on Thursday.

The other fighters on the card, Jimmy Slattery and Dave Shade, who meet in a six-round contest, and Joe Lynch and Jack Sharkey, who are opponents in a four-round preliminary, were reported by their trainers as ready for the gong.

JARVIS SHUTS OUT AIRLIE TEAM WITH ONE LONE HIT

Lloyd Jarvis was in fine form Tuesday evening when he pitched the Taftville A. A. team to shut-out victory over the Airlie team at Hanover. Jarvis was very stingy with his hits and allowed anly one of the scratch variety during the seven innings. The Taftville team played good ball behind him and gave him four runs to work on. Lefty Dugas' hitting was responsible for the four runs made by Taftville as his two doubles scored two runs each.

JACK KEARNS IS BARRED FROM ITALIAN HOSPITAL BOUTS BY N. Y. COMMISSION

NEW YORK, June 30—The state athletic commission today threw down the gauntlet to Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey and Mickey Walker, when it refused his application for a second's license and served notice on him that he would be refused admittance to the Italian hospital fund matches at the polo grounds on Thursday night in any capacity.

This is the first official action the commission has taken to force Kearns to answer the challenges flung at Dempsey's crown by Harry Wills and Tommy Gibbons, his most persistent challengers. Kearns applied for a second's license today in order to enable him to sit in Walker's corner when the latter meets Harry Greb in a 15-round middleweight title match on Thursday night.

Kearns attended the meeting of the commission this morning, but because he failed to adhere to the commission's ruling to send in his card, he was refused a hearing. Kearns said he had agreed to "cover" the fights for a local paper but Commissioner Farley ruled that he could not "change his colors overnight," and would not be admitted to the grounds Thursday.

Kearns would not commit himself today regarding the commission's action but he appeared certain that a peaceful way out of the difficulty would be reached before Thursday.

"I guess I'll have to get an airplane or make up like Jesse James," was his first comment.

Later Kearns outlined his position in the war with the commission.

"It seems to be a matter of offended dignity on the part of the commission," he said, "because of my letter to them when they decided we had to fight Wills.

"I have retracted the parts of that letter which they thought objectionable and I am ready to sign Dempsey to meet Wills—but I want to see some figures before I sign."

The junior lightweight title match, between Mike Ballerino, present champion, and Vincent "Pepper" Martin, carded for the Queensboro A. C. last night, was postponed until next Monday by the commission's ruling.

The commission also decided to give Edouard Mascart, French featherweight champion, a "temporary benefit of the doubt," in regard to his action in failing to fulfill his contract to meet Babe Herman at Coney Island tonight. No action was taken against him pending legal developments between Mascart and the Coney Island promoters.

Sammy Mandell of Rockford, Ill., who was suspended for 30 days for fouling Jimmy Goodrich of Buffalo in the lightweight elimination tournament, was reinstated.

LOCAL MARKSMEN PERFORM WELL IN MERIDEN SHOOT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

MERIDEN, June 30.—Members of the Norwich Rifle club did very creditable shooting in the Southern New England rifle shoot held here during the past two days. The Norwich club placed nine men in the first seventeen with A. L. Stebbins, of Jewett City, placing fourth, being beaten only by three members of the United States International Rifle team. Charles Palmer, of Jewett City, placed sixth. John Kaufmann, of Voluntown, was seventh and J. Bradford, of Plainfield, was eighth. The match was shot at 200 yards, offhand. The target used was the American ring target with 12-inch black with 3-4 inch rings and and inch and a half bullseye. There were over 300 shooters present from Chicago, New York, Philadelphia, New Haven, Hartford, Springfield, Boston, Norwich, Plainfield, Jewett City and Voluntown. It was voted at the meeting of the shooters to hold the 1926 event at Taftville.

The scores of the first seventeen follow: P. Landrock, 215 (out of a possible 225); A. Hubalek, 214; H. Pope, 211; A. L. Stebbins, of Jewett City, 210; Erick Johnson, 209; Charles Palmer, of Jewett City, 207; J. Kaufmann, of Voluntown, 204; J. Bradford, of Plainfield, 200; J. Harry Clark, 193; Frank Glassnapp, 189; Charles Glassnap, 189; Emil Weber, 186; Lorenz Krause, of Plainfield, 182; Dr. Frank Holms, of Norwich, 178; Dr. Chase, Norwich, 168; H. Sargent, 168; Allyn Brand, Norwich, 166.

PHILLIES BEAT DODGERS IN TENTH INNING

PHILADELPHIA, June 30.—Philadelphia defeated Brooklyn in 11 innings today, 10 to 9, after playing so ragged a game in the field over the regulation distance that five errors were responsible for six of the visitors' runs. Harper and Wrightstone each hit their ninth homers of the season. Score:

JACKSON'S ERROR LOSES GAME FOR GIANTS

NEW YORK, June 30—An error by Jackson decided a pitchers' battle between Scott and Cooney today and the Giants were beaten by the Braves, 3 to 2. This game gave the Braves their second series victory over the Giants this season. Scott allowed seven scattered hits, one of which was a home run by Neis, while Cooney held the Giants to six hits, including a home run by Frank Snyder. Score:

Upson Defeated

OTTAWA, Ont., June 30—Lauren Upson, of Del Paso, Calif., one of the strongest contenders from the United States was defeated by J. W. Yuile, Royal Montreal, a former Quebec provincial champion, 2 and 2, in the Canadian amateur golf championship today.

KAUFMANN ALLOWS PIRATES BUT THREE HITS

CHICAGO, June 30—Tony Kaufmann held Pittsburgh to three hits today in a pitchers' battle while Chicago shut out the visitors 1 to 0 in the first game of the series. Only one Pirate reached second base and that was in the ninth inning when Moore doubled after two were out. Grimm's single, a sacrifice and Adams' double in the eighth resulted in the only run of the game. Score:

JONES BLANKS RED SOX WITH 4 SCATTERED HITS

BOSTON, June 30—Sam Jones allowed only four hits and the Yankees shut out the Red Sox here today 3 to 0. Jones' performance was all the more remarkable as he was hit in the back with a fast pitched ball by Ehmke in the third inning, knocked to the ground and painfully hurt. Ruth was back in the Yankee line-up but failed to hit safely. The score:

SEELEY ELIMINATED IN STATE GOLF TITLE PLAY

NEW HAVEN, June 30—W. P. Seeley, of Brooklawn, holder of the state golf championship, was eliminated in the second round of championship play in the state golf tournament at the New Haven Country club here this afternoon. He was defeated by H. D. Strong, of Brooklawn, one up.

Seeley just got into the first 32 as the result of yesterday's medal play and defeated I. T. Smith of Greenwich, in the first round, 5 and 4.

The championship play brought forth some excellent golf during the day, many of the matches both morning and afternoon going extra holes.

Those who survived the second round were W. J. Sweeney, Shuttle Meadow; N. Wheeler, Brooklawn; W. S. Heyniger, Waterbury; R. D. Cutler, Hartford; A. D. Dodge, Farmington; F. D. Ross, Sequin; A. C. Giles, Wee Burn; H. D. Strong, Brooklawn.

W. E. Juniors Beat Newsies

Tuesday night at the Y. M. C. A. diamond the West End Juniors defeated the Newsboys by a large margin, the score being 26 to 6. On Thursday morning the Juniors will play the Y. M. C. A. Juniors.

JOHNSON PITCHES SENATORS INTO FIRST POSITION

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP)—Washington batted its way to the American league leadership today by defeating the Philadelphia Athletics, 7 to 0, giving the champions four games out of five in the series. Walter Johnson was invincible, allowing only two hits, striking out seven and not issuing a base on balls. The consecutive hitting streak of Lamar, Philadelphia outfielder, also fell before the veteran's pitching, after 29 games. Score:

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

STOCK PRICES MOVE UPWARD

NEW YORK, June 30—Stock prices resumed their upward movement today on the assurance that the California earthquake damage had been confined largely to the city of Santa Barbara, and the growing conviction of professional traders that high call money rates were only temporary. Net advances of 1 to 3 points, were scattered throughout the list, with pool activities stimulating the demand for many popular shares.

Merchandising issues gave one of their best demonstrations of group strength. Woolworth, which pays a dividend of only $3, soared nearly 3 points to a new peak price at 161 3-4. One sale of S. S. Kresge took place at 420, or about 27 points above the previous transaction. May Department Stores showed a net gain of 4 points at 118 after having sold two points above that figure. United Cigar Stores recovered an extreme gain of four points by touching a new year's maximum at 93⅝. Substantial gains also were recovered by Sears-Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Associated Dry Goods and International Shoe.

Bear traders made a futile attempt to force a reaction in the early trading on the announcement that the directors of the American Can Company had declared only the regular dividend, setting at rest rumors that the long awaiting split up would be authorized at this time. American Can, which had bid up 3 points to 196 beforefore the announcement was made, broke to 192 1-3 following the dividend declaration, but soon snapped back to 198 5-8, closing 1 1-4 points below that figure for a net gain of more than four points on the day.

Strong buying support also was in evidence in other standard industrials Baldwin was bid up 3 1-2 points to 115 on buying probably influenced by the announcement that the company's new Diesel engines were ready for delivery. United States Steel common closed a points higher at 116 3-4. American Locomotive, Central Leather preferred, Childs company, Coco Cola, Continental Can, General Baking, Liggett and Myers B, Otis Elevator, Owens Bottle, Packard Motor, Pierce Arrow preferred, Tobacco Products, United Drug, Warren Brothers and Western Union Telegraph were among the many other popular industrials to close from two to nearly 4 points above yesterday's final quotations.

Strength of the rubber stocks was a further reflection of the recent advance of fire prices. United States Rubber common and first preferred and Fisk mounted to 1925 high levels.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, June 30—Unusually heavy trading in Nizer Corporation B stock overshadowed all other developments in today's rising curb market. The initial sale of 50,000 shares at 42 1-2 was the largest single transaction ever recorded on the curb. The price subsequently advanced to 45 7-8 and then eased to 45 5-8. Increased activity also was noted in other electrical refrigeration issues, Nizer A stock touching a new high at 53 3-4.

Several other strong spots developed in the industrial list. Chapin-Sacks was bid up over two points to a new peak at 44 1-2 and was followed into new high ground by Continental Baking, National Tea and St. Regis Paper. With manufacturers getting ready for the fall business, more speculative attention was paid to the radio stocks. Hazeltine advanced 3 1-2 points to 19 1-2 and Ware and Dubilier each closed more than a point higher.

Oils were under steady accumulation on reports of record-breaking gasoline consumption. Net gains of a point or more were recorded by Humble, Prairie Pipe, South Pennsylvania, Standard Oil of Kentucky and Vacuum.

Public utilities displayed a firm tone but with the exception of a five point jump to 388 International Power and Light, price changes were generally inconsequential.

WHEAT PRICES ADVANCE

CHICAGO, June 30—Predictions that private crop reports to be issued tomorrow or Wednesday would prove bullish had a good deal to do with a material advance in wheat prices today. Black rust reports from Saskatchewan were also a factor. The wheat market closed firm, 7-8 to 1 5-8 net higher, July 1.46 1-8 to 1.46 3-8 and September 1.44 5-8 to 1.44 3-4 with corn 1 3-4 to 2 3-4 up, oats showing 3-8 to 1 gain and provisions varying from 12 decline to 27 advance.

From the outset, a majority of the wheat traders appeared to be acting on an opinion that something of an advance in prices could be looked for following recent declines. Indications of warmer weather and showers north and west likely to renew fears of damage from black rust tended also to lift values as soon as business began. Selling pressure enlarged on the advances that ensued, but despite transient setbacks the market continued to develop strength and finished at almost the day's top figures.

Despite favorable crop reports from the corn belt, corn and oats advanced with wheat.

Provisions were responsive to the upward trend of hog values and of grain.

BOND PRICES RECOVER

New York, June 30—Bond prices today recovered most of the ground lost yesterday when confidence was shaken by stiffening money rates. The California earthquake and the break in the stock market. Buying support was evident for a variety of railroad, industrial and foreign obligations, causing a reversal of the recent downward price trend.

Subscriptions will be received on Thursday by a banking group headed by Speyer and Company for a $15,000,000 twenty-five year 6 1-2 per cent. loan for the city of Berlin.

The bonds are priced at 89 to yield 7 1-2 per cent. to maturity or almost 9 1-

FIRST CASE TUESDAY OF VIOLATION OF FISH AND GAME LAWS, NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, June 30.—A violator of the fish and game laws of this state will be prosecuted in the police court at the session of that tribunal tomorrow morning; for this afternoon, Elesio Minucci, 18 Smith street, was ordered to present himself for trial by Deputy Fish and Game Warden Christopher Culver. Deputy Culver, in making a tour of the water front, found a lobster car belonging to Minucci and in it was a lobster bearing eggs; it is a violation of the law to have such a lobster in one's possession. The car was not marked, in conformity with the law, either, which makes Minucci answerable on two charges. Minucci is the first violator of the fish laws to be in court in several years.

Abraham Agranovitch, formerly a merchant in this city, now located in Norwich, was a visitor to New London today.

Gerton Buvall, of 73 Vauxhall street, and Louis Carbinale, United States Coast Guard academy, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

George Russell Carver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael F. Carver, of 25 Brooks street, and Miss Helen M. Downing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Frank Downing, 28 Rogers street, were married at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church this morning at 9 o'clock, the nuptial mass being celebrated by Rev. Fr. Timothy M. Crowley, rector of the church, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. Hubert Downing, brother of the bride, was best man and Miss Elizabeth M. Walter was bridesmaid. Richard J. Carver and Roy B. Koch were ushers. At the conclusion of the church ceremony a breakfast was served at the residence of the bride's parents, after which Mr. and Mrs. Carver left for a wedding trip. Upon their return to New London, Mr. and Mrs. Carver will reside at 28 Rogers street. The bride was formerly a teacher in the New London School of Commerce.

Lester Glynn, a youth residing at 152 Willetts avenue, reported to the police this afternoon that his bicycle, which he had left beside the curb on Bank street, between Lane A and Howard street, had been stolen. A half hour later the boy informed the authorities that he had recovered the bike.

Josh Hubbard, a negro from New York, where, he says, he has associated with millionaires at his place of business at Broadway and 47th street, was in the police court today to answer to a complaint alleging that he did strike and bruise a fair damsel of his race, by name, Corrinne Roberts, and he did smite on the cheek, causing her pain and embarrassment when she appeared in the public street. Corrinne resented such indignity and asked for the arrest of Josh. He was taken into custody, but when he was presented today he declared that he was not guilty. Now Josh has disassociated himself from the millionaires and is engaged in preparing hash for those who would buy the same on the New York boats that are operated from this city, for he is second cook, when he is at work. He hasn't worked he says for a few days during which time he was the guest of Corrinne at her home on Douglass street. What happened that provoked Josh to lose his temper and let go at Corrinne was not stated, but it was intimated so strongly that the court had no doubt of the guilt of Josh. Judge Crandall told Josh that he was guilty in the eyes of the court and ordered him to pay a fine of $5 and to settle for the costs occasioned by his arraignment and trial. Josh sent after the money and paid his indebtedness.

Street Sergeant Samuel Hick resumed his duties as head of the second shift detail of patrolmen today, after his annual vacation of two weeks. Sergeant Patrick Murphy, who has had charge of this detail, resumed his regular duties, tonight, as head of the third shift of officers.

George Fox has acquired of Benjamin A. Armstrong a tract of land with a building on the site, on the northerly side of Pierce street.

An automobile owned and operated by Dr. Thomas Soltz, of John street, in being backed on Golden, near Green street, this afternoon, collided with a machine owned by Charles P. Oddo, Shaw street. The rear fender of the physician's car was damaged.

The investigation of the police ofthe burglary at the confectionery store of John Nichols, 80 Broad street, which was entered last Saturday night and $40 in specie taken from two cash registers, has resulted in officers making an investigation of the habits of two young men, as it is practically certain that the break was perpetrated by youths, either boys who have been employed at the place recently, or youths who frequented the store and had knowledge of the practice of Nichols leaving money in the cash register. Entrance to the store was made easy for the thieves for a rear window was left unfastened and a box was placed beneath it, that the youthful crooks could easily gain admission.

The Connecticut company got away with a slight accident this evening when one of its trolley cars left the rails on Bank street.

The traffic emerging from Bank street into State street was cleared just as the trolley car of the big double-truck type and enroute to Ocean Beach, left the State street terminal at 8:15 o'clock. As the big car made the turn from State into Bank street, the front trucks left the rails and before the brakes could be effectively applied, the front end of the car passed across the pavements and almost to the curb on Bank street, approaching automobiles were far enough away from the trolley car to permit their being brought to a stop before any accidents occurred. The rear trucks of the trolley car remained on the rails and within 10 minutes after the car left the iron it was returned to the rails and the trip to Ocean Beach resumed, without interruption of consequence resulting to traffic.

Miss Geraldine Costello, 22 Lewis street, is spending several weeks in Brockton, Mass.

Roy Burnham, a patient at Home Memorial hospital, returned to his home in Westerly this afternoon.

Tomorrow will mark the monthly change of beats of New London's patrolmen and with the change, orders for which were issued today by Captain Charles A. Pinney, three officers, who have been on a fixed beat will receive a change of post. The officers to receive the change of patrol are Patrolmen Ernest Opperman, George Perkins and Walter Rehn. These officers have comprised the detail of the three shifts at Ocean Beach for a year or more, and they are now to be given beats in other parts of the city. The officers who will supplant them have not performed patrol duty at the shore resort for about two years and are Patrolmen James McKenna, Dennis Murphy and Carlos Selesnitsky. The last named officer is now taking an enforced vacation because of a 30 days' suspension having been meted out to him by City Manager William A. Holt on charges of absenting himself from his post for 45 minutes. Selesnitsky will return to duty the 8th of July and until that date Patrolman Edward Riordan, now patrolling a beat in the center of the city, will be temporarily on duty at the beach. The change is brought about by two of the officers, it is understood, laying their grievance with Captain Pinney that they were entitled to a beat elsewhere in the city and because of the grievance all three officers are to be changed.

Miss Gertrude Samuelson, a student nurse at Perth Amboy, N. J., is visiting relatives in this city.

A class of candidates received the third degree tonight at a regular session of the Knights of Columbus. The conferring of the degree took place in the rooms of Union lodge, Union street, and was witnessed by a representative number of members of the organization.

Harry Matthews, a stranger hereabouts, evidently believed he was entitled to free transportation on the New London Steamship line today. He boarded the steamer Richard W. Peck in New York this morning and when the steamer reached port this evening he attempted to leave the boat without tendering a ticket for his passage. Neither would Matthews purchase a ticket, so Sergeant Kane of the New York, New Haven and Hartford force of special agents, was summoned and Matthews was placed under arrest. He is now occupying a cell at the police station and will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning.

Announcement is made of the marriage in New York last Thursday by Fred S. Langdon, of the firm of Bilderbeck & Langdon, architects, and Miss Lillian M. Moran, Boston, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Langdon have arrived in New London and have taken up their residence at 533 Montauk avenue.

Miss Maude E. Brown, of Allen street, Groton, has returned to her home after having spent a week with friends in Brooklyn, N. Y., and Belle Harbor, L. I.

All is in readiness here for the reception of the officers and crew of the H. M. S. Wasteria, which is scheduled to reach the mouth of the harbor tomorrow forenoon for a 10 days' stay in port. As soon as the warship is sighted in Long Island Sound a delegation of city officials, naval officers and representatives of civic societies will embark on a launch from the submarine base and proceed to the battleship, which will be boarded, after which she will steam to the upper harbor. An elaborate program has been arranged for the entertainment of both officers and crew of the British craft.

A detail of three patrolmen and two special agents, the latter of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, were on duty at the Union station this evening, being summoned there to meet the train scheduled to reach New London from New York at 8:11 o'clock. At New Haven, two men boarded the train and they were much the worse for indulgence in strong drink. They created such a disturbance before the train pulled out of New Haven that an attempt was made to eject them, but they proved too much for the train crew. A message was sent to the railroad officers here of the trouble and when the train arrived the two disturbers were in a calm and peaceful mood so they were allowed to continue the trip to Boston.

The large fleet of taxicabs stationed at the Union depot was increased to eight when two cabs, owned and operated by a Norwich firm, took up their position with the other cars and by their introduction to operate here a more livelier competition has already resulted for the new cab company has adopted a much lower rate than the other cab operators charge.

GYPSY STOPPED OLD MEN, NIMBLY PICKED POCKETS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 30—Rose Black one of a gang of a scare of gypsies who arrived in Waterford Saturday evening, and pitched tents on the grounds of the Graniteville schoolhouse, was before Judge Fred Dimmock, in the Waterford town court, Sunday night, charged with theft on two counts. Rose pleaded guilty to both charges and was fined $2 and costs. She paid and then, with her gang, was ordered to leave the town. Rose was pursuing her trade that of telling fortunes, along the Waterford highways, Sunday afternoon. She accosted Axel Carlson, about 66, and requested matches and while the old man fumbled in his pockets to grant the request, Rose fumbled in another pocket and obtained $2.

Rose then came upon Richard Johns, another elderly man, and requested permission to tell his fortune. When the old man acquiesced, Rose succeeded in working her nimble fingers with such cleverness as to steal $2 from her victim. Following the two acts of the gypsy she was taken into custody and her penalization resulted.

BOYS AND GIRLS WILL HAVE BIG FAIR EXHIBIT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Ct., June 30—Plans for an elaborate Boy's and Girl's State Club exhibit for the Connecticut State Fair to be held at Charter Oak Park Sept. 7-12 were announced here by A. J. Brundage, State Leader in Boy's and Girl's Club work in Connecticut. Emphasis will be laid this year on dairying, baby beef cattle, sheep and home economics, with complete exhibits arranged showing the work of the club members in these lines of endeavor. Features of this year's display will be the dairying judging contest, the baby beef auction, the encampment of the dairy club boys, and the judging and demonstration teams in the various divisions of the home economics exhibit.

Approximately $3,000 has been set aside by the Connecticut State Fair Association to finance the 4-H club exhibit, and indications point to the best display of the Boy's and Girl's work since it was included as a part of the State Fair.

That the Fair Association recognizes the importance of dairying as a part of the programme in the Boy's Club work may be seen in the announcement that $1,300 will be spent in this department alone. This is interesting in that it is more than any other fair association or exposition in New England, not excepting the Eastern States Exposition at Springfield, is spending to further dairying work in the Boy's Dairy Clubs. Holstein, Ayrshire, Jersey and Guernsey are the four breeds that will be featured in the dairy department, and it is expected that seventy-five animals will be entered by forty-five dairy club members. An added attraction this year is the dairy club encampment which will be set up on the fair grounds, in which the dairy club boys will live during their stay at the fair. A feature of the dairy exhibit will be the judging contest in which the state champion dairy judges will be selected. The three boys making the highest score will be given free trips to the National Dairy Show at Indianapolis, to be held the first week in October. As pointed out by Mr. Brundage, dairying is being stressed in this exhibit because it plays an important part in the club work program, there being over three hundred dairy club members ranging from ten to twenty-one years of age, who own several hundred animals valued at approximately $200,000.

Herefords, Aberdeen Angus and Shorthorns are the three breeds that will be represented in the baby beef class. It is expected that thirty of the finest baby beeves of these breeds in Connecticut will be on display, all being attended by their owners. A feature of this exhibit will be the baby beef auction, in which the club members will sell their animals under the auctioneer's hammer. It is the first sale of its kind ever to be held in Connecticut.

That sheep have not been permanently lost to New England may be seen in the sheep exhibit, which will be arranged to a large extent by the New Haven County members under the leadership of Paul P. Ives of the New Haven County Farm Bureau. The boys from the shore county are now raising their sheep on the hill pastures, and their usual good display of animals is assured. Many of the sheep club members will be back at the fair for their sixth consecutive year.

Girl's work in clothing, food preparation, health and canning clubs will be featured in the home economics display. In order to clearly illustrate the accomplishments of the young homemakers, the best products of the girl's clubs from all over Connecticut will be on display. In the Clothing Clubs alone, over 1,200 girls are enrolled, and the finest of their product will without doubt show a quality of work equal to experienced clothes makers. Many of the older girls enrolled in this work make most of their own clothes.

A state bread exhibit, the first of its kind, will feature the exhibit of the clubs in food preparation. In line with this, a display will be arranged showing the best of the product of the state canning clubs. Demonstrations, the dates of which will be announced later, will be given in both food preparation and canning.

Demonstrations by teams of girls in home nursing will be a feature of the exhibit in health club work. Special work has been given to most of the Homemaking Clubs by Miss Lisleth MacDonald, R. N., of Storrs, specialist in rural health and hygiene. Health Club work will be further illustrated by sets of posters, serving as guides to habits which make for better health, which the club members are now working on.

Following is the list of club workers throughout the state who are directing the boys and girls in their preparations for the 4-H Club exhibit at the State Fair: A. J. Brundage, Storrs, State Leader; Elsie Trabue, Storrs, Assistant State Leader; James R. Case, Danbury, Fairfield Co. Club Leader; Raymond T. James, Hartford, Hartford Co., Club Leader; Harry C. Norcross and Eleanor S. Moss of Torrington of the Litchfield Co., Farm Bureau Sidney A. Edwards, Middletown, Middlesex Co. Agent; Paul P. Ives, New Haven, New Haven Co., Club Leader; Walter T. Clark and Gladys E. Stratton of Norwich of the New London Co. Farm Bureau; Ernest E. Tucker and Sarah W. Dimock of Rockville, Tolland Co. Farm Bureau.

BARRED ROCKS LEAD OTHER EGG LAYERS

Favorable summer weather has had its effect on egg production in the laying trials at Storrs. During the past week there was an actual increase of 161 eggs which brought the total lay for the thirty-fourth week up to 4789 eggs or a yield of nearly forty-nine per cent. Barred Rocks as a class led the field with a batting average of 557. Although the Leghorns averaged only .526 they nevertheless made longer hits as can be seen from the following list of weekly winners.

Hanson's Leghorn Farm from Corvallis, Ore., was undisputed for first place with a score of 55 eggs. This brings the Oregon pen within 31 eggs of Meadowedge Farm's pen of Leghorns from Sterling Junction, Massachusetts that have been leading not only the Leghorns but all breeds as well for the last sixteen weeks. The Oregon pen got away to the best start last November and held the lead for a fortnight. The Massachusetts pen had the pole for a week but the Oregon chickens held them to second place for the next fourteen weeks, since which time the Bay State biddies have outlaid all comers. A margin of only 31 eggs means, of course, that it's anybody's race.

Hilltop Farm's pen of Lexhorns from Suffield, Conn., and Harriet Smith's pen of Barred Rocks from Newburyport, Mass., tied for second place with 54 eggs each. Reuhle's Sunnyside Farm's pen of Leghorns from Pleasant Valley, N. Y., was a close third for the week with a total of 54 eggs. J. C. Patton's pen of the same breed from Charlotte, N. C., was an equally close fourth with a tally of 53 eggs. This pen from Dixieland headed the list for two weeks in succession. Dropping to fourth place would at first blush seem to suggest erratic performance. Actually this is not the case because the five best pens out of the 140 in the contest were separated last week by a margin of only five eggs.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

White Rocks

Ellen Day Ranken, Huntington, L. I., N. Y.	1221
H. R. Spangler, Matawan, N. J.	1045
Davidson Bros., Upton, Mass.	1031

White Wyandottes

Marie Dressler Almost an Heiress

When Charlie Chaplin and Marie Dressler made their debut in society no detail of luxuriousness was lacking, in that side-splitting Mack Sennett masterpiece of comedy, "Tillie's Punctured Romance," at the Palace Theatre.

To inherit three million dollars just when things look their blackest is sufficient provocation for causing an even more domesticated and country-bred maiden to forget her parlor manners. Which perhaps accounts for her lack of ball-room etiquette.

Charlie and Tillie give their first grand ball to the moneyed magnates of their realm. But they give much more than a mere ball, and one of the many "extras" is a dance by the host and hostess themselves. How can anyone explain the kind of dance executed by the inimitable Charlie Chaplin and the agile bulk of Marie Dressler.

After the ball comes a blow for the married pair, and then their troubles begin in earnest. The luxurious furnishings of the millionaire's mansion are little heeded in the precipitous flight of the bewildered guests. All hopes of fortune are blasted by the reappearance of Tillie's uncle, and their domestic peace is shattered.

This masterpiece of comedy contains a laugh in every flash—and then as many all over again! A truly big revival of one of the greatest comedy features of Mack Sennett's genius.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

SWARTHMORE CHAUTAUQUA COMING TO DANIELSON

A splendid production of the 1925 Chautauqua prize play, "The Next Best Man;" a novelty concert including selections on "the Belle" by Ralph Dunbar's Singing Bell Ringers; stirring concerts by the Davis Sisters, Buglers; and J. Coates Lockhart and his Scotch Lassies; lecturers of the standing of Walter J. Millard, and Tom Skeyhill; and a fine entertainment by Charles Ross Taggart "the old country fiddler"; specially arranged children's work—all these and more form the well-balanced Chautauqua programme to be given in Danielson, July 8-13.

On the opening afternoon the Sorority Singers, a quartet of young ladies coached by Elias Day of Chicago, will give a varied concert and entertainment program.

At night they will prelude the one-man programme of Charles Ross Taggart, whose work is well known from the phonograph and the radio. He is often called the "Fiddling Filosofer."

On the second afternoon a full concert by J. Coates Lockhart, the Scotch singer, who has sung many times before royalty, and his assisting artists. Mr. Lockhart was soloist with the famous Kilties Band on its world tour. He is a comedian as well as a musician.

At night after a short but different program by the Scotch laddie and lassies, Walter J. Millard, foremost expert on municipal government, will talk on "Effective Voting and Effective Government." Mr. Millard was instrumental in the successful campaigns at Cleveland and Cincinnati, which adopted a new city charter, including a city manager.

On the third afternoon, a stirring session with bugles, trumpets, etc., under the direction of the famous war duo, the Davis Sisters, who were affectionately dubbed "Sammies Sisters" by the boys in khaki.

The Davis Sisters will be heard in a different program at night followed by an arousing address by Tom Skeyhill, of whom Roosevelt said "I would rather be on the platform with Tom Skeyhill than any man I know."

On the fourth afternoon the ladies (and perhaps the men) will have their innings. A dress demonstration by Margaret Story, author of "How to Dress Well" and "Intelligent Dressing." Living models will demonstrate the frocks and dresses carried by Mrs. Story.

At night on the fourth day comes the Chautauqua prize play of 1925, "The Next Best Man" by Leon M. Pearson. This is said to be the best of the three prize plays. It contains many amusing situations and is based on a unique plot of "a play within the play."

On the last afternoon a short "taster" program will be given by the famous Dunbar Singing Bell Ringers, in addition to the Junior Chautauqua pageant, "The Torch Bearers."

At night a full evening's program of mirth and melody. These Bell Ringers are entertainers as well as musicians. There will not be a dull moment. A fitting climax to a series of outstanding events.

Breed Theater

The most talked of picture of the year comes to the Breed theater today and for a two days engagement. It is Erich von Stroheim's production of Greed—The Metro-Goldwyn director's literal film version of Frank Norris's novel McTeague.

During its two years of production the picture was the subject of innumerable newspaper and magazine articles. The fact that von Stroheim attempted stark, uncompromising realism without the slightest sop to theatrical contention, that he staged the picture entirely in the actual locations described in the original novel and that in the latter consideration he led an expedition into Death Valley, made the picture a topic of wide interest. New York reviewers quoted it as the most important picture ever made.

Greed tells the story of an excarbey of the Big Dipper mine who picks up a smatterin of crude dentistry from an itinerant dentist, eventually opens his unlicensed office in San Francisco, marries the daughter of a thrifty Swiss-German family livin in Oakland, and then goes into mental and physical disintegration through the basic avarice and greed of his wife's nature and of his associates.

This cast includes Zazu Pitts, Gibson Gowland, Jean Hersholt, Frank Hayes, Chester Conklin, Hughie Mack, Dale Fuller, Fanny Midgley, Jack Curtis and James McDonald, Ben F. Reynolds and William B. Daniels were the photographers. Greed is a Metro-Goldwyn picture, presented by Louis B. Mayer.

It was recently reported that a Kansas medical student shot a patient. The mere fact that he resorted to fire arms proves that he was not a full-fledged doctor.

WESTERLY

Registration figures at the office of the Westerly town clerk at an early hour on Tuesday, the last day, showed 614 men registered as against the total of 1090 for 1924, and 749 total men for 1923, while in 1922 it was 364 and in 1921, 698.

Early Tuesday afternoon the woman registry was 448. The next to last registry day in 1923 was 414.

A meeting of the members of the National Defense day committee together with the delegates and representatives from the various societies and organizations, was held Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in the rooms of Harold W. Merrill post, No. 16, American Legion, on Broad street. The meeting was the second called to order to plan for the Fourth of July observance of National defense. The first committee meeting was held in the post rooms Friday evening when a number of committees were named to report at the Tuesday evening session. George P. Chapman was chairman and Miss Lucy Crowley was clerk of the evening session.

Miss Margaret M. Bennett, who has many friends in Westerly and vicinity, received a degree of Master of Arts last Wednesday from Brown University. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Bennett of Providence, who have a summer home at Quonochontaug.

As a result and following the meeting in Providence Monday of the police chiefs of the State of Rhode Island, Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, who attended the state session, issued to the Westerly police officers Tuesday afternoon with instructions to see that they are enforced, the following orders relative to violations of the motor vehicle laws of Rhode Island:

1. ONE ARM OPERATING.

In case of such violation, the officer shall take the name and license number of the operator.

2. ONE LIGHT OPERATING.

The officer shall direct the operator to go to the nearest garage for repairs and there leave his registration number with the owner of the garage, or his agent.

3. RIDING IN UNSAFE POSITIONS ON MOTOR VEHICLES.

The officer shall cause the person or persons so riding to be moved from said unsafe position.

4. LOADING OF PASSENGERS SO AS TO INTERFERE WITH PROPER CONTROL BY OPERATOR.

The officer shall cause to be removed such passengers as shall interfere with proper control by the operator.

5. STOPPING OF MOTOR VEHICLE, ON HIGHWAYS.

The officer shall cause all motor vehicles to be removed from the metal part of the highway.

6. SPEEDING UP TRAFFIC.

When a long line of traffic is held up by a slowly moving vehicle, the officer shall cause such vehicle to reasonably speed up.

NOTE: In all cases excepting the last case the officer shall make a written report.

(Signed) THOMAS E. BROWN
Chief of Police of Westerly.

The New CHRYSLER FOUR
Walter P. Chrysler's Latest Achievement
Now Ready!

Walter P. Chrysler's full conception of what a four-cylinder car should be has now become a reality.

Mr. Chrysler announces the new Chrysler Four, companion car to the Chrysler Six. It is here, ready for your inspection.

$895 Touring Car F.O.B. Detroit, Tax Extra

Whether you are a car owner or not, by all means see this new Chrysler creation. Ride in it. Get to know the latest Chrysler achievement which the master car builder identifies with his own name.

It will amaze you, for it is our firm conviction that the new Chrysler Four represents a better and finer combination of power, speed, fuel mileage and charm of appearance than any other four in the world today.

For four years Chrysler-created products have steadily advanced to the very fore-front of the four and six-cylinder fields.

Chrysler engineering, Chrysler manufacturing quality and Chrysler value eclipsed all previous production records for cars that might be considered comparable.

Every step of that irresistible advance was part of the process in preparation for the production of the new Chrysler Four answering the insistent public demand for another Chrysler.

The basis for the beauty of the new Chrysler Four is the dynamic symmetry which Chrysler engineers were first to translate into beautiful motor car design in the Chrysler Six.

The wonderful riding qualities of the new Chrysler Four cannot be described. You must experience them to know what an advance has been made in the four-cylinder field. It is enough to say that a ride will amaze and delight you.

And when you ride you'll notice the absolute quietness of the four-cylinder engine, you'll find no rumble or tremors in the body of the car.

Here is a car you can truly drive all day without fatigue. It is hardly ever necessary to shift gears, except for starting from a dead stop. When shifting is necessary it is made clean and noiselessly by the matched transmission gears and easy clutch action.

There has never been the like of the new Chrysler Four at anywhere near its price. Be prepared for a great revelation.

Coach $1045 F. O. B. Detroit, tax extra. Four-wheel hydraulic brakes optional. Body by Fisher.

Touring Car $895 F. O. B. Detroit, tax extra. Four-wheel hydraulic brakes optional.

GROUND IS FORMALLY BROKEN FOR COMMUNITY HOUSE AT STORRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Ct., June 30—Ground was broken for the Storrs Community House this afternoon, when ministers and laymen from all sections of the state took part in the exercises that mark the first step in the actual construction of the structures planned to increase the social and religious facilities of the students at the State College. These include a new church and community house, the funds for which are being raised by a state-wide campaign conducted by the Connecticut Federation of Churches.

The exercises opened with a luncheon served at noon in the college dining hall, after which prominent clergymen spoke on the work of the Connecticut Federation of Churches, and on the importance of the Church and Community House Campaign. Following this, the group went to the site of the new community house, where ministers of the Congregational, Methodist, Baptist, Universalist and Episcopal churches each took part in the exercises. Today's event was the occasion for a field day of the Congregational Ministers of Connecticut, who made a detailed study of the projected building program. The architect's drawing of the proposed community house an dnew church was on exhibition in the vestry of the Storrs church attracting the attention of many of the visitors.

Prof. George C. White of Connecticut Agricultural College, as chairman of the board of trustees of the Storrs Congregational church, introduced those taking part in the ground breaking exercises. These were Dr. William North Rice, honorary president of the Connecticut Federation of Churches who gave the opening prayer; Rev. L. H. Dorchester, pastor of the First Methodist church of Hartford and president of the Connecticut Federation of Churches. As chairman of the executive committee of the Storrs Church Campaign, Rev. Dorchester was given the honor of turning the first sod in the ground breaking exercises.

Others who gave short talks and helped in breaking ground were President Charles Lewis Beach of the Connecticut Agricultural College; Rev. David Gaines, vice-president of the Connecticut Federation of Churches and pastor of the First Baptist church of Waterbury; Dr. Charles D. Alton of the Episcopalian Fellowship, who read a letter from Bishop C. B. Brewster of Hartford, congratulating the committee on their work; Dr. R. H. Potter, pastor of the First Church of Christ of Hartford, and chairman of the Congregational committee for the Storrs church; and Rev. Morris E. Allinz, pastor of the Storrs Community Church and Director of the Storrs Church Campaign; who gave the benediction.

Speakers at the luncheon given prior to the ground breaking exercises included Rev. Morris E. Allinz; Rev. Oscar E. Mauer of New Haven; Rev. William F. English of Hartford; Rev. Samuel Clifton of Winsted; Rev. Sherwood W. Soule of Hartford; and Rev. Edward B. Ayer, chaplain of the 1925 state senate.

Mr. White in his introductory remarks at the opening of the exercises said in part, "For a good many years, folks in Storrs have been dreaming of such an event as this. They saw, as also did a few friends in the state, that a church plant fully able to meet the needs of a developing college was lacking in this community. Thirteen months ago this dream reached its first practical stage when the responsibility for the campaign, now in progress, was shouldered by the Connecticut Federation of Churches.

"It is less than a year since the first dollar was subscribed toward the fulfilment of this program, and now the subscriptions easily pass the amount allotted to the building of the community house. The architects plans have been completed and only yesterday the architect was instructed to secure bids from Connecticut's leading contractors. These bids will be opened on July 21 and we believe that the building will be under way by Aug. 1 or soon thereafter.

"This building will serve many purposes. It will be the center of the social life of Storrs. It will house the Sunday School and religious instructional work. When the next Congregational young people's conference convenes here, one year hence, we believe this building will be standing here, ready to serve as the center of their activities.

"And I am now happy to say that we have arrived at this point in our campaign with genuine pride. On behalf of the board of trustees of the church, and of the community of Storrs, I affectionately acknowledge the assistance of the good people of Connecticut and thank you and them from the fullnes sof my heart."

Rev. Dr. Dorchester, who broke ground first, said in part: "This is a happy moment for us all, registering not the dreams but the actual progress of our project to erect a church community building on this college campus, a project long desired, but which was formally launched only a year ago. This is but the first unit of a comprehensive plan, including a suitable church building and endowment to total $300,000, to make worthy provision for the needs of the student body and college community in this place

"We have watched the fine progress of Connecticut Agricultural College, as it has added building after building, course after course, enlarging and enriching the education afforded by this growing institution. But we have become increasingly aware that the facilities here provided were entirely insufficient to meet all the moral, social and religious needs of this college community. Botany, chemistry, scientific soil treatment, the art of poultry raising, and all agricultural interests, have been promoted with commendable skill and efficiency, but the religious education of the students, their moral and spiritual training, and the development of the highest social and civic service which makes for best citizenship, have not been as definitely on the map, or in the scope of this institution as have these other interests. And because it is not considered within the province of this state to promote this kind of work, these supreme interests have not been made to appear to the student body on a par with the college interests.

"During the past year of agitation and publicity, however, the conscience of the church people of the state has been aroused to see this great need, and the campaign for funds to house this work has now advanced far enough to pay for one building, and to justify the actual beginning we make here today.

"We are also happy today over the demonstration this campaign has made of the possibility of the various church agencies of the state to work together in unity for a common purpose. As you already know the Connecticut Federation of Churches was asked a year ago by the church people of this community to approve and father this project. It was a new kind of project, without precedent. But after careful investigation the Federation heartily voted to undertake it; and I feel honored as its president to have a part in this movement as a chairman of the campaign committee. The fine substantial interest shown by the Storrs president and faculty, and the strong endorsements which have come from one church denomination after the other, and the campaign for money which has carried us over the $100,000 mark, and the definite assurances from the state Congregational officials to endeavor to provide funds for the proposed meeting house, are eloquent signs of the fine cooperation already received, and still expected, from all the religious forces of the state.

"Surely this auspicious ceremony today, starting this first building, will quicken the thought and stir the philanthropy of all patriotic citizens to respond in the coming months with such further substantial gifts as shall make the beautiful phophecy a glorious reality, and enable us to raise such religious provisions for this student community as shall be on a par with the splendid agricultural equipment; and so help to make Storrs a place which fully fits its duties for life, to fill their high places as worthy leaders throughout the state and nation."

Storrs Family Gift Proposed.

STORRS, Conn., June 30.—(AP)—In connection with the breaking of ground for the new community house at the Connecticut Agricultural college here today, it was announced that the Storrs family was considering a proposition of making a contribution of $25,000 to the $300,000 fund necessary for the erection of the community house, a new church and to provide for an endowment fund.

The gift would be a memorial to the Storrs family and would take the form of a steeple for the proposed community house.

PUTNAM MAN MARRIES GIRL FROM STONINGTON

Miss Josephine Leahy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Leahy of Stonington, and Louis Wilcox of Putnam were married Monday evening at St. Mary's rectory, Stonington by Rev. James E. O Brien.

Miss Leahy wore an ensemble suit of ashes of roses georgette with hat to match. She carried a shower bouquet of old-fashioned garden flowers. The matron of honor, Mrs. Matthew T. Leahy, sister-in-law of the bride, was gowned in silk figured crepe in green and white, with leghorn hat and carried garden flowers.

Voyle Smith of Northampton, Mass., brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was best man. The bride's gift to the matron of honor was a gold picture and the bridegroom's gift to the best man was gold cuff links.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in Williams street, Stonington, and supper was served to about 35 relatives. The bride received many gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox left for a trip to New York, Philadelphia and Washington.

Those who attended from out of town were Manning Wilcox of Putnam, father of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Green and Miss Blanche Green of North Grosvenordale, Mr. and Mrs. Voyle Smith of Northampton, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. John Daly of Hartford, Floyd La Pierre of Lord's Point, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Leahy and James L. Leahy, Milford, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. John Dunn, Providence, R. I., Mrs. Margaret Connor of New London, Mrs. Mary E. Lanvan and Cary Leahy, of Boston.

HENRY SWATZBURG WIRES FROM SANTA BARBARA

A telegram to The Bulletin, Tuesday evening, announced the safety of Henry O. Swatzburg in Santa Barbara, California, where earthquakes devastated the city this week.

His telegram was as follows: Norwich Bulletin, Norwich, Conn.: Inform through your paper that family safe; business wrecked.—H. O. Swatzburg.

This good news was conveyed to Norwich relatives of Mr. Swatzburg, who include his sisters, Mrs. Louis Atkind, of 31 Maple street, and Mrs. Ida Jacobson, of High street, and his brothers, Joseph J. Swatzburg, of 31 Maple street, and Kive and Charles Swatzburg, of 129 Summit street. He has another brother, Arthur, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mrs. Atkind has also received a telegram from her brother, telling he was safe.

Mr. Swatzburg had been in the west for the past 17 or 18 years, formerly being in Ponco City, Oklahoma, but about three years ago he visited his Norwich relatives and then located in Santa Barbara, where he was in the jewelry business, having the largest and finest jewelry store in the place, located at 726 State street. His family consists of his wife and an eight-year-old son and their residence is in a beautiful location near the Santa Barbara mission.

Fred Swatzburg, of this city, his nephew, made a visit to his uncle about a month ago, spending some time in Santa Barbara.

WOMEN AND MEN EQUAL IN VOTE REGISTRATION

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., June 30—At the closing of the registration books for voters at town clerk's office at 9 o'clock Tuesday night, the total figure showed a peculiar condition, for there were exactly the same number of men registered as women, there being 713 each, or a total number of 1426 registered voters, qualified to vote in the town of Westerly. For the women in previous years the list showed in 1924, 905; 1923, 608; 1922, 778; 1921, 529 and 1920, 1262.

C. OF C. MONTHLY LETTER TREATS PERTINENT TOPICS

The Thames River dredging, zoning and parking in Norwich, the use of Hollyhock Island and the matter of a community chest are subjects discussed in the June membership letter of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce which was issued Tuesday.

The letter follows:

Thames River

We have been informed by the district engineer's office of the war department that the present dredging of the river channel is purely maintenance of the fourteen foot depth authorized years ago by the federal government.

The United States board of Army engineers has given consideration to the arguments made by the Chamber's committee in Washington last February regarding the deepening of the channel to eighteen feet. The board made its report to the chief engineer, General Taylor, who can approve or disapprove the report. The result of the engineers deliberations and conclusions cannot be made public, according to army regulations, until the whole matter has been submitted to Congress. Congress reconvenes next December.

Should the report be favorable, the next step is to secure the necessary appropriation from Congress. In this the Chamber expects to have the cooperation of the national representatives from all the Atlantic seaboard states. On the other hand the report may not be favorable and that will settle the question for the present.

The present dredging activity is simply the periodic maintenance work to keep the channel at its present depth. The channel is being improved by the cutting and widening at Long Beach.

Zoning

The need for zoning Norwich is becoming more and more apparent, caused by the establishment of undesirable conditions in some residential sections of the city. Anything that tends to depreciate the values of surrounding properties, through the accretions of undesirable business in residential districts, should be prohibited.

In conjunction with zoning regulations goes the necessity for an efficient building code. The present building code of Norwich was adopted in 1893.

For some time past a committee of the Chamber has been giving study to a revision of the present code with the purpose of submitting it to the city officials for their consideration and action. This committee consists of: W. F. Lester, chairman; S. B. Palmer, C. W. Taggart, A. M. Thompson, and J. N. Wesmouth.

Intelligent and careful planning is essential to the attainment of a well regulated community. A city is a combination of social and economic interests. The aim of city government is to harmonize these interests for the general welfare of the community.

Parking

Good automobile parking regulations, strictly enforced by the authorities, are a most valuable asset to the best interests of a city.

The attention of the members and the general public is called to this matter in order to secure the greatest co-operation possible. Local business men should not use the public street for a private garage. The finest parking regulations in the world become a joke when not strictly enforced. We cannot expect Norwich to have the maximum of business with a minimum of parking spaces, and poorly enforced regulations.

The legal department of the New Haven railroad has given its permission to its officials to throw open the space at the station for public parking at a nominal fee. On account of the pressure of business engaging their attention, the re-opening of this space has been delayed. We have been assured that action will soon be taken in this matter by the railroad officials.

Hollyhock Island

There are about seven acres, more or less, in this area which could be developed into an athletic field for our young men; provide a large parking space area; and establish also a city yard for the public works department.

This area is located off West Main street in the rear of the Crescent Fire-arms company's plant. It is used as a city dump but a creditable athletic field and recreational grounds, convenient to the business center could be made from land now wasted.

Whether or not this site could ever be used as a manufacturing one could be best determined by the type of industry that might locate there. The building of a suitable foundation for a heavy structure might prove a difficult problem.

Until such time as the land was needed for other purposes, the area could be made usable and provide recreational facilities, at a nominal expense, for the public. The parking committee is giving this possibility its attention.

Community Chest

The amount raised by 206 cities and towns throughout the country last year (ending May 31st) was nearly $51,000,000. During the past year 26 additional cities and towns adopted the chest procedure.

The first essential thing for a community chest is, co-operative spirit. To be successful it must be organized and operated in a spirit of co-operation.

The second essential thing is a clear and full knowledge of the local factors that make up the need of a local chest. Policies must be developed as a matter of principle, and not of personality.

The third essential thing is the knowledge, spread over the whole community of the reasons why the chest is necessary. Why is the plan necessary; what does it propose to do; how does it propose to do it; are some of the reasons that must need be answered in all fairness and truthfulness.

The fourth essential thing is the adoption of sound business practices and methods in the operation of the chest. The accounting system must be accurate. The executive board should be composed of competent citizens, willing to devote time and thought to the work.

A Community chest, properly organized and functioning through an efficient system, can be the greatest factor for the development of the general charitable and philanthropic welfare of the community.

SEVEN CALLS IN JUNE FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT

During the month of June the fire department responded to seven calls, the month being an unusually quiet one for the department. Of these calls six were by telephone and one by bell alahm and there were losses paid in only two cases. These were the fires at the home of William Dempsey on Mowry avenue, struck by lightning, and the home of James Graham of 16 Cliff street, this fire thought to have been of incendiary origin.

The fire department also received one call from out of town but did not respond as there was no water available at the scene of the fire.

WILL FORMERLY OPEN ITS NEW GOLF COURSE

Norwich has a right to feel proud of its new golf course as it is one of the best in the state of Connecticut, according to officials of the Norwich Golf club, who are planning to open the new 18-hole course officially, on Saturday morning, July 4th, with special meets and programmes.

The official opening of the course, according to Dr. Franklin Wilcox, who is in charge of the sports programme for the day, will take place promptly at 9 o'clock in the morning, daylight time. At this time the first ball will be sent from the tee and the golfers will strive in competition for honors in the big tournament of the day.

The morning play calls for a medal play handicap, to qualify to sixteens, first, second and third. The tournament will be for eighteen holes and prizes are to be awarded for best net scores shot over the new course.

In the afternoon at 1 o'clock the driving and approaching and putting contests will begin. Prizes are to be awarded for longest drives, best balls to count, accuracy in approaching the greens and best scores for putting.

Over 60 members have already signed for the morning game in the medal play handicap and fully as many are to compete in the afternoon events.

The tennis tournament which starts Friday on the newly finished courts will continue through Saturday and entries are coming in fast for this event.

For those who not golf or play tennis there will be entertainment at the club house. Luncheon will be served at the club about 12.30 o'clock and cards will afford entertainment to those not desiring the outdoor games.

The official opening of the 18-hole golf course marks a great advance in the history of the Norwich Golf club. After improving the old 9-hole course until it became known as one of the toughest courses in the east the club sought to make Norwich more attractive to golf players by enlarging the course to the standard 18-hole course. Action was taken along these lines a little over a year ago and new land was purchased and men set to work preparing the land for the layout of the larger course. Much credit for the success of the venture is due to Charles Royce Boss and Willis Austin who have worked tirelessly for this improvement.

The new course is without doubt one of the finest in the state if not in the east, having beautiful stolen greens, nicely planned fairways that are in wonderful condition. Tees are improved to the best and the greens are fast, and in first class condition. With the opening of the new course the Norwich club bids fair to attract many out of town golf lovers and become a center for golfers in this corner of the state. Team matches already are being planned for the summer months and the season will see many teams from many golf clubs in the state test their ability on the course with the leaders of the Norwich club.

Drowned in Shallow Water.

NEW LONDON, June 30.—(A. P.)—William H. Dewsbury, 72, of Thompsonville, retired superintendent of the weaving plant of the Bigelow-Hartford Carpet company of the same town, was drowned in seven feet of water at the Poquonock beach in Waterford last evening. He was seized with a shock while in swimming.

ENGINEERS' CONVENTION IS TO BE HELD IN NORWICH

Upon an invitation extended by John A. Holland of this city, the retiring president of the state body of Connecticut Power plant engineers, the association voted at its annual convention in New Haven last Saturday, to hold the convention in Norwich in 1926. The vote was unanimous.

In presenting the invitation to meet in Norwich, Mr. Holland addressed the gathering as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Convention: Being a resident of Norwich and having the honor to serve you in the position of president during the past year, I wish to invite this association, together with the supply men, to hold our annual convention and power show in Norwich in June, 1926. While in the past it has been customary to hold which are more centrally located, still, while hare more centrally located, still, I am sure you will agree with me that Norwich offers many facilities for holding a convention of this kind that are not built in cities of the same population. We are situated in the eastern part of the state and we have two power plants in our midst, namely, our own municipal plant and the plant of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., which is located in Montville. This plant is one of the most modern and finest equipped plants in the country for its size. We also have a water turbine plant at Taftville and I know visits to these power plants would be interesting for the engineers of Connecticut to make while they are in convention in our city. The Norwich Association has a membership of seventy-five men, all splendid engineers, and men who I know will make your stay in our city a most pleasant one. We have, I think, sufficient hotel facilities to take care of you and have a chamber of commerce that I am sure will give us splendid cooperation. I now take great pleasure in inviting you to hold your next convention and power show in our city in 1926."

Mr. Holland declined renomination for president, but presented the name of Elmer L. Bassett, chief engineer of the Hartford Rubber Works, who was finally elected with the following associate officers:

Vice president, Walter Ray, of Devon; secretary and treasurer, George F. Klopfer, of New Haven; state deputy, F. L. Neihus, of Waterbury. These officers were installed by National President Dudley G. Kimball of Boston.

The convention was opened Friday evening by President Holland promptly at 8 p. m., and after welcoming the delegates he introduced Professor E. H. Lockwood of Yale University, who gave a most excellent talk on engineering equipment. Professor Lockwood's talk was followed by the motion picture "Power," after which the delegates and visiting friends held a smoker and entertainment in Dorscht Hall.

On Saturday, the 27th, the business meeting of the convention was opened at 10 a. m. and President Holland introduced Mayor Fitzgerald of New Haven, who welcomed the delegates.

STATE COMMERCE CHAMBER COMMENDS GRAND JURY

NEW LONDON, June 30.—(A. P.)—Commendation of the results brought about by the special grand jury of Hartford county in its investigation of "irregularities in the practice of the healing art" was issued here today by the board of directors of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce.

The directors of the chamber also commended Governor Trumbull on his recent appointments to three new and important state commissions by the following resolution:

"Resolved, that the director of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce hereby express their appreciation to Governor John H. Trumbull for the admirable selections which he has made for the healing arts board, the commission on pollution of streams and the commission on state institutions—in all of which the chamber was directly interested."

The directors authorized President Ernest E. Rogers to appoint a special committee to work out a programme of conducting forty leading business men and manufacturers of Virginia through Connecticut on a tour of inspection next October. This delegation will visit New England under the auspices of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce.

The party will spend about three days in various Connecticut industrial cities. President Rogers will shortly appoint special committees representing the various local chambers of commerce throughout the state to co-operate.

The chamber's directors authorized President Rogers to appoint a special committee to work jointly with a committee from the Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut whose combined purpose will be to co-operate in various ways with the new pollution of streams commission just appointed by Governor Trumbull. The directors also authorized President Rogers to appoint a special committe to confer with a committee from the Manufacturers association regarding to interrelation of manufacturing and merchandising in Connecticut.

A special committee consisting of President Rogers, Mr. Bullard and Major Johnson was appointed to report to the next meeting of the board regarding the matter of filling of three vacancies existing among the directors of the chamber. This step marks a new departure in the method of filling existing vacancies.

It was voted to hold the next annual convention of the chamber in New London next June.

ENGLAND ASKS OFFER FROM FRANCE ON WAR DEBT

Austen Chamberlain Delivers New Memorandum To French Ambassador Suggesting Time Is Ripe For France To Make An Offer For Settlement of Her Debt To Great Britain—Feels England Is Entitled To Be Treated On An Equal Footing With Other Creditor Powers In Debt Negotiations—British Note Will Be Placed Before Next Meeting of French Cabinet.

PARIS, July 1. — (AP)—Austen Chamberlain, British secretary for foreign affairs, has delivered to M. De Fleuriau, the French ambassador to Great Britain, a new memorandum suggesting that the time is ripe for France to make an offer for the settlement of her debt to England, even if it is only a provisional one.

After summing up what has gone before, Mr. Chamberlain states that the British government has no desire to interfere in negotiations which France might consider right to initiate with other creditor powers—by which the United States evidently is meant—but feels it necessary to lay down the principle that it is entitled to be treated on an equal footing.

The memorandum, which is couched in the friendliest terms, recalls the correspondence between Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer, and Clementel, former French finance minister, and the British note of February 7, resulting in experts from the French ministry of finance being sent to London to study the problem with British treasury experts.

Should France sign with the United States an agreement whereby she would pay part of her debt to the United States, Great Britain would expect a proportionate payment of the sums due Britain.

Officials of the foreign office are studying the British note, and M. Briand, the foreign minister, will take it up with his colleagues at the next cabinet meeting, after which he will settle with M. Caillaux, minister of finance, the terms of the reply to be sent to London.

The problem of the inter-allied debt settlement has been one of the principal preoccupations of the Painleve government ever since it took office, and M. Briand, and M. Caillaux have been commissioned to initiate negotiations with that end in view. The British memorandum serves further to strengthen the government in its resolve.

SYMINGTON LOSES HIS FIGHT FOR DIVORCE

NEW YORK, July 1.—(AP)—A directed verdict in favor of Mrs. Ida May Symington was ordered by Supreme Court Justice Ford in the divorce suit brought by her husband, Thomas H. Symington, wealthy, manufacturer. The court ruled that there was not adequate proof to sustain any of the allegations of infidelity.

After the decision, Mr. Symington announced he would appeal at once to the higher court.

"My counsel advise me," he said, "that the decision of the trial judge will, in their opinion, be reversed. Judge Ford in the exercise of his discretion excluded from the case letters written by Mrs. Symington to me, which would have disclosed the facts. If the higher court finds that these letters should be admitted upon a second trial, an entirely different picture will be presented.

"My actions have been wholly justified and conscientious, and I beg the public to withhold its judgment until the appellate court can pass upon the case and all the evidence be spread upon the record."

Mrs. Symington, whose composed demeanor throughout the presentation of testimony had furnished a feature of the proceedings, said she was glad of the result for the sake of her daughter by a former marriage, Dorothea Webber, 13 years old. The child was one of the last witnesses summoned by the defense.

Except for the testimony of Talbot W. Chambers, one of the two men named as co-respondents, Justice Ford held, the husband presented no evidence entitling him to a divorce and added that he would not believe Chambers "on oath." Chambers is under indictment for adultery as the result of his testimony.

"There must be some definite proof," Justice Ford said, "before a husband can rob his wife of her reputation. Apparently there is no such proof here."

MINERS MAY DEMAND ANOTHER WAGE INCREASE

SCRANTON, Pa., July 1—(A. P.)—Anthracite miners will be asked by their scale committee to demand as conditions to renewal of the wage contract with the mine owners expiring August 31a ten per cent., wage increase for tonnage men, $1 a day increase for day workers, the check off, payment for coal mined on a tonnage basis instead of by the car, free air and free lamp materials, and quicker adjustment of grievances.

No official announcement was made by G. J. Colden, president of District 9 and chairman of the scale committee, nor by the members, but it was reliably ascertained that these terms will be submitted tomorrow morning to the tri-district convention for ratification.

One demand that is yet to be added is the duration of the new contract. This is being held in abeyance, but is believed that a term of eighteen months may be asked for.

Observers here say that final insistence upon any one of three of the demands might likely produce an impasse with the other owners. These stumbling blocks were given as the 10 per cent. wage increase, the check-off and any demand for a contract longer than one year.

The miners at their tri district scale convention today authorized their district boards to consider levying of a per capital assessment to raise funds for the men in the soft coal fields during the present controversy over observance of the Jacksonville agreement. A similar assessment placed during February and March realized $200,000, according to Thomas Kennedy, international secretary-treasurer.

SHELL SHOCKED VETERAN COLLAPSED ON STREET

PAWTUCKET, R. I., July 1—Patrick Turner of Newport, state commander of the disabled American veterans, who was shell shocked during the war, collapsed here today when a cannon cracker exploded on the sidewalk in front of him. Commander Turner was unconscious for three hours, but was able to leave for home early tonight.

AIR FREIGHT SERVICE DETROIT AND CLEVELAND

DETROIT, July 1—The Malden Dearborn III left Ford Airport at Dearborn at 6 o'clock tonight for Cleveland carrying inter-factory mail and small Ford parts. The trip is the first of a regular daily air-freight service between Detroit and Cleveland.

OVERNIGHT AIR MAIL NEW YORK-CHICAGO

CHICAGO, July 1.—(AP)—Overnight air mail service between the two largest cities of the country started tonight, when planes hopped off at dusk from New York and Chicago on the first of regular flights.

Flying over a beacon lighted course, the mail carriers will pass over the slumbering country tonight and tomorrow morning, eight and one-quarter hours after hopping off, the east-bound planes are scheduled to land in New York and the west-bound carriers in Chicago.

Along the 774-mile course there are 32 landing fields with searchlights of 5,000,000 candle power to guide the flyers and intermittent flashlights and beacons to designate emergency landing fields.

The east-bound planes tonight carried nearly a ton of bank clearings, love missives, jewelry, business correspondence, flowers and the contributions of faddists at the rate of ten cents an ounce.

Vice-President Charles G. Dawes gave the official "go" to the east-bound planes in a radio address broadcast from a local station at Maywood field.

The vice-president also has aboard one of the planes a box of flowers addressed to Colonel John Coolidge, the father of President Coolidge, who is ill at Plymouth, Vt. Another box of flowers was sent by radio station WHT to Grace George, actress, New York.

Mayor William E. Denver, Colonel Paul Henderson, assistant postmaster general, Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder and others participated in the ceremonies attended to the launching of the east-bound planes and a committee of women club members viewed the start from another plane.

Included in the mail was an invitation to Mayor Hyan of New York to visit Chicago, extended by the Chicago Association of Commerce and a greeting from William R. Dawes, president of the Chicago association to Lucius R. Eastman, president of the Merchants' Association of New York.

STATE'S PRISON SENTENCE FOR MISHANDLING BONDS

BRIDGEPORT, July 1—Glenn A. Henderson, New York city, must serve a state's prison sentence from two to three years for mishandling of mortgage bonds owned by Elizabeth Cook, medical research student, Stamford, it is decreed in a decision of the supreme court of errors handed down today.

Henderson was tried here before Judge Christopher L. Avery during the February term of the criminal superior court. Miss Cook declared he obtained possession of two $500 bonds from her on the understanding that he was learn for her their market value. He sold them, she said without her authority, offering in return a Massachusetts corporation health certificate which she refused to accept.

Counsel for Henderson appealed for a new trial on claim of technical defects in the warrant under which Henderson was convicted and because of asserted lack of proof that Henderson, in selling the bonds, did not actually do so as the authorized agent of Miss Cook. The high court finds no error.

GOV. FULLER CALLS ON PRES. COOLIDGE

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 1—(A. motor trip from Plymouth, Vt. Late his father's condition, President Coolidge settled down again today to a vacation schedule. He spent most of the day quietly at White Court, resting from yesterday's fatiguing 200 mile motor trip from Plymouth, Vt. Late in the afternoon, Gov. Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts called to pay his respects. He had tea with President and Mrs. Coolidge and Frank W. Stearns, their friend and neighbor.

Earlier in the day Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge inspected the Seaside camp of the marines who are guarding the summer white house. As a result Paul Pry, the white house airdale, who has built up a reputation for himself for snapping at passersby, remained in the camp, probably to become the permanent property of the marines.

The president again found relaxation in strolling and motoring and put in a brief session at his desk going over a batch of mail which accumulated during his absence and in dictating to his stenographer.

The Boutwell, Milne and Varnum company's granite quarries, at Barre, Vt., known as the "Rock of Ages" stone, were sold to a new Vermont corporation, to be known as the Boutwell, Milne and Varnum corporation.

Slayer Given Ten To Fifteen Years

Formisano Pleads Guilty To Manslaughter Charge In New Haven County Criminal Court.

NEW HAVEN, July 1—(A. P.)—John Formisano, of New York, slayer of Leo Cocilove, pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter when arraigned before Judge John R. Booth in criminal superior court today and was sentenced to serve from 10 to 15 years in state's prison. Formisano's plea was that Cocilove had betrayed his sister.

In passing sentence Judge Booth declared the statements contained in Formisano's confession to Coroner Eli Mix following his capture probably would have been sufficient to warrant a conviction for murder had the man stood trial on the original indictment.

On the night preceding the shooting, Formisano called at Cocilove's home and not finding the latter at home waited until he arrived. Both men retired and slept in the same room over night. Upon rising the next morning, Formisano was the first dressed and when Cocilove returned to the room after washing, Formisano emptied the contents of his revolver into Cocilove's body.

Formisano then made his escape and went to New York where later he was arrested.

SINGAPORE NAVAL BASE A "MINOR ESTABLISHMENT"

LONDON, July 1—(A. P.)—The Singapore naval base as contemplated by the British government will be "comparatively a very minor establishment," and there is no question of it "being a great base for concentration," stated Earl Stanhope, civil lord of the admiralty, in the house of lords today on behalf of the Baldwin government during a debate inaugurated by the labor party upon the projected naval establishment in the Far East.

The opposition has asserted that the British naval program caused much anxiety among other nations, particularly Japan.

The Earl of Balfour, who followed Earl Stanhope on the floor, ridiculed the labor suggestion that a large number of other naval bases dependent upon the Singapore base would be required. He cited the Washington naval treaty as forbidding the construction of more naval bases.

Emphasizing England's duty toward the outlying parts of the empire and the need for making the British fleet availed wherever it is necessary, Balfour said:

"I am perfectly unable to understand the point of view that we are thereby giving natural cause of suspicion to friendly nations in the Pacific. We ought to assume that other nations who have fleets in the Pacific exercise a little common sense on the problem, and I believe their governments do, as the majority of their populations.

"Incidentally the remark also has been made during the debate that no fortifications are being built at Strategic points along the 3,000 miles of the Canadian-American frontier, and this is used as an agreement against the Singapore base.

"In America, in Canada and in England nobody believes there is going to be war or counts war of that kind without the bonds of practical possibility. I am very much inclined to think we are at the beginning of a great era of peace.

"The idea, however, that this country can allow its hopes of peace to make it incapable of defending its possessions in the event of those hopes being disappointed is not the way to produce peace; but is the way to lay us open to war which otherwise might never have taken place because those who contemplated war with this country—if such there were—would see that it was war in which the aggressors were destined to fill."

BOURNE FACES CHARGE OF CONTEMPT OF COURT

NEW YORK, July 1—Arthur K. Bourne, Jr., grandson of the late Commodore Frederick G. Bourn, sewing machine manufacturer, who left an estate of $41,000,000, today was directed to show cause why he should not be adjudged to contempt of court for failing to pay alimony of $50 a week to his wife, Beatrice Clancy Bourne. The order is returnable July 6.

Bourne was arrested a few days ago on a charge of disorderly conduct made by his wife, after a chase through city streets with his wife standing on the running board of a police automobile and directing pursuit. He pleaded not guilty to striking her, and was released in $1,000 bail.

TWO MEN SUICIDE IN EAST RIVER

NEW YORK, July 1—Two men committed suicide today by jumping off suspension bridges into the East River.

Ford Enters Bid For Shipping Board Fleet

Says His Offer For The 200 Ships of the Fleet Was Placed In Mails Several Days Ago.

DETROIT, Mich., July 1—(A. P.)—Henry Ford tonight told the Associated Press that he has entered a bid for the 200 ships of the Shipping Board fleet and that the bid is in the mails.

"There was no misunderstanding of dates on my part," Mr. Ford said, in denying that such was the cause for the failure of the board to receive a bid from him when they were opened two days ago.

"The bid was placed in the mails several days ago."

ARCHBISHOP ADAM NOW CONTROLS CATHEDRAL

NEW YORK, July 1—(A. P.)—Possession of the Cathedral of St. Nicholas, the principal church of the Russian Orthodox Greek Catholic church in this country, today passed from the control of Metropolitan Platon for of the Soviet, into the hands of archbishop Adam Philipovsky, whose leadership of the church was recently confirmed by the courts.

Police of the bomb squad, accompanied by Archbishop Adam and his followers, forced their way into a basement door of the cathedral armed with the court order recognizing Archbishop Philipovsky's leadership of the church in North America. The rector, Rev. L. Turkevitch, several assistant priests and parishioners, adherents of Metropolitan Platon, heard the court order read.

"I would like to have you remain here as pastor," Archbishop Philipovsky said to the rector, "but you must bow down to me."

"Never," the priest answered. "I recognize only the true bishop, the Metropolitan Platon."

After donning his vestments and praying for several minutes, the archbishop led his party to the rectory. There they found the deposed Metropolitan, former Bishop of Odessa.

The deposed Metropolitan asked: "Where must I go? Must I go into the streets like a dog?"

"I would be pleased, much pleased," said Archbishop Adam, bowing, "if you would stay here, but you must recognize me as Metropolitan of the church in North America."

Metropolitan Platon also refused to do this, and he and the Rev. Turkevitch left together. Shortly after they had gone, Merrill E. Graves, a lawyer, entered the church, demanded that the "bolshevik usurpers" be driven out and said he will ask an eviction order.

Today's seizure of the cathedral was the result of an eighteen months fight between the two factions supporting Archbishop Adam and Metropolitan Platon. The late patriarch Tikhon, of Moscow, deposed Metropolitan Platon and the courts decided in favor of Archbishop Adam.

RE-ELECTED SECRETARY STATE CHARITIES BOARD

HARTFORD, July 1—(A. P.)—Charles P. Kellogg, of Waterbury, secretary of the state charities department for nearly thirty years, first as secretary of the old state board of charities and for the past four years of the department of public welfare, today was re-elected for his thirty-first term at the annual meeting of the board. A change of particular interest to dog owners who live in cities is the so-called dog warden clause. This part of the act greatly restricts former powers of dog wardens regarding impounding of animals and provides the penalty of removal from office for violation.

U. S. URGES ACTION ON CHINESE JUDICIAL SYSTEM

Washington Suggests Early Convening of International Commission To Study Chinese Question—Would Supplant Extra Territorial Treaty Rights In China With Judicial System To Which Matters Involving American Nationals Could Be Safety Entrusted—Administration Believes It Would Be Advisable To Move Without Delay Along Line Mapped Out By Washington Conference.

WASHINGTON, July 1—Early convening of the international commission provided for by the Washington arms conference to study ways and means of supplanting extra territorial treaty rights in China with a Chinese judical system to which matters involving American nationals could be entrusted safely, would be regarded with favor by the Washington government.

Intimidations of this attitude are known not only to have been given Dr. Sze, Chinese minister here, by Secretary Kellogg in recent conversations on anti-foreign outbreak in China, but also to be contained in new instructions for John Van A. MacMurray, minister to China, who is due in Peking July fourth.

There are indications that steps also may have been taken from Washington to remind the signatory powers of the suggestion for such a commission contained in resolution number five of the arms conference. So far as known, however, no definite step beyond these has been taken in Washington and presumably the actual call for the meeting of the commission would come from the Chinese government as provided in the resolution.

The conference action was based on the attitude disclosed by all participating powers that China's extra territorial committments should be reviewed and revised at the earliest possible date. The Washington government was then and is now anxious to forego extra territorial rights in China or elsewhere if its citizens can be assured fair and just treatment under the laws and customs of countries where they may be engaged in legitimate occupations.

The nine powers, including China, which signed the Washington far-eastern treaties and the appended resolutions, did so with the specific reservation that none of them stood committed to acceptance of any recommendations made by the commission. Surrender of any special treaty right in China would remain to be decided by each government, while China retained the right to accept or reject whatever program of internal judicial reconstruction the commission might propose.

Since the Washington conference four other governments, Denmark Peru, Spain and Sweden, also have accepted the invitation to adhere to the statements made by that conference with respect to Japan and with respect to China and in the event of organization of the extra-territorial international commission, will be invited to participate.

Dr. Sze declined to comment today on his conference with Mr. Kellogg beyond saying that "much progress has been made" and that the secretary has "listened most attentively and most sympathetically" to the views he had presented.

Whether the plan now under discussion in Peking which has been mentioned in diplomatic conversations here, is limited to the scope of the conference resolution or contemplates a more general international resolution on Chinese conditions and affairs, as appears to be the desire of the Peking government, has not been indicated officially. It had been made clear, however, that the Washington administration believes it would be advisable to move without delay along the line mapped out by the Washington conference.

CLAIMS SHE IS LOTTA CRABTREE'S DAUGHTER

BOSTON, July 1—Testimony that Lotta Crabtree, the noted actress who died recently leaving to charity an estate of $3,000,000, was married in England and had a daughter, was given in the Suffolk probate court today. Mrs. Ida May Blankenburg of Tulsa, Okla., one of five claimants contesting the will, is seeking to prove that she is a daughter of the actress.

Miss Mary E. Couhig of Lynn testified that Miss Crabtree told her in 1892 that a man named Canning had married her in England and deserted her a few months later. The actress told her, she said, of coming to America with a daughter and placing her in the west, concealing the child's existence for fear of being "picked to pieces" by the world.

Miss Couhig said she thought the child's name was "Ina" or something similar.

Charles E. A. Merrow of Boston an artist and a former friend of Miss Crabtree, testified that he had made a picture of her "daughter," of whom he had heard the mother speak as "Ina" or "Ida." He also promised to produce the picture if he could find it.

DEATH OF CONGRESSMAN GEORGE B. CHURCHILL

AMHERST, Mass., July 1—(A. P.)—Congressman George B. Churchill died at his home here tonight, before he had taken a seat to which he was elected last November. Death was caused by ulcers of the stomach. He had been ill about two weeks.

Congressman Churchill was fatally stricken Friday evening and the first diagnosis was a breakdown from overwork. An X-ray taken Saturday disclosed stomach ulcers and Dr. Royal Copeland of Northampton, his physician, found evidences of heart trouble. He had apparently been resting comfortably since Saturday and his death came suddenly at 6:30 tonight.

He was elected to represent the third Massachusetts district in November to succeed Frederick H. Gillette, who was elected to the senate.

The petition was referred to the efficiency committee of the board for hearing.

FILM PRODUCERS MAY WITHDRAW FROM CONNECTICUT MOVIE FIELD

HARTFORD, July 1—A decision to withdraw from the Connecticut motion picture field if the new moving picture tax and censorship bill is declared to be constitutional by the federal court was made at a meeting of film producers in New York Tuesday, according to Benedict M. Holden, of this city, who attended.

Former Postmaster General Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., presided at the meeting, Mr. Holden said, and announced that he was authorized to say that independent producers would take the same attitude. Former Attorney General George W. Wickersham, and Lucius F. Robinson, jr., of this city, the latter representing Robinson, Robinson and Cole, other counsel for the moving picture interests in the case, were also present.

The effect of the decision, according to Mr. Holden, would be virtually to close down motion picture theatres throughout the state for want of films. He issued the following statement upon his return to this city today:

"At a meeting in the office of former Attorney General Wickersham, it developed that the percentage of exhibitions of films in Connecticut was but 1.67 per cent of production. Some of the producers were decidedly in favor of withdrawing from the Connecticut field, and a canvass of the companies producing motion pictures showed that Connecticut was not such a profitable field that the producers would be justified in submitting themselves to embarrassment or being harassed. While this question was being considered, we received information from Judge Rogers that he would be willing to convention a constitutional court at New Haven consisting of himself, Judge Thatcher and Judge Goddard, as early as Friday, July 10.

"I learned from Commissioner Blodgett today that this date would be satisfactory to the officials of the state of Connecticut, and it will be necessary to serve a copy of our complaint, as well as some of our affidavits, upon the tax commissioner, as he is the official directly interested, and we feel at present that it would be advisable to have the injunction run against the acting governor and the three members of the state police commission, as well as the chief of the state police. The papers are now being prepared and will be ready for service Saturday, although it is not necessary that they should be served before Monday."

The proceedings are to be brought under the judicial act which provides that before a state may be enjoined in the United States courts from carrying out what it proposes as laws, a hearing before a judge of the federal court of appeals and two district judges must be held. The federal law requires that the state officials concerned must have five days notice of the hearing.

State Tax Commissioner Blodgett had nothing to say about the matter, referring inquiries to Attorney General Healy.

Mr. Holden said that the moving picture magnates had carefully examined Commissioner Blodgett's directions for the administration of the law and had taken note that no provision was made for the inspection of the films to determine whether they were educational or religious in character. Films of that nature are exempt from taxation under the law.

A detailed, written opinion that the law would be unconstitutional was prepared by Robinson, Robinson and Cole at the request of Mr. Holden, according to the latter, and was by him submitted to Governor Trumbull during the time he was deliberating whether to sign the bill.

WILLIMANTIC

A sixteen year old girl, Miss Rose Riquier of No. 34 Taylor's Court was presented in the police court Wednesday morning on the charge of breach of the peace, to which she entered a plea of not guilty. She was not represented by counsel and informed the court that she was ready to go on with the case. The state's witnesses against the accused were Mrs. Leona LeBlond and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Frenette, the last mentioned recent arrivals in this city from Lowell, Mass. and employes of the American Thread Company.

Testimony by all three of the witnesses for the state was to the effect that Sunday afternoon, June 21, they were walking along the sidewalk on Jilson Hill and saw three girls coming toward them of whom they recognized as Miss Rose Rimnier. Just [illegible] Judge, the accused exclaimed "Here come the scabs!" As they passed by the plaintiffs, the three girls thumbed their noses and made disparaging remarks.

The accused admitted that she and two other girls who were her sisters, met the plaintiffs on the day in question. She said she knew Mrs. LeBlond, but was not acquainted with the others. She and her sisters uttered no remarks as alleged and did not thumb their noses, defendant declared, but continued on their way. Corroborative evidence was given by Misses Mary and Cecelia Riquier, sisters of the accused. The two were committed in default of bail, the plaintiffs at any time.

Pro counsel Attorney Harry S. Gaucher said that such acts as alleged must cease and that employes of the Thread Company or any other concern must not be molested by word or action. The same opinion was voiced by Judge Frank H. Foss, in stating that similar cases had come before the local court, in which leniency had been shown and small fines imposed. He then fined the accused three dollars and costs amounting to $9.15. Notice of an appeal to the superior court was given and the required bond of fifty dollars was furnished by the mother of the defendant, Mrs. Exilda Riquier.

The case of Howard A. Green, charged with non-support of his wife, was continued until Monday morning, July 6.

It was voted not to hold any meetings through July and August. Cookies, cake and coffee were served.

Mrs. Sarah Gager has been spending two weeks at the shore, one week at Pleasant View and one at Weekapaug.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Nevins and two sons, of New York, are spending a week with Mrs. Ida M. Abel.

Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Throop are at the Wigwam, Pleasant View, R. I., for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wyman entertained for two days this week, Mr. and Mrs. Hodgsdom and two children, of White Plains, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Milan D. Whitaaker and daughter, Eleanor, of South Killingly, were guests Sunday, of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Goodwin.

Mrs. Hattie Church, Mr. and Mrs. eLroy Church and two children, of Hartford, were calling on friends in town Sunday.

Mrs. Alfred Abel, of Bozrah, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bruce, with their daughter, of East Lyme, spent Saturday afternoon with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Bruce.

C. M. Greer and family and Miss Florence Whitaker spent Sunday in Southington, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Choquette.

The Mission circle held an all-day meeting in the chapel of the Baptist church Tuesday. Two quilts were tied.

Miss Mildred Ladd is staying at Mrs. Elizabeth Troland's.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fuller, who were married in Ridgefield, June 20, spent a few days of their honeymoon with relatives in Lebanon.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

SOME HINTS FOR THE HOME GARDENER

Weeds will continue to germinate probably throughout the season, but frequent shallow cultivation, aside from robbing the plants of their proper portion of plant food and soil moisture.

Mulching some crops like tomatoes, is a sound practice in the home garden. This serves the additional purpose of keeping the fruit clean. When vine crops commence to run, dusting the small plants with fine powdered lime (hydrated lime), will serve to repel the attacks of the striped beetles. In the case of cucumbers, the use of such a repellent will be more effective in controling insect injury than the use of poison spray when the insects begin to work on the plants themselves. In the case of squashes, it is a good practice to mound earth over the stems a foot or so from their starting point. In case that borers attack these plants later, new root systems will have grown where the stems were mounded and the plants have a fair chance of surviving.

If your potatoes are up several inches, it will be a wise plan now to keep hilling them until the tops attain full size. Do not draw too much earth up about the plants at any one time.

When corn has reached the height of four to six inches, thin out the hills to three or four stalks, and if these remaining stalks begin to show sucker growth near the base of the stalk pull off these suckers as they appear, and your corn will grow larger and set better ears.

Beets, carrots and parsnips should all be thinned, so that individual plants will be separated about three inches. A good time to thin is when these crops have grown to a height of three or four inches. A second planting of beets for winter storage may be made during the first two weeks of July. Fifty feet of row should give enough beets for winter consumption for an average-size family.

Tomato plants in the home garden will produce better fruit with an economy of ground used if the plants are staked and pruned to a single stalk. Their stems can be tied to the stalks rather loosely without danger of injuring the tomato plant.

Cucumber and squash should be thinned out to three or four plants to a hill when the plants have attained a fair size and before they have begun to run. A small handful of garden fertilizer can be worked into the soil about the hills at the time when the vines start to run. Do not put the fertilizer within a foot of the stems, and work it in evenly and not too deeply.

Turnips for a late crop may also be sown around July. They are not very susceptible to frost, and should give a good crop for winter storage by mid-fall. The advantage in setting late beets and turnips now is that the land used for early crops can be put to furthur use for the rest of the summer.

It is a good plan to visit your vegetable garden every day, taking a careful observation of the different plants, so that the least injury from insects or diseases can be detected at once and proper measures taken to control it.

Certain green crops will undoubtedly benefit by watering during the hot weather season, but this watering should be done carefully. The roots should not be exposed by having the soil washed away and the amount of water applied should be sufficient to soak the ground at least an inch. Light sprinkling at irregular intervals or infrequently will tend to slow development of your crop eventually. It would be best not to water at all, but to thoroughly cultivate and maintain a dust mulch. Do not let the soil become baked and hard around any of your plants. Growth to insure good quality should be continuous and steady from the time plants appear. If you have problems at any time during the summer, a word to the county league agent will bring you their services.

GARDENERS FIND ADVANTAGES IN SAVING OWN SEED

The home or local gardener and the greenhouse gardener will often find it advantageous and profitable to save their own seed, at least for some of their vegetables, says the United States department of agriculture. In earlier times the home saving of seeds was the rule. This custom has practically ceased, although there are distinct advantages even under present conditions for continuing the practice.

The tendency of large-scale vegetable producers at present is to produce vegetables that are suitable for shipping long distances, and this has caused a decided lessening of varieties handled. The characters necessarily chosen for these varieties that will ship long distances are determined by shipping and market requirements, and too often a high culinary quality has been neglected. Both the home and market gardener are in a position to profit by growing vegetables of high culinary quality. This is best done by saving the seed of proven varieties at home.

Many garden varieties carry place names or names of persons which occasionally indicate that they have been developed by community selection in the localities shown. As late as the middle of the last century many individual market gardeners in this country jealously guarded the seed of certain varieties and strains which represented years of intelligent selection in their hands. A few such superlative varieties are yet to be found in the possession of gardeners near the old market-gardening centers. That there are advantages in this saving seed where it is grown is generally recognized.

These advantages are two-fold: (1) The selection which the gardener gives his seed plants, while not greater than the seed grower gives his seed stock is often better than can be given to the seed that is placed on the market; and (2) the plants selected will be the ones which succeed best under local environment. Certain vegetables in which cross-pollination is normal will, of course, mix badly if two varieties are seeded in one garden together.

Weather or other conditions sometime cause a short crop of seed or a failure. Fortunately, well-matured seeds, if properly stored, with the possible exception of those of the parsnip and onion, will retain their vitality for from three to five years. It is thus possible to tide over poor years and to grow most of the seed needed for a small garden.

TECHNIQUE OF SPADING

Spading is great exercise but not one that the average citizen craves to add to his daily dozen. It is exercise he prefers to take vicariously and hire some handy man to do it. There is a technique to spading as an expert foreign gardener can tell you. They insist that Americans don't do half a job of spading and don't turn the soil much more than six inches deep. This is probably true, because we are accustomed to thrust the spade into the soil along the line of least resistance, which is in a slanting direction. We get easier leverage with the foot and quicker penetration, but sacrifice depth in doing so.

The correct manner is to drive the blade of the spade into the soil in an almost perpendicular position and then turn over the soil. This is much harder work than the ordinary method, but it secures much better depth. Although slower, it is well worth the extra time and labor in results, for it adds two or three inches to the cultivation of the soil as compared with the ordinary slantwise method.

Having turned over the spade of soil, pulverize it with the edge of the spade, shattering the larger and harder lumps with the flat of the blade. By taking the task slowly, thrusting the spade in an perpendicularly as muscle permits and pulverizing fine as you go along, the garden will be in much better trim, the plants will make much faster growth and commercial fertilizer raked into the soil will penetrate readily to greater depth and come into contact with a greater root spread than in ground spaded in the usual shallow manner.

The drawback to this perpendicular spading is that it is much harder work as the leverage necessary to turn over a spadeful of earth is heavier than in the ordinary slantwise half-bladeful of earth turned up. It is worth the effort, although it takes much longer. Try the English spading method and note the results.

PEDIGREE SEED CORN BEST

Selection of seed corn to give the surest ripening crops, ripening in time to be safe from frost and give the heaviest yield per acre is an ever present problem for the farmer. Seed houses and experiment stations are ever on the alert to help him out and it is now recognized that certain varieties of corn are best suited for certain sections and every effort is made to adapt seed corn to sections where it will do best and most certain to harden in time to escape giving the farmer a crop of "soft" corn for his season's toil. Last year taught many bitter lessons along this line and there has been more thorough study of the corn problem this season than ever before.

It is useless to endeavor to enumerate the varieties of corn developed and tested in individual states, for they are an enormous list when compiled, many of them closely similar and differing only in adaption to the section in which they have grown. Corn successful in central Illinois may not ripen in time for the Dakota or Minnesota farmer. The South Dakota farmer may need a different breed from the southern Iowa farmer.

Each state and section has its corn problem and the state experiment stations offer the best guides to the farmer, together with his nearest seed house, which keeps an accurate record of the corn best suited for the territory of its trade. Illinois is famous for its experiments in corn breeding and for its tests of varieties through the system of corn testing and breeding devised by Doctor Hopkins of the Illinois station. South Dakota has been employing the Illinois system in its corn breeding experiments in an effort to determine and develop varieties of corn suited for its climate and soil.

ROSE BUGS ARE HERE; HOW TO CONTROL THE PEST

Rose bugs are here again. They may be found on many different kinds of plants. Sometimes they can be found in droves. They not only do harm to the plants that they attack, but they are poisonous to poultry when eaten by them in any number, and will cause great mortality in flocks of young chickens. For these reasons we should make war upon them as soon as discovered.

Rose bugs are one of the most difficult pests to contend with on account of their ability to withstand ordinary sprays that kill most insects. They can, however, be killed off quickly by either dusting or spraying, provided the mixture contains enough arsenate, and is applied when the first of the bugs appear. If spraying is dependen; upon, it is well to use as much as 1 1-2 ounces of dry lead arsenate to each gallon of spray mixture. A tablespoonful of molasses to each gallon of water is believed to add to the effectiveness of the mixture for rose bugs.

POOR PASTURES MAY REDUCE DAIRY PRODUCTION

Production of milk, butter and cheese in the north central states may be somewhat reduced this year because of poor condition of pastures, according to reports received by the United States department of agriculture. These states produce the bulk of the creamery butter and cheese for the country as a whole. Unfavorable weather during May has impaired pastures in this region so that their average condition is only 71 as compared with a usual average above 90 at this season. This is expected to affect the milk flow and, therefore, the production of butter and cheese.

Prospects in these states July 1 were for one-fourth less hay than was harvested last year, but prospects have probably improved since that date on account of frequent rains in the western part of the area. In the northeastern states, where fresh milk for city consumption is the principal product, the hay crop and pastures are only slightly poorer than usual.

SOY BEANS PRO AND CON

Much interest is being manifested in soy beans comparatively new as a farm crop in many sections, although a number of states have experimented rather extensively with it. Adverse reports have been traced to poor seed, which was not secured from reliable sources and was not properly tested before it was sooid to the farmers. There was also trouble because the type of seed was not adapted to the sections in which it was sown, which a reliable seed house could have advised.

The soy bean, like clover and alfalfa, is a legume, a member of the great family which includes the peas and beans. It is an annual plant of upright, bushlike growth, varying according to the type and variety from 1 1-2 to 4 feet in height. It is a good drought resister and does well on good corn soil, and can be grown in light sandy and clayey soils as well.

In some of the western states, Nebraska in particular, they are grown for hogging off and the Nebraska state experiment station speaks highly of this crop for the purpose. The beans, says a station bulletin, balance the ration for sheep or hogs, by supplying the protein feed to supplement the corn.

Being a legume and furnished with the bacteria in the roots, the soy bean is also of value as a soil builder in the same manner as clover and alfalfa although, experiment station reports say, in less degree.

They are also grown as hay and for silage. If the soy bean ever replaces any of the standard crops, the Nebraska station commentators believe it will be oats, the least profitable of the grain crops. However, as soy beans are a cultivated crop and demand attention at the same time as corn, this does not seem likely in the immediate future and the western states will not devote much attention to them as a grain crop, but use them for live stock, it is now estimated.

SEC. MELLON EXPLAINS ITALIAN DEBT HALT

WASHINGTON, July 1—(A. P.)—Secretary Mellon, in formal statement late today, explained the sudden interruption yesterday in the negotiations for settlement of the Italian debt as conforming to the understanding reached when they were begun, and denied that an impasse had been reached.

"The original understanding between the debt commission and the Italian ambassador before any discussion took place," the statement said, "was that as soon as the preliminary conversations were had, Mr. Alberti (one of the Italian commissioners) would go to Italy to collect the necessary data to disclose Italy's ability to pay. Negotiations have moved without incident and will be resumed when Mr. Alberti returns in August. Intimations that there has been a break are unfounded."

When forced to jump from the second-story window of an apartment to escape flames which had cut off escape via the stairway, Miss Gertrude Widman, 23, a Cleveland (O.) nurse, jumped into a fireman's net, carrying her new Easter hat and three dresses.

For good cooks: a tip about flavor

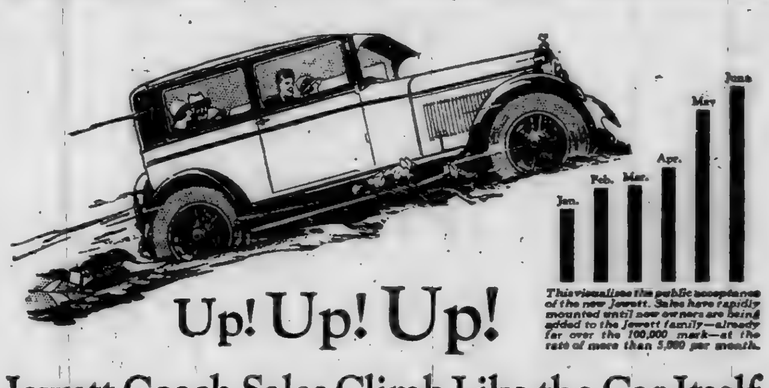
FLAVOR greatly aids food's healthful qualities. There is half-hidden flavor in every food you eat. Nothing brings it out in full, delightful strength, as does fine mustard.

Here is a new, mild-blended mustard for delicate-flavored foods. Just the thing for summer dishes: salads, entrees, vegetables, sandwiches. Put a dash of it with every food to add delicious zest. At all grocers. 15c.

GULDEN'S new SALADRESSING MUSTARD



Up! Up! Up!

This visualizes the public acceptance of the new Jewett. Sales have rapidly mounted until new owners are being added to the Jewett family—already far over the 100,000 mark—at the rate of more than 5,000 per month.

Jewett Coach Sales Climb Like the Car Itself

Sales records unequalled in the history of our business. Performance records unequalled by any car in the industry.

That's what Jewett Coach has done in just a few weeks of sensational achievement.

Roominess for the Wise!

A Coach at $1260—with the renowned Jewett chassis—unchanged in the slightest degree. Thousands have proved its sturdiness in year after year service. The greatest moderate price chassis ever built!

A Coach $1260—with advanced features in design. Wise buyers want roominess! We proved it. The shin-barking, small interior type of Coach is going. Roominess is today's demand. So Jewett built a roomy Coach. Gave it yard wide doors. And a studied seating arrangement. You enter or leave the rear with those in front undisturbed! And the proof lies in the sales. Up—up—up—because of roominess.

Style—You Bet!

In outer appearance—Jewett Coach is the ultimate in advanced design. Beautifully colored in blue permanent lacquer—an ornamental double belt moulding—gracefully curved back—low-slung and long appearing. Not a square corner on it.

A Coach like this at $1260! Hardly possible to picture. Impossible to appreciate until you've spent a half hour back of the wheel. Then—easy to understand. So easy to drive you almost forget it's a motor car you're handling. And power to outperform any car within $500 of its price.

If you want to really know the why of Jewett's Coach triumph—telephone us for a friendly demonstration.

DANIELSON

The end of the present month will bring to a close another fiscal year of the town of Killingly. Figures are not available as yet to forecast what progress the town has made toward the further diminution of its debt, but that the reports will record a good showing is assured. Killingly has steadily decreased its debt for several years and it is now at a lower point than for a long time. The town not only pays as it goes nowadays, but figures to pay something on its outstanding indebtedness each year.

July 6 has been designed as Old Home night in Killingly grange. The program arranges for opening with the singing of America. A reading will be given by Mrs. Florence Morrarty There will be a roll call with responses on the subject "The place where I was born and something interesting about it." Vital statistics will be presented realtive to Killingly grange. There will be souvenirs and stories pertaining to them, messages from past masters, the meeting to close with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

Chief John McFarland said Wednesday afternoon that he will take action today or Friday to check speeding of motor vehicles through Mechanic street. This speeding occurs mornings, while operatives of the Connecticut mills are going to their work and evenings when they are returning. Some of the complaints charge the speeding to public service cars engaged in transporting employes of the mills and other complaints are against drivers of private cars. Chief McFarland said he is willing to give the speed drivers a chance to stop the fast driving, and having given that chance will have the cars checked hereafter as to the speed at which they travel. The offenders will be brought to court.

This column has come to be the medium for much special pleading—on behalf of those who feel they have a grievance. This time, on behalf of ever increasing complainants, it is about the manner in which locomotive whistles are excessively used while trains on the New Haven road are running through Danielson at night. The racket recently at night, admittedly, would awaken the dead, if such a thing were possible. Anyway, the clamor of the whistles disturbs many people, breaks their rest and irritates shattered nerves. Those who complain feel that the railroad should tell its engineers to put the soft pedal on—to save steam in accordance with President Coolidge's ideas of economy. Maybe a fireman at the Main street crossing during the night would eliminate the need of so much tumult. The railroad must know that a gateman is required there all night on account of the traffic.

Maybe that's the answer to so much blowing and tooting.

Herewith is presented the detailed score of a recent shoot at the traps of the Danielson Rod and Gun club on Allen hill, the event attracting trapshooters from various sections of southern New England.

INSURANCE EXCHANGE MAN TO INSPECT BUILDINGS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, July 1—Warden Walter Anderson has been assured of a visit here of a representative of an insurance exchange to inspect buildings in the borough, incident to a recent action of a special borough meeting in authorizing borough officials to control for the future the matter of alteration and repair of buildings and requiring non-combustible roofing on all new buildings and eventually to provide for such roofs on all structures in Danielson. Such roofing as will hereafter be required will greatly reduce the fire hazard, and Warden Anderson expresses the hope that a reduction in fire insurance rates will follow the inspection about to be made, though there is no present assurance of this.

PUTNAM

Dr. Joseph C. Sullivan, of Webster, well known in Putnam, a member of the Putnam Country club, and Miss Marion Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Sullivan, of Brighton, Mass., were married at St. Margaret's church in Old Orchard, Maine. The marriage was attended only by relatives and intimate friends, and the ceremony was followed by a breakfast at the home of the bride's parents in Old Orchard. Dr. and Mrs. Sullivan left for a motor trip to Quebec and Montreal. They will return to Webster after a week's trip and make their home at 7 Church street. The attendants at the ceremony were Albert Sullivan, a brother of the bride, as best man and Miss Claire Sullivan, her sister, was bridesmaid.

Francis Metcalf, agent of the Putnam Manufacturing company, has purchased three lots at Colonial Park, Webster, near the Webster Lake Hotel land. The new owner intends to erect a two-story, seven-room cottage immediately on one of the lots for a summer home. Mr. Metcalf is one of several Putnam people who have purchased land at Colonial Park in Webster and are building summer homes there.

There were no formal graduating exercises of the eighth grade of the Putnam schools this year but Superintendent Ralph C. Jenkins presented the members of that grade diplomas at the High school building. The following received certificates of the completion of their grammar school work: Hazel M. Ames, Mary C. Baker, Julia P. Chandler, Miriam Daitch, Bertha L. Hall, Thelma J. Hoadley, Elizabeth L. Hurdman, Dicy H. Jackson, Lillian S. Jannino, Barbara Marhew, Annette B. Paquin, Sadie S. Simon, Elizabeth H. Smith, Doris B. Smith, Emelda St. Onge, Helen L. Sobray, Gertrude I. Watts, Dorothy M. Woodis, Philip S. Arnold, Charles E. Alvord, Howard B. Baker, Arthur P. Bove, Niel J. Bulger, Raymond A. Brousseau, Gilbert C. Bateman, Clarence A. Carpenter, Charles D. Cushman, Thomas deBaradinis, Hayden B. Franklin, Oscar E. Gronlund, Nelson G. King, Theodore L. Labonte, Richard L. Larrow, Herbert L. Lepire, Phillip A. Maynard, Charles Normandin, Ruben M. Rosenwald, William E. Shann, William E. Shann, Russell W. Sherman, Fred Taylor, Carolus Tourtelotte, Stanley M. Tourtelotte and Wilfred W. Winslow. Diplomas were given conditionally to Marion Spencer and Kenneth Light.

Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Kent, of Church street, have been entertaining their niece, Miss Muriel Kent. Miss Kent has only recently returned, after two years' residence and study in Paris and in the south of France. Beside having an A. B. college degree she has fitted herself for teaching French. She leaves Wednesday for Camp Cotuit, a girls' camp on Cape Cod, as instructor in French. Dr. and Mrs. Kent are also entertaining their grand-daughters, Miss Dorothy and little Miss Yollie Kent, of Larchmont, N. Y.

Miss Ellen Johnson, of Woodstock, organist of the Woodstock Swedish church, and Harry Strad, of the same town, were married at the Swedish church by Rev. Karl Anderson, pastor of the church, in the presence of a large number of friends. The church was decorated with roses and daisies against a background of green. The bridal party entered as the wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Miss Edith Hagstrom.

The bride wore a gown of white satin, wore a veil and orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations. Her sister, Miss Ethel Johnson, the bridesmaid, wore orchid voile over pink and her flowers were pink carnations. Following the ceremony, there was a reception at the home of the bride, when sandwiches, cake and ice cream were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Strad left later for an automobile wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside with the bride's brothers and sister, who since the death of their parents some years ago have carried on the place. Many gifts were received by the bride.

A notable event, last week, was the celebration of the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Swenson, of the East Pariah in Woodstock. A reception was tendered them in the Swedish church. Mr. Swenson having been a deacon there for a number of years. The church and parlors were attractively decorated with flowers and crepe paper. Cookies, cake and coffee were served. A large wedding cake made by Mrs. John Anderson was conspicuous on the refreshment table.

About fifty friends of Mrs. Almira Perry met in the Methodist church parlors, Tuesday evening, to show their friendship and good will toward her and to wish her godspeed in her new home at Springfield, Mass. The affair was a complete susprise to Mrs. Perry. Mr. Burton presented her a velvet-lined case containing five $5 coins from her friends. Refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Coleman, Arthur Vickers, Dona Thiebeault, Alcide Moran and Fred Morrarty made the trip to Spofford Lake, N. H., by motorcycle and attended the hill climbing contest, Gypsy Tour, motorcycle rally, water pageant and athletic sports, which were held at that place.

The meeting of the incorporators of the Day Kimball hospital is to be held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Wednesday, July 8. The terms of one-third of the members of the board of trustees expire every year.

Miss Marion Eleanor Aiken, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Aiken, of Holyoke, Mass., and Kenneth Waldo Averill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren W. Averill, of Putnam, were married at St. Paul's church, Holyoke, Mass., on Saturday, June 27 at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, by Rev. Franklin Knight. The bride, who was attended by Miss Bessie Keenan, wore bronze georgette crepe embroidered in gold, with hat to match. Miss Keenan wore almond georgette. Edward Blye, of Springfield, Mass., was best man. The decorations in the church were very beautiful. In the chancel laurel, palms, white roses and ramblers were used and hot house hydrangeas and laurel were set at the altar. A reception followed at the home of the bride. The groom presented the bride a string of pearls and his best man a gold monogramed bill fold. The bride's gift to her bridesmaid was a white gold bracelet. Upon their return from a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Averill will be at home after August 1 at 17 Montpelier street, Springfield, Mass.

Rev. W. Goring Alder, of Groveton, N. H., is the new rector at St. Philip's Episcopal church and will preach his first sermon next Sunday morning. Mr. Alder is married and has several daughters. The family will not come to Putnam until fall, by which time it is hoped a house will be found for them to occupy.

JEWETT CITY

At a meeting of the Fourth of July committee, held Tuesday evening, Dr. G. H. Jennings was appointed marshal of the afternoon parade. The aides he has selected are Adrien Maynard, John Blake, David Ballou, L. M. Carpenter, and P. W. Chase. Seventy-five dollars was voted toward having a motion picture film taken of the two parades and principal events. The cost is one hundred and fifty dollars, and Manager Thomas Barnett, of Finn Theatre, will give the other seventy-five dollars; the film will be shown at the Opera House later. It will there become the property of the town.

The sports committee reported a tug-of-war to take place at eleven o'clock, in front of Finn block and be followed by a boys' race. The big parade is at two o'clock, the married and single men's ball game at Ashland Park at four o'clock, the swimming events after the game. The fireworks will be at nine o'clock. State Commissioner MacDonald has not been heard from regarding the block dancing on Main street, but, if permission is not forthcoming, the dancing will be on Soule street.

The Horrible parade in the morning, at eight, looms up larger and then some! Mr. Barnett heard Wednesday from the moving picture operator in New Haven, who said he would come Friday night and stay all day Saturday. There is a rumor that Old Cluey Watson may appear in the "antique" parade, but he has caught his toe in a steel trap and cannot navigate very well at present.

There is going to be something doing every minute at the big canoe-tilting contest, L. M. Carpenter and "Doc" Gingras will be pitted against "Sol" Paquette and E. S. Hiscox. Each team has won a decision in preceding years. This, the third contest, will be one of the leading aquatic events of the celebration.

The big parade will move at 2 p. m., with the right resting in front of the town hall on Soule street. The line will be formed up Mathewson street. The march will be up Soule to Main, up Main to Ashland, to Hill, up Hill to Wilson, through Wison to East Main street, across Brown, avenue to North Main to Green avenue, to Mathewson street, and Railroad avenue, thence to the big oak in Sylvandale. Counter march and up Main and East Main streets to Palmer avenue. Through Palmer avenue down East Main street, disbanding at Fanning Park.

All barber shops closed Sat. Open Friday until midnight.—adv

At the J. B. Martin diamond the Jewett City Speed Boys defeated the highly touted Bearcats, Saturday, by a 9-2 score. Stanley, the Speed Boys' pitcher, held the Bearcats to four scattered hits and sent fourteen back to the bench by the strike-out route. Sawicki led the attack for the Speed Boys with four hits, two of them for extra bases, while Lefty, a teammate collected thrice. Lamoreaux played best for the Bearcats. The Speed Boys are without a game for July 11. John Harris, Jr., is manager.

The Jolly Five held their annual banquet Tuesday evening at Beach Pond and relished a chicken pie supper. The members are Edward Blanchard, Eugene Des Jardins, George Lucier, Paul Gingras and Arthur Le Clair.

An art decorator from Boston was in town all day Wednesday, and did several jobs of fancy trimming along the line of march.

E. H. Hiscox is off duty on annual leave, for the first twenty days in July.

Film's tonight, King's Revue. Good singers, dancers and comedians. Also picture program.—adv.

PLAINFIELD

At ten minutes past five in front of the Post Office on the Main street a hauling truck of the E. P. Winward company, bearing Rhode Island license plate number X 8-108, collided with the Maxwell touring car owned by Fred Lever. The driver of the truck stated that he had reached the space between the cars parked on both sides of the street before Leaver. Elton Leaver, the driver claimed that he had reached the particular place before the truck. The state officer on duty at the one-way traffic section questioned both parties. The car of Leavers had the left front fender ripped and damaged badly. This is one of the accidents that must occur in this section of the village unless automobile owners stop parking on both sides of the Main street. The roadway is narrow and when cars are marked on both sides, there is room for but one-way traffic.

George Krauss of New York is visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Krauss.

Hereafter, Plainfield is to have a regular court of justice with George R. Torry, judge.

Two large piles of sand and crushed rock are on the railroad property near the station. This material was to be used in laying the stretch of road from Hopkins Hill to French's Crossing, but the deal evidently fell through.

Officer Vincent has again issued warnings to the youths of the town about setting off fireworks before Saturday.

Wednesday afternoon Director Dissinger of the Community Club with sixty-five boys motored to Beach Pond where they stayed over night. The boys were taught many useful things at the temporary camp.

The Societe des Artisians held their July meeting at the Community House Wednesday evening.

The following is the official standing of teams of the Plainfield Twilight League: Carding Room, first place, with 1.000. Mule Spinners, second, .500. Clerks, third, .500. Loom Fixers, fourth, .250. Spinning Room, .250, and the Weave Shed .250. A great deal of interest is being shown by the fans as the grounds are crowded each evening at the games.

The official standing of the indoor baseball teams consisting of the junior members of the Community Association, published Wednesday, shows: Barney Googles .611; Spark Plugs, .555; Jigs, .444; and Boob McNuts, .333.

One of the local merchants received a car-load of Sowega watermelons Wednesday morning.

Only thirty yards more of cement has to be laid and the state highway will be ready for traffic. The highway through the town is now in perfect condition.

The town could make good use of the sand and gravel at the railroad depot by resurfacing the back roads to the farms on the outskirts of the village.

The stores of the village will not close Thursday this week, as the Fourth of July, a holiday, falls on Saturday.

Farmers are beginning to cut their first crop of hay. On some farms grass is reported five feet high.

Miss Helen Doyle, local teacher is at Newport, R. I., for the summer visiting relatives.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sundani, a party was given their son Clarence, who celebrated his twentieth birthday. Twenty of his intimate friends were present. Sandwiches, ice cream, candy and fruit were served.

Ralph Veit, Albert Bebean and Malcom Hutchinson are at Beach Pond for a week or so. The boys left Tuesday afternoon.

Many of the townsfolk are planning a few days outing at the nearby beaches.

One seldom hears any complaints here about the trolley service. The cars run every two hours to Norwich and there are but six trains a day leaving Plainfield. This perhaps is due to the fact that two out of every three families in this village own automobiles.

PRE-FOURTH FIREWORKS

Orders have been issued by the police commissioner of the city of Detroit that fireworks shall not be used until the morning of the Fourth.

There are dangers connected with the celebration of Independence day which are well understood. It is the belief of the commissioner, and he will be supported by the citizens in general, that one day is enough for such endangering of life and property. The celebration may well be confined to the one day instead of being carried on during the entire week, and such an effort on the part of the police authorities should get the hearty co-operation of the parents.

Conditions in past years have demonstrated the need of more safety and sanity in the observance of this great holiday. The number of dead and injured and the property losses have been such as to cause parents to shudder at the possibilities the day might bring forth. Happily there has been a strong reaction to the celebration of a decade or more ago. The avoidance of many deaths and many serious injuries is something worth striving for, and for the same reason the celebration should be confined to the one day.

Detroit was moved to take this view because a little girl received such serious burns that she died when she lighted a match to touch off a fire cracker. She was one of those engaged in a celebration of the day before it got here. She was playing with danger when she ought not to have been. It was one of those instances which cry out for a sane and safe Fourth, but it most certainly argues for the restriction of the use of fireworks to the day celebrated and then when surrounded with the necessary amount of care.

EX GOVERNOR WOODRUFF

Eighteen years ago Rollin S. Woodruff became the governor of Connecticut following his term as lieutenant governor, which service as a state officer had been preceded by a term in the state senate. Decidedly stormy was his service as governor in comparison with his prior political activities for he had a legislature on his hands which was not entirely obedient to his will, which continued in session until midsummer and which enacted legislation which prompted vetoes.

It was his purpose and endeavor to serve the state, and it will be remembered that it was as the result of his efforts that the present public utilities commission was eventually created. Upon that question the legislature of that year spent much time there was much wrangling and as the result there were vetoes, passage over vetoes and delays that caused it to stand out in contrast to many others.

Ex-Governor Woodruff was a man of strong convictions and he was undoubtedly sincere in the views and courses he took. He was a man who had made a success in life without the educational advantages which are placed in the way of many. He was self reliant and resourceful, a man who took a prominent part in the industrial activities in and about New Haven, and who figured conspicuously in the business life of that vicinity. He was genial and companionable and, though not as an officeholder, has continued since the governorship to maintain a keen interest in party affairs. The state loses a loyal servant and leading citizen.

KEEPING STREETS CLEAN

Probably there is nothing for which there is so little excuse as the practice of throwing rubbish into the streets. For the most part it is a matter of habit and thoughtlessness, with nothing to justify it.

The board of public works of the city of Holyoke has found it advisable to give warning to store owners and keepers that they will have to stop the practice of throwing loose papers and sweepings from their stores out across the sidewalk into the street, or suffer a penalty.

This would indicate that it has become customary for store keepers in that city to litter up the streets. They are apparently resorting to the easiest way without regard for the detrimental effect the practice has upon the appearance of the city's streets and the amount of needless work which it imposes upon the public works committee.

But the storekeepers are not the only ones who are responsible for this state of affairs in most cities. Where a merchant indulges in what contributes to the unattractiveness of the front of his place of business there are several individuals who are throwing into the streets, just where their serviceability ends, paper bags, wrapping paper, newspapers, tobacco tins and other similar rubbish. With the contributions of large numbers deposited in the streets it does not take long to give the impression that the ash cart has lost part of its load. This provides additional work for the street sweepers and requires an extra outlay for cleaners in order to keep the appearances of the streets what they should be.

Nothing reflects much worse upon a community than badly kept streets. It is thus apparent that those who create this highly undesirable condition should realize what they are doing and refrain from a careless habit. There are many who do and yet the disposition to throw all kinds of rubbish into the streets is more or less general. Holyoke has stood it until conditions have gotten so bad that corrective steps must be taken, but those who are penalized will have no one to blame but themselves.

DEALING WITH BUS LINES

Regulating and licensing bus lines have placed new duties upon the states. Where such lines are wholly within a state there is no question about the authority of the commission which deals with transportation lines to act. But where they are in two or more states there is no provision for dealing with such interstate commerce.

In Massachusetts it is required that such lines be regulated by the state and licensed by the towns and cities through which it passes. Such a law is upheld by the supreme court of that state in a recent decision in the case concerning a bus line between Brockton and Boston. This line virtually parallels the New Haven road which entered a protest and that protest has now been upheld, and in doing so the court declared that bus lines must obtain permits from all towns through which they pass and not solely from the cities where they start and end, since all towns are required to protect the persons and property of their citizens even as are the terminal towns.

It was a decision which had to do with a wholly interstate proposition. Had the bus line started at Providence and gone through Brockton to Boston it would appear according to the United States supreme court decision that no one had authority to stop it. Such is interstate commerce and there is no provision made for its regulation, since the interstate commerce commission is not authorized to deal with such a matter and state commissions cannot deal with interstate business. Thus while the Brockton-Boston bus line must stop operation it would appear that Massachusetts would be powerless if the line should make its start from a point in another state.

The determination of the requirements for bus lines within Massachusetts will settle that matter under the existing laws. The interstate feature is one which needs and should get attention at the coming session of congress. Whether this situation can best be met by extending the authority of the interstate commerce commission or by having the authority given to the state commissions must be considered in all phases before taking action. It is plainly evident that something should be done.

SANTA BARBARA'S SPIRIT

Santa Barbara isn't the first city that has been wrecked by an earthquake. There are others which have experienced much worse results, especially in the matter of loss of life. But even in such instances there has been a quick response to the need of rebuilding. It is inevitable following disasters that such a spirit is manifested. It was true at the time San Francisco suffered so badly from the quake. It was the case when Galveston experienced such serious effects from the tidal waves and it was so following the frightful conditions in the wake of the Japanese earthquake.

Thus Santa Barbara is displaying not only the right attitude but the view taken by others when it formulated a programme for the construction of a new and modern city following and so far as possible during the clean-up that must take place. Santa Barbara is going through what has been experienced before. There were others who faced much the same problem over a century ago, but the spirit of the present citizenship is none the less firm in the conviction that Santa Barbara must go on.

Santa Barbara had some modern structures which were believed to be so constructed as to offer effective resistance to earthquakes, but there's no telling where the blow is going to fall or how severe it is going to be. All that can be done is to adopt the best known construction methods for earthquake territory and that is what the California city is planning to do as it rises from the present sickening ruins.

It is a discouraging situation for any people and yet the people of Santa Barbara take a philosophical view of the situation and are disposed to make the best of their predicament. That they will need some outside help is inevitable but whether in meeting such distress as prevails or in reconstruction its buildings it is certain that it will find no great difficulty in obtaining it. Humanity in distress seldom fails to arouse interest and get needed aid.

EDITORIAL NOTES

July is with us again and from now on we can look for a hot old time.

The man on the corner says: Powder exploded today will make no racket on the Fourth.

Is the yield from the home garden equal to the demand from the household of the gardener?

Have you arranged for a proper celebration of the holiday this week as a patriotic but sane American?

While getting in your supply of fire crackers have you also stocked up with arnica, oil, salve and bandages?

The June brides are now all enrolled for 1925 but there's no reason why there shouldn't be just as many in July.

That explorer who returns from the arctic claiming to have ridden a mile on a whale's back certainly intended to outdo Dr. Cook.

Those who keep away from the cannon, big crackers and revolvers on the Fourth, like those who stop, look and listen at railroad crossings have nothing to regret on the day after.

THE SEWING CIRCLE

The newest member folded up her embroidery into a neat roll, laid it aside and reached for a cup of tea. "I have been thinking," she said to the fluffy haired blond, "of getting a velvet gown something like the one you have."

"Had," corrected the fluffy haired blond, glumly.

"Why?" demanded the young matron with the auburn wave, indignantly. "What d'you mean by "had," woman? You only got that dress in January."

"Well, you see," explained the fluffy haired blond, suavely, "I traveled in it when I went to spend the week-end in Racine."

"Traveled in it!" gasped the young matron with the auburn wave, her mouth almost falling open with astonishment. "Do my ears serve me or do they not, oh Brutus? For a girl who refuses to wear so much as a ring in daytime, in the way of jewelry, and white ruffles and tailored hats—" The young matron paused for breath and waved her thimble. "For such an one to travel in a chiffon velvet gown that looks like a million dollars—"

The fluffy haired blond giggled suddenly. "My aesthetic reputation is ruined," she agreed. "And I lost a suitor in the bargain, a most estimable person, really, and a highly eligible bachelor." She cocked her head to one side, closed the right eye and squinted in the earnest effort to thread a large silk thread into a small needle.

"Oh, tell us about it!" coaxed the sewing circle, delightedly.

"Why, certainly," said the fluffy haired blond. "You see, I was going to week end with the Meadowcliffs, which means noble clothes, as you know, and as you also know, one has to take just as many clothes for a week end party as for a month's visit. Don't ask me why, but you do. It always works out that way."

The sewing circle nodded again.

"So I wore it," said the fluffy haired blond, calmly, "because you know as well as I do what the thing would have looked like if I'd packed it into a week end box, with that squishy gauze girdle and all."

The young matron groaned. "Coming home, too?" she inquired.

"Oh, yes," said the fluffy-haired blond. "Of course I had to. And the coming back was much worse than going. On the way out it was late afternoon and every one supposed I was dining in Lake Forest or somewhere but coming home I took the 8:45 train in the morning—and the aforesaid suitor took it, too.

She paused to thread another needle. "I wish you could have seen his face," she said, "when my coat accidently fell open. He looked as startled as you would if you found the milkman making his rounds in a tuxedo. Of course, one can't blame the man much, but at the same time," she added, judiciously, "he wasn't awfully sporting about it."

The sewing circle considered this. "Later," said the fluffy haired blond, "a small boy on the train fell into my lap with an all-day sucker and a bag of buttered popcorn. The cleaner may be able to do something helpful, but I doubt it."

"What a shame!" groaned the young matron. But the fluffy haired blond smiled at her brightly.

"Educationally," she assured them, "it was worth the price. Why, I might even have married the poor unfortunate man, in a thoughtless moment. Just fancy that! Life would have been one darn thing after another for him then. I might wear my galoshes down to breakfast some cold morning, and he would never survive the shock of such a social error."—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Lynching Record For The First Six Months of 1925

Mr. Editor: I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research that in the first six months of 1925 there were nine lynchings. This is 4 more than the number 5 for the first six months of 1924; 6 less than the number 15 for the first six months of 1923 and 21 less than the number 30 for the first six months of 1922.

All of the persons lynched were negroes. The offenses charged were: Murder, 4; rape, 2; attacking woman, 1; attacking child, 2.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Arkansas, 1; Florida, 1; Georgia, 1; Louisiana, 1; Mississippi, 3; Utah, 1; and Virginia, 1.

Yours very truly,
R. R. MOTON,
Principal.

Stories That Recall Others

Rolled His, Too.

It couldn't have been an accident. Maybe it was a bet. It may have been part of an iniation into some fraternity. Or possibly he had decided he would go his sister or his friend one better.

At any rate he appeared on the trolley with his socks rolled down to the top of his oxfords and his manly shine bones minus the conventional diaphanous disguise were displayed before a large group of fellow passengers. May be he thought "everybody's doing it."

Rock Them to Sleep?

One woman tells this joke on herself: Her next door neighbors, who had a number of chickens, were going away on a visit and asked her whether she would let the chickens out in the morning and took them up again in the evening.

She gladly consented, and after letting them out and feeding them she worried all day wondering how she would ever get them in to roost. When the time came to lock the coops, she realized that she was more ignorant than the chickens, which she found perched all in a row.

From Small Beginnings

Sir Robert Seppings, the Boat Boy, the Great Ship Designer

When Horatio Nelson, who was to become the greatest of all English sea fighters, was 9 years old, there was born in the same section of England—Norfolk—in which Nelson had been born, another boy, Robert Seppings, whose life was to be linked with that of Nelson. Horatio Nelson entered the navy and became the intrepid commander, and the defender of England on the seas. Robert Seppings was sent to be an humble apprentice in an English shipyard. The world did not hear much about him, but he rose from the bottom of the ladder to become a designer of ships, and finally to beco emsurveyor of the navy.

An apprentice in a shipyard in the rough days in which Seppings lived had to take his full share of work and abuse. It was far from an easy thing for the English boy with his quick northern temper to carry on all the work that was given him, but he stuck to it manfully, did his best, learned the use of tools, and took especial delight in studying the plans of ships. His work was never piece work or day work; he thought of a ship as a whole, and was interested in seeing the best ships ever made constructed in his yard. Such a boy very quickly attracted attention. He rose to authority over others, and when he grew up became a dipector of builders. In 1800 when Horatio Nelson was made Vice Admiral of the Fleet and a peer of England, Robert Seppings was made a master shipwright assistant.

If it had not been for men like Seppings, such men as Horatio Nelson would have been unable to maneuver ships as they did. The humble work of the toilers in the English shipyards gave power to the English fleet. One of the first great accomplishments made by Robert Seppings was to invent a system of supporting boats in dry dock that enabled workmen to make repairs in much less time than before. This one thing gave flexibility to the British navy, for ships need spend little time in dry dock. From this he went on to make ships that would carry heavier guns and that would save their crews by means of strong protections. All this increased naval effectiveness. It is not at all surprising that the government took notice of this patient, hardworking ship designer and at last made him a knight. Sir Robert Seppings. When he was 46 he was made surveyor of the navy, a position that he filled honorably for nearly 20 years. Such men are as great as are the more famous admirals.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Marvin Hughitt, who has severed the last remaining link which bound him to the active business world, will long be remembered as an outstanding figure in the history of conservative railroading in the United States. Mr. Hughitt is now nearing his 90th year. He was born in New York state, grew up in a rural region, went to the schools of Auburn, and then was taken to Illinois, where he chose to be a telegrapher. This led to his accepting work in Illinois railroads, where he gained the experience that led to his being made general manager of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, a post which he filled well, but only for a short time, as he was soon made general superintendent of the Chicago & Northwestern, the railroad with which his name has come to be inseparably identified. He rose steadily to the presidency and held it from 1887 to 1910, when he laid down much of his labor and became chairman of the board.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

LIGHTHOUSES OF THE AIR

"Lighting ships on their way, one of the most ancient adjuncts of, navigation, has been revolutionized recently because ships now sail the air as well as the sea, and the classic type of lighthouse does not meet the needs of the air voyagers," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"The latest development in the newest lighthouse field," continues the bulletin, "is the establishment of a one-billion candlepower beacon near Dijon in eastern France, primarily to facilitate night travel on the Paris Marsilles line, but also to point the way for the numerous buzzing carriers of passengers, mail, and express, which France sees weaving a network of air routes over the country in the near future.

"This most powerful lighthouse in the world does not rise like its long line of famous predecessors from near the pounding surf, but is situated on a mountain top 250 miles inland from the English Channel and the Mediterranean, and 300 from the Atlantic. It is not, like the existing aviation lights in the United States, one of a series of beacons in the line of a traveled route; and unlike many great lighthouses of the sea, it does not mark a region that is to be avoided or a channel entrance that is to be entered. It is placed well to the side of the much traveled French air lanes, in such a situation that it can be seen from great distances and used as a check on location and direction. The beacon lies nearly 2,000 feet above sea level and flashes its powerful beams far above most of the low hills of central France. Under favorable atmospheric conditions it is believed that the Dijon light can be seen from near Marseilles in the south, and from the air above Paris, Lille and even Brussels in the north.

"The lighthouses of the air have had a radically different development so far in America's vast land areas. Almost the only problem here has been to supply well lighted, hard and fast routes for the trans-continental mail flyers; and this has been so well solved by the post office department, that it probably will serve as a model for all the definitely lighted airways of the future. The most powerful of the air-mail beacons are of half-billion candle power. There are five of these, on the division landing fields at Chicago, Iowa City, Omaha, North Platte, and Cheyenne, from 200 to 250 miles apart. The planes land at each of these stations and the brilliant flashing beacons are to identify the landing fields. As the planes approach the earth the beacons are turned off and the fields are floodlighted.

"Between the regular landing fields, at 25 mile intervals, are emergency landing fields, each marked by a flashing light of 5-million candle power. Normally these smaller beacons serve to outline the flying route. Between the lights of the emergency fields, approximately three miles apart, are small, blinking, routing beacons. Thus the air mail flyer has his night route marked out for him with a pencil of light extending off from Chicago 1,000 miles to the west.

"All of these lights are not shining at one time. For the west-bound flyer only the Chicago-Iowa City division is lighted at first. The planes are operated on a regular dispatching system. As a plane passes over each emergency field the caretaker there notifies the station in advance and that in the near by telephone. When the plane lands at the division point, all of the emergency fields passed over are notified, and their lights are turned off. Then the portion of the route passed over is lighted, only by the little automatic blinking gas lights of the three-mile beacons, which pulse their signals for weeks at a time without attention. When the plane is ready to take off on the next leg of its cruise, all the beacons of the second division begin flashing to lead it on safely along its way.

"Between New York and Chicago a second airway is now being put into types of lights. Because of the rough country, beacons cannot be seen, as in the west, for 25 miles or more. Lights of the western emergency field type are placed from 12 to 17 miles apart 'marking' emergency landing sites. In between, usually on hills or ridges, are lamps which send out rather broad beams of fair brilliancy. These are merely pointing signals and do not indicate landing fields. To make their character clear each sends vertically a constant beam of red light, at shorter intervals along the Eastern airway are small, blinking lights like those used in the west."

SYMPATHY WITH CHILDREN

Mrs. Nestor Noel

"Bother! there are the children home from school," was a remark I overheard one day as a group of happy children came rushing down the dane.

The children certainly were glad to be home again. Couldn't the mother have shared their gladness and welcomed them eagerly? Of course, she saw an interruption in her tasks, she saw the rest of the afternoon, as it seemed to her, practically wasted. I sometimes wonder why some women have children; they have so little sympathy with them.

A tidy house is a pleasure, but I'd rather have a house a little less tidy and have the greater joy of children in it. A childless house is always lonely.

There are women who never seem to have an ounce of feeling for their children. If the little ones get hurt, they say, "It's your own fault; you're always in the way."

"You haven't any feeling for your mother," I have often heard a woman say, and when I've heard this, I've thought to myself, "You never have any for your children."

It doesn't make a child over sensitive to stop in your work for a minute and "kiss the place to make it well." Nor does it take from your dignity to join your little ones in a game, now and then.

I have seen mothers study pamphlet after pamphlet in an endeavor to find the right kind of diet for their babies. I have seen them make slaves of themselves, cooking over hot stoves and yet these same mothers had no real sympathy with the children. They would work themselves almost to death to supply material needs, but they never considered the needs of the mind and heart.

It is often the children of the well-to-do whose parents are the least sympathetic. They see their children so seldom that the little ones grow up almost strangers to them.

A child is happier with fewer things and more love. Nothing can ever take the place of sympathy. A tiny mite once made the remark, "O, Mother, I said my piece without a mistake and you were not there." It was as if the joy of success had been almost spoiled because "Mother was not there" to share it.

CROWDS ENJOY LAWN PARTY BY K. OF C.

Ideal weather conditions prevailed Wednesday night for the opening of the Knights of Columbus lawn party and throughout the evening hundreds of people found enjoyment in the spacious grounds in the rear of the K. of C. home where many attractive booths had been erected.

The grounds and booths were most attractively decorated and hundreds of electric lights of varied hues, installed by Walter Carrigan, made the setting for the party all that could be desired.

As one entered the grounds to the left stood the Vermont Country Store, an original feature of the party this year. This booth is in charge of four Vermonters (real ones) togged out in country style with duster, straw hats and chin whiskers. Boxes and cans of pure maple sugar and cans of pure maple syrup were on sale, having been obtained from Vermont specially for the party.

Along the line to the left were blanket booths and booths for electrical appliances, big bouncing rubber balls, candies and mystery. On the right of the entrance were the soda and ice cream booths, baby doll booths, a lucky booth and a booth where home-made cakes were on sale.

Every booth was well patronized during the evening and a number were practically cleaned out before the evening was spent.

In the center of the field was one of the main attractions, the out-door dance pavilion where lovers of dancing found pleasure in "wheeling away" to the strains of the latest dance hits played by Leith's Musical Aces, with Omer Leith, director. This feature of the party as usual proved a hit with the young people and the orchestra worked steadily until 11:30 and the party came to a close for its first evening.

This (Thursday) evening the party is to be at its full height as the Knights have received word that a number of local organizations are planning to turn out in a body to attend the lawn festival, in recognition of many past favors rendered them. Dancing will be enjoyed as on the first night and other attractions on the program for the night are certain to make it a banner one and bring the two-day lawn party to a whirlwind finish and a successful close.

PLAY CLEVERLY PRODUCED AT UNIVERSALIST CHURCH

An appreciative audience was entertained Wednesday night in the social room at the Universalist church with the production of a two-act play by a group of Sunday school girls. The play was interesting in plot and the development displayed that no small amount of work and ingenuity had been expended by the girls in portraying their several parts. Entitled "Ten Years Hence," the story carried back to the World War, with the first act scene laid in a Boston finishing school, and the second act in France.

The characters:

Leslie Langdon	Betty Pike
Marie	Thelma Bjurstrom
Beatrice Fanshawe	Virginia Bisque
Hope May	Stella Anderson
Anne	Murrial Hood

Direction, Mrs. A. N. Foster.

Two entre act features were contributed by Laurice Foster, in a humorous sketch, and Miss Helena Crandall, with interpretive dancing. Miss Crandall is to be commended for her unique skill and grace. The organization is appreciative of the kindly assistance given by Frederick Russell, violinist, in furnishing music for the evening.

OBITUARY.

Miss Marguerite Rose Shields.

Following an illness of some duration the death of Miss Marguerite Rose Shields, R. N., occurred Wednesday morning at Manhattan Square hospital, New York city.

Miss Shields was born in this city, August 3, 1899, the daughter of Daniel and Mary Murphy Shields, of 85 Cliff street, and received her early education in local public schools, being a graduate of Broadway grammar school. Attending the Norwich Free Academy, Miss Shields graduated with the class of 1917, after which she entered St. Francis Hospital Training school, Hartford, and became a graduate nurse. She also took a summer course in school nursing at Columbia university. After her graduation Miss Shields served as nurse for one year at the Willimantic State Normal school and later was nurse in the office of Dr. William Wrang, of Middletown. Overwork following an attack of influenza brought about a breakdown in health and she failed steadily until the end.

Miss Shields was a member of St. Mary's Memorial church and a young woman who was loved by all who knew her. A loving daughter and sister, and a cheerful companion, her friends in Norwich were many, all of whom learned of her death with profound sorrow. To the members of her family, in their loss of a beloved daughter and sister these friends extend their heart-felt sympathies.

Surviving are her mother and father and one sister, Mary E. Shields, and a number of other relatives in Norwich.

Mrs. Anna Wulf Davis

Word has been received in this city by Herman A. Wulf and in Putnam by Otto E. Wulf, of the death of their sister, Mrs. Anna Wulf Davis at Stockton, Calif., on June 22nd, in her 63rd year.

Mrs. Davis was born in Ebsdorf, Germany, December 31, 1861, and was educated in the public schools in Norwich, Conn. She was a graduate nurse of the New Haven hospital but left there about 17 years ago. While in Norwich she was a member of Park Congregational church and her many friends here will learn of her death with sorrow. Besides her two brothers she is survived by several nieces and nephews.

Mrs. Davis' faithful devotion to her duties as a nurse was an indirect cause of her death, loss of sleep in a number of cases taken in the past few years causing her to suffer from insomnia which she was unable to combat successfully.

Although away from Norwich for many years she will be remembered as a woman of forceful energy and a tireless worker in her profession. The body is to be brought to Norwich for burial.

DAVIDSON WINS SUIT OVER LEASE OF BROADWAY THEATER FROM POLI

Four decisions in New London county cases which were handed down Wednesday by the supreme court included one case which attracted much public attention at the time it was brought and fought through a trial in a justice's court before a jury and then, on an appeal, in the common pleas court.

This is the summary process suit brought by Sylvester Z. Poli, of New Haven, owner of the Broadway theatre property, to eject his tenant, Abe Davidson, of this city, who had a five-year lease of the theatre, running from April 26, 1922, for $7,500 annually. The summary process suit was brought by Mr. Poli some time after an announcement had been made on Nov. 1, 1924 that interests indentified with the Palace Theatre corporation had entered into a contract with S. Z. Poli to buy the Broadway theatre property.

The supreme court decision is in favor of Mr. Davidson. The opinion is by Judge Beach, who finds no error in the judgment given by Judge C. B. Waller of the court of common pleas which supported the claims of the attorneys for Mr. Davidson.

The summary process suit was heard before Justice of the Peace John D. Hall and a jury, which found in favor of Mr. Poli. From this justice court decision, Mr. Davidson took an appeal to the common pleas court, which was heard before Judge Waller, who found error and set aside the judgment of the justice of the peace.

An appeal from Judge Waller's decision was taken to the supreme court by Mr. Poli and the supreme court now denies his appeal and sustains the judgment of Judge Waller in favor of Mr. Davidson.

The main point on which the summary process suit was pressed was that Mr. Davidson had not paid insurance premiums for insurance on the theatre, which it was claimed he was obligated to do under a bond which he gave subsequent to the execution of the lease. The matter of insurance premiums was mentioned in the bond but not in the lease in which the lessee agreed to pay "all necessary expenses incident to the management of said leased property for the purposes provided in said lease, including heating, lighting, taxes, all expenses for interior repairs, and all other ordinary and necessary expenses and improvements incident to the business aforesaid."

It was the contention of the attorneys for Mr. Poli, the lessor of the theatre, Slade, Slade and Slade, that the lease and bond must be taken together as of equal effect, while the opposite view was taken by Brown and James, the attorneys for Mr. Davidson, they claiming that the lease showed the terms with which the lessee should comply and that the bond was not to be construed as a part of the lease.

Error in Farm Suit

Error was found in the case of Malcolm E. Thompson of North Stonington vs. Albert Stanley Main of North Stonington, according to the opinons of Chief Justice Wheeler, who handed down the justice.

Justice Wheeler says: "Error, judgment reversed, cause remanded with direction to enter judgment in favor of defendant in error, Thompson, and setting aside the judgment of the justice of the peace."

Main leased on or about Jan. 15, 1924, to Malcolm E. Thompson, of North Stonington, the Isaac Taylor farm, so-called, located in North Stonington, under an agreement that said lease should terminate at any time at the option of the said Albert Stanley Main. On April 1, 1924, Thompson sold and caused to be removed all of the manure upon said farm which was a part of said farm and the property of said Albert Main. On May 5, 1925, the lesser gave due notice to the lessee to quit possession of the place, but Thompson still holds possession.

Maurisky's Sentence Remains

No error was found in the case of the state vs. Mike Maurisky of Montville, according to the opinion of Judge William Maltbie.

Judge Frederick Peasly of the superior court imposed a fine of $200 on each count and sentenced the defendant to jail at New London for a term of three months on each count, the sentence on the second count to commence at the expiration of the sentence on the first count and also to pay the costs of the prosecution taxed at $153.04 and to stand committed until this judgment is complied with. Maurisky was charged with violation of the liquor law on two counts. Found guilty by a jury in the superior court on one count, he pleaded guilty to the second count.

No Error in Lumber Suit

No error was found in the case of Boston Lumber Co., vs. Pendleton Bros. Inc., alias the Pendleton Co., of New York, and at one time engaged in the building of ships at Mystic, according to the opinion of Judge Maltbie.

This was a suit to recover the balance claimed to be due upon certain shipments of ship building lumber, to be delivered at the defendant's ship building yard in Mystic. The defendants claimed delay in shipment, etc., thus losing large sums of money to the amount of $20,000.

Judge Wolfe in the superior court in his decision, made at the time the case was decided there, and from which an appeal was taken stated in part:

"There remains, therefore, the claim of the defendant upon its counter claim to recover damages by reason of the claimed delay in the shipments. If as a matter of law the defendant was entitled to damages because of the failure of the plaintiff to make prompt shipment, the defendant would not be entitled to recover anything more than nominal damages for the reasons that it offered no evidence in support of the allegations of the counter claim. The agreed price for lumber in the fourth and fifth shipments was $3,936.08. A judgment for such sum together with interest in the sum of $761.55, in all $4,717.63, may be entered for the plaintiff."

W. G. PARK WINS, IN ROTARY GOLF TOURNEY

William G. Park won the Rotary club one-day tournament at the Norwich Golf club and Rev. A. H. Abbott and Charles A. Saxton tied up for second and split second prize. The driving contest was won by Rev. Mr. Abbott. The match was played in foursomes with the following scores:

	Gross	Handicap	Net
W. G. Park	42	7	35
A. H. Abbott	45	9	36
C. A. Saxton	49	13	36
F. P. Welch	44	7	37
E. A. Harris	46	9	37
R. A. Clapp	48	11	37
C. R. Boss	49	12	37
J. C. Worth	52	15	37
J. Callard	46	8	38
H. A. Tirrell	48	10	38
H. Shannon	53	15	38
F. R. Smith	52	13	39
Dr. E. Richards	48	8	40
L. Briggs	50	10	40
L. Crawford	60	15	45
H. H. Vignot	59	13	46
C. A. Gager	61	15	46
H. Ferguson	61	15	46
E. W. Jewett	64	15	49

The first prize was a dozen golf balls and the second and third prizes were a half dozen. The prize for the driving contest was also a half dozen balls. The prizes were donated by members of the club.

Preceding the golf tournament the regular meeting of the club was held on the porch of the club house where a cold meat and salad lunch was served. President J. Nelson Weymouth presided and Russ Clapp acted as song leader. Johnny Egan presided at the piano.

Among the interesting events of the meeting was the report of Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, delegate from the Norwich club to the Rotary International convention at Cleveland. Dr. Campbell spoke of the very interesting trip to Cleveland by way of Buffalo and from Buffalo to Cleveland on the boat. He told of meeting a number of people who seemed to know that Norwich was still alive and kicking.

At the convention he met the man who was introduced as being from the club farthest north. This man came from Alaska and was Bill Morrissey, formerly of Jewett City, who is now engaged in newspaper work. Another man Dr. Campbell told of meeting was Pat Mumford, of the Dublin, Ireland, club, who upon learning that Dr. Campbell came from Norwich asked if he knew Miss Loretta Higgins. Mr. Mumford said he was engaged in newspaper work and had met Miss Higgins when she sang in Dublin after her return from Paris.

Dr. Campbell's report included brief extracts from the various addresses which were given at the convention. One that was exceptionally brilliant was by Canon Elliott, of Liverpool, Eng., who in the course of his address on "Uniqueness of Rotary," said that a good board of directors would be made up of six members: a business expert, an artist, an educationalist, a moralist, a prophet and a gentleman with sporting proclivities.

There were 1814 clubs represented at the convention with a total vote of 2445, and in the election Don Adams was elected International president by an overwhelming majority, most of the foreign delegates casting their vote for the New Haven man.

A pageant also occupied one evening of the convention and was a brilliant and entertaining affair. Dr. Campbell told of the action of the convention on club policies and other things of interest to Rotarians. At the conclusion of his talk Dr. Campbell expressed his thanks to the club for sending him to the convention.

Charles F. Wells was the five-minute speaker of the day and spoke on business conditions. He laid special stress on the increased volume of supply and the vast improvement of transportation facilities in the past decade. He also touched on the intensive selling campaigns. Profits in this high tension campaign of competition must come from savings in what is classed as overhead, unproductive factory labor; the handling of material, the office executives and the sales force. Mr. Wells' talk contained much of interest to the business man and was heard with close attention.

The various committees on the outing at Ashland reported progress. L. M. Carpenter extended a hearty invitation for the Rotarians to visit Jewett City on the Fourth when there would be a real old-fashioned celebration.

W. G. Park was appointed a committee to arrange a golf match with the Meriden club. It was voted that the Rotary club furnish the ice cream for the patients at the Backus hospital on the Fourth.

The meeting closed with the Star Spangled Banner.

STATE ATTORNEYS CONFER ON DETECTIVE LAW

Seven state's attorneys or their representatives from six of the eight counties of Connecticut, had "a very pleasant and harmonious conference" at Hartford Wednesday morning at their meeting to consider what steps they will take toward countering Governor Trumbull's announced intention of appointing as county detectives on men who are members of the state police force.

The attorneys would give no statement as to what trend their discussions had taken or as to what proposals they are considering. They will meet again "soon" for another discussion of the situation. State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn announced at the conclusion of their meeting Wednesday. The time and place of this next meeting have not yet been decided upon, Mr. Alcorn said. Previous to the meeting Mr. Alcorn stated that while there was no one suggestion before the attorneys for consideration, "each of us has some idea as to what we think should be done."

LIQUOR RAID MADE AT STARR ST. PLACE

Andrew Bohara, 34, was arrested late Wednesday afternoon at his home at 16 Starr street where a liquor raid was made by State Policemen Fred Caron and Parker with Officer Charles Smith. Bohara is accused of violation of the liquor law.

Mrs. William M. Zumbro and Misses Kathryn and Elizabeth Zumbro of Church street have been in Brookline, Mass., guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard L. Parker.

After a fortnight's trip in Canada, Miss Vida Engler, a teacher at Skidmore Academy, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., is at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George G. Engler, for the summer vacation.

Tints of orchid and gold were very effectively carried out in decorations, ices, etc., at a shower given by Miss Mildred Engler, at her home on Broad street, for Miss Janet Blackstone, whose engagement to Henry Francis Macomber, Jr., of New London, was announced during the spring. It was a veranda party for fourteen girl friends the gifts being hidden in a dainty decorated parasol, suspended above the table. The guests included Miss Carolyn Hanover, of Groton.

WATCH HILL COTTAGE ROOF IS BURNED OFF

WESTERLY, July 2.—Fire, undoubtedly starting from sparks from a chimney, caused the blaze which burned off the roof of the main part of the house, "The Point", the large Watch Hill cottage of Isaac T. Starr of Philadelphia, about 7 o'clock Wednesday evening. The cottage is the center one of the Griscom group, so-called, located on Watch Hill lighthouse point, where the lighthouse roadway turns sharply about it. It is a large two and a half-story shingled roof structure, covering a considerable area, erected on the site of the old Larkin Hotel.

The fire was noticed by coast guard men at the Watch Hill station. Surfman Clarence Hebb observed three sparks of fire on the steep shingled roof, which the stiff wind blowing quickly fanned into a blaze and this spread rapidly over the east and west slopes of the roof. The Watch Hill fire department was called and word was sent to Westerly, from where Watch Hill Fire Chief George W. Hoxie was soon on his way to the Hill, passing the Fox-Ahrens pumper of the Westerly department on its way to Watch Hill in a record run.

A general alarm for a fire out of the district had been sounded by a series of three strokes on the Westerly fire bell soon after 7 o'clock.

Fire Chief George E. Exner and a force of 15 or 20 Westerly firemen with a Westerly pumper were soon at Lighthouse Point.

The Watch Hill fire department had placed its suction hose off the south, or bathing beach side of the point, and soon had two streams of sea water directed on the burning roof. The Westerly fire department dropped its suction pipe off the same side of the point, just beyond the Watch Hill pumper and two more streams were directed upon the roof, which, at the time, was blazing furiously, with sparks and smoke going in the direction of the cottage occupied by Edwin S. Dewing, of Hartford and the Aldrich cottage.

Considerable difficulty was experienced in keeping clear the ends of the hose, which had been placed in lobster cars or pots, and which continued to be clogged by sea weed and eel grass, necessitating several stops to free them. Many Watch Hill firemen, cottagers, hotel guests, Watch Hill people, shop keepers, chauffeurs and servants assisted in removing the furniture, fixtures and furnishings to the adjacent lawns, where they were placed beyond possible damage of water. The hundreds assembled grew in number as many automobile parties arrived, even from Stonington, where the flames could be seen from across the waters of Little Narragansett bay, as well as from Westerly. A continued procession of automobiles, coming and going, filled the Watch Hill road.

The Starr family is expected to arrive at the Hill July 4th and only the butler was at the house at the time of the fire. The blaze was first brought under control at the north end of the roof and it was a well fought, hard, uphill fight to subdue the fire on the east and south ends, a number of holes being cut by the firemen through which streams of water were directed, which had been carried up ladders on the east side of the main building. The wind died down, as the blaze was put out, before it had burned lower than the jet. The crossed streams soaked the firemen and several tumbles were reported. Daniel Ashworth was overcome by smoke and Gordon Beattie sustained a bad cut on his left hand from falling glass, being given attention by the first aid squad of the Westerly fire department and later taken to Dr. Rynhnan Townshend of "Everbreeze" cottage, Misquamicut road, physician for the members of the New Haven fire department and the Watch Hill cottagers.

The Hook and Ladder truck of the Westerly department was of assistance when their ladders were used to reach the upper stories of the smoke-filled house and in putting out the last of the fire. Watch Hill society turned out en masse and the points of vantage were generally occupied. The Westerly department returned to their quarters about 9 o'clock.

The damage done is estimated at between $12,000 and $15,000. The property was recently transferred by Rodman E. Griscom, of Lower Marion, Montgomery County, Penn., and the Fidelity Trust company, as trustees and executor of the estate of late Clement A. Griscom, of Philadelphia.

AUTOMOBILE CASE TRIED IN COMMON PLEAS COURT

The suit of Louis Wedlock of Pawcatuck against Clifton D. Hall, an automobile dealer of Westerly, was on trial in the common pleas court here Wednesday before Judge C. B. Waller and a jury. The suit involves the purchase of an automobile upon which Wedlock was unable to meet the first note when it became due and the dealer took the car back. The contention is over the terms which were made in taking the car back.

Attorney Gallagher represented the plaintiff and Attorney G. C. Morgan the defendant.

After the jury had had the case for half an hour at the end of the court day, Judge Waller them back from the jury room and told them that they could return this (Thursday) morning at 9 o'clock and attempt to reach a verdict. Foreman E. T. Bunyan informed the court that he thought they could reach a verdict in half an hour.

The following was the jury drawn for the case by Clerk Lewis Crandall: Norwich, Henry C. Hensler, Everett M. Rogers, Francis McNamara Preston, Frank Palmer, Griswold, William R. Palmer, Edmond Herbert, William H. Fogarty, George E. Geer; Colchester, Timothy F. Kelly, E. T. Bunyan; Lisbon Paul Geist; Voluntown, Alybert R. Dawley.

MOHEGAN TRIBE CHIEFS RAISED TO STUMPS

At the meeting of Mohegan tribe, No. 64, Order of Red Men, held Wednesday night in Steiner's hall on Main street, Deputy Great Sachem Benjamin Rose and staff, of New London, were present and raised the following chiefs to their stumps: Sachem, James R. Connell; senior sagamore, Adelard J. Gauthier; junior sagamore, Henry S. Kiecolt; prophet, Raymond N. Harris; first sannap, James J. Murphy; second sannap, J. B. Banfield; guard of the wigwam, Joseph Doherty; guard of the forest, Alfred J. Demute.

Considerable discussion followed concerning degree work and George F. Farrell, appointed degree master, announced that work on the degree team would be started immediately, in order that the team may be prepared for degree work in the fall.

Deputy Great Sachem Rose spoke concerning the membership drive to start in the fall and continue until January 1, 1926. This drive for new members is to be an individual contest between Red Men and the member bringing in the greatest number of palefaces is to receive a prize.

A number of visiting brothers spoke on Redmanship and concerning work in the order in other cities of the state. Following the meeting a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Says: Grandest Stomach Medicine in the World

Relief Comes At Once But Better Goes For Good, Still Chronic Indigestion

Get a bottle of Dare's Mentha-Pepsin from Lee & Osgood Co. today with the distinct understanding that your money will be promptly returned if it does not stop the most acute stomach distress quicker than any remedy you ever used.

Your stomach may be so distended with gas that you think every minute your heart is going to stop beating, yet with one tablespoonful of Dare's Mentha-Pepsin that dreadful feeling of suffocation will vanish in a few minutes.

It's a wonderful formula—this combination of Pepsin with other good stomach invigorators—so wonderful that in one small town in New Jersey, in 1931, over 6,000 bottles were sold.

Never mind what causes your indigestion or gastritis, or how long you have had it, or how many other remedies you have tried, this is the one medicine that will make your old disabled stomach so strong and healthy that you can digest anything you eat without the slightest distress.

Even catarrh of the stomach will be banished in a reasonable length of time.

And you know that when your stomach is in fine shape, nervousness, headaches and dizziness won't bother you. Every regular druggist guarantees one bottle of Dare's Mentha-Pepsin. Lee & Osgood Co. sells lots of it.

TWO AFFIDAVITS REQUIRED FOR MARRIAGE LICENSES

There is uncertainty in Hartford, according to the information received from there by telephone Wednesday by town clerk Charles S. Holbrook, as to whether the new law relating to the issue of marriage licenses has been signed yet by the governor and whether it is in force.

The particular change which the new law makes on and after July 1 is in requiring both the prospective bride and groom to appear at the town clerk's office in person and give the information required, under oath. Before this, it has been required for only one of the parties to the intended marriage to make the statements and affidavit.

Clerk Holbrook was advised that he had better proceed as if the new law were in force and require the presence of both parties. This he intends to do. The necessary blanks for the double affidavit form of marriage license are to be forwarded from Hartford as soon as it is definitely ascertained that the bill has ben signed.

GUESTS OF MRS. MORGAN AT GARDNER LAKE COTTAGE

Between twenty-five and thirty members of the Foreign Missionary Society at Trinity Methodist church, of which Mrs. Ernest M. Newbury is president, together with a number of other members of the church, accepted the invitation of Mrs. John C. Morgan to spend Wednesday with her at her cottage at Gardner Lake. The time was spent in bathing, canoeing, rowing, etc. At noon there was an appetizing dinner of clam chowder, sandwiches, cake and fruit. The guests motored back to town during Wednesday evening.

POWER TEAM SWAMPS SAINTS IN LOOSE PLAYED CONTEST

In a one-sided game, the Eastern Connecticut Power company swamped St. Joseph's Wednesday evening by the score of 10 to 2. The E. C. P. presented one of the strongest lineups yet seen in the league, completely outclassing the tail-enders, and the outcome of the contest was never in doubt.

The Power nine collected a total of eleven hits off the combined offerings of Joe Busch and Eddie Kozlowski, while the Saints were able to make but four off Tommy Simcox.

The E. C. P. put the game on ice in the very first inning. Whitney walked as a starter, went to third on Ringland's single to left, and scored when Labenski let Ringland's hit go through him. Ringland took third on the play and then tallied on Joe Busch's wild throw to third. Joe Hull kept up the bombardment with a single to left and went to third on Chic Stanley's double to the same field. Hull then scored on Davis' out to first, and Stanley likewise crossed the plate on Harold Hull's grounder to the pitcher.

The Saints made their first hit off Simcox in the fourth, a single to left by Kellar, and an inning later pushed across their first run on a double by Kozlowski and two infield outs. In the final inning the Polish nine managed to score once more on two singles, and an error by Cormier.

In the second and third frames, the E. C. P. batters continued their onslaught on Busch with five more hits, and four runs, driving him from the mound. Kozlowski then went to the box for the Saints and stopped further scoring until the sixth. In this frame, the E. C. P. counted twice more and brought their total of runs up to ten. The score:

Tonght's Game

After a long string of close and thrilling games the break had to come last night when the strong Eastern Conn. Power team swamped the Saints in a long one sided affair. It wasn't so much the hitting and errors in the game but it was a case of a very strong team against a very weak team.

Although the Polish boys have tried very hard to produce a ball team from the material in the St. Joseph's society it can be seen that they must get some outside help as they are real all amateurs competing against teams that are composed of semi-pro players that are away out of their class. After the game last night the manager of the St. Joseph's announced that if the other managers in the league would allow he would gather together a team that would furnish real opposition for the remainder of the season and it is hoped that the other managers will give him some support in strengthening up.

While last night's game was slow and uninteresting, tonight's game will no doubt offset it as both the Nuggets and the Palace have real strong teams and should add another good game to the long string that was broken last night.

"Mike" Morin who last week held down the hard hitting East End team, will do the swirling for his team, Mike has staged a great comeback this year in the league after his being forced to quit last year owing to sickness and before long will be the old Morin that led Taftville to many a victory in previous years, the rest of the team will line up as follows: Hamel of the State Hospital, catch; Mullcahy, 1st. base; J. Morin, at second; N. Simcox, at short; Chip Dugas, at third, and "Lefty" Domias, Joe Jackson and Johnny Shea in the outfield.

Either "Smiling Johnny" Greene or Lloyd Jarvis will twirl for the Nuggets with Hinrichs behind the bat, Burke on first; Carlin at second; Gullette, formerly of St. Thomas' Seminary, at short; Leo Jarvis on third, and "Red" Lesserman, "Kin" Fox and N. E. Body in the outfield. When Mgr. Madden handed in his list of names on June 22, none of the other managers paid any attention to the name of N. E. Body but on reading the name carefully it can be seen that foxy George has put one over on the boys and he claims that none other than Joe Faber, of the Providence Grays, of the International league, who is home on a three-day leave, will tonight play under the name of N. E. Body. No doubt the fans would be tickled should Faber play on his team tonight as Joe is the real sensation of the International league this year and is due for a trip to the Majors next year. Faber is hitting close to .375 and ranks with the best in fielding. Should Faber play tonight it would be worth while to those who journey to the Duwell field just to see this boy in action. Tonight's game will be the last of the week as the game between Hallville and the Centrals has been postponed to a week from Friday.

After tonight's game there will be a meeting of the Twilight league managers at the Duwell club. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance as there are important matters to be discussed.

Rovers Trim Rosedales

Wednesday evening on the Academy Campus, the Junior Twi-light teams, started their season, in a close and exciting game, the Fall's Rovers, trimming the Greeneville Rosedales by the score of 7 to 6. Couture, pitching for the Rovers, pitched excellent ball allowing only 5 hits, while Fergason, of the Rosedales, was touched up for 11 hits. The Rosedales scored their 6 runs in the first inning on 3 hits and four errors, and after that they didn't know they were in the game. (Attention—Umpire Kamph, and Capt. McGowan.) Look up Rule No. 58, in the Reach Guide and you will find the spectators and Rovers, who called your attention to coaching, you will find they were right, without going home, and look up the rule book as they were told.

KEARNS WILL HAVE TO CRASH GATE TO GET IN

NEW YORK, July 1—(A. P.)—Jack Kearns, manager of boxing champions, floored" twice in his finish bout with the New York State Athletic commission, will arise before the cound ends and make at least one more effort to regain his laurels.

Kearns is the only man in the world who will not be welcomed at the championship battle between one of the champions he handles, Mickey Walker, of New Jersey, and Harry Greb, of Pittsburgh, at the Polo Grounds tomorrow night. In no uncertain language he has been invited by the boxing officials of the state to remain away and ticket takers have been instructed to see that he stays outside the fence.

But once again sometime tomorrow, the man who piloted the heavyweight king, Jack Dempsey, to fame and fortune, will rise and spar with his opponents in the hope that he may outlast them and gain the decision.

If Kearns succeeds in pushing his way through to the ringside, either as a manager or a newspaperman, tomorrow night, members of the commission said today that he would be asked to leave and in case of refusal the officials would be guided by the state attorney general.

The following paragraph from the by-laws of the commission is cited in the case of Kearns:

"Managers or matchmakers whose licenses have been revoked or suspended are debarred from all licensed clubs in this state."

It was said at the commission offices that Kearns at one time held a license here which was either revoked or suspended, bringing him under the ruling, but since that time he has been known to attend bouts in this state.

Friction developed when Dempse, refused to either accept or reject the official challenge of the negro heavyweight, Harry Wills, and Kearns, in a letter to the commission, voiced views that varied greatly from the official understanding. Both Dempsey and Kearns have called at the commission's offices of late, but neither has given a definite answer regarding the Wills matter. Dempsey said it was a matter for Kearns to handle; Kearns suggested that he would have to see Dempsey about it.

The manager's friends said today that he would make an attempt to pacify the commissioners in the morning.

BROWNS LAND ON THURSTON IN 8TH AND BEAT CHICAGO

ST. LOUIS, July 1—(A. P.)—The St. Louis Browns batted Thurston off the mound in the eighth inning and defeated the Chicago White Sox today 8 to 6. Blankenship, who relieved Thurston in the eighth, was replaced in the same inning by Freese after allowing three hits. The rally netted five runs, Ken Williams celebrated his return to the lineup by smashing out his sixteenth home run of the season. Score:

TWO THRILLERS AT FITCHVILLE ON THE FOURTH

Fitchville's program for the Fourth should cause rejoicing among baseball fans in Norwich and vicinity for at 10 o'clock on the morning of the eventful day, the New London and Fitchville entries in the P. B. League will fight it out for first position in the league. The Whaling City team has some classy players, including two of the Bulkeley championship nine, signed up so a real contest is expected. Mgr. Patrick Sullivan of the local team has announced that he has signed a contract with the Yantic club for the afternoon struggle. Yantic has been going great guns in the Norwich Twilight league and will bring some of the best players in amateur circles to humble Fitchville before the huge holiday crowd that will be in attendance. The local pilot realizes the serious responsibility resting upon his shoulders and has an all star team to uphold the laurels of the team he expects to lead to victory. With two such games scheduled Fitchville feels that baseball enthusiasts will have to travel far to find a better place in which to enjoy the Fouth.

RUTH'S HOMERS FEATURE YANKS VICTORY OVER BOSTON

BOSTON, Mass., July 1—(A. P.)—The Yankees took the final game of the series from the Red Sox today, 11 to 8, Babe Ruth driving out his fourth and fifth home runs of the season, one coming in the third and the other in the seventh with one on base. Bob Meusel slammed his 19th homer of the year. A circuit drive by Todt with one on featured the three-run rally Boston put over in the ninth.

BRASSCOS WIN TWO CLOSE GAMES FROM ALBANY

WATERBURY, July 1—(A. P.)—Superb pitching by Rush and Touchstone, perfect support and some timely hitting gave Waterbury both games of today's double header with Albany and a clean sweep of the three game series. The scores were 3 to 2 and 4 to 3. Catches by Helgeth and Leary and Yordy's home run over the left field fence, one of the longest drives ever made in the local park, were features. Scores:

First game

Albany	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	1	—2

Two base hits, Yordy, Stapleton, Genin.

Second game

Waterbury	2	0	2	0	0	0	0	0	x	—4

Two base hits, Butler, Belanger. Three base hit, McCorry. Home run, Yordy.

GREB IS FAVORITE TO BEAT WALKER TONIGHT; WILLS TO BEAT WEINERT

NEW YORK, July 1.—(AP)—Harry Greb, of Pittsburgh, world's middleweight champion, will risk his own crown against Mickey Walker, of Elizabeth, N. J., world's welterweight champion, and Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, will trade punches with Charlie Weinert, of Newark, N. J., in the two 15-round headline matches at the Italian Hospital Fund bout at the Polo Grounds tomorrow night.

This stellar top line program will be augmented by a six-round semi-final between Jimmy Slattery, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Dave Shade, of California, and a four-round preliminary between Joe Lynch, of New York, former world's bantamweight champion, and Jack Sharkey, of New York, composing the most celebrated array of boxing to be tossed into the lists for public approval this season.

Promoters of the match said today that the advance seat sale already had exceeded the $300,000 mark and before post time tomorrow it is expected that all of the available pasteboards will be gobbled up by eager fistic followers, hungry for the taste of a championship match flavored with rich talent just outside of the select circle of crowned heads.

If a capacity crowd attends the matches, thousands will be in the enclosure which houses the New York Giants. While Promoter Humbert Fugazy would not venture an opinion tonight on the magnitude of the anticipated throng it is expected that more than 50,000 will be in attendance when Joe Humphries announces the semi-windup between Slattery and Shade.

Four hundred uniformed policemen had been detailed by Commissioner Enright to guard the fight area between 150th and 159th streets to keep the throngs moving both coming and going.

While the gladiators are making time in their various quarters waiting to step on the scales at the state athletic commission office for the official weighing-in tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, the promoters are perturbed over the unexpected twist of affairs which prevents them from naming an official main bout. Wills and Weinert have both served notice that they expect to be tossed into the ring for the final attraction while Walker and Greb have scoffed at the idea of turning their world's title match into a semi-windup affair.

Despite the most crafty diplomacy, Promoter Fugazy has been unable to unravel the tangle and he has passed the buck over to the state athletic commission for a final decision. All four of the principals have agreed to abide by the decision of the boxing moguls which will be made at a special meeting tomorrow following the weighing-in.

While the Greb and Walker match will be a legitimate world's championship match, Wills contends that his position in the heavyweight circle, owing to his proximity to the title, entitled him to a preferred position on the card. However, boxing followers near to the athletic commission are of the opinion that the officials will rule the title match the final exhibition.

Wills will be a popular favorite to defeat Weinert and some even venture an opinion that the negro will stop the Newark Adonis. Weinert's wonderful showing against Firpo and Wills' disappointing exhibition against the same man, however, have caused some speculation in the circle of those who profess to know and an upset in this match would not be entirely unexpected.

Greb will be an odds-on favorite to retain his world's middleweight crown against the attack of his youthful challenger, Walker, guardian of the world's 147-pound crown. Walker has everything to gain and nothing to lose in this match but he feels that he will be handicapped to some extent by the absence of Jack Kearns, his manager, from his corner.

Walker has seen Greb fight at various times and he broadcasts from his Jersey quarters that he has perfected a defense for the Pittsburgher's windmill attack that will prove an innovation in boxing circles. A knockout is not anticipated in this match.

The Slattery-Shade affair is one of the outstanding matches of the all-star card despite its subordination to the headliners. Slattery, always a colorful fighter, meets In Dave Shade, one of the toughest of the western contingent of boxers, a welterweight who has chased Mickey Walker from state to state in quest of a title match. The Buffalo lad, however, will be a slight favorite to outpoint his coast rival.

SWEENEY AND GILES TO BATTLE FOR STATE TITLE

NEW HAVEN, July 1—(A. P.)—W. J. Sweeney, of Shuttle Meadow, and A. C. Giles, of Wee Burn, will battle tomorrow for the state golf championship as the result of two rounds of championship play at the New Haven Country club here today. The final match tomorrow will start at 10 o'clock in the morning and will be a 36-hole contest.

In the round earlier in the day, Sweeney defeated N. Wheeler, of Brooklawn, 2 up. R. D. Cutler, of Hartford defeated W. S. Heyniger, of Waterbury, 4 and 3. F. D. Ross, of Sequin, defeated A. D. Dodge, of Farmington 4 and 3, and A. C. Giles, defeated H. D. Strong, of Brooklawn, one up in 18 holes.

The afternoon round brought Sweeney and Cutler together and Sweeney was the victor, 3 to 2. In the match between Ross and Giles, Giles was the winner 3 and 2.

CHANCE FOR MORE ENTRIES IN FOURTH TENNIS TOURNEY

The entries for the Fourth of July Invitation Tournament close tonight and play will start early Saturday morning. It has been decided to make it a two day tourney instead of a three day affair as first planned. The entry list is large and includes some of the best tennis players in eastern Connecticut but there is room for a few more and it is hoped that there will be a large number file their entries today with Russell A. Clapp chairman of the tournament.

The play will be in the men's singles and doubles and suitable prizes will be awarded. The play will be on the handicap basis, something that has not been tried here before and which it is thought will give the average player a better chance. The drawings will be made Thursday evening after the entries close.

Want Game For Sunday

The West Ends of Willimantic, due to a misunderstanding, are out of a game this coming Sunday, July 5, and would like an out of town game with any fast team in or around Norwich. The West Ends have already won their first three starts since their organization, all of them played on foreign diamonds. Last Saturday Colchester fell a victim to the snappy ball tossers from the West End. For games address Mgr. Sam. Heller, 947 Main St., Willimantic, or Tel. 236-5 day or night.

GIANTS WIN TWO AND TAKE FIRST POSITION

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 1.—(AP)—The New York Giants regained first place in the National league today by taking both games of a doubleheader from the Phillies, 6 to 4 and 16 to 7. In the second game, the Giants hammered four pitchers for 20 hits, including six home runs. Jack Bison slammed two homers in the third inning when New York scored nine runs. Ross Young and Frank Snyder made one each.

PIRATES DRIVE ALEXANDER OUT OF BOX AND WIN

CHICAGO, July 1.—(AP)—Pittsburgh went on a batting rampage and drove Alexander off the mound in the seventh inning and defeated Chicago 8 to 6. Wright's home run with a runner on base tied the score at the start of the seventh inning. Heathcote also got a home run in the ninth inning with a man on base and Hartnett got his homer in the sixth with none on base. This was Hartnett's seventeenth homer of the season. Score:

KIRKWOOD QUALIFIES FOR 1000-GUINEAS TOURNAMENT

GLENEAGLES, Scotland, July 1.—(AP)—Joe Kirkwood, one of the three Americans who competed in the British Open Golf championship at Prestwick last week, is among the 32 professionals who qualified for the thousand guineas tournament beginning here tomorrow.

His presence does not constitute the only foreign threat to capture still another plum in British sport. Two golfers from across the channel shared the distinction of making the lowest score for 18 holes during the two qualifying rounds.

Yesterday Aubrey Boomer, a native of the island of Jersey, and professional of the St. Cloud Country club near Paris, shot a 69 and today his accomplishment was equaled by a native Frenchman, Jean Gassiat, of the Chantilly club.

DAVIES BEATS ROBERTS IN TIGHT PITCHING DUEL

NEW HAVEN, July 1 (A. P.)—In one of the fastest games ever witnessed in this city, Davies bested Roberts in a pitching duel and New Haven won over Bridgeport 1 to 0 here today. The contest was played in one hour and three minutes, a modern Eastern league record, with Davies allowing four hits and Roberts six. New Haven scored the only run of the game in the eighth inning on a double by Gleason and Hauk's single. Fast infield fielding featured, Menzes and Gleason, the second baseman, having 14 assists. Not an error was made. Only one Bridgeport player re

What is a Balloon Tire?

THE announcements of two years or so ago defined a balloon tire as—

"A tire of large cross-sectional diameter having a thin, flexible side wall so it can be run at low enough air pressure to provide a soft air cushion between the car and the road."

That was the industry's ideal.

That was what the car owner was told he would get.

That is what the car owner does get in the U. S. Royal True Low-Pressure Balloon.

But he doesn't get it in all tires that carry the word "Balloon" on the side wall.

Some tires labeled Balloon wear out too fast when run soft, so they must be run at too high pressure to give ideal cushioning and comfort.

The makers of U. S. Royal Balloons have stuck to the original idea and ideal.

The U. S. Royal Balloon is built of Latex-treated Web Cord.

This provides the necessary strength and flexibility for low air pressure.

It also has the U. S. Low-Pressure Tread which distributes the weight evenly over the entire tread surface and eliminates early, uneven and unsightly tread wear.

It can therefore be run at low enough pressure for ideal cushioning without injury.

Many nice big round tires with the name "balloon" on the side wall can't.

PRESTON CITY W. W. G. HAS ANNUAL OUTING

Monday proved an ideal day for the annual outing of the Preston City World Wide Guild girls, at Atlantic Beach. The crowd went in five automobiles, four of which were driven by young ladies.

An enjoyable day was spent on the beach and in swimming. At noon a bountiful lunch was spread, picnic fashion, on the sand and all sat around and enjoyed the salad, sandwiches, lemonade.

In the afternoon the merry-go-round dives, pickles, bananas, cake and swings were patronized. About 6:30, d. s. t., after a pleasurable day, the cars started homeward, arriving just before the shower.

Those who furnished cars were Mrs. Clifford Maine, Miss Evelyn Butler, Miss Florence Kennedy, Miss Bertha Slater and Rev. Joseph Harrison.

The Guild members present were: Marion Bagley, Ileda Butler, Evelyn Butler, Cynthia Crary, Mrs. Frank Crary, Elsie Fritz, Mrs. Nathan Hall, Mrs. Joseph Harrison, Virginia Harrison, Florence Kennedy, Alice Krug, Mrs. Clifford Main, Florence Pendleton Marion Pierce, Edythe Pierce, Bertha Slater, Mildred Slater, Elizabeth Valler, Mrs. Fred Wilcox, Marcia Zabriskie. Others attending were: Rev. Joseph Harrison and sons, Joseph and James.

Miller Family Reunion

One thousand invitations have been sent out by Secretary Elbert H. T. Miller of Scottsville, N. The breakfast cooked, the kitchen cool

That's Quick Quaker, the "no hot kitchen" solution of the summer breakfast problem

HERE is the right summer breakfast . . . oats and milk. Doctors urge it. Children do well on it. Active folks need it.

Yet you cook it in 3 to 5 minutes.

That means no frying and stewing on hot mornings.

It means meeting hot days with a smile.

Get Quick Quaker. You will be delighted.

Same rich Quaker flavor. Cooks faster, that's the only difference.

SISTER-TEACHERS ATTEND VACATION SUMMER SCHOOLS

Twenty-eight nuns of the Mercy Order of the diocese will take special summer courses at the Catholic University, Washington, during the vacation period. The Sisters will devote themselves to subjects, leading to various degrees, but will perfect themselves principally in the branches recognized for the Bachelor of Arts degree.

All the Sisters teaching in the parochial schools of the state will attend summer schools conducted at Mt. St. Joseph Academy, Hartford, and the Academy of Our Lady of Mercy, Milford. Courses in the summer schools will be followed by the annual retreats at both places.

All teaching nuns in the diocese attend summer school during July and August to acquaint themselves with the latest educational methods and to exchange profitable ideas. The beneficial results of these special studies are manifested in the work of the pupils each year.

The eight sisters from St. Patrick's convent have left for summer schools, two having gone to Washington.

TWENTY-SEVEN STATE TOWNS ARE REGULATED BY D. S. T.

Notwithstanding the attempt of Connecticut rural legislators to prohibit the observance of daylight saving by the passage of laws making it an offense to show other than Eastern Standard Time on clocks or timepieces publicly displayed, daylight saving time is observed by all banks, offices, stores and factories in the following places:

Bethel, Bridgeport, Bristol, Danbury, Danielson, Derby, Greenwich, Hartford, Manchester, Meriden, Middleton, Naugauck, New Haven, New London, New Milford, Norwalk, Norwich, Oakville, Rockville, Southington, Stamford, Torrington, Wallingford, Waterbury, Watertown, Winsted.

In Rhode Island the entire state is on daylight saving time.

THURSDAY HALF HOLIDAYS IN JULY AND AUGUST

The Norwich merchants will close their stores for the summer months, on Thursday afternoons, during July and August. The stores will close at 12 noon every Thursday beginning July 9th and the last Thursday closing will be September 3rd.

The local merchants have followed this pracice for the past two years. The purpose is to give the clerks, as well as the merchants, a half holiday each week during the summer season.

The merchants of the following Connecticut cities also have half-holiday closing, some on Wednesday and others on Tuesday or Thursday: Bristol, Derby, Greenwich, Hartford, Manchester, Meriden, Moosup Naugatuck, New Britain, and New Haven.

SIX MONTHS' CONTINUANCE IN AUTOMOBILE CASE

In the city court Wednesday morning Henry J. Hoefer, of Taftville, had his case continued for six months by Judge Arthur F. Libby. Hoefer was charged with violation of the motor vehicle law, with failure to grant right of way. His car figured in a collision near Taftville and his arrest followed after State Policeman Whitmarsh had investigated the accident.

NORWICH FIRM'S WINDOW GETS COMPLIMENTARY NOTICE

A complimentary notice with pictures of the two windows at the Lee & Osgood Co., during the Norwich merchants' spring opening week is given in the current issue of Red Cross Messenger, published by Johnson & Johnson of New Brunswick N. J.

The Norwich notice occupies a page with the heading "Millinery" Window Wins First Prize, and the following comment on the Lee & Osgood Co. prize winning window:

When the Retail Merchants' association of Norwich, Conn., conducted a window trimming contest in connection with a "Spring Opening" demonstration, The Lee & Osgood Co., wholesale druggists of that city, entered into the spirit of the occasion by having a "Millinery" window. It was awarded first prize in its class.

The only articles foreign to their stock in trade were the rugs used on the floor of the window and the lace curtains used for a background. The hats were made from sponges, chamois and wash cloths and trimmed with rubber tubing, compacts, lip sticks, tooth and lather brushes, bobbed-hair combs, throat brushes, Job's tears, comforts and nipples. Many casual observers were completely fooled by the display.

In their other window they featured their own products and Johnson & Johnson surgical dressings in a way that left a lasting impression.

The window display contest secured considerable publicity and resulted in a great outpouring of people and good business.

FEWER MARRIAGES, MORE DIVORCES IN CONNECTICUT

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 1.—The department of commerce announces that, according to returns received, there were in Connecticut, for calendar year 1924, 12,896 marriages performed and 1,205 divorces were reported.

The decrease in marriages reported for 1924, from the number reported for 1923, is 439 or 3.3 per cent. The increase of 30 or 2.5 per cent. over the number reported for 1923.

The statistics of marriages for 1924 were furnished by the state department of health, and those of divorce for the same year by the clerk of the superior court of each county. The figures are preliminary and subject to correction:

Hibernians Plan Rome Pilgrimage.

More than 1,000 members of the ancient order of Hibernians and the Ladies' Auxiliary will make a pilgrimage to Rome for the observance of the Holy Year jubilee. The pilgrimage will start after the biennial convention of the organization at Atlantic City in July. There will be two sailing dates, Aug. 12 on the liner Republic and Aug. 19 on the America.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

HEAVY DEMAND FOR STOCKS

NEW YORK, July 1—(A. P.)—Stock prices gave an impressive demonstration of strength today with the demand spread over a wide variety of issues. More than two dozen individual shares were lifted to New York prices for the year on net gains ranging from 1 to 7 1-2 points.

With a huge potential demand arising from record breaking July dividend and interest payments, with freight traffic being maintained at close to record levels, and a large quota of favorable trade news, pool operators found plenty of ammunition in their campaign for higher prices.

Pool operations were aggressively conducted in a selected list of merchandising, rubber, motor, food and chemical issues, which gave promise of increased earnings or special dividend distributions.

Rubbers continued to reap the benefit of higher tire prices. United States Rubber common advanced more than 3 points to a new 1925 high at 56 3-4 and was allowed into new high ground by United States Rubber first preferred, Goodyear preferred, Fiske and Lee.

Weakness of French and Italian exchange, the former sinking to a new low level for the year and the latter touching the lowest price ever recorded in this market, apparently was disregarded as a stock market factor. Little stress also was placed on the call money rate, which held steady at 5 per cent. Bear traders who had sold stocks freely earlier in the week on expectations that the scarcity of call money would result in the extensive liquidation of stocks, were reported to have covered freely in today's market.

Standard industrials were mixed. United States Steel common closed 1-4 lower at 115 1-2 after fluctuating within a range of less than one point. American Can showed a net loss of 1 1-2 at 197 after selling as high as 199. Baldwin met with strong support and was pushed up 2 1-2 points to 117 1-2. A slight smaller gain was recorded by American Locomotive.

Sensational advances took place in some of the high priced specialties. International Shoe was bid up 14 points to a record top at 165 on the announcement that the directors had voted to retire the preferred stock. After the market closed the stock was quoted 170 bid and 195 asked.

QUESTING.

Westward of the sunset, where the sea is ever blue,
Somewhere sails a galleon, with an earringed, grizzled crew
Living over lives of strife, as deep-sea sailors do,
For moidores, moidores of Spain!

Down the breeze comes cutlass-clash, oath and fetter-clank,
Boom of belching culverin, creak of straining plank,
Shrilling scream of captive maid, splash as bodies sank
For moidores, moidores of Spain!

Clink of dice on blood-stained planks, drinking chorus roared,
Snap of skull-flag up aloft, toast of all aboard,
Crash of shattered treasure-chest, and clink of golden hoard
Of moidores, moidores of Spain!

Dawn, and blood-red waves a-swirl, cleft by sharp black fin;
Dusk, and crimp and light-o'-love, ravening tribe of sin,
Quick to follow buccaneers, rolling boldly in
With moidores, moidores of Spain!

How escape the debtor's chains? How forget despair?
How avoid the ghastly dance jigged on empty air?
Ship with Fortune's gentlemen, and seek the beauty rare
Of moidores, moidores of Spain!

Westward of the sunset, those tall ships ever ride,
Manned by blades in lace and rags, poverty and pride—
Gentlemen of Fortune, who lived the life, and died,
For moidores, moidores of Spain!

—Harold Willard Gleason in Adventure Magazine.

A ROSE.

Blown in the morning, thou shalt fade ere noon.
What boots a life which in such haste forsakes thee?
Thou'rt wondrous frolic, being to die so soon,
And passing proud a little color makes thee.
If thee thy brittle beauty so deceives,
Know then the thing that swells thee is thy bane:
For the same beauty doth, in bloody leaves,
The sentence of thy early death contain.
Some clown's coarse lunge will poison thy sweet flower,
Or by the careless plough thou shalt be torn:
And many Herods lie in wait each hour
To murder thee as soon as thou art born—
Nay, force thy bud to blow—their tyrant breath
Anticipating life, to hasten death!

—Richard Fanshawe.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

My son, it is time you took a wife? All right, dad, whose wife shall I take?—Tale Record.

Gosh—We have a cuckoo clock in our room.

Gosh—Ours won't work, either.—Wesleyan Wasp.

What do you think of a boy who will make a girl blush?

I think he's a wonder.—Georgia Tech Yellow Jacket.

Tramp—Pardon me, sir, but have you seen a policeman round here?

Polite Pedestrian—No, I am sorry.

Tramp—Thank you. Now will you kindly hand over your watch and purse.—Buffalo Bison.

Uncle—Well, and how many times were you spanked in school today?

Kid—I dunno. I never take notice of what goes on behind my back.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Was your audience with you?

"Strictly," answered Senator Sorghum. "A number of my hearers were so profoundly moved that they followed me with threatening gestures to the train."—Washington Star

"The Mapabell," continued the famous lecturer, "are a domestic race, highly practical, and devoid of all sense of humor."

That reminds me," reflected a baldheaded man in the ninth row, "I must telephone my wife."—Life.

Judge—You admit that you were going at 50 miles an hour

Motorist—Yes, Judge, but you see I was taking a friend to the station.

Judge—Oh, well, that's all right then. We are told to speed the parting guest.—Boston Transcript

KALEIDOSCOPE

The United States carries more life insurance than all the rest of the world combined.

Forty million daffodil bulbs are shipped by growers in Holland to America every year.

Wellington, the political capital of New Zealand, is one of the windiest cities in the world.

To keep at home the $130,000 spent by Paraguayans annually for Argentine and Uruguayan lottery tickets, the government of Paraguay is considering the establishment of a governmental lottery.

A London newspaper reports that so great has become automobile traffic that people walking at night on busy highways wear over their shoulders small red glass discs that reflect the lights of automobiles approaching from behind.

J. C. Melton, of Carrollton, Mo., has a pair of corn shuck trousers which he tailored himself. The husks were braided into strips an inch in width and then sewed together. A pair of cloth trousers formed the foundation for the husks.

W. A. Calkins, of Bella Vista, Cal., has three sheep that are a traveling pasture. They were fed while with cattle and hayseed dropped into their wool. Recently rains, coupled with the warmth of their bodies, caused the seeds to sprout and now their backs and sides are covered with grass.

In the study of the retail meat business, the United States department of agriculture found that of the average consumer's dollar received by the retailer, the meat costs 78.6 cents, the retailer's expenses were 19.7 cents, and the profit was 1.7 cents. When a reasonable wage is allowed for the proprietor of the business it is hardly possible to show a profit on a yearly volume of sales of less than $14,000, the department found in its survey.

Chepu, an eleven-year-old White Indian boy from the San Blas region, Panama, is in school at Brockport, N. Y., and is doing well at his work. In spite of the fact that when he first came to this country a little less than a year ago he did not know a word of English. He is a lively youngster and has made many friends among his Caucasian playmates. Mrs. R. O. Marsh, wife of the explorer-engineer who discovered the White Indians and brought several of them to America last year, adopted Chepu [illegible] her husband returned to Panama with his party in January. She has stated her intention to give the little "Indian paleface" every advantage that her own four children will receive.

ASST. SECRETARY OF NAVY ROBINSON AT NEW LONDON TO INSPECT SUB-BASE

NEW LONDON, July 1.—Theodore Douglas Robinson, assistant secretary of the navy, inspected the submarine base on the Thames river, this forenoon, the official being accompanied by his aide, Commander Robert L. Ghormley. Secretary Robinson and Commander Ghormley arrived in New London from Washington at 6:12 o'clock, being passengers on the Federal express from Washington. At the union station they were met by Commander E. J. King and a detail of officers from the submarine base. The visitors boarded a naval launch and were taken to the base, where they had breakfast as guests of Commander and Mrs. King, after which Secretary Robinson and Commander Ghormley inspected the entire base plant, afterwards viewing dress formation of the sailors stationed there on the main drill grounds. This afternoon, Secretary Robinson and Commander Ghormley were taken aboard a submarine and went to Long Island Sound where they experienced a submerging. Late this afternoon Secretary Robinson and Commander Ghormley proceeded by automobile to Newport, R. I., where Secretary Robinson tonight will address the student officers' class at the Naval War college.

Uncle Sam's sailors in this city, last night, wet themselves with other drinks than water for when they made port in the Salvation Army hotel they were sloppy and soon became so boisterous that Policeman Edward Riordan was called to quiet them from the hostelry. The officer was equal to the task and he landed four of the noisy and quarrelsome fellows in the lock-up. They were presented in court this morning and there Judge Crandall imposed fines of $5 each. The sailors are Andrew Ramstead, James Harrington and James McCann. Pete Peacock, another sailor, was found drunk and down in the yard of a residence. He also drew a fine of $5. The sailors settled, and escaped a term in jail. Immediately after they departed an officer from the service appeared to take charge of them, but the sailors had "shoved off" and the commissioned officer could not secure them.

Harry Matthews, a drummer, came here on the steamer from New York Tuesday. He refused to produce a ticket or to settle for his passage, so he was arrested. Matthews was supplied with the funds to pay, but he was so much under the influence of liquor that he could not be made to realize his position and would give neither money nor ticket to the collector. Matthews was profuse in explanations and offered to pay his fare gladly, so he was allowed to do that.

Enrico Minucci, a fisherman, was to have appeared in court today to answer for having in his possession female lobsters with spawn attached. There were 65 of this sort of lobster and they are the kind of which the law forbids retention. Minucci got fixed on the standard and daylight saving time and he did not appear until the court had adjourned. He is to come in and answer next Friday. Christopher Culver is the agent of the state who caused the arrest of Minucci and who is to appear against him. Lobsters have been plentiful this spring, so there would seem to be no reason for marketing the spawning fish.

John Sullivan, Florence and Evelyn Serrato, Maud Wilkinson and John Lynch, all of Westerly, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were able to return to their respective homes today.

John Moon, of 154 Garfield avenue, and Mrs. Otto Hidde, Uncasville, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were dismissed today.

Louise M. Pendleton has sold the residence, 496 Montauk avenue, to George A. and Helen B. Beloff. The price paid was $11,000.

Dorothy B. Comstock has sold to Archibald S. MacFarlane a house and lot on Broad street.

William Glossenger, a restaurant worker, was arrested late this afternoon charged with intoxication and will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning. Glossenger, who is about 50, became drunk and wandered to Green street, where he parked himself in the sun and against the side of the O'Leary hotel. Finally when Glossenger tried to navigate, he staggered to the highway and fell in a heap in the gutter. An automobile driver who was approaching Glossenger when the latter fell, allowed the machine to creep close to the fallen man and then the horn was honked vigorously. Glossenger evidently became fearful that he was about to be struck, for regaining his feet he walked, but partially staggering, with such briskness that he failed to observe the large plate glass in front of him with the result that he crashed through it, sustaining numerous cuts, though not of a serious nature. The police were notified and Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolman George Laboue found Glossenger and placed him under arrest.

The traffic blinker, located corner of Winthrop street and Crystal avenue, at the approach to the Thames river highway bridge, was damaged this afternoon when an unidentified construction company's automobile truck struck it.

An automobile owned and operated by D. M. Smith, 17 Spicer avenue and a commercial truck bearing registration, 24-036, Connecticut, were in collision late this afternoon, at the approach to the Thames river highway bridge. Smith's car was damaged.

An automobile owned and operated by Joseph E. Bliven, 396 Bank street, in passing through Green street, between Golden and Pearl streets, struck Lillian Gracia, colored, daughter of Mrs. Irene Gracia, 86 Green street. The child was taken to the office of a nearby physician where her only injuries were revealed to be slight lacerations. After the wounds had been dressed the girl was taken to her home.

Rev. Charles E. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, is spending a few days in Maine.

Mrs. Mary J. Rogers, Alewife avenue, Ocean Beach, is entertaining Mrs. Annie B. Peckham of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton T. Miner of Crystal avenue, and Mrs. Mary Gardner, Blackhall street, have returned to this city having enjoyed a several weeks' automobile trip through New York state, Pennsylvania and Canada.

The annual town meeting of the voters of the First School district, Groton, was held last night in Col. Ledyard school. The meeting did not vote to levy a tax, the session being adjourned to the 7th inst., at which time action will be taken to issue bonds to pay for the new school structure. Until the amount of the bond issue is determined it will not be possible to decide the rate for the ensuing year. The meeting elected H. M. Smith, Jr., a member of the school committee; S. W. Davis clerk and treasurer and Irving H. Poppe tax collector. The report of the school committee contained a recommendation for a form of supervision on the plan of the present committee system. The report also contained recommendations for repairs to Groton Heights school, and that alternating meetings of the district school take place in Groton Heights school and Col. Ledyard school.

FORMAL WELCOME WEDNESDAY TO BRITISH W...

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 1—H. M. S. Wistaria, which is scheduled to remain in port eight days, entered the mouth of the harbor late this afternoon and is now moored at the state pier. The British craft reached a point off Southwest Ledge lighthouse, about 3 o'clock and after remaining there a short time, a naval launch from the submarine base, conveying Mayor Waldo E. Clarke, City Manager William A. Holt, Deputy Collector of Customs Joseph C. Comstock, Harbormaster Fred E. Perry, a delegation of members of the Chamber of Commerce and Y. M. C. A., pulled alongside the warship. The warship was boarded by the city and civic officials and a welcome tendered the visiting sea-fighters. After formalities had been carried out the warship proceeded up the harbor and went to her berth at the state pier.

Late this afternoon and tonight the greater part of the Wistaria's crew members of the crew will be provided were given shore liberty. Tomorrow automobiles and will be taken to Hartford where a traffic squad of motorcyclists of the Hartford police department will escort the visitors about the city. Thursday evening the Wistaria's crew will be provided a theatre party, by being admitted to all performances at the Capitol theatre. At 7.30 o'clock Thursday night the officers of the Wistaria will be guests of the members of the city council at a dinner at the Hotel Mohican. Besides the members of the city council to attend the dinner there will be representatives of several civic organizations.

INJURED HARTFORD MAN IS NOT TO LOSE LEFT ARM

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 1—James Valeria, 154 Homestead avenue, Hartford one of the four men injured in an automobile accident on the Hartford turnpike early last Sunday morning when the car Valeria and his three companions were injured as a result of the car being in collision with a machine operated by George Kane, also of Hartford, will probably not suffer the loss of his left arm at the elbow, as was at first believed. Tonight at Lawrence hospital it was stated that Valeria's condition was better than at any time since he was admitted to the institution.

When Valeria was admitted the arm was hanging by threads of flesh as a result of his landing on a section of the shattered glass enclosure of the car.

Kane, who was arrested charged with reckless driving, will be given a hearing in the Waterford town court next Monday.

GOVERNOR SMITH A GUEST AT GRISWOLD OVER NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 1.—Gov. "Al" Smith, the popular chief executive of the state of New York, is a guest at the Hotel Griswold. Eastern Point tonight, Governor Smith and his family having arrived at the summer hotel this forenoon, coming from Poland Spring, Me., where the governor attended the conference of the governors of the 48 states, in session several days. Governor Smith and party made the trip by automobile and reached the Griswold shortly before noon. They will remain at the hotel over night and will leave early tomorrow morning for New York, in which city Governor Smith has an important engagement tomorrow afternoon. It is probable that Governor Smith and party will make the trip from this port to New York in the palatial yacht owned by William Todd, New York, which is at anchor in the lower harbor.

EXCHANGE CLUB MEMBERS HEAR ABOUT CIRCUS LIFE

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 1—Raymond B. Gates, publicity agent for Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus, gave a brief and interesting talk on Circus Life and Operation, at the weekly meeting of the Willimantic Exchange club at the Liberty Hill Congregational church parsonage, Wednesday evening. The meeting was largely attended. An appetizing chicken pie supper was served by the women's society of the church at 6.30. Dr. Clarence E. Simonds the newly elected president was inducted into office and on behalf of the members Edwin J. Donnelly presented the retiring president, Dr. George E. Wilcox a token of the club's appreciation for the service rendered since the inception of the local exchange club movement. Guests of the club at the meeting were Albert O'Neill, John F. Collins and Charles F. Curran. The meeting was opened with the invocation by Rev. F. C. Williams. Ed Donnelly was in charge of the program and he and Charles H. Caswell led in the singing. Among the speakers were Dr. Simonds, Edwin T. Hayes, Rev. T. Hawthorne, Jones, Dr. Wilcox, Exbert A. Case, Christopher C. Case, and Dr. Frank E. Guild.

A resolution of condolence was adopted by the meeting, to be sent to Mayor George W. Hickey upon the death of his brother.

GERMS OF LOCKJAW ENTER THROUGH WOUND

During the past 10 years 185 deaths from tetanus, or lockjaw, have been reported in the state of Connecticut. This disease is not communicable and one person does not "catch" it from another, but the disease results from getting the germs of tetanus into the body through a wound in the skin. When the germs find entrance to the body in this way and begin to grow, they produce a virulent poison which causes the muscles to contract firmly and since the muscles of the jaws are among those first affected, the disease has been given the name of "lockjaw," says the weekly bulletin of the state department of health.

The germs of tetanus produce the spores which are very resistant to the ordinary means of killing germs. For example, they will even stand boiling for a short time which is fatal to most other disease germs. The germs occur normally in the intestinal tract of herbivorous animals such as the horse and the cow. They even occur in the intestines of man, particularly of hostlers and dairymen. They do no harm when growing in the intestinal tract but this method of growth together with the long life of the spores causes the germs to be widely distributed in pastures, garden soil, road dust and other places.

It is a curious fact that the tetanus germs are harmless if taken by mouth but if introduced under the skin by means of a nail, a splinter, or through other wounds they may produce the toxin which has such serious results. The disease can be prevented by giving tetanus antitoxin at the time the wound is received.

Tetanus antitoxin should be used as a prophylactic in the case of any wounds or injuries, which break the skin and which occur under such circumstances that tetanus spores may be introduced into the wound. This would include Fourth of July injuries, wounds from automobile accidents where road dust is rubbed into the wound, breaks of the skin from splinters about barns, injuries from nails in gardens, etc.

Studies of tetanus deaths over a period of years indicate that more deaths occur in summer than in winter and that more deaths have occurred in Connecticut for the month of July than in other months. The second largest number of deaths appears to have occurred in September. Omitting the years 1919 and 1920 the monthly figures for which are not yet available, the deaths occurring by months in Connecticut since 1915 have been, 4 in January, 8 in February, 6 in March, 7 in April 8 in May, 16 in June, 29 in July, 13 in August, 26 in September, 12 in October, 10 in November and 9 in December. This makes a total of 148 deaths accounted for by months which together with the 20 deaths in 1919, and 17 in 1920 make 185 deaths in all during the past 10 years.

During the month of July there were 8 deaths in 1921, 5 in 1922, 1 in 1923 and 8 in 1924. Both of those deaths were due to Fourth of July accidents but a certain number of them may be attributed to this cause. Due care should be exercised to avoid such accidents but when they occur a physician should be consulted at once so that tetanus antitoxin may be given as a preventive measure.

WEAK, RUN-DOWN NERVOUS, DIZZY

Mrs. Lee Suffered From All These Troubles, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Well

Terre Haute, Indiana.—"I was weak and run-down and in such a nervous condition that I could hardly do my work. I was tired all the time and dizzy, had no appetite and could not sleep. I tried different medicines for a year but they did not help me. Then my husband saw the ad. for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and had me take it. I regained my strength and never felt better in my life. It completely restored me to health. I had practically no suffering when my baby boy was born and he is very strong and healthy. I know that the Vegetable Compound is the best medicine a woman can take before and after child birth for health and strength. I would be willing to answer letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. WM. J. LEE, Route E, Box 648, Terre Haute, Indiana.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a dependable medicine for all these troubles.

A feature will be a train six miles long, comprising cars of all periods—from 1825, which will be run over the original road between Stockton and Darlington.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Sold on Laurel Hill

N. Eugene Smith has sold through the agency of Grace E. Parkhurst his two apartment house on Laurel Hill Ave. to Mrs. Mary E. Rice who will occupy one of the apartments.

101 Ranch and Wild West

When Miller Brothers were assembling 101 Ranch Real Wild West and Great Far East, which will be seen in Norwich Tuesday, July 7 they were after every feature in America, South America and the Orient. The biggest show of its kind ever assembled had to have everything, and Millers had a million to spend in order that this might be so. So, among the many features is Ezra Meeker, only living person who crossed the continent as an adult on the Old Oregon Trail of covered wagon fame. Ezra, who recently recrossed America by airplane at the age of 93 years, drives an ox team in parade and the show's huge opening spectacle. Jim Williams, famous Newspaper Enterprise Association cartoonist, who does "Out Our Way" for hundreds of papers, came on for Ezre's opening. Jim was a real cowboy once, and, on a bet with Ezra, he donned Frank Guskey's chaps and boots and rode "Volcano," a bucking outlaw. Jim did a durned good job of it too, but he "cartooned" standing up for two weeks afterward.

World Dominion Being Transferred

Ever since the World war, thinking people have wondered why such a catastrophe visited the earth. It was thought that war was fast becoming an impossible thing. But the rumbling of cannon and the tread of the soldier were clearly heard by those who had their ears to the ground. A few statesmen knew that war was inevitable; for there were great efforts at preparation made by some of the leading governments of earth. Those who were studying prophecy were confident that there would be at least one more great conflict.

When the trouble broke in 1924 many were surprised, and the surprise grew as the horror of bloodshed increased. The astonishment was even greater when the United States declared war and entered the arena. Clearly the vote of the people had been against it. Gallantly our young men responded to the call to arms. When the death-toll mounted into the millions many wondered if the end of the world was at hand; if not, and if there is a God, why did He not stop the war? Czar, kaiser, emperor, king, dethroned and set at naught! What did it mean?

The International Bible Students Association has arranged for Mr. W. J. Thorn to give a free lecture at G. A. R. hall on World Dominion Being Transferred, in which the prophecies will be presented which describe the orderly transfer of the "kingdoms of this world" from under the selfish domination of Satan to the benign rulership of Christ. The lecture will be given at 7:45 o'clock, and it is said to be quite edifying and satisfactory in explaining the causes underlying the present world distress.

Broadway Theatre

There are five snappy acts billed for the Broadway Theatre the last half of this week starting today with an exceptional Puramount picture.

The Gaines Brothers will open the progra mwith an athletic novelty by these Cuban athletes.

Ford and Goodridge will follow up with a splendid comedy variety offering.

Erlav and Hallock are American Coloraturists who present a program which shows their voices to the best advantage—one that appeals generally but particularly to the music lovers.

Ryan and Hunter in Funnyosities pure fun with a little song to boot.

Fay-Elliot and King in "Who's Who" present a delightful blending of comedy song and dance.

Bebe Daniels comes to the Broadway Theatre tody in "The Crowded Hour," adapted for the screen by John Russel from the Selwyn-Pollock stage play of the same name.

The story is laid in New York and behind the lines in France during the World War and has to do with Peggy Laurence, an ordinary New York girl who plugs away day after day at a telephone switchboard. She has ambitions to become an actress and with T. Roy Barnes, who wi thKe hntenH-r T. Roy Barnes, who with Kenneth Harlan, heads the strong supporting cast, try out during amateur night on the Bowery. They are booed off, but Harlan, playing Billy Laidlaw, wealthy young engineer, sees something original in their act and gets them a chance on the "big time." It's not long before the pair are the hit of the "Follies."

The war scenes are the best ever filmed. There are real thrills here. Combining comedy, thrills, love-interest and drama, "The Crowded Hour" is what might be classed as an "unusual" picture.

Breed Theater

Greed, the long-waited Erich von Stroheim production of the famous novel, McTeague, by Frank Norris, opened yesterday at the Breed theater and will be shown again today for the last time. It is without doubt the greatest of realistic pictures, and should be seen by everyone who believes in the artistic progress of the screen. The story of the San Francisco dentist brought to his downfall by an avaricious wife is stark naturalism at its best.

In the cast are Gibson Gowland, Zazu Pitts, Jean Hersholt, Chester Conklin, Hughie Mack, Dale Fuller and Frank Hayes. The adaptation was prepared by June Mathis and the director himself. Greed is a Metro-Goldwyn picture, presented by Louis B. Mayer.

Never Before a Value Like This

The Super-Six principle, exclusive to Hudson and Essex, is responsible for the largest selling 6-cylinder cars in the world, because it gives results in smooth, brilliant action, reliability and economy never attained by any other type.

This Essex, in all ways, is the finest ever built.

Easier riding and driving, more flexible in performance, handsomer in line and finish, it is also lower in price than ever before. Its success is simply the belief of buyers that it represents the utmost automobile value and satisfaction within hundreds of dollars of the price; and it proceeds entirely from what owners themselves say of Essex.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Tonight is the big night at the Palace theatre, another Merchants Nite. All those that witnessed the "Doins" last Thursday night are bound to be on hand tonight as some very valuable presents are to be given away.

The feature picture will be Lefty Flynn, the former Yale Grid-Iron star in Speedy Drive.

A great treat is provided by the Augustin Stock Co. in the play "Baby Mine."

In Baby Mine, William Augustin will be cast as Jimmie Jenks, a part which will be found to fit him like a glove.

The principal famale role in Baby Mine is assumed by Miss Ruth Floyd as Zoie. She is one of the strongest women in her line, possessing fine dramatic force; comeliness and innate grace that never fails to charm. The audiences continue to enthuse over her work. All other members of the company have been cast for excellent parts.

"Baby Mine" has never failed to have people literally rolling with laughter where ever this screamingly funny comedy has been played. Be sure you don't miss out on seeing it. Seats now selling in advance.

Peter Rabbit Looks for Digger the Badger

To me it always has been plain,
A tongue was meant to knowledge gain.

Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit isn't afraid to ask questions. He never has been. If he wants to know a thing, he asks questions until he finds it out. That is partly the result of curiosity. You know, Peter is full of curiosity. There is nothing in all the Great World equal to curiosity for leading people to ask questions.

It was a little fine spider web, right across the doorway of Digger's home

One day it popped into Peter's head that it was some time since he had seen Digger the Badger. Peter never did feel really acquainted with Digger, but he used to like to pass near Digger's home once in a while just to see him. He was so very different from any one else in the Green Meadows or the Green Forest that Peter never tired of wondering about him. So now, having thought of Digger, Peter promptly started over to pay his respects.

When Peter reached the place on the edge of the Green meadows where Digger had made his home, Digger was nowhere to be seen. "He's probably down inside," thought Peter. "I wish I dared go down in and make him a call. But I guess that would be a very foolish thing to do."

Peter was quite right about this. he couldn't possibly have done a more foolish thing than to go down into the home of Digger the Badger, for the chances are that he never would have come out again. So of course Peter didn't go in. He looked all around to see if Digger might be hunting somewhere near. He couldn't see him. Finally Peter ventured right up on the sandy doorsteps of Digger's home and right away it struck him that there was an air about that house as if it were deserted. He looked for footprints on the sandy doorstep. There were no fresh ones.

"That's queer," muttered Peter to himself as he scratched a long ear with a long hind foot and stared at the entrance to Digger's home. "If Digger were out last night or early this morning there should be 'footprints.'"

Just then he saw something which made him jump straight up in the air with surprise. It was a little fine spiderweb right across the doorway of Digger's home. Peter knew then that Digger was not living there. He knew that that house was deserted. What could have happened? Was Digger the Badger dead? Had Digger moved away? Peter waited no more time there. Off he started, asking everyone he met if they had seen Digger the Badger. No one had, and what is more, no one seemed to be at all interested. This made Peter all the more eager to find out what had become of Digger.

He hurried this way. He hurried that way. He looked everywhere on the Green Meadows. He even went over to the Green Forest, though he knew very well that Digger was not fond of the Green Forest. Nowhere did he find Digger, or any sign of Digger. And nowhere did he find any one who knew anything about what had become of Digger. All this made Peter only the more curious. It reminded him that Digger had come to the Green Meadows in the most mysterious way in the first place. He didn't belong there. He had once said that his home had been in the Far West where old Man Coyote had come from. Peter knew Old Man Coyote's story and how it happened that he was now living so far from where he was born. But Digger the Badger, who lived very much to himself, had never explained how he happened to be there. He had appeared mysteriously and now it seemed that he had disappeared just as mysteriously.

WESTERLY

The Defense day parade in Westerly on the morning of July 4th is more than likely to have an active U. S. A. colonel in line, for Col. Thomas Denny, chief of the Ordinance department at Washington, D. C., is a summer visitor at Watch Hill at Russula cottage. He has received permission on national defense day to remain at Watch Hill, but his interest has prompted him to interest himself in the Westerly plans for muster day and besides a tender of support he may be present in uniform on that day in Westerly.

At the office of Westerly Town Clerk these transfers have been recorded:

June 30—Washington Trust Co. to Fred E. and Annie Boyington, a certain parcel of land with all buildings and improvements on the south side of John street. To. Fred E. Boyington et ux to Fred C. Lanphear, a lot of land with building and improvements on the south side of John street.

July 1—Thomas R. Crawford of Norwich, Conn., to John L. Monti and Virginia P. Monti a lot of land at Pleasant View Beach.

Susan A. Vose to Luigi Scaglione a certain tract of land on the west side of Tower street.

Gurdon A. Buck and Russel R. Dyer of Providence, representatives of the Rhode Island State Board of Public Roads, held an all-dya session Wednesday in the rooms of the Third District court, Westerly Town hall when the greatest number of applicants for license papers was cared for that has yet attended these regular weekly Wednesday sessions there.

Edward J. Fenelon and daughters, Miss Mildred and Miss Bessie, of Yonkers, N. Y., formerly of Westerly, sailed from New York Tuesday night on the Cunard Line steamship, Acquitania, for several months' trip abroad. Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy of Westerly were in New York to bid them bon voyage.

Capt. Geore A. Stillman, R. O. C., of Westerly, chairman of the committee for Westerly, for the cjitizens military training camp has announced that last Friday Rhode Island's quota had been filled for the first time since the millitary training camps had been held. Royal C. Taft has been the Rhode Island state chairman and the first quotas are to be sent to Fort Adams at Newport. Capt. Stillman is to be a member of the second quota, which will go to Fort Terry, Long Island sound, in August.

Julian W. Maxson left Westerly the first of the week for a trip in the interests of the Maxson Machine Company, to the Pacific Northwest, his first stop being Yellowstone National Park. He had intended to pass through the country where the first earthquake caused the mountains to topple into the valleys. About the middle of July Mr. Maxson will be in Portland, Ore.,

William Barber, youngest son of the late Capt. James Barber, of Chicago, has been in Westerly for several days, being called here to attend his father's funeral held Tuesday. Mr. Barber left Westerly for Chicago thirty years ago last summer being his first return to Westerly in twenty-nine years.

Frances L. Burdick, daughter of Rev. Clarkson A. Burdick of Westerly, a teacher in the public schools in Aztec, New Mexico, is visiting for the summer months with her aunt, Mrs. Fanny Irving, in Los Angeles, Calif. Miss Burdick has recently returned from a 30-mile trip, which took her into Mexico, making the return through the recent earthquake-shaken city of San-ta Barbara.

The second in the summer series of concerts in Wilcox Park will be given tonight (Thursday) by Westerly Band, Charles O. Gavitt leader. The programme will be the same as announced for last Thursday, when the severe thunderstorm prevented the evening concert. The program follows:

March, On the Mall, Goldman; overture, El Dorado, Round; reverie, Evening Wealth; popular air, O How I Miss Your Tonight, Berlin; grand selection from Faust, Gounod, characteristics, Cinderella's Bridal Procession, Dooker; popular air, Waiting for the Moon Berlin; waltzes, Trinity College, Mossell; medley, Campus Memories, Arnold; popular air, Ukelele Lady, Berlin; excerpts from The Prince of Pilsen, Ludens; march, Charter of Liberty, Hughes; finale, Star Spangled Banner.

Captain Charles Raymond Blake, 17 Tower street, Westerly, was listed in the first call for army air service recruits in Rhode Island, when on Wednesday was issued orders to four Rhode Island reserve and they were directed to proceed to Mitchell Field, Long Island, to report for duty from July 5 to July 19. The Three Hundred and First Observation Squadron of the 76th Division. The other three men who will represent the state are Captain Leo Bernard Cauchon, 31 Sorrento street, Providence; Second Lieutenant Leonard Brunswick Tiffany, 22 Marlborough avenue, Providence; Captain Carl William Geoffrey Howard, 103 Prospect street, Pawtucket.

Charles P. Sisson of Providence issued Wednesday a statement for his department that in the opinion of the attorney general of Rhode Island, N. T. Tuckerman and Natale Lupinazzo are within their rights as they run in competition with the Mooney buses between Westerly and Bradford. The opinion was soon followed by a petition of the Mooney bus interests for a temporary injunction against Tuckerman and Lupinazzo, prohibiting them from doing business on the Bradford road.

This injunction was granted by the superior court in Providence Wednesday and the Mooney buses as a result are the only ones running between Bradford and Westerly.

This is the newest development in the so-called jitney cases.

The Mooneys were given the right to run buses between Bradford and Westerly by the Public Utilities commission, and upon the competition of Tuckerman and others they appealed to the commission asking that their rights be protected. The Public Utilities commission called upon the town of Westerly to stop the trouble and to enforce the law.

Ordinances were passed by the town council at their meeting in June, and the police and town solicitor were instructed to enforce the state law. Tuckerman and Lupinazzo were summoned into court. When the case came into the district court, it was postponed on the plea that a ruling on the part of the attorney general was being sought. The ruling was issued Wednesday to Everett A. Kingsley, attorney for Tuckerman. M. Walter Flynn is the attorney for the Mooney interests, and immediately he secured a temporary injunction from the superior court in Providence prohibiting Tuckerman and others from running their buses to Bradford.

The hearing on this temporary injunction will be held next Monday, when the case will be tried out on its merits.

Reports and other business conducted at the meeting of the National Defense day committee Tuesday night were as follows:

Franklin Smith reported for the committee on enlistment blanks that papers had been prepared reading as follows: "Defense day, Westerly, R. I., July 4, 1925. We, the undersigned enlost our services for one day only, July 4, 1925, in such organization as may be designated by headquarters corps area, in support of Defense day." The blanks are to be left in various stores, manufacturing plants and public places, to receive the signatures of men between the ages of 18 and 45.

A committee on armbands reported that those to be supplied this year would be smaller in size than those of a year ago. From the committee on music it was learned that the Westerly and Moore's bands would be in line, but that the Highland Kiltie band could not muster enough men on that day for the parade but would be pleased to contribute their services on any future similar occasion.

Among organizations reporting as ready to participate in the street parade which will start at 9.30 o'clock in the morning and finish in Wilcox park where a patriotic address will be delivered by Rear Admiral H. O. Dunn, retired, were listed the following: Battery E, 243rd C. A. (H. D.) harbor defense; Harley P. Chase post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Phoebe Green Ward chapter, D. A. R., Harold W. Merrill post, American Legion, Westerly firemen, Boy Scouts and Grand Army and Relief corps members, with others to report by next Thursday night, so that Chief Marshal George Elmer Leonard may make his plans accordingly. Five aides from the Lexion and five from the Veterans of Foreign Wars are to be named to assist him.

It was voted to ask Col. Everett St. J. Chaffee, superintendent of the Rhode Island State Police force to send his troopers to Westerly from the South Coventry barracks to participate in the short street parade, on the morning of July 4th, in the observance of National Defense day.

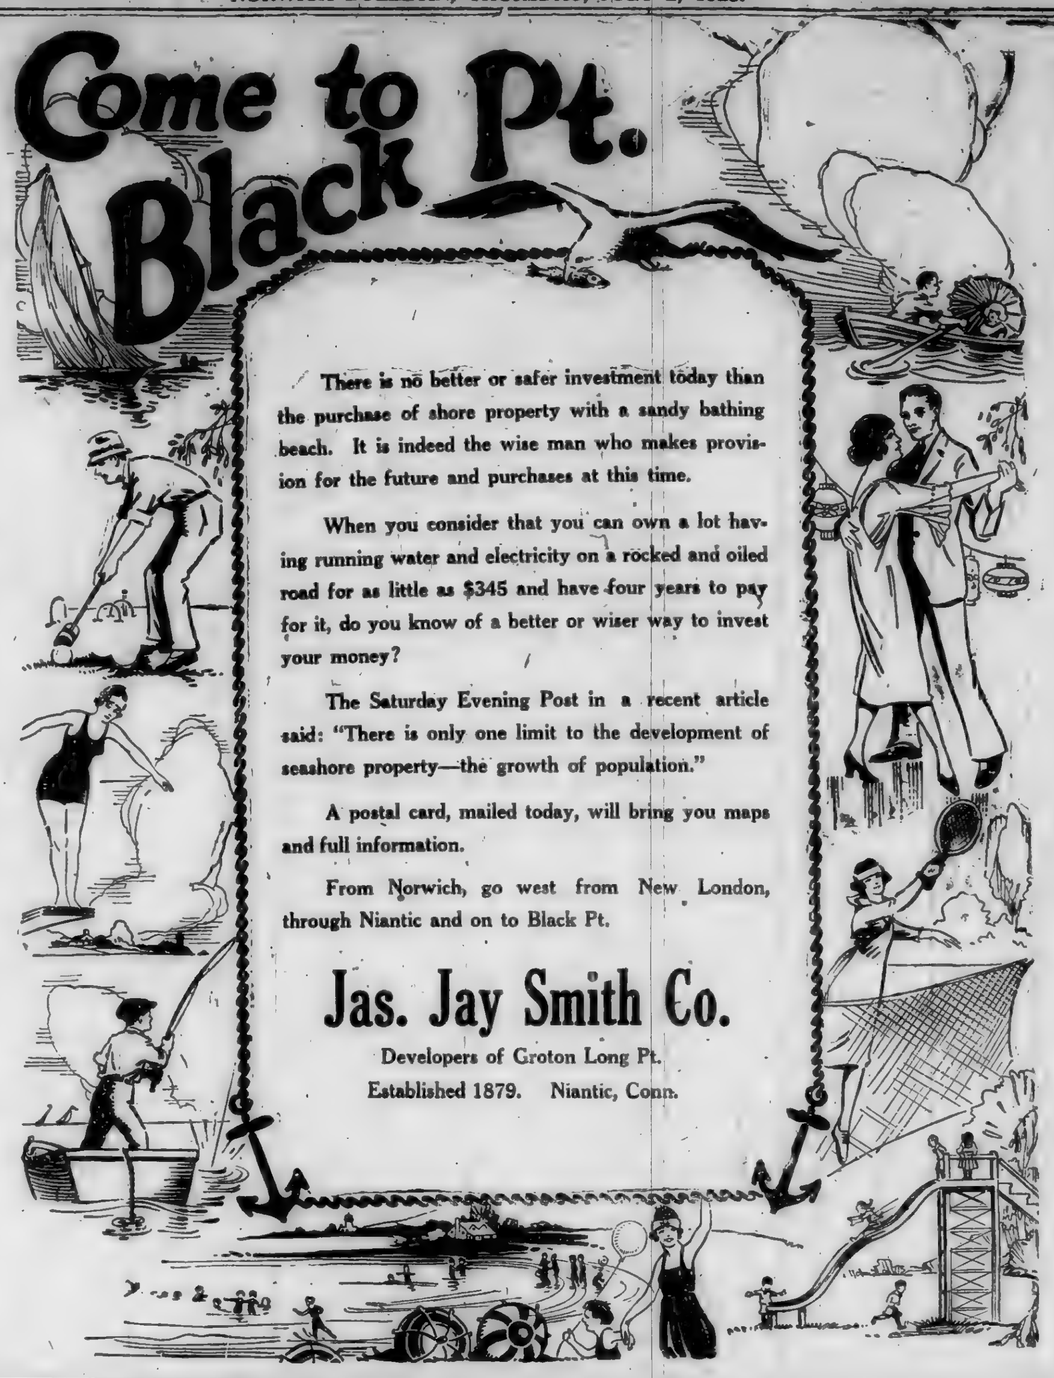
Come to Black Pt.



There is no better or safer investment today than the purchase of shore property with a sandy bathing beach. It is indeed the wise man who makes provision for the future and purchases at this time.

When you consider that you can own a lot having running water and electricity on a rocked and oiled road for as little as $345 and have four years to pay for it, do you know of a better or wiser way to invest your money?

The Saturday Evening Post in a recent article said: "There is only one limit to the development of seashore property—the growth of population."

P.)—Assumption of responsibility for financing all medal work in Palestine was urged on American Jewish women in a report presented today at the opening session of the annual convention of Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization of America. The cost of the work for the current year was estimated at $500,000.

The convening of the Hadassah convention followed the conclusion of the annual meeting here of the Zionist organization of America, which today wound up its activities with a visit to the tomb of Woodrow Wilson.

Statistics show that in the matter of matrimonial chances the spinsters have the better of widows up to the age of 44, but after that the widows stand the better chance of being led to the altar.

NOTICE

General Statutes of the State of Connecticut, Section 5348, Regulating Celebration of Fourth of July:

"Every person who, between sunset on the third of July and four o'clock in the forenoon of the following day, or between eleven o'clock in the evening of July fourth and sunrise of the following day, shall discharge any cannon, pistol, gun, firecracker, torpedo, or any explosive causing a loud report, or who shall by ringing a bell, blowing a horn, beating a drum, or in any other manner make any disturbing noise, or make a bonfire, shall be fined not more than five dollars."

The firing of blank cartridges within the city limits is expressly prohibited.

The police are instructed to enforce the law.

Dated at Norwich, Connecticut, June 29th, 1925.

MILO H. WATERS,
Mayor of the City of Norwich.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Ledyard, within and for the District of Ledyard, on the 29th day of June, A. D. 1925.
Present, BILLINGS F. S. CRANDALL, Judge.

Estate of Mary E. Gray, late of Ledyard, in said District, deceased.

Charles A. Gray, of Ledyard, appeared in Court and filed a petition praying, for the reasons therein set forth, that an instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased be admitted to Probate.

Whereupon, it is Ordered, That said petition be heard and determined at the Probate Court Room in Ledyard in said District, on the 8th day of July, A. D. 1925, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and that notice of the pendency of said petition, and of said hearing thereon, be given by the publication of this order one time in the Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper having a circulation in said District at least five days prior to the date of said hearing, and that return be made to this Court.

BILLINGS F. S. CRANDALL, Judge.

The above and foregoing is a true copy of record. Attest,
BILLINGS F. S. CRANDALL, jul2d Judge.

NOTICE

Section 25 of an act passed by the recent session of the General Assembly entitled "An Act Authorizing the City of Norwich and Town of Norwich to create Zoning Districts" provides as follows:

Sec. 25. No person shall erect, add to, move or place any building or other structure or addition thereto within the limits of the town of Norwich, outside the limits of the city of Norwich, without having obtained from the town clerk of said town a written permit therefor, which permit shall specify the location, character, and proposed use of such building or structure and the purposes for which it shall be used, and no such permit shall be issued to any person unless such proposed structure shall comply with regulations which shall be adopted by said town, and a copy of such permit shall be recorded by the town clerk in a book to be kept by him in his office for such purpose. The town clerk shall be paid one dollar for the issuance and recording of each such permit by the person to whom such permit shall be issued. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be liable to the penalties of section 23 of this act.

This Act is now in force and any persons performing any of the acts mentioned in this section are hereby given notice to obtain the permit provided for therein before the commencement of any work. The Town Clerk of this town is prepared to issue such permits upon proper application being made.

By Order of SELECTMEN.

Price of Milk Goes Up

PLAINFIELD, Conn., July 1—Price of milk delivered by producers in this district to the Providence and Boston markets went up one cent a quart today under the summer schedule, making the shipping price eight cents. The producers were desirous of having the increase 1 1-2 cents per quart but accepted one cent.

Notice was given that unless feeding conditions change another increase will be demanded shortly.

Pension Examiners Meet

The July meeting of the Norwich pension examining surgeons was held here Wednesday. The claims of two Spanish War veterans were passed upon. The board comprises Dr. Lester E. Walker, president, Dr. Edward H. Linnell secretary, both of Norwich, and Dr. C. F. Congdon, of Mystic, treasurer.

BOY'S HAND NEARLY BLOWN OFF; BELIEVE HE FOUND UNEXPLODED BOMB

John Gryrowiecz, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gryrowiecz, of 22 York avenue, was frightfully injured, Wednesday afternoon about 5:15 o'clock, when a piece of fireworks he had set off exploded in his hand. His left hand was practically blown off by the force of the explosion, the palm being ripped open, and only the thumb and little finger remained. A large hole was torn in his stomach by the fireworks and he received burns about the forehead and face. A little friend playing with him was also considerably burned.

Word was sent for Doctors Paul F. Gadle and J. W. Callahan to attend the injured boys and when they arrived the Backus hospital ambulance was rushed to the scene. At the hospital it was feared that amputation of the hand will be necessary to avoid danger of blood poisoning. According to the companion of the Gryrowiecz boy they had been playing with a firecracker, given them by some man, and John had picked up the firecracker because it failed to go off, when suddenly it exploded.

People living nearby are of the opinion that the boy had found one of the bombs used on the hill recently by the Italians, and which had failed to go off and had fallen into the bushes. Others were of the opinion that the boys had found a dynamite cap, but this is not as prominent as the belief that the boys were playing with a bomb. The explosion was extremely heavy and of terrific force to cause so much injury to the Gryrowiecz boy. It is believed that the injured boy may be able to explain what happened, while at the hospital, and thus the mystery of how he obtained the explosive may be solved.

FOUR NEW EXAMINERS IN BANKING DEPARTMENT

Four new bank examiners have joined the staff of the state banking department. They are Representative Sherwood B. Potter, of Brooklyn, Frank E. Irving, of Bristol, R. Gordon Baldwin, of Bristol and George B. Hotchkiss, of Hartford.

Mr. Hotchkiss is a native of Hartford and attended the Northeast school and was graduatese from Hartford high schol. His banking experience included several years with the Colonial National bank and the Phoenix National bank. For the past three and one-half years he has been with the national bank examining force of the First Federal Reserve district.

Representative Potter was clerk of the committee on banks during the past session of the general assembly. He was connected with the Brooklyn Savings Bank for six years and has been a bond salesman. He is a graduate of Killingly High school, Western Reserve university and the Spencerian Business College of Cleveland, O. Before going to Brooklyn, he lived for a number of years in this city, where he was in the grocery business with his father and brother on the East Side.

Mr. Irving is a graduate of the Launce Hill academy, Susquehanna, Pa., and the International Law and Business Institute of Chicago. From 1902 to 1909 he was in the accounting department of the American Locomotive Co., Paterson, N. J., when he became office manager and assistant to the president of the American & British Manufacturing Co., at Bridgeport.

In 1917 he was made assistant treasurer of that company and was also treasurer of the Eagle Pin Co., and secretary of the F. P. Porter Co. In 1921, when the firm was put under a receivership he was accountant for the receivers. For the past two years he has been treasurer of the Compressed Paper Box corporation of Bridgeport.

Mr. Baldwin will serve for the second time with the banking department; having been connected in the same capacity for two years some time ago. Previously he had been secretary of the Bristol Manufacturing Co., and for several years was employed by the Danbury & Bethel Gas & Electric Co. He is a native of Danbury and served as teller of the City National bank of Danbury for several years.

NORWICH WORLD COURT COMMITTEE IS ANNOUNCED

World court committees have now been organized in Hartford, New Haven, Bridgeport, Waterbury, New London, Norwich, Middletown, Meriden, New Britain, etc., by two national associations, the League of Nations Non-Partisan association and the American Peace Award.

The announcement of the Norwich committee is made by President George J. Bassett as follows:

Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, General W. A. Aiken, Mrs. George A. Ashby, Mrs. Willis Austin, Judge Nelson J. Ayling, Rev. U. O. Bellerose, Arthur M. Brown, Judge Allyn L. Brown, Charles R. Butts, Herbert B. Cary, James L. Case, Dr. James J. Donohue, Louis J. Fontaine, Samuel Goldberg, Miss Louise Howe, Oliver L. Johnson, John M. Lee, H. M. Lerou, Judge Arthur F. Libby, James P. Macpherson, Rt. Rev. Msgr. May, Archibald Mitchell, 4th, Mrs. William A. Norton, William H. Oat, John Porteous, Arthur E. Story, Henry A. Tirrell, Albert M. Van Wagenen, C. F. Wells.

The announcement by President Bassett says:

The members of these committees have stated their belief in the world court, with the Hughes reservations, as advocated by President Harding and President Coolidge. These committees are local and autonomous, and not obligated to the organizing association. They may be enlarged. The Norwich committee should meet as soon as it is advisable; and not later than September, and choose a chairman. The personnel of the committee will give leadership to public opinion. An important activity should be a world court mass meeting this fall.

POLICE CHECK VAUDEVILLE ON ROSE PLACE DOCK

Vaudeville on the dock at the foot of Rose place, with singing and dancing, by a group of men, all over 50 years old and all under the influence of something stronger than one-half of one per cent., attracted the attention of Officer Hugh McAvoy about 7:30 Wednesday evening. He put in a call for the patrol wagon to shift the stage of the entertainment from the dock to cells at police headquarters. When the wagon arrived, Officers McAvoy, Allen, Shahan, P. Murphy and Supernumerary D'Atri loaded the eight men in, some of them being too helpless to walk. One of the eight insisted upon being among the first to board the wagon, as he claimed he had to stand the last time he rode in it but this time he wanted a seat.

The eight spent the rest of the night in cells at police headquarters, where some continued their singing till they fell asleep. The oldest of the lot was 75 and the youngest, 56. One was from Norwich and the rest gave their residence as Glastonbury, Fall River, Providence, Rockville, Boston, and River Point.

Spring Street Macadam Work

The first course of stone has been laid for the Spring street macadam between High and Mechanic streets. This will be bound in with sand upon top of which the second course of stone will be laid and bound in with tar.

Brooms For Street Sweeper Arrive

Brooms that are needed for the motor sweeper which is used by the street department arrived Wednesday, which will enable Street Commissioner John C. Donovan to use the sweeper Saturday to clean up the streets after the litter that is usually left by the Fourth of July observance.

YOUNG PEOPLES REGISTRATION GO TO LARGE FIGURES

(Special to The Bulletin)

Storrs, Conn., June 30—Registration figures that are three times larger than those of last year were announced for the Young People's Summer conference of the Connecticut Congregational churches, being held at the Connecticut Agricultural college from June 26 to July 6. This was the statement of the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy of Cornwall, registrar of the conference in making public complete registration figures Monday. There are 271 enrolled delegates from all sections of the state now in attendence at the conference, and twenty counsellors. This gives a total of 291 present, a number that is three times as large as the figures for 1924, when the first young people's conference was held at Storrs.

The conference senate, which is the student governing body of the young people's conference, was announced Monday by Registrar Russell J. Clinchy of Cornwall, as follows: Fairfield county, Susan Glover, Norwalk; Benjamin Webster, Fairfield; Myrtice Weaver, Ridgefield; Wheeler Clark, Bridgeport; Edward Gauthier, Danbury; Dorothy Higson, Danbury; New Haven county, Harold Perdriau, Waterbury; Donald T. Ward, New Haven; Lorna MacLellin, Whitneyville; Dorothy Boulden, Waterbury; George Palmer, Naugatuck; Virginia Taylor, Meriden; other Connecticut senators, Hunter Kilbourne, Southington; Charles Sargent, Norwich; Clifford Morse, Wethersfield; Caroline Shaw, Oakville; Ruth Wyman, South Manchester; Estelle Walson, Bristol. Elections were held to this body on Saturday.

Prominent Congregationalists will address the delegates every night during the coming week, the partial list as announced by Registrar Clinchy being as follows: Monday night the Rev. Theodore A. Greene, pastor of the First church in New Britain was the speaker, taking as his subject World Citizenship; tonight Frank L. Moore, secretary of the Congregational Home Missionary society, with headquarters in New York, spoke, relating some of his more interesting experiences in missionary work; Wed., July 1, Miss Hazel Brownson of New York, of the Congregational Sunday School Extension society will give a talk on Sunday school work; Thursday, July 2, the Rev. Irving Harmon Potter, pastor of the Center church, Hartford, and Moderator of the National Council, will speak. On Friday, July 3, the Rev. Alexander H. Abbott of Norwich will speak, the subject to be announced later.

The Rev. Allen K. Chalmers, pastor of the Dwight Place church in New Haven preached Sunday, when the sunday morning service was held in the Storrs Community church. In the afternoon, the recreation hour of singing and readings was enjoyed in Hawley armory. The Rev. E. H. Smith, a Congregational Missionary in Foochow, China, gave an interesting talk Monday night, telling of his experiences in missionary work, and of the conditions in China at the present time.

Faculty organization for the young peoples' conference is as follows: Dean, Rev. Oscar E. Maurer, New Haven; Registrar, Rev. Russell J. Clinchy, Cornwall; Director of Bible study, Rev. George R. Andrews, District Secretary of the Congregational Education society, New York; teacher of Old Testament, Rev. John W. Flight, Winsted; Director of World Service study, Rev. Henry S. Leiper, associate secretary of the American Missionary association and former American Board Missionary to China; Teachers of the World Service course, Rev. E. H. Smith, Missionary of the American Board, Ingtal, China, and Miss Hazel Brownson, of the Sunday School Extension society, New York; Director of Course in Methods, Rev. John M. Devo, Danbury; Lecturer in Congregational History and Practice, Prof. Roland H. Bainton, chaplain, Rev. Allen K. Chambers, New Haven; Conference physician, Dr. Joseph Massee, Brookline, Mass.; Conference nurse, Miss L. Jeannette Honiss, New Haven; Director of Athletics, Rev. Ralph H. Rowse of Hartford for boys, and Miss Beulah W. W. Pinks of Meriden for girls; Song leaders, Mr. Leiper and Miss Brownson; House father, Mr. Deyo; House Mother, Mrs. Benjamin S. Winchester, Greenfield Hill.

Ricketson, Mrs. William Risley, Mrs. Edwin Ross, John Sherman, Mrs. James Sullivan, Mrs. Herman Tubbs, Mrs. A. M. Van Wagenen, Mrs. Charles D. White, Mrs. William Weaver, Mrs. Andrew Wholley.

The following firms kindly allowed discounts on their bills:

The Mohican Co., Porteous & Mitchell Co., Eaton Chase Co., J. M. Filmore, P. T. Connell, J. P. Barstow Co., Providence Bakery, Preston Bros., Belt Bros., Good Year Repair Shop, N. S. Gilbert & Sons, R. F. Smith, LaValley & Birdsay, Lee & Osgood Co., Powers Bros., Carl W. Brown, Treat's Drug Store, Austin Nichols Co., Victor A. Tongren, Dr. W. W. Leonard, C. W. & J. E. Frink, Reid & Hughes Co., Cranston Co., Utley & Jones, John H. Sherman, J. C. Worth & Co.

The committee acknowledges receipt of the Bulletin and the Record each day.

Dr. Freeman and Dr. Agnew have faithfully and cheerfully cared for the children's health. This service is deeply appreciated.

FITCHVILLE'S FOURTH TO BE MEMORABLE DAY

The last pre-Fourth meeting of Fitchville's energetic Independence Day committees was held in Palmer hall, Fitchville, Tuesday evening. The general chairman, Rev. J. Speers, presided and before calling upon the several committees for reports complimented all the many members for the active and business-like manner in which they, individually and collectively, had prepared for the event of the year. "If fair weather prevails on the Fourth this year," said Rev. Mr. Speers, "blessings only will rain on those who assemble in large and rejoicing numbers to help make Fitchville's celebration of the holiday the premier event in eastern Connecticut. Mere words do no more than faintly suggest the magnitude and lavishness of the preparations you have completed for the delectation and entertainment of guests in our village by the lake. Saturday we will be adequately prepared to serve as hosts to all who join us in preserving the spirit of the day. None of the amenities of the occasion will be forgotten and Fitchville should be truly thankful for this privilege of linking the historical past with a present full of exceptional opportunity."

The chairman of the "eats" committee reported the menu for dinner to be clam chowder and crackers, rolls, pie and coffee. In addition cake and other home-cooked delicacies will be on sale at nominal prices.

Miss Mary Lynch stated that her solicitors had been unusually successful and that the donations continued to come in. This statement appeared gratifying to all in attendance.

William McManus, in charge of general arrangements, delighted the gathering when he announced that a "horrible" parade would be one of the features of the day. He also brought pleased comments from his fellow workers by volunteering the statement that the Palmer Brothers Co., had made the "Pines" ready for the booths, tables and other necessary equipment.

Mrs. M. B. Hetherington, speaking for the entertainment committee, voiced the sentiment of the community that nothing had been left undone to satisfy even the most particular. "The Arnolds and Betty" novelty act under the personal management of E. P. Frink of Hartford will be the main attraction, this performance starting at eight o'clock. The performers, although juveniles, are professionals and have starred in Worcester, New Haven and Hartford and other large cities. Their appearance in Fitchville will really be an introduction to this part of the state and their act will undoubtedly be booked later on in the larger centres of population in these parts. Following the entertainment fireworks and dancing will be enjoyed. Smith's orchestra will furnish music for the latter and Prof. Congden, the well known and popular prompter will have charge of the square numbers. The admirers of the modern dance will be pleased to learn that an equal number of such dances will be staged.

F. Gribbin, chief of the athletic committee, announced that two teams of the P. B. league, Fitchville and New London, had been scheduled for the morning contest at ten, while the old but friendly rivals, Yantic and the local club would stage a terrific battle at three in the afternoon with suitable prizes in each event.

It was also announced that Mr. Hill, for many years a member of the Salvation Army in Norwich and now a popular resident of the town of Bozrah, had been signed up to assist the local police for the day. This addition to the ranks of the local constabulary insures freedom from rowdyism or any of its kindred complaints.

The other committees reported that they had completed their duties and that they were "all set." Fitchville, therefore, hopes for fair weather—that alone will make the day a perfect one in the "quilt town."

YEAR 19295 PROVING TO BE TYPHOID YEAR

From the records so far, it looks as if 1925 would be more of a "typhoid year" than the past few years, says the state department of health. The 71 cases reported for the first 5 months of the year is only 6 per cent. below the average for the past 10 years, whereas the 238 cases reported for the entire year 1924 was 43 per cent. below the yearly average for the past 10 years. Furthermore, the 15 deaths recorded for the first 4 months of 1925 is 11 per cent. above the average for the first 4 months of the past 10 years, while the 38 deaths reported for the entire year 1924 is 47 per cent. below the yearly average for the same 10 year period.

For some time past the typhoid curve in Connecticut has been going down so that each succeeding year has shown a lessened incidence of the disease. This decline in number of cases has been attributed to several causes, among them the improved water supplies better safeguarded against contamination, and the increased practice of pasteurizing milk. To this should be added, more complete knowledge of methods of spread of the disease, which enables persons associated with cases to protect themselves from infection.

The reason for the increased incidence during the present year is not apparent. A knowledge that the incidence is greater than heretofore should stimulate everyone to take extra measures of precaution. One means of prevention within the reach of everybody is immunization against typhoid fever. Vacationists should see that they are protected before going on vacation. Since it is possible for anyone to become immunized against the disease, typhoid may be classed along with smallpox and diphtheria as an optional disease. No one need have any of these diseases, and their presence in a community indicates neglect to take wellknown measures of prevention. Materials for immunizing against these diseases are furnished to local health officers by the state department of health and are available to all physicians in the state.

REV. FATHER KING GIVEN $1,000 ANNIVERSARY GIFT

A native of the East Side, Norwich, Rev. Joseph H. King, pastor of St. Francis Xavier Church at New Milford, and a former assistant pastor of St. Francis Church, Torrington, was presented a check for $1,000 in New Milford Monday night at a gathering in the parish hall to celebrate the twentieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood.

POSTMEN ARE NOT TO COLLECT MOVIE TAX

In the face of plans of moving picture producers and distributors to secure an injunction in the federal district court to prevent the state movie tax and censorship law from going into effect Wed., preparations went forward in Tax Commissioner Blodgett's office Tuesday to collect the tax.

Construing the regulations and restrictions in regard to the delivery of films under the new law as not applicable to postal officials, their agents, inter-state carriers, Commissioner Blodgett, in a statement issued, outlined the procedure under which the new statute is to be administered and the regulations which will apply beginning Wed.

All films delivered subsequent to today are taxable, the statement says but films delivered prior to this date will not be subject to the tax. However, on and after July 8, all films will be presumed by the tax department to have been delivered after July 1, and as such will be amenable to the tax law and regulations. The tax is $10 for each 1,000 feet of film and 50 cents for each additional 100 feet.

Postmen Exempted

The ruling that deliveries by postal authorities and inter-state carriers are not to be held in violation of the new statute was made to meet some of the objections raised at a hearing before Governor Trumbull by opponents of the measure, Commissioner Blodgett said yesterday. At that time it was declared that under Section 4 of the tax bill these carriers might be unable legally to deliver films unless the tax on each had been paid. No effort will be made to collect the tax through these carriers, the commissioner said, but the regulations will require that each film be registered and the tax paid before it is exhibited.

Blodgett Issues Statement

The statement issued by Commissioner Blodgett is as follows:

"This law imposes a tax on the delivery of motion picture films for purposes of exhibition within the state. It takes effect July 1. Therefore all deliveries made subsequent to July 1 are taxable. The exhibition of pictures from films delivered to exhibitors prior to July 1, subject no one to payment of the tax or to prosecution.

"On and after July 8, 1925, exhibitors and picture machine operators are notified that films will be presumed to have been delivered subsequent to July 1 and because of that presumption will be amendable to the law in the event they exhibit any picture from a film which has not been registered or the tax thereon paid.

"Regulations drawn by authority of this law are to be forwarded to distributors of picture films without delay. They may be had of John J. Splain, Room 84, Palace theatre building, New Haven, or from the tax commissioner, state capitol.

"United States government postal officials, their agents or employes and interstate carriers of all kinds are construed as being incapable of delivering such films in violation of this statute."

Rules Promulgated.

The following rules and regulations for the administration of the act were issued Tuesday by Commissioner Blodgett:

"All applications for registration of motion picture films, pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 177 of the Public Acts of 1925, providing for a tax on the delivery of such films for exhibition within this state, shall be presented to the tax commissioner at his office in the state capitol at Hartford, or to his agent at Room 84, Palace Theatre building, New Haven, Conn., at least seven days before the date of delivery thereof for purposes of exhibition within the state; except in case of the desire of any person to deliver a film for exhibition within the state during the first seven days of July, 1925 application for registration may be made to either of said officials at the offices before mentioned at any time daily during reasonable office hours. Each such application for registration shall be accompanied with a statement, showing the name or title of the film, the name of the producer, and of the distributor; the number of reels, and of length of each reel in feet; the date of its release, the number of prints thereof offered for registration; and whether the same is a comedy, drama or photoplay. An affidavit may be required of the applicant relating to this and such further information as may be required. Each such application shall be accompanied by payment of the amount of the tax due to the state. Payment may be made by check of the applicant, or other person, but in the event that any bank shall refuse payment thereof, the commissioner or agent may thereafter require the applicant to make payment by post office money order or certified check.

"The act provides for payment of ten dollars for each reel of film of one thousand feet or less, and fifty cents for each one hundred feet in any reel in addition thereto. Application for registration shall be made, and the amount of the tax paid to the tax commissioner or his agent.

Film Cutting Prohibited.

At the time of registration the tax commissioner or his agent shall assign to each film duly registered according to law a serial number, which shall be at all times available as showing that registration has been made according to law. The serial number so assigned to each film, with the receipt of the tax commissioner or his agent, shall be placed in plain and legible form on each film container in which said film shall be delivered for exhibition within the state. Said number so assigned to each film, with the seal of the state of Connecticut, shall be made a part of each film or shall be thrown on the screen immediately after the main title of the film shall have been thrown thereon. Any cutting of the film to confuse identification matter, or any use of the seal or serial number on any but an originally taxed film, shall subject the operator who shall show a picture from the same to the penalties provided by the provisions of said law.

"The tax commissioner or any agent duly authorized by him shall have free access on furnishing an identification card at the entrance of any motion picture theatre or place of exhibition of motion pictures to ascertain and determine whether the provisions of the law are being observed.

"The co-operation of all concerned, to the end that this law may be administered satisfactorily, is respectfully solicited."

Chimney Fire on Cedar St.

The fire department was called out at 2:10 o'clock Wednesday afternoon for a chimney fire at 110 Cedar street, in the house occupied by Miss Mary Hallihan. Two gallons of chemical were used to extinguish the fire.

NORWICH TOWN

The mid-week service for conference and prayer of the First Congregational church, this (Thursday) evening in the chapel, will be in charge of one of the deacons.

For the first Friday of the month, there will be the regular daily mass at 7 o'clock, at the Sacred Heart church, Friday morning. That evening at 7:30, there will be devotions in honor of the Sacred Heart of Jesus.

As this church during July and August, there will be no singing by the choir on Sundays. Sessions of the Sunday school have been discontinued during this period, as is customary.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed at the First Congregational church, Sunday morning, the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, officiating. At this time a class of candidates will be received into the church membership, by Rev. Mr. Bailey.

Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Aviliar, of New York, who were guests for several days of Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Swift, of Washington street, have returned. Mrs. Aviliia and Mrs. Swift are sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin L. Kennedy, of Town street, had as dinner guests, Wednesday evening, Mr. Kennedy's relatives, including his mother, Mrs. Charles P. Kennedy and her son, Ernest Kennedy, of Danielson, Mrs. Thomas Kennedy, also Bert Baker, of Springfield, Mass., who have been passing a week at the home of Mrs. Charles P. Kennedy, in Danielson. The trip to Norwich Town was by automobile. Mrs. Thomas Kennedy and Mr. Baker will return to Springfield, Friday.

Miss Ida Beebe, of East Town street, is passing the summer at the Ocean View House, Quonochontaug Beach, R. I., with the family of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Learned, of Westerly.

Rev. and Mrs. Bailey and family are passing several days at their cottage at East Beach, Quonochontaug, R. I., having returned Wednesday morning, after being in town for a few days to attend the Avery double wedding, when Rev. Mr. Bailey officiated at both ceremonies. Returning with them was Miss Ida Beebe, who also attended the wedding.

Miss Rose Durr, R. N., of Town street, who has rented a cottage at East Beach, Quonochontaug, R. I., for July, is passing several days there in company with Miss Jennie L. Congdon, of Mediterranean Lane.

Miss Ruth Beebe, a member of the faculty at Trinity school, Athens, Ga., having successfully completed her third year, has returned to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde M. Beebe, of East Town street. Prior to coming to Norwich Town, Miss Beebe for nine days attended the Young People's conference at King's Mountains, N. C., also spent a week end in Washington, D. C.

Miss Annie Smith, of Colchester, spent Wednesday at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Peck, of Otrobando avenue.

William Potter was a recent visitor with Norwich Town relatives, he having at one time resided on Otrobando avenue.

COAL MINERS WILL DEMAND TEN PER CENT WAGE RAISE

District President Expresses Belief That Operators Will Force Walkout As A Means of Better Marketing of Coal Now In Storage—Terms For Renewal of Contract Will Be Served On Mine Owners Next Week—Seven Demands Adopted By Workers Include the 10% Increase For Tonnage Men With Additional Dollar A Day For Day Workers.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 2—(A. P.)—The 150,000 anthracite miners today decided upon terms they will serve upon the mine owners for renewal of the contract expiring August 31. They announced negotiations would open at Atlantic City on July 9 at 2 p. m.

A 10 per cent wage increase for tonnage men, with an additional $1.00 a day for day workers, a two-year contract of saying "check-off," featured the demands which were drawn up by the scale committee of twenty one and adopted without change by the tri-district convention as a whole.

Each and all of this trip of stipulations are understood on good authority to be wholly unacceptable to the anthracite operators. Were the two sides to fail to reconcile by September 1 any differences which might arise in the joint discussions opening at Atlantic City, a suspension in the hard coal fields probably would follow. A hard coal strike, though long tradition refuses to "work without a contract."

Perhaps Andrew Mattey, veteran president of district seven, had this in mind when, shortly before adjournment time he sauntered to the edge of the speakers' platform, hands in pockets, and opened his remarks with:

"A suspension will take place."

He stated that in his belief a walkout would be forced by the operators as a means of better marketing coal now in storage.

"The public will blame the miners," said Mattey, "and the operators will get the money."

Developments here tonight studied ways to avert the firing of a premature cannon ball.

John L. Lewis, international miners' president, in his closing address to the convention also anticipated opposition to today's demand on the part of the operators.

Seven demands and two "recommendations," were adopted with virtual unanimity. A short attack started upon the principle of the check-off was soon silenced by the heavy guns of the administration amid supporting boos from the miners as a whole.

The demands were adopted singly and as a whole, and the convention closed with a standing vote of confidence, testifying to the ability of the committee to make the best possible bargain with the employers.

The three major demands were supplemented by demands for the following.

Uniformity and equalization of all day rates with a long enumeration of technical claims.

Mined coal to be paid for on the basis of a 2,240 pound ton where now being paid for by the car, with other clauses.

Free air, free jack hammers, and other tools, and facilities; payment for all sheet iron, props, timber, trenching, extra coal about and shoveling where such has not been paid for; and various rate improvements.

Uniform rate of 20 cents an inch for retiring in mining up to 10 feet wide, and a minimum rate for lifting of not less than 30 cents per ton.

A five day work week, to permit of the working of the equal average number of days per year to eliminate "the unfair system as enforced at present in different days as it now the practice was one of a long list of demands of technical character.

Two recommendations urged improvement of unsanitary conditions on company property, and a more equal division in shutting down collieries in slack times.

NEW HAVEN WOMAN LEAVES $100,000 ESTATE

NEW HAVEN, July 2—(A. P.)—Several public bequests are mentioned in the last will of Mrs. Ellen J. Hawley, who died June 22, leaving an estate which exceeds $100,000 in value, the instrument being admitted to probate today by Judge John D. Dyer, who named Charles F. Treadway sole executor, former Governor Marcus H. Holcomb, of Southington, nominated by the testratrix as successor, having declined to accept the trust.

Mrs. Hawley was the widow of the late J. Arnold Yeckley, for many years president of Southington.

The sum of $5,000 is left to the New Haven hospital to maintain a children's cot. To the Missionary society of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Connecticut, is left the sum of $2,000 to help maintain St. Paul's Mission church in Southington.

To Mount Holyoke college, at South Hadley, Mass., is bequeathed the sum of $6,000 to found a scholarship for a young woman student resident of the town of Southington. To the First Congregational church, of Southington, is given $2,000 and to the Methodist church, of Gorham, N. Y., $2,000. The sum of $5,000 is left to the town of Gorham, to be used for a public library.

To Charles F. Treadway and his wife and daughter, is devised her residence here, and after the payment of certain legacies to relatives, the entire residue is left to the Domestic and Foreign Missionary society, of the Protestant Episcopal church of the United States.

FILES SUIT FOR SEPARATE MAINTENANCE

WASHINGTON, July 2—Josephine P. Knox, filed suit for separate maintenance today in the District of Columbia supreme court against Philander C. Knox, son of the former secretary of state and senator from Pennsylvania. The wife charges cruelty and excessive use of intoxicants, and Justice Stafford fixed July 9 for the accused to show cause why he should not support his wife and children.

Mrs. Knox set forth in her petition that she was married September 26, 1903 and has lived most of the time in Washington. About four years ago, she alleged, her husband began drinking to excess and has pursued a systematic and continuous course of cruelty to her and their two children, both boys, six and two years old. He knocked her down June 3, she charged, and injured her so that she found it necessary to leave his home to remain with her mother Mrs. W. R. Poole, in Charleston, W. Va.

The petition stated that the husband receives $1400 a month from the trustees of his father's estate, that Mrs. Knox has no separate estate, and that she is wholly dependent on him for support.

SEIZED ILLEGAL LIQUOR VALUED AT $250,000

HARTFORD, July 2.—(A. P.)—Illegal liquor valued at more than $250,000 was seized in all sections of the state by the state police during the six months ended June 30 During the period, which was the busiest in the history of the department the liquor confiscations amounted to $259,119.80, according to statistics compiled today by Robert L. Sengle, executive secretary of the department.

FATALLY BURNED WHEN CLOTHING CAUGHT FIRE

BRIDGEPORT, July 2—(A. P.)—Mrs. Mary Hamilton, 55, 712 Arctic street, died here tonight at St. Vincent's hospital of burns sustained when her clothing caught fire while preparing supper. Neighbors, rushing to her aid when attracted by her screams were able to extinguish the flames but not before they had inflicted horrible burns.

FRENCH SENATE APPROVES PAINLEVE'S RIFFIAN POLICY

PARIS, July 2—Premier Painleve's condemnation of the communist agitation with regard to Morocco and his policy in the war against the Riffs was approved today by the senate, which gave the government a unanimous vote of confidence.

There never was a doubt as to the outcome of the friendly interpellation on the Moroccan situation, but the premier was enabled to repeat the declarations he made in the chamber and emphasize his desire for peace, which, however, would require "delicate" negotiations. He explained that Abd-el-Krim, the Moroccan leader, was difficult to handle.

The Riffian armament was popularly over-estimated, and he asserted, Abd-el-Krim's chief strength being in brave and well manoeuvred infantry.

M. Briand, foreign minister, answering criticisms of the government's toleration of the communists' seditious appeals, reminded the senators that the courts were at work and that M. Voline, secretary of the soviet embassy at Paris had been recalled at the request of France.

SANTA BARBARA LOSS SET AT $10,000,000

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., July 2.—(AP)—Santa Barbara did much to return to normalcy today with 200 marines assisting the local and Los Angeles units in patrol work, many merchants opening or preparing to open their stores for resumption of business and relief organizations functioning like machinery.

At least three minor tremors were felt last night and this morning. They were so light, however, that they caused little alarm or comment.

Santa Barbara's earthquake loss was fixed by the committee of engineers at $10,000,000.

Fire insurance policies which under the law, are automatically cancelled when the building is damaged by a force other than fire, were reinstated by underwriters today and practically every building is now covered with insurance commensprate with its present value.

Fine art, tree jack hammers, and other tools, and facilities; payment for all sheet iron, props, timber, trenching, extra coal about and shoveling where such has not been paid for; and various rate improvements.

Uniform rate of 20 cents an inch for retiring in mining up to 10 feet wide, and a minimum rate for lifting of not less than 30 cents per ton.

A five day work week, to permit of the working of the equal average number of days per year to eliminate "the unfair system as enforced at present in different days as it now the practice was one of a long list of demands of technical character.

NEW HAVEN ROAD WITHDRAW'S RATE INCREASE

NEW YORK, July 2—Beginning July 1, the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad will restore the commutation rates from points inside New York state which were in effect until yesterday, when an increase of 40 per cent was established, railroad officials announced tonight.

The announcement followed receipt of a formal request from the state public service commission for the withdrawal of the increase. Arrangements are being made for refunds to those who bought tickets at the higher rate.

The 20 per cent. increase for tickets from points outside the state, however, will be rescinded until approval has been obtained from the interstate commerce commission.

BRIDGEPORT AIRMEN SUMMONED TO COURT

STRATFORD, July 2.—(AP)—William Jennings, thirty-one, and Edward J. Conklin, forty-four, both of Bridgeport, who were injured recently in an aeroplane crash in Stratford, will be arraigned in town court July 23, on charges of operating aircraft without the required state license. The men have both received summonses from State Policeman George Franaitis, of Hartford, aviation inspector, who recently investigated the Stratford accident. It was planned to arraign Jennings and Conklin in court today, but it was later decided to continue the case until later in the month when the men will have more completely recovered from their injuries.

Both Jennings and Conklin are out of the hospital but Conklin has not yet completely regained his strength. The two men, after receiving summons to appear in court, were permitted their liberty on their own recognizance.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Three Sentenced to Death

MOSCOW, July 2—The supreme court today sentenced to death Dr. Karl Windermann, Max von Ditmar and Theodore Volscht, three Germans charged with plotting against the lives of Leon Trotsky, M. Stalin and other Bolshevik leaders.

DEVELOPMENTS IN BRIDGEPORT TAX SNARL

BRIDGEPORT, July 2—(A. P.)—Developments in Bridgeport's tax situation today, the first full day of the "ripper" officials in office, were:

Outside Tax Collector Frank Finn was barred from the collector's inner office by Collector Howard S. Challenger, in a general order restricting entry to the personnel of the office, title searchers and attorneys. Finn has been working under the direction of the city attorney, in accordance with an ordinance claimed to have been repealed by the "ripper" law, but it is understood by members of the tax board that he was included in the agreement by which Drew and all his employes retained in office by Challenger.

Collector Challenger refused to accept settlement for four tax matters approved by the common council on recommendation of City Attorney A. L. Doherty, pending the assumption of office by Tax Attorney Edward L. Reid.

Marsh, Stoddard and Day, corporation attorneys, were preparing to take advantage of that section of the "ripper" law which allows taxpayers who received certificates of error, held illegal by the supreme court, to appeal to the superior court for redress.

Mayor F. William Behrens declared he would not name the board of contract and supply, provided under the "ripper" law. The contention is there are no duties for the board or its clerk to perform and it would be useless expenditure of public money. Taking advantage of a purported flaw in the bill, the common council last Monday abolished the board of contract, creating a department of public purchases which is now in operation.

HEARING ON McCLINTOCK WILL IS POSTPONED

CHICAGO, July 2—The hearing on probation of the will of Billy McClintock which made William D. Shepherd chief beneficiary of a $1,000,000 estate was postponed late today until July 9.

Weymouth Kirkland member of the law firm of McCormick, Kirkland, Patterson and Fleming who has been retained by Shepherd, today said:

"I will take the will into the probate court," said Mr. Kirkland, "whether I represent the will further depends upon what happens."

He had reference to the proposed contest to break the will by seven Iowa cousins of Billy McClintock and Miss Isabelle Pope, who waited with a marriage license when Billy died.

It has been rumored that the cousins and Miss Pope would not oppose probating the will, but would enter suit after that step had been taken.

MAY ENFORCE LIABILITY AGAINST STOCKHOLDERS

BOSTON, July 2—The Bank Commissioner of Massachusetts may enforce liability against all of the stockholders of the defunct Cosmopolitan Trust Company of Boston to the amount of the par value of each share held, the full bench of the supreme court ruled today. The only exceptions were the cases of Mrs. Ida P. Mitchell, wife of Max Mitchell, president of the company, and the estate of Harry Gordon. The court decided that Mrs. Mitchell, although a stockholder of record, never purchased or subscribed for the shares, did not know of their existence in her name and received no dividends. The statute of limitations prevents procedure against the Gordon estate.

CHARGED WITH BUYING STOLEN HATTER'S FURS

DANBURY, July 2—Henry De Fabritis, secretar yof the Lemme Hat company, was bound over to the superior court by Judge J. Moss Ives in city court late today on a charge of buying large quantities of hatter's furs which were alleged to have been stolen from the factory of the Delohery Hat company. His bonds were placed at $5,000. De Fabritis and six others were arrested last February.

KLONDIKE GOLD RUSH SURVIVOR IS DEAD

NAUGATUCK, Conn., July 2—Arthur Barton Cross, 73, one of the few remaining Connecticut survivors of the Klondike gold rush, traveller and journalist, died suddenly at his home, 31 Park avenue, here, late tonight. Stricken with an attack of acute indigestion shortly after 6 o'clock, he revived for a few hours. A second attack brought death.

WOMAN HURT WHEN MACHINE HIT TRUCK

SOUTHBURY, Conn., July 2—Mrs. August Sadis, of Bridgeport, was taken to a Bridgeport hospital tonight suffering from injuries received when an automobile driven by her husband collided with a truck of the American Laundry company of Waterbury. She was thrown through the windshield, suffering a broken right arm, a broken leg and cuts about the head. Mr. Sadis was cut.

IDAHO WILL CELEBRATE DEDICATION OF RESERVOIR

POCATELLO, Idaho, July 2—Celebration at American Falls, Idaho, on July 13 will mark the dedication of one of the largest storage reservoirs in the world.

Constituting one of the most unusual arrangements in the history of irrigation, the reservoir will cause the submergence of an entire townsite, buildings of which have been moved to a new location. A lake will be formed of water impounded from the Snake river.

TWO MEN IN LUNCH CART HELD UP

AEYR, Mass., July 2—(A. P.)—Two men in a lunch cart here were held up early today by a masked robber who took $35 out of a cash register. Ralph McGuaine, night chef and John McQueeney, a customer, were ordered to put up their hands by the robber who pointed a revolver at them. According to the story told the police, the visitor quickly took the night's receipts and left through a rear door.

It's not what the baseball player does but what the umpire says that counts.

Shenandoah Ready For Maine Trip

Navy Dirigible Will Leave Lakehurst This Morning For Voyage To Bar Harbor Via Providence.

LAKEHURST, N. J., July 2—(A. P.)—Preparations were made late tonight for the navy dirigible Shenandoah to take the air at a minute's notice, should an unexpected thunderstorm materialize. The big craft was moored to its steel mast at 8:30 o'clock in readiness for the voyage tomorrow to Bar Harbor, Maine, and Commander Landsdowne said that if left at the mast during a storm it would provide an excellent target for lightning.

Permission of Governor Silzer to make the trip was granted today by the bureau of aeronautics but the governor has not examined whether or not he will go. At Bar Harbor the Shenandoah will take aboard the governors of the various states represented at the annual convention of governors now in session at Poland Spring.

The schedule now calls for leaving Lakehurst at 8 o'clock standard time and passing over Providence at 10 o'clock. After leaving Boston the dirigible may pass over Swampscott where President Coolidge is spending the summer, before continuing the voyage to Bar Harbor by way of Portsmouth and Portland. A crew of thirty-four, including three observation officers and a news reel cameraman will make the trip. It will be headed at the last minute whether a parachute jumper will be aboard to give an exhibition over Swampscott or Bar Harbor.

A specially designed mess room has been prepared on the ship for use of the governors. The ship will be moored to a cruiser while at Bar Harbor.

DECREASE IN PUBLIC UTILITIES EARNINGS

HARTFORD, July 2—The gross earnings of public utilities companies in Connecticut were $131,586,513.36 during the past calendar year, which is approximately $1,950,000 less than the earnings during the previous year, according to a certification filed with the state treasurer today by Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett for the state board of equalization. The loss on these earnings, payable July 1, will amount to $3,467,295.74, or $72,465.60 less than the amount collected a year ago due to the decrease in gross earnings.

BRIDGEPORT MAN SHOT THROUGH STOMACH

BRIDGEPORT, July 2—Shot through the stomach, Friedolf Spongberg, forty Montgomery street, is at St. Vincent's hospital here in a critical condition, the victim of premature and careless Fourth of July celebrators.

Young Spongberg dropped suddenly tonight, exclaiming "I'm hurt," while standing on the bank of Ash creek, after being out in a row boat with Earl and Helen Eggers, 534 Gilmal street. The ambulance was summoned and the youth was rushed to St. Vincent's where, after an operation, his condition was said to be serious.

BROOKLINE TEACHER HEADS EDUCATION ASS'N

INDIANAPOLIS, July 2—Miss Mary McSkimmon, principal of the Pierce school, Brookline, Mass., tonight was elected president of the National Education Association in convention here. She succeeds Jesse D. Newlon, superintendent of schools, Denver.

Miss McSkimmon received 507 votes while her opponent, Miss Cornelia S. Adair, of Norfolk, Va., received 322.

Increased exports and imports for May were shown in commerce department figures.

Cotton production was forecast at 14,339,000 bales, the third largest crop on record.

The treasury ordered a revision of estimates of tax receipts with final figures showing a $250,000,000 surplus.

HUSBAND AND WIFE GIVEN LIQUOR FINES

STAMFORD, Conn., July 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Florence Campido and her husband, Vito, were each fined $200 and costs with 10 days in jail for selling alcohol, in city court today. Mrs. Campido claimed she was not here on March 12 when the sales were made but was in New Haven with three children from March 10th to 15th. The prosecutor looked up school records and found that two children were at school in that period and Mrs. Campido then said she was not quite certain of the date she went to New Haven with the children.

Both took an appeal and provided bonds.

NAMED SUPERINTENDENT OF WALLINGFORD SCHOOLS

WALLINGFORD, July 2—H. Morton Jeffords, of New Milford was appointed superintendent of schools of Wallingford tonight to succeed John Lund, who resigned to accept a position in Norwalk.

Volcano Galeras in Violent Eruption

Great Flames Issuing From Crater And Large Quantities of Rocks And Ashes Thrown Over Country.

BOGOTA, Colombia, July 2—Violent eruption of the Volcano Galeras near Pasto began yesterday, great flames issuing from the crater and large quantities of rocks and ashes covering the surrounding country.

Communication with the towns of La Florida and Sonseca is cut off and it is feared they have been destroyed.

The volcano of Galeras in the table land of the Andes in Southern Colombia, near the Ecuadorian frontier, was in eruption last on May 17. An earthquake shock preceded its activity on that date.

Galeras also gave signs of activity on February 23 which continued until February 28, the date of earthquake shocks in the United States. Then the disturbances within the crator increased, and vast quantities of ashes were thrown up covering the surrounding country and obstructing towns. Enormous seams opened in the land and the sides of the crater caved in places.

FORD'S BID FOR SHIPS IS STILL MISSING

WASHINGTON, July 2—(A. P.)—When the fleet corporation offices closed late today, no trace had been found of the bid of Henry Ford for 200 shipping board vessels for scrapping, which Mr. Ford told the Associated Press at Detroit, had been mailed several days ago. Pending the receipt officials declined to indicate what course they might pursue toward the offer.

The possibility that the bid had reached Washington and had been misplaced caused shipping board corporation employees to make another rough search of their desks and files, but it still was missing tonight.

Officials of the ship sales division of the board declared no action could be taken on it unless the 26 bids received up to noon, Tuesday, and then opened in public, were rejected and new offers requested.

President Palmer of the corporation declined to commit himself to a course with respect to the bid pending its arrival. Having just returned from the Pacific coast he had not had an opportunity to acquaint himself with the law and precedents covering such a case, and was unwilling to venture an opinion whether the offer might be considered if its postmark showed that it had been mailed in time to reach Washington by noon, Tuesday.

The advertisement which invited offers for the ships contained this paragraph:

"Bids will be received until 12 o'clock noon, eastern standard time, June 30, 1925, but the board may after consideration of the bids received, continue negotiations thereafter, and all bids received prior to final award or awards may be considered."

This was prepared by the ship sales department of the fleet corporation, officials of which were inclined to the opinion that the Ford offer, regardless of the reason for delay, could be considered now even if the board decided to have negotiations continued. They expected to have the recommendations for action on the bids opened last Tuesday ready for consideration by the board.

Whether the board will act on the matter then is uncertain, however, since next Tuesday a quorum probably will not be in the city. Vice-chairman Plummer is on vacation in Maine, Commissioner Thompson is in Europe, Commissioner Bagley is on the Pacific coast, and Commissioner Lissner plans to sail Saturday on a vacation trip to Rio De Janeiro. This would leave only Chairman O'Connor and Commissioner Thompson, and if the latter left Mr. O'Connor left alone in Washington to be sure over the Fourth of July but is expected back by Tuesday.

DENIES MOTION PICTURE PRODUCERS WILL WITHDRAW

HARTFORD, July 2.—(AP)—A denial of the statement attributed to him, that the withdrawal of motion picture films from Connecticut was planned if court action against the new film tax failed, was made today in New York by Courtland Smith, secretary of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America.

He said that he had authorized only the statement that the producers and distributors were prepared to fight the new tax law to the "last legal ditch."

He said that any statement attached either to him, Will H. Hays, president of the organization, or Attorney Benedict M. Holden, of Hartford, that the distributors in conference Monday had contemplated a refusal to deliver films to Connecticut was erroneous. The conference, he emphasized today, had been concerned solely with the legal measures to be taken against the tax law. He said the distributors were ready frankly to state that the tax, which was directed against them would be passed by them to the exhibitors and eventually to the public. This new law, according to his statement, is the first law ever enacted that combined taxation with censorship. He also said it was the first instance in which a state had attempted to tax a film.

SIX FATAL AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS IN WEEK

HARTFORD, July 2.—(AP)—Six fatal automobile accidents and 472 minor crashes were reported to the state motor vehicle department during the week ended June 27. FRENCH WAR DEBT MISSION COMING TO UNITED STATES

France Moves Towards Settlement of the American Debt—Mission Will Probably Arrive In Washington During Early Fall—Tentative Plans Are Already Underway And Composition of Mission Is Under Consideration—French Ambassador Confers With Secretary Mellon and Confirms Reports That French Cabinet Has Formally Acknowledged Debt To United States.

PARIS, July 2.—(AP)—A French mission to settle the American debt will probably go to Washington the end of the summer. It is not likely that M. Caillaux, minister of finance, will head it, although he would prefer to do so.

Tentative plans are under way and the composition of the mission is already under consideration, although no formal decision respecting the appointment of this body has yet been taken by the cabinet.

It would be possible for M. Caillaux to absent himself from Paris during August when the situation usually is quiet, but after that his presence here is necessary because of the budget and financial problems to be taken up.

The view in Paris is that the mission could serve no useful purpose by being in Washington before September, because it is known that the debt funding commission is already occupied with several European debtors who have opened or are about to initiate negotiations.

Because of M. Caillaux' inability to go to Washington some prominent financier is being sought to head the mission. One of those suggested is Robert Masson, active operating head of the Credit Lyonnais.

FRENCH AMBASSADOR CALLS ON SEC. MELLON

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(AP)—Steps were taken today looking to a revival of the discussion of funding France's war debt to the United States.

Ambassador Daeschner called at the treasury for an informal talk on the question and to confirm to Secretary Mellon unofficial reports that the French cabinet recently had formally acknowledged the government's debt to the United States and was studying ways and means for its settlement.

M. Daeschner inquired at the same time whether Mr. Mellon, as chairman of the American debt commission, had received any word through Ambassador Herrick in Paris concerning the possibility of official steps by France in the matter, and was told that the only information the treasury had was from the press.

The conversation which M. Daeschner had with Mr. Mellon and Under Secretary Winston was declared as necessarily "most informal" since the ambassador had received no instructions from his government to initiate negotiations for funding.

Officials declared they had received no definite indication when a French mission authorized to work out a settlement might be named.

The only information received lately by the French ambassador on the debt question was the dispatch from his government today, merely announcing the action of the French cabinet in acknowledging its obligations.

PRISONER ESCAPES FROM COUNTY JAIL YARD

BRIDGEPORT, July 2—(A. P.)—Francis Ray, 24, Newtown, eluded the watchfulness of the guards and escaped from the yard of the county jail yesterday afternoon, he is still at liberty.

Ray was arrested on March 27, charged with the theft of an automobile owned by Charles Brewer Trumbull. Last month he was fined $200 by Judge Edwin Dickenson in the criminal superior court. He was unable to pay the fine and was committed to jail at hard labor for two hundred days to work it out.

He was with other prisoners yesterday in the rear jail yard, carrying bundles from the leather shop to a motor truck. Without warning he broke and ran across the jail garden, scaled a fence and disappeared down Madison avenue.

SET "MOVIE" HEARING FOR NEXT WEEK

HARTFORD, July 2—(A. P.)—Papers will be served tomorrow on Acting Governor J. Edwin Brainard, Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett and State Police Commissioners Ernest L. Isbell and Frederick M. Salmon in the action brought by moving picture interests under the federal law to test the constitutionality of the new motion picture tax and censorship law.

The papers will be the official notice required by the federal law to be served on state officials concerned not less than five days in advance of the hearing in the constitutions court. The hearing is to be held Friday, July 10, at New Haven.

CHAPMAN HAD LOT OF NERVE AND FRIENDS

NEW YORK, July 2.—(AP)—Judge Newell Jennings, who presided at the trial at Hartford, Conn., of Gerald Chapman, before sailing today for a vacation in Europe, said:

"Chapman had a lot of nerve and friends. He would have made a great publicity man. It's a shame that he did not turn his great ability into proper channels. He is a most likable fellow."

District Attorney Hugh Alcorn, of Hartford, who prosecuted Chapman, was among those at the dock to say goodbye to Judge Jennings.

Chapman is now in the Connecticut State prison at Wethersfield, awaiting the result of an appeal from his death sentence.

GUILTY OF USING MAILS TO DEFRAUD

INDIANAPOLIS, July 2.—(AP)—Morton S. Hawkins, former president of the defunct Hawkins Mortgage company, was found guilty of using the mails to defraud by a jury in federal court here this evening after about twelve minutes deliberation.

The government alleged that through false financial statements, illegal advertising and erroneous literature sent through the mails, thousands of persons were mulcted out of several millions of dollars. Fourteen associates were found guilty and previously sentenced to prison on the same charge.

MOTOR OFFICES WILL CLOSE AT NOON TODAY

HARTFORD, July 2.—(AP)—The state motor vehicle department offices, including headquarters in Hartford and branch offices in New Haven, New London, Waterbury and Bridgeport, in general with all offices at the state capitol, will close at noon tomorrow as a mark of respect for the death of former Governor Rollin S. Woodruff, of New Haven. The state departments will also close Saturday, the Fourth of July, and will reopen Monday.

FIND MAN'S BODY IN RIVER AT HARTFORD

HARTFORD, July 2.—(AP)—The body of a man, said to be that of Andrew Comey, of Vernon Square, Worcester, Mass., an iron worker, was found in the Park river, near the railroad station shortly before 11 o'clock this morning.

PRES. COOLIDGE ENJOYS BRACING SEA AIR

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 2—(A. P.) The rest that President Coolidge sought when he left Washington he found today at White Court, when he remained, in seclusion enjoying the bracing sea air, the wonderful view from the summer White House and the quiet surroundings. There were no callers and the executive did not leave his summer residence except for a short stroll about the grounds.

Tomorrow the president will motor to Cambridge to deliver his first address since starting his vacation. He will speak on the Common opposite where the Washington Elm once stood, at the exercises to be held in celebration of the 150th anniversary of Washington's assuming command of the Continental army. Before his speech he will head a parade, reviewing it at the speaker's stand.

Mr. Coolidge's plans for the Fourth of July, which will be his 53rd birthday, have not been formulated but it is likely that if encouraging reports continue to be received about the condition of his father in Plymouth, Vt., he and Mrs. Coolidge will take a cruise on the Mayflower, perhaps remaining at sea overnight. The yacht is anchored at Marblehead.

The following letter from the president to Mrs. Mabel E. Churchill widow of Rep-Elect George E. Churchill, of the second Massachusetts district who died in Amherst last night, was made public here:

"I was deeply grieved to learn of the death of Mr. Churchill. His loss will not only be a loss to the commonwealth of Massachusetts but the nation will lose the services of an able statesman in the house of representatives. Mrs. Coolidge joins me in sending to you an expression of our sincere sympathy in this hour of sorrow."

PRESIDENT'S CABINET LEAVE FOR VACATIONS

WASHINGTON, July 2—(A. P.)—With President Coolidge at Swampscott, his cabinet, one by one, is drifting to summer scenes more pleasant to them than places at departmental desks, today.

Mr. Kellogg for a vacation at Secretaries Kellogg and Mellon left St. Paul, and Mr. Mellon for a country place on Long Island.

Secretaries Jardine, Work, Hoover, and Wilbur are in the west.

Secretary Weeks is recuperating from his illness in Massachusetts.

Secretary Davis is out of the city, and will leave soon for Europe.

Postmaster General New has been absent but has returned to his desk, and Attorney General Sargent has also resumed his routine at the department of justice after a trip to New England.

The latter two were the only cabinet members in town tonight.

STAMFORD AUTO DRIVER IS HELD FOR TRIAL

STAMFORD, July 2. (AP)—Charles S. Turner, 18 years old, of Stamford was bound over to the next term of the criminal superior court by Judge Samuel Young in city court today, on a charge of negligent operation of an automobile so as to cause death. Bail was fixed at $2,500.

Turner's automobile was in collision with a machine operated by Ralph Studwell, of Stamford, on the Post road, June 6. Eugene H. Clark, a passenger in Turner's car, was fatally injured. Turner was arrested but was exonerated in a finding handed down by Coroner John J. Phelan. He was re-arrested on the new charge.

A charge of reckless driving against Turner was nolled by the court.

ACCIDENTLY SHOT SELF IN LEFT SHOULDER

WATERBURY, July 2. (AP)—Kenneth B. Warner, 35 years old, of Wolcott road, accidentally shot himself while working in a grain shed today. He was taken to Waterbury hospital where little hope is held out for his recovery.

Mr. Warner conducts a large poultry farm on the Wolcott road and is well known in this vicinity. He accidentally struck the trigger of a shotgun lying on the floor where he was working. One bullet entered his body near the left shoulder.

WILLIMANTIC

Willimantic will drop back to a quiet Fourth program this year, in fact, it is expected to be the least eventful in local history. Earlier plans were to stage another celebration such as aroused much enthusiasm last year, but depressed industrial conditions appear to have sapped the patriotic spirit. With many residents mentally crossing swords, especially in connection with the strike of 2500 operatives at the American Thread company plant, it was brought out by some that this was no time to mix the population up into a July Fourth party. Others were for going ahead with a program to take the kinks out of the restless atmosphere and make everyone forget annoyances, at least for one day. This logic, however, did not prevail, and it is now up to the kids of the town to commemorate the day with crackers and front-lawn fireworks displays.

Many local people will visit surrounding towns, where old-fashioned demonstrations are offering an attraction. It is expected, given fair weather, that the Casino at Coventry Lake will be a popular resort. Everything in the industrial and commercial line will close down for the day, other than a few provision stores and markets which will open for a few hours in the forenoon. There will be a curtailment of business at the post office, there being no deliveries by either city or rural carriers. The money order, registry, and postal savings departments will be closed all day, but the carriers' general delivery and stamp windows will be open from 8 to 10 a. m., with the collection and dispatching of mails on the usual schedule.

Street alteration and repair work in progress on Temple, Center, Union, Riley and Broad streets is nearing completion. A survey of bad conditions existing on these streets, especially in wet weather, proved that regrading of the streets and the building of new concrete sidewalks and combination concrete gurbing and gutters was the only remedy; 2000 linear feet, or 10,000 square feet of new sidewalk is being laid and about 1700 linear feet or 6750 square feet of combination concrete curbing and gutter. These streets have decidedly been the rough spots of the town as far as vehicle travel was concerned. Every rain or melting snow tore down the surfaces and the repair bill for that section made a substantial drain annually on the resources of the street department.

President Clarence E. Simonds, of the Willimantic Exchange club, who was inducted into office at an evening meeting Wednesday night, has made the following appointments of his committees to serve during the six months of his administration: Auditing, George S. Elliott and George F. Stiles; commissary, Ralph U. Wolmer, Alfred Abbe and Samuel Chesbro; entertainment, A. Wilson Greer, Ezbert S. Case, Dr. Robert C. White, S. P. Hollister and Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones.

Charles W. Lewis, 62, a native of Columbia, died suddenly while riding in an automobile in Providence, R. I., it was learned here Thursday. Death occurred Wednesday evening. The cause was not known. Mr. Lewis was employed as a polisher by the American Screw company in Providence, for several years. He was born in Columbia, January 10, 1863, a son of Daniel C. and Laphronia (Parrish) Lewis. Surviving him is one sister, Mrs. Annie A. Barrett, of Baltic, and one brother, Elisha D. Lewis, of Hartford.

The July meeting of Francis S. Long post, Woman's Relief corps, was held this week with President Lena Tripp in charge. It was reported that there are now 146 members in good standing. Following routine business, Eva Adams reported that the recent food sale of which she was chairman was a financial success. General Orders No. 2 were read by Secretary Helen French, including a memoriam for John Sayre, past department commander of Connecticut, who died at his home in Waterbury. The charter was draped in loving remembrance of Past Department Secretary Mrs. Minnie A. Crosby, who died in Middletown. Donations were voted for the local Welfare bureau, and for the G. A. R. day in Plainville and the G. A. R. music fund for the national convention in Grand Rapids, Mich., beginning August 30, for one week. Absence of the W. R. C. will meet at G. A. R. hall, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, to take flowers to the graves of departed members. Mrs. Marguerite McArthur, chaplain, will conduct a service. The members will attend a basket lunch picnic at Lakeside park, South Coventry, July 15th, leaving here on the morning trolley. Mrs. Mary Dimock was named chairman of a covered dish supper to be served before the next meeting, August 19th, for members and several candidates who will be initiated during the session. President Maud Deming and Department Secretary Annie Smith, of the local corps, were present at the meeting.

Gail Shamback, Jr., sustained a painful cut on the head and other bruises, late Thursday afternoon, when he fell headlong from his bicycle while going along upper Main street on the concrete pavement. The boy was taken to St. Joseph's hospital where it was found that his condition was not serious.

Rev. F. C. Williams conducted a committal service for Mrs. Elijah Hatch over the grave in the Windham Center cemetery, Thursday afternoon, following the arrival here of the remains on the 2:16 train. The bearers were: George Hatch, George Backus, W. C. Backus and Clarence Avery. The J. C. Lincoln company had charge of the arrangements.

The bearers at the funeral of Clayton A. Lord, held in Gilead Wednesday, were: W. E. Hamner, Lucius Robinson, S. H. Robinson, E. G. Lord, Wilbur Payne and Robert Buell. Avery and VanZandt were in charge.

Poor driving and lack of proper credentials made up a combination which state Policeman Edgar D. Abild, of the Stafford Springs barracks, deemed sufficient for an arrest, Thursday afternoon, when he detected Richard Haddad, of 101 Union street, backing a car through a line of other machines on Valley street. Haddad had no operator's license with him but had forgotten to sign it. His automobile registration was in his place of business and he went and secured it. Haddad was notified to appear in police court Saturday morning, to answer to a charge of reckless driving.

The Pitchville Fourth of July celebration is being well advertised in this city with a flood of invitation cards going in on all the mails. Large numbers are expected to reply personally.

The only circus, the Hagenbeck-Wallace, which dared face the industrial slump and pitch tents in this city for a performance, rolled out of town in the early hours, Thursday morning, in good humor, for the visit was profitable, well-conducted and left a good impression in the minds of the hundreds of spectators of the shows.

JEWETT CITY

Jewett City people, young and old, are much interested in the daily bedtime stories, published in The Bulletin, by T. W. Burgess, the noted naturalist, of Springfield. One night this week Mr. Burgess broadcasted another of his interesting nature stories in his bedtime series. Strangely enough, B. W. Albertine, was tuned in for Springfield in time to get Mr. Burgess' story, which serves to decide, by a man who knows, a question that some time ago was much argued in this section, but never settled.

Mr. Albertine picked up the words of Mr. Burgess, wherein he told about the very unusual, seldom seen, yet nevertheless as-true-as-the-gospel occurrence, how in the stress of frightening circumstances, a mother snake will swallow her little squirming snake babies, and make off to safety. Mr. Burgess said that night, heard by those who listened in, that when she did so, it was the last of her babies, for she took them into her stomach, where they were digested, identical with the process that overtakes a frog, mouse or other small live animal which the mother snake may catch and eat for food. It was always the local belief, except by one boy, now a man, that lives in a distant part of the state, that when all was quiet and the danger passed, the mother snake regurgitated her young unharmed by their remarkable experience.

Some years ago the town of Griswold maintained a watering trough at the corner of Mathewson and Mechanic streets. Back of the trough was a vacant, but sandy lot, where Israel Mathewson had a garden and raised strawberries. Near this place in corner of the wall there lived a pretty good sized, common black-and yellow striped snake. Her eggs, that summer, were hatched in nature's incubator, hidden in the sand below the road. One morning the drivers of Sam Whitford's tin cart, (the like is never seen nowadays,) stopped at the trough to water his horse. Over in the lot, two local boys were picking berries for farmer at 2 cents per box. Down in the warm sand at the foot of the bed, were four baby snakes about as long as one's fingers. The hub of one of the tin cart's wheels, as the horse started, struck the side of the trough. There was much rattling of tin, as several pails, coal hods and brooms were thrown to the ground; in the twinkling of an eye, from a hole in the well, out darted the mother snake, and in an instant she swallowed her four little snakes and disappeared as quickly as she had come. The boys saw the mother snake many times after that but never the little ones again.

Mr. Albertine, has on two occasions witnessed this strange performance by a mother snake, but always believed that the little ones were later liberated, unharmed.

The "Antique" committee got in touch with Old Cluey Watson late Thursday evening. He has had the expert medical treatment of a traveling corn doctor, which has fixed up his toe that he caught in a No. 3 steel trap. He reports that he may have to ride his Hambletonian chirger, but he will be on hand at 8 a. m. without fail to enter the turnout.

He hopes that the weather man will get all the rain out of his system. A spring, on the south side of Mt. Misery, was "smoking" Thursday night which means a spell of "Fair and warmer."

The parade Fourth of July will proceed from Palmer avenue to Fanning park, on North Main, not East Main street.

E. B. Cheney is assisting in the gardener's work at the Pilgrim dahlia gardens.

If it is a fair day Saturday, it is figured that several thousand strangers will be in Jewett City, and quite a few are guessing that they will be looking for hot dogs and red lemonade. It looks as though somebody was going to make a few dollars.

P. W. Chase who is in charge of the sports for Fourth of July states that Endor LeClair's names is to be added to the contestants in the men's swimming and diving events. The entries in the older girls' swimming contest are: Catherine and Nellie Misiuszek, Louise Segal, Helen Bakanowsky and Agnes Corby. The entries in the boys' foot race, after the tug of war, and too numerous to mention. The girls' race has been abandoned as there was only one entry, and has been replaced by the canoe tilting contest in the afternoon. The captains of the married and single men's ball teams, report having gathered together the finest collection of present, past and future ball plaers ever congregated in these parts. They will probably rival in brilliancy the fireworks display in the evening.

The decorations on Main street are a pleasure to the patriotic eye, because of the proper way in which the American flag is displayed. There may be no state or national law which regulates this matter, but the universal usage published by certain national and naval organizations is sufficient reason for showing proper respect to the flag.

JUDGE AYLING INVITED TO BE CHAIRMAN

JEWETT CITY, July 2.—At the final meeting of the Fourth of July celebration committee held Thursday evening, it was voted that Judge N. J. Ayling of Norwich be asked to fill the vacancy of the afternoon parade judges, made vacant by the death of Ozias Dodge. The morning parade will cover all streets. The big parade must leave out Mechanic street because the big five-ton floats can not negotiate the corner at Green avenue and Mechanic street with safety. The line of march is three and three-tenths miles long. The sum of $891 has been raised by donations besides the $450 voted by the town and borough. The reviewing stand for judges will be on the plazza above Edward Blanchard's store. There must be no automobile parking on the line of march. Two state policemen will be on duty here in addition to five local officers.

Willimantic will drop back to a quiet Fourth program this year, in fact, it is expected to be the least eventful in local history. Earlier plans were to stage another celebration such as aroused much enthusiasm last year, but depressed industrial conditions appear to have sapped the patriotic spirit. With many residents mentally crossing swords, especially in connection with the strike of 2500 operatives at the American Thread company plant, it was brought out by some that this was no time to mix the population up into a July Fourth party. Others were for going ahead with a program to take the kinks out of the restless atmosphere and make everyone forget annoyances, at least for one day. This logic, however, did not prevail, and it is now up to the kids of the town to commemorate the day with crackers and front-lawn fireworks displays.

Many local people will visit surrounding towns, where old-fashioned demonstrations are offering an attraction. It is expected, given fair feather, that the Casino at Coventry Lake will be a popular resort. Everything in the industrial and commercial line will close down for the day, other than a few provision stores and markets which will open for a few hours in the forenoon. There will be a curtailment of business at the post office, there being no deliveries by either city or rural carriers. The money order, registry and postal savings departments will be closed all day, but the carriers', general delivery and stamp windows will be open from 8 to 10 a. m., with the collection and dispatching of mails on the usual schedule.

Street alteration and repair work in progress on Temple, Center, Union, Valley and Broad streets is nearing completion. A survey of bad conditions existing on these streets, especially in wet weather, proved that regrading of the streets and the building of new concrete sidewalks and combination concrete gurbing and gutters was the only remedy; 2000 linear feet, or 10,000 square feet, of new sidewalk is being laid and about 1700 linear feet or 6750 square feet of combination concrete curbing and gutters. These streets have decidedly been the rough spots of the town as far as vehicle travel was concerned. Every rain or melting snow tore down the surfaces and the repair bill for that section made a substantial drain annually on the resources of the street department.

President Clarence E. Simonds, of the Willimantic Exchange club, who was inducted into office at an evening meeting Wednesday night, has made the following appointments of his committees to serve during the six months of his administration: Auditing, George S. Elliott and George F. Stiles; commissary, Ralph U. Wolmer, Alfred Abbe and Samuel Chesbro; entertainment, A. Wilson Greer, Egbert S. Case, Dr. Robert C. White, S. P. Hollister and Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones.

Charles W. Lewis, 62, a native of Columbia, died suddenly while riding in an automobile in Providence, R. I., it was learned here Thursday. Death occurred Wednesday evening. The cause was not known. Mr. Lewis was employed as a polisher by the American Screw company in Providence, for several years. He was born in Columbia, January 10, 1863, a son of Daniel C. and Lephironia (Parrish) Lewis. Surviving him is one sister, Mrs. Amelia A. Barrett, of Baltic, and one brother, Elisha D. Lewis, of Hartford.

The July meeting of Francis S. Long post, Woman's Relief corps, was held this week with President Lena Trinp in charge. It was reported that there are now 146 members in good standing. Following routine business, Eva Adams reported that the recent food sale of which she was chairman was a financial success. General Orders No. 2 were read by Secretary Helen French, including a memoriam for John Saxe, past department commander of Connecticut, who died at his home in Waterbury. The charter was draped in loving remembrance of Past Department Secretary Mrs. Minnie A. Crosby, who died in Middletown. Donations were voted for the local Welfare bureau, and for the G. A. R. day in Plainville and the G. A. R. music fund for the national convention in Grand Rapids, Mich., beginning August 30, for one week. Women of the W. R. C. will meet at G. A. R. hall, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, to take flowers to the graves of departed members. Mrs. Marguerite McArthur, chaplain, will conduct a service. The members will attend a basket lunch picnic at Lakeside park, South Coventry, July 15th, leaving here on the morning trolley. Mrs. Mary Dimock was named chairman of a covered dish supper to be served before the next meeting, August 19th, for members and several candidates who will be initiated during the session. President Maud Dember and Department Secretary Annie Heath, of the local corps, were present at the meeting.

Gail Shambeck, Jr., sustained a painful cut on the head and other bruises, late Thursday afternoon, when he fell headlong from his bicycle while riding along upper Main street on the concrete pavement. The boy was taken to St. Joseph's hospital where it was found that his condition was not serious.

Rev. F. C. Williams conducted a committal service for Mrs. Elijah Hatch over the grave in the Windham Center cemetery, Thursday afternoon, following the arrival here of the remains on the 3:16 train. The bearers were: George Hatch, George Backus, W. C. Backus and Clarence Avery. The J. C. Lincoln company had charge of the arrangements.

The bearers at the funeral of Clayton A. Lord, held in Gilead Wednesday, were: W. E. Hamner, Lucius Robinson, S. H. Robinson, E. G. Lord, Wilbur Payne and Robert Buell. Avery and VanZandt were in charge.

Poor driving and lack of proper credentials made up a combination which State Policeman Edgar D. Abild, of the Stafford Springs barracks, deemed sufficient for an arrest, Thursday afternoon, when he detected Richard Haddad, of 101 Union street, packing his car through a line of other machines on Valley street. Haddad had his operator's license with him but had forgotten to sign it. His automobile registration was in his place of business and he went and secured it. Haddad was notified to appear in police court Saturday morning, to answer to a charge of reckless driving.

The Fitchville Fourth of July celebration is being well advertised in this city with a flood of invitation cards buying in on all the mails. Large numbers are expected to reply personally.

The only circus, the Hagenbeck-Wallace, which dared face the industrial slump and pitch tents in this city for a performance, rolled out of town in the early hours, Thursday morning, in good humor, for the visit was profitable, well conducted and left a good impression in the minds of the hundreds of spectators of the show.

JEWETT CITY

Jewett City people, young and old, are much interested in the daily bedtime stories, published in The Bulletin, by T. W. Burgess, the noted naturalist, of Springfield. One night this week Mr. Burgess broadcasted another of his interesting nature stories in his bedtime series. Strangely enough, B. W. Albertine, was tuned in for Springfield in time to get Mr. Burgess' story, which serves to decide, by a man who knows, a question that some time ago was much argued in this section, but never settled.

Mr. Albertine picked up the words of Mr. Burgess, wherein he told about the very unusual, seldom seen, yet nevertheless as-true-as-the-gospel occurrence, how in the stress of frightening circumstances, a mother snake will swallow her little squirming snake babies, and make off to safety. Mr. Burgess said that night, heard by those who listened in, that when she did so, it was the last of her babies, for she took them into her stomach, where they were digested, identical with the process that overtakes a frog, mouse or other small live animal which the mother snake may catch and eat for food. It was always the local belief, except by one boy, now a man, that lives in a distant part of the state, that when all was quiet and the danger passed, the mother snake regurgitated her young unharmed by their remarkable experience.

Some years ago the town of Griswold maintained a watering trough at the corner of Mathewson and Mechanic streets. Back of the trough was a vacant, low, sandy lot, where Israel Mathewson had a garden and raised strawberries. Near this place in corner of the wall there lived a pretty good sized, common black-and yellow striped snake. Her eggs, that summer, were hatched in natures incubator, hidden in the sand below the road. One morning the drivers of Sam Whitford's tin cart, (the like is never seen nowadays,) stopped at the trough to water his horse. Over in the lot, two local boys were picking berries for Israel at 2 cents per box. Down in the warm sand at the foot of the bed, were four baby snakes about as long as one's fingers. The hub of one of the tin cart's wheels, as the horse started, struck the side of the trough. There was much rattling of tin, as several pails, coal hods and brooms were thrown to the ground in the twinkling of an eye, from a hole in the well, out darted the mother snake, and in an instant she swallowed her four little snakes and disappeared as quickly as she had come. The boys saw the mother snake many times after that but never the little ones again.

Mr. Albertine, has on two occasions witnessed this strange performance by a mother snake, but always believed that the little ones were later liberated, unharmed.

He hopes that the weather man will get all the rain out of his system. A spring, on the south side of Mt. Misery, was "smoking" Thursday night which means a spell of "Fair and warmer."

The parade Fourth of July will proceed from Palmer avenue to Fanning park, on North Main, not East Main street.

If it is a fair day Saturday, it is figured that several thousand strangers will be in Jewett City, and quite a few are guessing that they will be looking for hot dogs and red lemonade. It looks as though somebody was going to make a few dollars.

The decorations on Main street are a pleasure to the patriotic eye, because of the proper way in which the American flag is displayed. There may be no state or national law which regulates this matter, but the universal usage published by certain national and naval organizations is sufficient reason for showing proper respect to the flag.

JUDGE AYLING INVITED TO BE CHAIRMAN

JEWETT CITY, July 2.—At the final meeting of the Fourth of July celebration committee held Thursday evening, it was voted that Judge N. J. Ayling of Norwich be asked to fill the vacancy of the afternoon parade judges, made vacant by the death of Ozias Dodge. The morning parade will cover all streets. The big parade must leave out Mechanic street because the big five-ton floats can not negotiate the corner at Green avenue and Mechanic street with safety. The line of march is three and three-tenths miles long. The sum of $891 has been raised by donations besides the $450 voted by the town and borough. The reviewing stand for judges will be on the piazza above Edward Blanchard's store. There must be no automobile parking on the line of march. Two state policemen will be on duty here in addition to five local officers.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The hundreds here and hereabouts who regularly attend motion picture shows as an interesting diversion need worry but little over the announcement that distributors may withdraw their films from Connecticut, as was suggested might be done, in press despatches Thursday morning.

Jacob Alpert, of the S-A Amusement company, operators of a chain of theatres that includes the Orpheum in Danielson, said Thursday that there will be no interruption of the programs at this theatre for the present and that none in the future on account of the present furore over Connecticut's newly effective film tax law. This law is the [illegible] and which [illegible] to pay the tax. Mr. Alpert points out that [illegible] the tax will be [illegible] to the [illegible] and not [illegible] the theatre [illegible] the Connecticut [illegible] prints from [illegible] where they are more plentiful [illegible] will make that [illegible] because no [illegible] at least, could [illegible] a tax [illegible] a picture like The Thief of Bagdad (12 reels) would amount to $120.

The alternative in small towns of limited picture patronage is to await the time when every preferred exhibitor has used a film. The average life of the fragile film is about four months. In that time, from constant usage, it usually is more or less damaged and frequently rendered useless for further service. In such a case the small town exhibitor again faces the impossible situation of bringing in a "borrowed" film from some other state. He can't do this because he can't afford to pay the prohibitive tax.

Here, then, is a situation that is going to make it extremely difficult, if at all possible, for exhibitors in the small towns to give the fine service they have been giving and giving it promptly—when pictures are new, fresh and hold their full appeal for the public. These are some of the reasons Mr. Alpert points out for protesting the new law and why an effort will be made through the federal courts to have it declared unconstitutional.

In the meantime local picture patrons will continue regularly to see their screen stars and enjoy them.

The betting is a crocheted bathtub against a fur-lined ice cream freezer that President Coolidge's economy program gets an awful jolt over the holiday period. One could see it coming Thursday. Buyers were numerous and liberal in their purchases. Incidentally communities in this area were preparing to make the most of the holiday. Goodyear starts the ball rolling this evening with its fireworks and has a program for the Fourth. So, too, has Dayville. East Killingly will have an impressive celebration, tally up to the interesting ones it has arranged every Fourth for several years past. Down at Wauregan, a mid-festival Fourth has been arranged to be held in Sacred Heart grove, and the usual large attendance is expected there. One of the many features at Wauregan will be the morning baseball game between baseball teams representing St. James' school, of Danielson, and the Sacred Heart team, of Wauregan. As at East Killingly, a dinner will be served at the Wauregan celebration.

In Connecticut a 5m exchange has [illegible] for [illegible] each [illegible] with [illegible] it will be [illegible] feature [illegible] more than two [illegible] in each [illegible] has [illegible] that the Connecticut [illegible] prints from [illegible] where they are more plentiful [illegible] will make that [illegible] because no [illegible] at least, could [illegible] a tax [illegible] a picture like The Thief of [illegible]

Danielson has not planned any observance of the day. Its citizens, therefore, may be depended upon to swell the attendance at the celebrations in all the communities here-abouts and contribute to making each and every one of them a success.

Another Well Baby conference is to be held at the town hall building this (Friday) afternoon. Promoters of this baby welfare movement point out that in hot weather especially it is important to weigh baby frequently, and to practice care and regularity in feeding, and common sense in dressing.

Small babies should show a fairly steady gain in weight, even during hot weather. Much worry, and often sickness, may be prevented by keeping children under a doctor's observation. This may be done at the Well Child conference, where once a month a doctor is on hand to consult with mothers and to examine babies and small children. Here a weight record is given each mother, on which the growth may be noted from month to month.

Killingly has fared well industrially in the first six months of 1925. The manufacturing plants have operated steadily, the wage scales remaining as they were during 1924. Ordinarily, steady operation would not be considered as anything extraordinary, but it happens to be something approximating that as textile conditions have been, generally, in New England this year. Plainfield, too, has been a fortunate town. Under the circumstances the people generally hereabouts are appreciative of their good fortune. Present conditions do not approach the gilded era that marked the years of the World war, by any means, but they are so far superior to those existing in many textile centers as to cause a feeling of thanksgiving.

Frequently of late there has been discussion in business circles in Danielson about injecting greater energy into the Chamber of Commerce. There appears to be little doubt that an active, hustling organization with the united support of Danielson's business interests can become of great value to this community.

Prohibitions against bathing in lakes near Danielson have driven many of the youngsters to the dangerous expedient of utilizing once again the old swimming holes that were favorites in years gone by. River bathing in Danielson is dangerous on account of swift currents and deep holes near the banks and not too healthful when one considers the amount of sewage and other pollution that finds its way into the streams flowing through Danielson.

It is interesting to note the advertisement of the Windham County National bank as printed elsewhere on this page, as it offers a strong inducement for people to deposit in that bank.—Adv.

On Saturday, the Fourth, the post office will be open from 6:30 to 10:30 a. m. The lobby will be open throughout the day. There will be no delivery on the rural route and no money order or postal savings business will be transacted.

Local members of the Putnam Country club will be at the clubhouse in numbers for a dance planned for the night of the holiday.

Mrs. Philias Jodoin, of North Main street, continues to recover from injuries she received in an automobile accident during the past month.

This (Friday) evening brings the annual and spectacular display of fireworks at Goodyear, an event that will attract several thousand people to the neighboring community. A band concert will be given incident to the fireworks display, to which all are invited.

Young America has done very well in refraining, in Danielson, from advance use of explosives intended for celebrations of the Fourth. However, the ban remains on until 4 o'clock Saturday morning. Special officers will be on duty tonight to see that quiet prevails.

Of interest to his many friends in this territory is the announcement that Representative Sherwood B. Potter, of Brooklyn, formerly of Norwich, is to be one of the new bank examiners in Connecticut.

Dayville has a celebration of the Fourth planned, this to include a ball game and various diversions that will give residents and visitors an interesting holiday.

PUTNAM

At a meeting of the town school committee, the budget for the next school year was adopted, and will be recommended to the electors of the town for approval. The budget calls for $73,500, the same amount as last year. It is apportioned as follows:

General control, school board business office, $250; supervision, $4,000; compulsory attendance and census, $370; Incidentals, $100; Instruction, music supervisor, $1,200; principals, $7,750; men teachers, $2,175; women teachers, $35,330; text books, $3,000; music books, $100; stationery and supplies $2,300; Tuition fees, $600; evening school, $1,000; Americanization director, $400; incidentals, $100. Operation, janitors and cleaning, $3,100; fuel, light, water $4,600; incidental, $100. Maintenance, repairs, $2,500; replacement of equipment, $1,000, auxiliary agencies, school libraries, $250; health department, $3,500; transportation, $775. Total $73,500.

The report of Superintendent Ralph C. Jankins to the town school committee for June follows:

The graduating exercises at Putnam High school were by common consent among the best in the history of the school. Especial credit should be given to Mrs. E. L. Robinson for the excellent chorus. I wish also to express my appreciation of the work Samuel Rich has done with the High school orchestra during. Because of the fine work the orchestra has been doing, we were able for the first time this year to make use of it at graduation.

Indications are that next year will bring the largest freshman class into Putnam High school we have ever had. During the past year, four classes a day have met in the auditorium. An increase in number will present a real problem in finding seats and recitation rooms for all of the pupils.

Elementary Schools.

I have worked out with Miss Kent and Miss Duffey their schedules for the ninth grade work in the fall. Miss Kent will take arithmetic and history and Miss Duffey will take the English and geography. In the seventh grade Mr. Merrill will take the arithmetic and geography and Mrs. Merrill will take the English and history.

The tentative results of the Stanford achievement tests given in grades 4-8 inclusive in all schools are as follows:

Grade 8, normal score 74, I. P. S. 76.3; grade 7, normal score 64, I. P. S. 62.2. Smith 64.4, Sawyer 64.6; grade 6, normal score 55, I. P. S. 52. 9, Smith 48.3, Sawyer 50.1; grade 5, normal score 44.1 I. P. S. 43.7, Smith 339.9, Sawyer 38.9; grade 4, normal score 31, I. P. S. 38.3, Smith 36.8, Sawyer 34.7.

The papers were corrected hastily in the rush of the close of the year and there may be slight errors. However, I believe that the results are fairly indicative of the abilities of Putnam children. The results tally fairly closely with the results of Monroe Silent Reading tests given previously. The achievement of our primary and grammar grades seems to be well above normal. There is room for improvement in the intermediate grades and next year's supervision will be directed toward improving the work in those grades. I shall have my pupils in the Keene Normal school check these tests during the summer for errors and compile further data from them for the benefit of the teachers next year.

The principal matter of business to come before the next meeting of the school committee will be the annual budget for next year. I shall recommend for your approval the same amount of money for school that was asked for last year, $73,500. Certain increases in teachers' salaries are offset by the amount of money that will be necessary for fuel and repairs. Owing to the increase in high school tuition voted at a previous meeting it is probable that the net cost of running the schools next year will be less than it has been during the past year.

The selectmen of the town have called a special meeting for Monday, July 6, to see if the town will co-operate with the state highway department in having the bridge that is to built over the Quinebaug river on Pomfret street widened from 28 feet to 40 feet. The town will vote an appropriation, a sum not to exceed $5,000, to make of the bridge a memorial to the men from Putnam who saw service in the World War.

Pomfret street is a part of a state highway and as such the state pays for its upkeep as well as the repairing of bridges when necessary but their expenditure goes no further than a bridge with a 25 foot roadway.

As a result of the conference held between Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald, the selectmen of the town and the committee of the Chamber of Commerce, the new bridge on Pomfret street over the Quinebaug river will be 40 feet on the clear instead of 28 feet, but the town must pay the cost of the additional width which will not exceed $9,000.

This extra width would allow for two six-foot sidewalks on each side, the roadway to remain 28 feet as originally designed.

The commissioner agreed at once with the Putnam men that the bridge should be wider so as to permit sidewalks for pedestrians, that the volume of traffic at this point is so great that public safety demands it.

Mr. Macdonald is very desirous, however, of having the bridge made a memorial to the soldiers of the Great War and the committee have gone to Hartford to submit for his approval plans they have formulated. Four members of the committee drove to Nashua, N. H., Monday, and visited the factory there that designs and erects bronze memorials. As a result of their visit they made the following recommendations to a full meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

That bronze tablets be erected in the center of the bridge attached to either side, bearing in letters of bronze in bas relief, the names of the 221 Putnam boys who were in service during the war. The tops of the tablets are to be surmounted by eagles and in a space directly under they will be graven the names of those who died in the service.

That pilasters be erected at each corner of the bridge six feet in height and 30 inches square, with emblematic designs in bronze, one for each branch of the service, the army, the navy, the marines and the aviation. Each pilaster would bear an ornamental light; the total cost of these not to exceed $2,500.

These plans were approved by the directors, and the committee, which consists of Alex Gilman, A. Newton Vaughn, Chares A. Richard, F. E. Metcalf and Walter N. King, met again with the selectman, who also concurred in the plans.

Quick action is necessary in the matter as the state highway department wishes to have the contract awarded and work begun on the construction by August 1.

It is said that Putnam is the only city of its size in the state that has no war memorial. The opportunity is now afforded to obtain one of an attractive and enduring kind at a comparatively small outlay.

most imperative, and under the con-

The widening of the bridge is additions the opportunity to make of it a soldier's memorial seems almost as obligatory.

The bridge which will be of cement will be 80 feet in length. During its construction a temporary bridge will be swung across the river immediately north of the present structure.

Orrin P. Austin entertained at his home on Woodstock avenue, in honor of his eighth birthday the following friends: Beth Thompson, Dorothy Austin, Grace Reynolds, Ruth Osier, Thelma Salisbury, Merrill Bosworth, Barbara Reynolds, Elinor Johnson, Fannie Potter, Edward Reynolds, William Johnson, Fred Tourtelotte, Hugo Carlson and Paul Austin. Three birthday cakes were cut that were presented him by Mrs. Harry Manning, of North Grosvernordale, Mrs. Ada Austin, of Webster, Mass., and Mrs. C. W. Chase, of Putnam. Sandwiches cake, fruit, candy and lemonade were served. Pony rides, bicycle rides and games were enjoyed.

Governor Trumbull has announced the following appointments of members of the Connecticut medical examining board: Charles A. Tuttle, New Haven; John C. Rowley, Hartford; Selden B. Overlock, Pomfret; Robert A. Rowley, Hartford; F. C. Hyde, Greenwich, all reappointments. Their terms are for two years.

At the meeting of Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows held in Odd Fellows' Hall the following officers were elected: N. G., Sarl E. Weeks; V. G., Reuben N. Peterson; R. S. Herbert Johnson, F. S., Lucius H. Fuller, Allie King, assistants; treasurer, Leon T. Wilson. At the meeting on July 7, District Deputy James H. McCulloch will install these officers.

Mrs. John Addison Porter entertained about one hundred members of Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R., at her home, Pen-Y-Bryn, in Pomfret, Wednesday afternoon from 4 to 6. After an informal reception, supper was served, on the lawn. During the afternoon a musical program was furnished by Charles Field Swain.

PLAINFIELD

The annual outing of the Lincoln club was held this year with the men of the Methodist church, on the Fair Grounds at Brooklyn. A hundred and fifty men were present to enjoy the famous clambake put on under the direction of King George, of East Killingly. Elmer Phillips and Elmer Greene were untiring in their efforts to make the affair a great success and were assisted by Roy Parkhurst, Cecil Butler, Fred Lyon and others. Two long tables were filled twice by the men, all of whom were enthusiastic over the clam chowder, clams and fish. Soda and watermelons were provided. Ernest Wild operated an ice cream and soda booth. Games and races were participated in heartily by the men. A ball game was played between the Moosup men and the members of the Lincoln club, the Moosup team winning. Much interest centered in a tug-of-war between eleven Moosup men and eleven Plainfield men, the Plainfield team winning after a close and hard contest. The grounds were secured of Mr. Frink, of Brooklyn, who did everything possible to assist the men in enjoying a day of pleasant fellowship. Walter Cleland, president of the Lincoln club, headed the line of automobiles which left the Plainfield Congregational church about noon. On arriving at the grounds a small American flag was unfurled and the Star Spangled Banner was sung, led by James Royle. Henry Leach, of Wauregan, and a few men from the Brooklyn Men's club attended the clambake.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper is to be administered at the Sunday morning service at the Congregational church. Miss Betty Bittingen and Miss Esther Wilson will sing a duet.

A most elaborate aggregation of the select Americans of the village of Plainfield, met in an open lot close by the Burdick Gasoline Station between Bishop's Crossing and Jewett City, Wednesday evening a regular meeting was held and new members taken into the order. The attendance was in full regalia and carried hand flashlights. A stranger to the village delivered a fine address and was listened to by folks of the surrounding boroughs. The most surprising event of the evening was when an old-timer and prominent citizen of the town was granted permission to use the highways of his town. The enormous gathering made a magnificent showing.

The moon failed to make its appearance Wednesday evening, but things went along very smoothly.

Several local fans will motor to Boston Saturday to witness the double header between Washington and Boston.

Plainfield contributed its usual quota to the number who attended the dance at Hilltop Wednesday.

The Plainfield Community association has announced that it is fostering a supervised summer camp for the boys of the village. It is one of the many progressive moves being made by the association at this time of the year. Plans for the camp have already been outlined and will be explained by Director Dissinger of the association. Mr. Dissinger has had a great deal of experience in this line of work and he has asked parents of the boys of the village to cooperate with him in making this project a success. The boys will be taught many useful and helpful things at this camp, in the direction of physical, moral and intellectual well-being.

Thursday night, the Plainfield Community House the parents of the boys of the village met with Director Dissinger to talk over and arrange the details of permitting their boys to attend the summer camp. There was a large attendance of interested parents.

Saturday, July 4th will be the last day on which the Community House at Plainfield will be open, excepting the swimming pool, which will be open for members and the public at large and the public library, open during library hours on library days. The rest of the building will be closed the summer months to reopen early in September. Director Dissinger announces that some one will be at the building to answer telephone calls and look after things in general.

The fireworks displayed in the shop windows have dropped in price.

Men are working at St. John's cemetery, trimming the hedges and cleaning up the grounds.

Two freight cars of automobiles were unloaded at the freight depot Thursday afternoon for distribution in this section.

Once again the menace of parking on both sides of the Main street almost resulted in an accident. Thursday afternoon a horse and wagon, stopped in front of the A. & P. store, was run into by a butchers cart. No damage was done to either wagon. Something should be done about the parking question by the town officials. The road either should be widened or an ordinance passed to prohibit parking on both sides of the Main street.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

The case of the State against Dustin D. Tice of Thompsonville, for reckless driving was tried before Judge William H. Heald in the borough court Thursday morning. The accused was found guilty and fined $25.00 and costs. The complaining witness was Andrew Jarry, of Taftville, who claimed that Tice who was operating West Main street from the Monson an automobile truck coming into road, run into his car and damaged it in addition to injuring the occupants witnesses claimed that Jarry of his car, Jarry and the other state witnesses claimed that Jarry's car was hugging the right side of the road when the truck, driven by Tice, came diagonally across the road and struck the Jarry car which was a Scripp Booth. All the witnesses agreed that Jarry was on his right side of the road when the accident happened. Tice claimed he crossed the road to avoid hitting another car coming in from the Somers road. He took an appeal to the September term of the superior court and gave bonds for his appearance in the sum of $200. The state was represented by Prosecuting Attorney M. D. O'Connell and the accused was defended by Attorney P. J. Sullivan, of Thompsonville.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The hundreds here and hereabouts who regularly attend motion picture shows as an interesting diversion need worry but little over the announcement that distributors may withdraw their films from Connecticut, as was suggested might be done, in press despatches, Thursday morning.

Jacob Alpert, of the S-A Amusement company, operators of a chain of theatres that includes the Opheum in Danielson, said Thursday that there will be no interruption of the programs at this theatre for the present and about what may in the future on account of the present furore over Connecticut's newly effective film tax and censorship law. This law is being attacked in many quarters as unconstitutional, and while the matter is being threshed out in the courts the theatres likely will purvey their programs as usual. Mr. Alpert gave an interesting review of how the new law will handicap motion picture exhibitors in Connecticut, especially the exhibitors in the small towns of the state. He said that the average theatre in such towns shown in Danielson is made up of one reel of comedy, about four reels of feature and a reel of news events. The tax, under the new law, is expected to be a flat tax of $60 for the entire program. This tax is assessed upon the patron entering the theatre and not upon the distributor, not even upon the theatre proprietor. The tax is expected to more than double the present admission charges in such cases as has been the case in Connecticut towns where there are more plentiful and frequent opportunities of departing to other towns. The tax will make it prohibitive because no town exhibitor at least, could afford to pay the amount of tax on a picture like The Thief of Bagdad (12 reels) would amount to $120.

The alternative in small towns of limited picture patronage is to await the time when every preferred exhibitor has used a film. The average life of the fragile film is about four months. In that time, from constant usage, it usually is more or less damaged and frequently rendered useless for further service. In such a case the small town exhibitor again faces the impossible situation of bringing in a "borrowed" film from some other state. He can't do this because he can't afford to pay the prohibitive tax.

Here, then, is a situation that is going to make it extremely difficult, if at all possible, for exhibitors in the small towns to give the fine service they have been giving and giving it promptly—when pictures are new, fresh and hold their full appeal for the public. These are some of the reasons Mr. Alpert points out for protesting the new law and why an effort will be made through the federal courts to have it declared unconstitutional.

In the meantime local picture patrons will continue regularly to see their screen stars and enjoy them.

The betting is a crocheted bathtub against a fur-lined ice cream freezer that President Coolidge's economy program gets an awful jolt over the holiday period. One could see it coming Thursday. Buyers were numerous and liberal in their purchases. Incidentally communities in this area were preparing to make the most of the holiday. Goodyear starts the ball rolling this evening with its fireworks and has a program for the Fourth. So, too, has Dayville. East Killingly will have an impressive celebration, fully up to the interesting ones it has arranged every Fourth for several years past. Down at Wauregan, a festival Fourth has been arranged to be held in Sacred Heart grove, and the usual large attendance is expected there. One of the many features at Wauregan will be the morning baseball game between baseball teams representing St. James' school, of Danielson, and the Sacred Heart team, of Wauregan. As at East Killingly, a dinner will be served at the Wauregan celebration.

Danielson has not planned any observance of the day. Its citizens, therefore, may be depended upon to swell the attendance at the celebrations in all the communities hereabouts and contribute to making each and every one of them a success.

Another Well Baby conference is to be held at the town hall building this (Friday) afternoon. Promoters of this baby welfare movement point out that in hot weather especially it is important to weigh baby frequently, and to practice care and regularity in feeding, and common sense in dressing. Small babies should show a fairly steady gain in weight, even during hot weather. Much worry, and often sickness, may be prevented by keeping children under a doctor's observation. This may be done at the Well Child conference, where once a month a doctor is on hand to consult with mothers and to examine babies and small children. Here a weight record is given each mother on which the growth may be noted from month to month.

Killingly has fared well industrially in the first six months of 1925. The manufacturing plants have operated steadily, the wage scales remaining as they were during 1924. Ordinarily, steady operation would not be considered as anything extraordinary, but it happens to be something approximating that as textile conditions have been, generally, in New England this year, Plainfield, too, has been a fortunate town. Under the circumstances the people generally hereabouts are appreciative of their good fortune. Present conditions do not approach the gilded era that marked the years of the World war, by any means, but they are so far superior to those existing in many textile centers as to cause a feeling of thanksgiving.

Frequently of late there has been discussion in business circles in Danielson about injecting greater energy into the Chamber of Commerce. There appears to be little doubt that an active, hustling organization with the united support of Danielson's business interests can become of great value to this community.

Prohibitions against bathing in lakes near Danielson have driven many of the youngsters to the dangerous expedient of utilizing once again the old swimming holes that were favorites in years gone by. River bathing in Danielson is dangerous on account of swift currents and deep holes near the banks and not too healthful when one considers the amount of sewage and other pollution that finds its way into the streams flowing through Danielson.

It is interesting to note the advertisement of the Windham County National bank as printed elsewhere on this page, as it offers a strong inducement for people to deposit in that bank.—Adv.

On Saturday, the Fourth, the post office will be open from 6:30 to 10:30 a. m. The lobby will be open throughout the day. There will be no delivery on the rural route and no money order or postal savings business will be transacted.

Local members of the Putnam Country club will be at the clubhouse in numbers for a dance planned for the night of the holiday.

Mrs. Philias Jodoin, of North Main street, continues to recover from injuries she received in an automobile accident during the past month.

This (Friday) evening brings the annual and spectacular display of fireworks at Goodyear, an event that will attract several thousand people to the neighboring community. A band concert will be given incident to the fireworks display, to which all are invited.

Young America has done very well in refraining, in Danielson, from advance use of explosives intended for celebrations of the Fourth. However, the ban remains on until 4 o'clock Saturday morning. Special officers will be on duty tonight to see that quiet prevails.

Of interest to his many friends in this territory is the announcement that Representative Sherwood B. Potter, of Brooklyn, formerly of Norwich, is to be one of the new bank examiners in Connecticut.

Dayville has a celebration of the Fourth planned, this to include a ball game and various diversions that will give residents and visitors an interesting holiday.

PUTNAM

At a meeting of the town school committee, the budget for the next school year was adopted, and will be recommended to the electors of the town for approval. The budget calls for $73,500, the same amount as last year. It is apportioned as follows:

General control, school board business office, $250; supervision, $4,000; compulsory attendance and census, $370; incidentals, $100; instruction, music supervisor, $1,200; principals, $7,750; men teachers, $2,175; women teachers, $25,330; text books, $2,000; music books, $100; stationery and supplies $2,300; Tuition fees, $600; evening school, $1,000; Americanization director, $400; incidentals, $100, Operation, janitors and cleaning, $3,100; fuel, light, water $4,600; incidentals, $100. Maintenance, repairs, $2,500; replacement of equipment, $1,000, auxiliary agencies, school libraries, $250; health department, $3,500; transportation, $775. Total $73,500.

The report of Superintendent Ralph C. Jankins to the town school committee for June follows:

The graduating exercises at Putnam High school were by common consent among the best in the history of the school. Especial credit should be given to Mrs. E. L. Robinson for the excellent chorus. I wish also to express my appreciation of the work Samuel Rich has done with the High school orchestra during. Because of the fine work the brchestra has been doing, we were able for the first time this year to make use of it at graduation.

Indications are that next year will bring the largest freshman class into Putnam High school we have ever had. During the past year, four classes a day have met in the auditorium. An increase in number will present a real problem in finding seats and recitation rooms for all of the pupils.

Elementary Schools

I have worked out with Miss Kent and Miss Duffey their schedules for the 6th grade work in the fall. Miss Kent will take arithmetic and history and Miss Duffey will take the English and geography. In the seventh grade Mr. Merrill will take the arithmetic and geography and Mrs. Merrill will take the English and history.

The tentative results of the Stanford achievement tests given in grades 4-8 inclusive in all schools are as follows:

Grade 8, nomal score 74, I. P. S. 76.3; grade 7, normal score 64, I. P. S. 62.2. Smith 64.4, Sawyer 64.6; grade 6, normal score 55, I. P. S. 52. 9, Smith 48.3, Sawyer 50.1; grade 5, normal score 44.1 I. P. S. 43.7, Smith 339.9, Sawyer 38.9; grade 4, normal score 31, I. P. S. 38.3, Smith 36.8, Sawyer 34.7.

The papers were corrected hastily in the rush of the close of the year and there may be slight errors. However, I believe that the results are fairly indicative of the abilities of Putnam children. The results tally fairly closely with the results of Monroe Silent Reading tests given previously. The achievement of our primary and grammar grades seems to be well above normal. There is room for improvement in the intermediate grades and next year's supervision will be directed toward improving the work in those grades. I shall have my pupils in the Keene Normal school check these tests during the summer for errors and compile further data from them for the benefit of the teachers next year.

The principal matter of business to come before the next meeting of the school committee will be the annual budget, for next year. I shall recommend for your approval the same amount of money for school that was asked for last year, $73,500. Certain increases in teachers' salaries are offset by the amount of money that will be necessary for fuel and repairs. Owing to the increase in high school tuition voted at a previous meeting it is probable that the net cost of running the schools next year will be less than it has been during the past year.

The selectmen of the town have called a special meeting for Monday, July 6, to see if the town will co-operate with the state highway department in having the bridge that is to built over the Quinebaug river on Pomfret street widened from 28 feet to 40 feet. The town will vote an appropriation, a sum not to exceed $2,500, to make of the bridge a memorial to the men from Putnam who saw service in the World War.

Pomfret street is a part of a state highway and as such the state pays for its upkeep as well as the repairing of bridges when necessary but their expenditure goes no further than a bridge with a 28 foot roadway.

As a result of the conference held between Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald, the selectmen of the town and the committee of the Chamber of Commerce, the new bridge on Pomfret street over the Quinebaug river will be 40 feet on the clear instead of 28 feet, but the town must pay the cost of the additional width which will not exceed $9,000.

This extra width would allow for two six-foot sidewalks on each side, the roadway to remain 28 feet as originally designed.

The commissioner agreed at once with the Putnam men that the bridge should be wider so as to permit sidewalks for pedestrians, that the volume of traffic at this point is so great that public safety demands it.

Mr. Macdonald is very desirous, however, of having the bridge made a memorial to the soldiers of the Great War and the committee have gone to Hartford to submit for his approval plans they have formulated. Four members of the committee drove to Nashua, N. H., Monday, and visited the factory there that designs and erects bronze memorials. As a result of their visit they made the following recommendations to a full meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

That bronze tablets be erected in the center of the bridge attached to either side, bearing in letters of bronze in high relief, the names of the 321 Putnam boys who were in service during the war. The tops of the tablets are to be surmounted by eagles and in a space directly under they will be graven the names of those who died in the service.

That pilasters be erected at each corner of the bridge six feet in height and 30 inches square, with emblematic designs in bronze, one for each branch of the service, the army, the navy, the marines and the aviation. Each pilaster would bear an ornamental light; the total cost of these not to exceed $2,500.

These plans were approved by the directors, and the committee, which consists of Alex Gilman, A. Newton Vaughn, Charles A. Richard, F. E. Metcalf and Walter N. King, met again with the selectman, who also concurred in the plans.

Quick action is necessary in the matter as the state highway department wishes to have the contract awarded and work begun on the construction by August 1.

It is said that Putnam is the only city of its size in the state that has no war memorial. The opportunity is now afforded to obtain one of an attractive and enduring kind at a comparatively small outlay.

most imperative, and under the con-

The widening of the bridge is additions the opportunity to make of it a soldier's memorial seems almost as obligatory.

The bridge which will be of cement will be 80 feet in length. During its construction a temporary bridge will be swung across the river immediately north of the present structure.

Orrin P. Austin entertained at his home on Woodstock avenue, in honor of his eighth birthday the following friends: Beth Thompson, Dorothy Austin, Grace Reynolds, Ruth Osier, Thelma Salisbury, Merrill Bosworth, Barbara Reynolds, Elinor Johnson, Fannie Potter, Edward Reynolds, William Johnson, Fred Tourtelotte, Hugo Carlson and Paul Austin. Three birthday cakes were cut that were presented him by Mrs. Harry Manning, of North Grosvernordale, Mrs. Ada Austin, of Webster, Mass., and Mrs. C. W. Chase, of Putnam. Sandwiches cake, fruit, candy and lemonade were served. Pony rides, bicycle rides and games were enjoyed.

Governor Trumbull has announced the following appointments of members of the Connecticut medical examining board: Charles A. Tuttle, New Haven; John C. Rowley, Hartford; Selden B. Overlock, Pomfret; Robert A. Rowley, Hartford; F. C. Hyde, Greenwich, all reappointments. Their terms are for two years.

At the meeting of Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows held in Odd Fellows' Hall the following officers were elected: N. G., Sarl E. Weeks; V. G., Reuben N. Peterson; R. S. Herbert Johnson, F. S., Lucius H. Fuller, Allie King, assistants; treasurer, Leon T. Wilson. At the meeting on July 7, District Deputy James H. McCulloch will install these officers.

Mrs. John Addison Porter entertained about one hundred members of Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R., at her home, Pen-Y-Bryn, in Pomfret, Wednesday afternoon from 4 to 6. After an informal reception, supper was served on the lawn. During the afternoon a musical program was furnished by Charles Field Swain.

PLAINFIELD

The annual outing of the Lincoln club was held this year with the men of the Methodist church, on the Fair Grounds at Brooklyn. A hundred and fifty men were present to enjoy the famous clambake put on under the direction of King George, of East Killingly. Elmer Phillips and Elmer Greene were untiring in their efforts to make the affair a great success and were assisted by Roy Parkhurst, Cecil Butler, Fred Lyon and others. Two long tables were filled twice by the men, all of whom were enthusiastic over the clam chowder, clams and fish. Soda and watermelons were provided. Ernest Wild operated an ice cream and soda booth. Games and races were participated in heartily by the men. A ball game was played between the Moosup men and the members of the Lincoln club, the Moosup team winning. Much interest centered in a tug-of-war between eleven Moosup men and eleven Plainfield men, the Plainfield team winning after a close and hard contest. The grounds were secured of Mr. Frink, of Brooklyn, who did everything possible to assist the men in enjoying a day of pleasant fellowship. Walter Cleland, president of the Lincoln club, headed the line of automobiles which left the Plainfield Congregational church about noon. On arriving at the grounds a small American flag was unfurled and the Star Spangled Banner was sung, led by James Royle. Henry Leach, of Wauregan, and a few men from the Brooklyn Men's club attended the clambake.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper is to be administered at the Sunday morning service at the Congregational church. Miss Betty Bittingen and Miss Esther Wilson will sing a duet.

A most elaborate aggregation of the select Americans of the village of Plainfield, met in an open lot close by the Burdick Gasoline Station between Bishop's Crossing and Jewett City, Wednesday evening—a regular meeting was held and new members taken into the order. The attendance was in full regalia and carried hand lights. A stranger to the village delivered a fine address and was listened to by folks of the surrounding boroughs. The most surprising event of the evening was when an old-timer and prominent citizen of the town was granted permission to use the highways of his town. The enormous gathering made a magnificent showing.

The moon failed to make its appearance Wednesday evening, but things went along very smoothly.

Local movie fans are watching the daily papers with eager eyes for data on the new movie law which went into effect July 1st.

Several local fans will motor to Boston Saturday to witness the double header between Washington and Boston.

Plainfield contributed its usual quota to the number who attended the dance at Hilton Wednesday.

The Plainfield Community association has announced that it is fostering a supervised summer camp for the boys of the village. It is one of the many progressive moves being made by the association at this time of the year. Plans for the camp have already been outlined and will be explained by Director Dissinger of the association. Mr. Dissinger has had a great deal of experience in this line of work and he has asked parents of the boys of the village to cooperate with him in making this project a success. The boys will be taught many useful and helpful things at this camp, in the direction of physical, moral and intellectual well-being.

Thursday night, the Plainfield Community House the parents of the boys of the village met with Director Dissinger to talk over and arrange the details of permitting their boys to attend the summer camp. There was a large attendance of interested parents.

Saturday, July 4th will be the last day on which the Community House at Plainfield will be open, excepting the swimming pool, which will be open for members and the public at large and the public library, open during library hours on library days. The rest of the building will be closed the summer months to reopen early in September. Director Dissinger announces that some one will be at the building to answer telephone calls and look after things in general.

The fireworks displayed in the shop windows have dropped in price.

Men are working at St. John's cemetery, trimming the hedges and cleaning up the grounds.

Two freight cars of automobiles were unloaded at the freight depot Thursday afternoon for distribution in this section.

Once again the menace of parking on both sides of the Main street almost resulted in an accident. Thursday afternoon a horse and wagon, stopped in front of the A. & P. store, was run into by a butchers cart. No damage was done to either wagon. Something should be done about the parking question by the town officials. The road either should be widened or an ordinance passed to prohibit parking on both sides of the Main street.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

The case of the State against Dustin D. Tice, of Thompsonville, for reckless driving was tried before Judge William H. Heald in the borough court Thursday morning. The accused was found guilty and fined $25.00 and costs. The complaining witness was Andrew Jarry, of Tariville, who claimed that Tice who was operating West Main street from the Monson road, ran into his car and damaged it in addition to injuring the occupants. Witnesses claimed that Jarry of his car, Jarry and the other state witnesses claimed that Jarry's car was hugging the right side of the road when the truck, driven by Tice, came diagonally across the road and struck the Jarry car which was a Scripp Booth. All the witnesses agreed that Jarry was on his right side of the road when the accident happened. Tice claimed he crossed the road to avoid hitting another car coming in from the Somers road. He took an appeal to the September term of the superior court and gave bonds for his appearance in the sum of $200. The state was represented by Prosecuting Attorney M. D. O'Connell and the accused was defended by Attorney P. J. Sullivan, of Thompsonville.

CONFERENCE ON CHINA

Conditions are not what might be regarded as entirely satisfactory in China. They are such as to give anxiety to the leading nations of the world, and in view of that, even though some are more directly concerned than others at this particular time, the report from Washington that Secretary Kellogg is making plans for calling a conference of nations concerning China indicates that this government is not disposed to let the situation get much worse without endeavoring to check it.

Conditions in China are bad enough to warrant some concerted action before taken in an effort to prevent them from getting worse. The nations have a common interest in that country. They have for the most part given endorsement to the idea of the open door in China and the latter should be at this time to see that such a policy is continued with the least friction.

The trouble in China at the present time is attributed to different causes and one of which is serious enough. It is charged that China is not respecting the rights of others and until it does it would be useless to hold a conference. When an individual is sick it is customary to hold a consultation before the patient shows signs of recovery if a consultation is going to be held. If China can straighten out the situation within its midst without a conference being held so much the better, but the internal conditions are such as to indicate that a conference might have its good effects.

It can be pointed out of course that this country has not suffered the same effects in the disturbances in China that other countries have. Because of that some might urge that we refrain from getting mixed up in it. The fact of the matter is, however, that read justments within China seem highly improbable under the present tendency, and inasmuch as all seem bound to be involved sooner or later it would be to the advantage of all including China if a way to a solution could be opened through a conference of nations. There appears to be need of a common understanding regarding conditions, and measures to be applied, and a conference would make such possible.

YOUTHFUL CRIMINALS

A few days ago the judge in the trial of a young woman named Perkins in New York city took occasion to remind the jury that neither age nor sex should be allowed to sway the verdict, and following conviction when the accused was about to be sentenced he deplored the fact that there was so much crime being committed by young people. He laid emphasis upon the point that leniency should not be permitted to sway justice and that the respect for law and the protection of the public called for the proper punishment of these young criminals. It was intimated that they had been given encouragement through their too frequently encountered disposition to overlook their acts because of their age.

As if the crime in which young people have participated has not been sufficiently serious and glaring Wednesday's police record in the metropolis serves to accentuate the very thing which Judge McIntyre called to attention.

This record included the arrest of a girl of 15 who confessed she had committed seven burglaries, having been taught how to steal while in a detention home.

Of four boys arrested for burglaries and robberies the oldest was but 20 years.

After a two mile chase a young bandit, aged 24, was caught by the police but not until he had fired two shots at the pursuing bluecoat. Arrested with him were two men, the three being suspected of cruising about the city for such crime as they could commit.

Is there any wonder under such circumstances that a feeling should exist that such individuals should be made to feel the effects of the law, that greater consideration should be given to giving protection to the law abiding people than to shielding such persons from the effects of their deliberate wrong doing, or that the need exists for giving more serious consideration to the criminal inclination among the young people?

SELLING THE SHIPS

When the shipping board put up 500 ships for sale for scrapping purposes it reserved the right to decline any bids. Thus there is no telling what will be the outcome of the bids that have been received, the highest being for the entire lot at about a million and a third dollars.

Not until President Palmer of the fleet corporation analyzes the bids will it be known whether or the vessels are to remain at anchor or to change hands. When the board put them up for bids for scrapping it indicated what it considered the value of the vessels, and furnished roughly what it considered might be obtained for them, since vessels for scrapping cannot be expected to produce more than a scrapping price.

Whether the highest scrapping offer is what it should be, all things considered, will be determined in the review of the bids. The offer means a little over $6,500 apiece for the vessels, a mere fraction of what they originally cost, but with the ships tied up doing nothing but rusting away and entailing an annual expense upon the government with no prospect that there will ever be a use for them it is a question now whether there is value enough in the vessels in excess of the highest offer to warrant holding onto them any longer.

These 200 ships represent only a part of the fleet which the shipping board contends inasmuch as they have been offered for scrapping it is to be inferred that they are the poorest of the lot and the highest bidder says such vessels are not worth over $6,500 each to him. Such a price is better than letting them rot, taking them to sea and scuttling them or even giving them away. It would not only mean some return on a poor investment but it would also put an end to the annual expense which is now required to maintain watchmen on them and such small amount of protective work as is done upon them. It seems quite evident that these vessels are not gaining in value by riding at anchor 365 days in the year.

SPEEDING THE MOTORISTS

Not a little interest has been aroused by the announcement by the chief of the state police in Rhode Island that it will be necessary to drive 35 miles an hour on its main thoroughfares or keep off those roads. That is, of course, a speed which some drivers never think of approaching. They believe in the interest of safety to others as well as themselves it is most unwise for them to undertake to burn up the highway in any such manner.

This endeavor to speed up traffic in Rhode Island is no different than is being done elsewhere. It is not so different from the view which has been taken by the motor vehicle department of this state in holding that the slow driver is quite as dangerous as some fast ones because of the large number of cars which are forced to turn out in crowded highways to pass.

In an explanation of his position the Rhode Island chief of the state police declares it is not intended to enforce the 35 miles regardless of conditions but it is intended to be reasonable but the purpose is to overcome so far as possible the Sunday highway congestion by requiring the slow cars to speed up and thus require less cars to buck the equally heavy traffic going in the opposite direction in order to get ahead.

There is of course reason in all things, but the heavy traffic on main thoroughfares, week ends and holidays, is such that many motorists either stay at home or else seek the less used highways. That likewise is one of the reasons why demands are made for additions to the state highway system whereby it is possible to reach certain points over more than one route.

SENATOR UNDERWOOD

More than the people of Alabama will have cause for regret that Senator Oscar W. Underwood has decided that he will not be a candidate for reelection after the expiration of his present term, of which there remain about two years. He is held in the highest regard by the people of his state but his service in the senate has been such as to make it evident to others that the upper branch of congress will suffer a conspicuous loss by his retirement.

Senator Underwood is a democrat, but he is also a statesman. He looks through democratic eyes but there is never a tinge of that radicalism which characterizes many. His congressional service has covered periods in both houses and in each body there has been full recognition of his ability and his determination to deal with legislative matters for the best interests of the country. That is why there will be sincere disappointment within the senate, by republicans as well as democrats, over his decision.

Senator Underwood has held a high position among those mentioned for the democratic nomination for president and for the same reason that he has made such a favorable impression during his service in congress. He is a sturdy conservative political leader who plays fair and one whose position is not changing from day to day. His course has demonstrated long since that he stood for safety and sanity in politics and his methods were such that confidence could be placed in his action. Being out of sympathy with leadership along different lines there is not so much surprise that he should desire to rest on his laurels.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Despite the fact that President Coolidge has left Washington on what many writers claim to be a vacation trip, he will, nevertheless, have a most busy summer at Swampscott, at which point he can put in his customary ten to fourteen hours a day looking after the affairs of the nation. His departure from Washington simply meant a change of location of office for the president will have but a slight opportunity to get what might really be termed a vacation.

Many problems, both national and international, will arise this summer There will be numerous conferences, besides those being held, which will concern the matter of the funding of the debts owed us by European countries, and these are matters that the president must necessarily keep in touch with every hour of the day. Secretary Mellon, who this week conferred with the representative of the Italian government concerning the funding of Italy's debt, has taken a house on the cool shores of Long Island, at which point this and other monetary conferences will be held. It is believed that at least four other countries will hold "parleys" as these conferences are called, with the secretary of the treasury concerning their country's indebtedness to the United States.

Washington, instead of seeing an unusually quiet year as was expected by many, will witness a strenuous summer, for the majority of cabinet officers will be in the city, and practically all of the assistants to them will spend practically the entire summer period in the nation's capital.

There is no doubt but the president's declarations in regard to the foreign debts have penetrated the minds of the foreign politicians who realize that the citizens of their respective countries are alive to the fact that England's financial recovery was, in a great measure, due to her coming forward and making a satisfactory agreement with the United States regarding her debts. The funding of these European "bills payable" will assist, to quite an extent, in securing further tax reductions.

As predicted several months ago, the democratic politicians have realized that the American public stands firmly back of President Coolidge in the matter of tax reduction.

There is hardly a day in Washington but what some democratic senator, representative, or political highlight of the democratic fold, does not come out in clarion tones stating that taxes should be reduced, and the vast majority of them have twisted around into their language the thoughts that President Coolidge gave voice to over a year ago.

It is the aim of the president to make the tax reductions effective early in 1926.

In the matter of surtaxes, which during the last campaign, the democrats were insistent upon maintaining, and in this were aided by radicals in the house and senate, there will be a decided reduction. These tax reforms will encourage the free flow of capital into productive industry. They will benefit the "little fellow" far more than the capitalist for he can put his money in tax exempt bonds or other securities not taxable either by government or state. Secretary Mellon has very amply said, "With new tax exempt securities issued at the rate of one thousand million dollars a year, and with other means of escaping income tax, the wealthy need no guardian." Mr. Mellon understands financial affairs far better than the average politician. In this statement the people will concur. The "little fellow" will thus have afforded him an opportunity to share in the added prosperity which will result in the releasing of more capital for productive enterprises. The reduction of these taxes will not only benefit manufacturing industries, but will materially aid agriculture, for high surtax rates under peace time conditions do not make for a general distribution of wealth.

The action of the democratic politicians in this complete reversal of form regarding tax reductions is one that will no doubt bring a smile to the face of thousands and thousands of our citizens who had been contentedly sitting back realizing that the president was right and that he would eventually force even his political enemies to realize that his policy of economy in governmental affairs and his tax reduction programme were indorsed by them, the people of the nation.

The recent note to Mexico by Secretary of State Kellogg will undoubtedly result in the Mexican government realizing that American rights of life and property must be protected and that the United States, while it desires to be on most friendly terms with her sister republic of the south, does not intend to have her face slapped by Mexico or anyone else.

Secretary Kellogg, in his published statement, called attention to the fact that an act of confiscation had been perpetrated by the Calles government and that the same had been brought about by "the unreasonable demands of labor."

Organized labor in the United States and re-organized labor in Mexico are two entirely different propositions. In Mexico they have two labor organizations and, while one of them is slightly sympathetic with the aims of the American Federation of Labor in this country, it is openly pronounced communistic in its aims and purposes. The other labor organization in Mexico holds nothing in common with American labor and it is also communistic in the full meaning of the word. The United States wants the friendship of all the nations of the world, but it does not intend to be bullied or bluffed by any country, nor any group of people in any country who are communistic to the nth degree.

According to William C. Deming, president of the United States civil service commission over 300,000 claims for preference in appointment to positions in the classified civil service have been allowed by the United States civil service commission under the veteran preference acts of March 3, and July 11, 1919. Of the number before mentioned, about 224,000 qualified, thereby becoming eligible for appointment, and nearly 95,000 have received appointments.

Turkish Fire Fighting

In Constantinople Turkish firemen respond to an alarm of fire with a small hand pump attached to a garden hose. The city's fire loss is so heavy that the city virtually is rebuilt every fifty years. And, strangely enough, the most popular attraction in the municipal museum is a modern fire truck in bright red with brass trimmings, presented to the city before the World war by the German Kaiser. The Turks were puzzled what to do with it until some one suggested putting it in the museum.

ATTRACTIVE GIRL

"What a delicately beautiful creature that Miss Asperine is!" mused the wealthy uncle who was always picking out a wife for his favorite nephew. "I never tire looking at her, and she has such a lovely smile! She seems to have such an even disposition too!"

"Genevieve certainly has that!" agreed the favorite nephew heartily. "It is so even that no matter how desperate the situation no flicker ever mars its surface. That is because she thoroughly believes in letting George do it. Now, in the matter of that bag—"

"Bag?" stuttered the wealthy uncle quite at sea, "She carried a very striking imported bead bag this evening, I observed—"

"You would," the favorite nephew admitted. "I expect you observed it when you picked it up. Somebody always is picking up Genevieve's bag. It is so expensive that it worries everybody except Genevieve and so you see she does not have to bother much about it or keep her mind on it. And she smiles so sweetly when you hand it to her.

"Why, the other night I was at a dinner party which Genevieve attended and all through the affair the four men present alternated in sliding down under the table to pick up Genevieve's bag.

"'Swish!' went the bag with the first sip of soup. 'Dear me!' murmured Genevieve in pretty surprise. 'I've dropped my bag—oh, thank you, Albert,' as Albert emerged looking like an angry cockatoo with his coiffure standing at all ends. 'Swush!' went the bag with the fillet and this time Henry flopped down on all fours and climbed up resembling a stroke of apoplexy that was going strong. I doubled up and dashed beneath the board with the salad and I give you my word that girl smiled like a saint when I handed in the treasure and made my heart thump, breathless as I was.

"It was after midnight when we left the Dillards' apartment and Genevieve and I, together with the Smiths, walked half a block to where I had parked the bus. The Smiths were catching a train to the suburbs and I had assured them they had plenty of time. Just as we got all tucked in, Genevieve, in the front seat with me gave a charming gasp. 'Lemuel!' she said, 'My doorkey! It's in my bag and I haven't got my bag! I must have left it at the Dillards'!'

"I dismounted and galloped back to the Dillards'. A true gentleman is reluctant to ring a door bell at 1 o'clock a. m., and I was stocked at the change in Dillard when he came to the door. In place of a smiling debonair host in full attire whom I had left, I now encountered an irascible person in his underwear, quite lacking a collar. He said indignantly he supposed it was a telegram. If, there was any spot in that apartment we did not search looking for Genevieve's bag it was concealed by a pinhead. Mrs. Dillard hunted out her best negligee and joined us.

"But we found no bag.

"'That bag isn't here!' Dillard declared flatly and turned me out. I galloped back to the car and reported. 'It must be there,' Genevieve said sweetly and reproachfully. 'Because you can plainly see it isn't here! I don't believe you half looked'

"'We've certainly missed the last train home,' said the Smiths. 'We'll just have to go to a hotel for the rest of the night and we haven't even a toothbrush!'

"'I haven't the remotest idea how I am going to get in!' Genevieve murmured still sweetly. 'None of the family will hear the door bell this late! What shall I do, Lemuel?'

"Just then she got up to readjust herself on the seat and laughed prettily. 'Dear me!' she said amiably. 'Why, here is my bag after all! I was sitting on it! It's all right, after all.'

"'So you can see—'

"'Like a shot!' said the wealthy uncle greatly surprised. 'Now, who ever would have thought it? Well, I'll have to look around a bit more for you, but I'll keep at it, my boy!'"—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Chiding Uncle Billy

Mr. Editor: Poor "Uncle Billy" has been lambasted enough without my taking a hand but his last letter so plainly gives him away that I cannot keep out of the game.

He goes along all right for a while, then suddenly says, "A woman's bare legs look well in some places" and then infers that those objects of many uncles' discussion are all O. K., bare, if on the stage.

Pie, you 75-year bald-headed-row uncle, I'm ashamed of you. So you like to see um on the stage hey?

Now, Uncle Billy we've got your number, but some of us live away back in the sticks, away from the stage and what are we going to do for a peep if Uncle Billy has his way?

Go on now Uncle Billy, let the girls alone, some of those dear old ladies he speaks of used to wear ungodly looking bustles behind them and things built up out of mohair just under their chins also left among their keepsakes pretty little saucers of chinaware. Uncle Billy is ten years older than I am and must have seen them pretty saucers when they came from the drug stores, the top part of them neatly covered with face paint.

When I was a boy seven years old I poisoned badly with ivy, my mother learned putting dry flour on my face was good for poison, so after I had had it tried once or twice I used to amuse myself in church counting the dear old ladies that must be poisoned by the way they floured their faces.

Uncle Billy makes one think of David of old. If all reports are true David was considerably a ladies' man, but when his son Absolem started in the same course and David was notified of it, the Bible says he said, "Would to God I had died for three, Oh! Absolem my son, my son."

Let the girls alone Uncle Billy, the more they dress less the less Uncle Billy and I want the fashion changed.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Hubert Work, Secretary of the Interior in the Coolidge Cabinet, is in line for congratulations today on his 68th birthday anniversary. Dr. Work has the distinction of being the first member of the medical profession to hold a cabinet office. He is a native of Pennsylvania who received his professional training at the medical school of the University of Pennsylvania and then went west to begin practice. He finally located in Pueblo, Colo., where he became a specialist in mental and nervous diseases. The high standing which he attained in his profession is evidenced by the fact that he has been honored with the presidency of the American Medical Association. In addition to his professional duties, Dr. Work took an active interest in Republican politics, serving as chairman of the state committee and as a delegate to national convention. He entered the Harding Administration as First Assistant Postmaster General, being later promoted to Postmaster General and subsequently transferred to the head of the Interior department.

Stories That Recall Others

A Letter From Home

A man stood in front of a fruit stand where were several large cuts of water melon. A perspiring colored boy was seen approaching.

As he reached the stand the man said, "Charlie, what's that?" pointing to the melon. The colored fellow stopped and mopped the perspiration from his brow as a broad smile illuminated his features. "That's a lettah from home," he said. "Yes sir, that's a lettah from home," and Charlie got one unexpectedly.

Well Said

Virginia and Helene were five year old playmates. Virginia was the sort of child that doted on fighting and pulling hair. She always tried to outdo everyone, and especially Helene's family.

When Helene's sister was one year old she had a birthday party. Virginia was not permitted to go but her mother helped Helene's mother. When she told Virginia that the baby had a large, white birthday cake with a pink candle, Virginia frowned and, after pondering for a moment, retorted: "Well, that's nothing, when I have a birthday I'm going to have a pie with a lamp on it."

Today's Birthdays

From Small Beginnings

George H. Roberts, the Typesetter, a Parliamentary Leader

To become food controller of a great nation after having experienced difficulty in securing money enough with which to buy food for one's self, is indeed, to make an advance in life. That is the advance that George Roberts made—at one time an utterly unknown English boy looking for a job; in 1919 food controller in England. The story of this leader in the British parliament is a story that should bring hope to any man who is struggling upward. No one who is willing to work need starve; no one who is ambitious is unable to find some means of gratifying his ambition.

When George Roberts was a 14-year-old boy he appeared in a printer's office.

"Young man, if you're going to be an apprentice here, you've got to work," said the printer.

"Yes, sir," answered the boy. "I'll work."

And work he did, doing all of the many tasks that were assigned to him, covering himself with ink and smut, cleaning type, "pulling" proofs, and little by little learning how to set type as well as any man in the office. The years went on and the boy became more expert, gained from typesetting the knowledge that he had had no opportunity to gain from the higher schools, and picked up from associations in the printing office the desire to read and study. That was the principal way in which he gained ambition and cultivated ability.

Arrived at manhood, Roberts looked upon the world around him and saw that printers, considered one at a time, were weak, but taken as a body, might be strong. He was so active in developing that he was elected the head of a typesetting organization and then a labor council that included other occupations. In this work he showed earnestness, unusual personal power, great ability as a speaker, and a leadership that was worthy of respect. The typesetters and printers of England made him one of their most important officials, and when he was 37 years of age, supported him for a position in parliament.

Now, in new surroundings, new opportunities appeared. Once again he spoke earnestly, though wisely and acted vigorously. He became a leader, a commissioner of the treasury, minister of labor and at 50 food controller. Such a life history is an inspiration to any man.

Pretty Green Reads.

Minor eye troubles resulting from the reflected glare from gray or white auto roads in England are afflicting a great number of drivers, a British optician declares, and recommends that green coloring matter be mixed with the surfacing material to curb the evil. The effects are said to be most pronounced among drivers who are compelled to gaze at the road constantly.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

NOVA SCOTIA

Sydney, Nova Scotia, coaling station for — MacMillan Arctic Expedition under the auspices of the National Geographic society is the subject of the following communication to the society from Catherine MacKenzie, issued as a bulletin from the organization's Washington, D. C. headquarters.

"Sydney shares with North Sydney, opposite, one of the finest ports in North America, a harbour three miles wide at its mouth, five miles long and having an area of twenty-five square miles. During the late war thousands of American troops were convoyed to France from this port when even Halifax was temporarily threatened by submarines.

"It was a garrison town until the Crimean war, and from that heritage it has some well-planned streets—two of them, now 'Charlotte' and 'George' streets, were once more picturesquely 'Queen Charlotte' and 'King George.'

"Sydney was settled in 1784 by three thousand United Empire Loyalists. It was named in honor of England's then Secretary of State upon whose advice Cape Breton Island was made a separate province.

"Cape Breton Island has the most extensive coal deposits in Canada, and the only coal at tide water on the Atlantic coast. The Sydneys—there are three of them: Sydney, North Sydney, and Sydney Mines—are the center of the great mining and steel industry which now comprises as well the coal deposits of Pictou and Cumberland Counties and the steel plant of New Glasgow.

"Nova Scotia is the most easterly province of Canada and is all but surrounded by the sea. Situated far out in the Atlantic these coasts were alike the haunt of Norse rovers in the tenth century, and the landfall of John Cabot—the first sighting of the continent of North America of which there is record. The earliest known landing in the New World was that of the younger Cabot, who visited Cape Breton Island (the smaller of the two islands of Nova Scotia) a year before Columbus reached the mainland. Upon this landing England based her claim in the long struggle for its possession that ensued with France.

"From these earliest maritime beginnings Nova Scotia has continued to be the most maritime of all the so called 'Maritime Provinces.' No part of the province is farther than 3 miles from the sea, and there are tales of ships—frigate-of-war privateer, pirate and buried treasure, for every mile of her harbour indented coast. And she still is—will always be—the gateway of the Atlantic. Her ports are six hundred miles nearer to those of Europe than is, for instance, New York; and so far easterly is her projection that the shipping of Sydney and Louisbourg and Halifax is closer to Rio de Janeiro than that of New Orleans.

"Historically Nova Scotia is a land of first things—the first European settlement North of Florida; the first road in Canada, built by the French soon after 1604; the first representative government; and the first university outside of the British Isles. Here the first Atlantic cable was landed, and here Marconi sent his first wireless message between the two hemispheres.

"In the Acadian settlements both on the West Coast and in Cape Breton, the French of Louis XIV is still spoken, and in the ruins of old Fort Anne of Louisbourg and many another stronghold, the visitor may retrace the long struggle between England and France in the New World.

"Between 1773 and 1828 more than 25,000 Scotch Highlanders emigrated to Nova Scotia, a stream that has made portions of the country, especially Cape Breton Island, as Gaelic as the most Gaelic part of Scotland.

"There are still communities of their descendants where the Gaelic tongue is as familiar as English—the tongue that hurled defiance at Caesar from the shore of Britain two thousand years ago; churches where sermons in both languages may be heard; glens where the pibroch sounded in the late war, and bronzed kilted Highlanders—Nova Scotia Highlanders now—made common cause with English Loyalist and French Acadian.

"American sportsmen have long known Nova Scotia for its moose and deer and caribou hunting, its salmon and trout—and the only tuna fishing (that most exciting sport in the angler's calendar) on the Atlantic coast. Yachtsmen all over the world know its superb harbors and the unparalleled cruising of the Bras d'Or Lakes. Now every year more motorists are discovering its nearness and its 2000 miles of fine motor roads.

"The climate of the province is tempered by the Gulf stream which runs northeasterly and parallel to the coast of Nova Scotia till it meets the Arctic current flowing south. The minimum temperature in record for Halifax is -17 and the maximum 98.7 and for Yarmouth a minimum of 11.7 and a maximum of 84.3. Apart from the effect of the Gulf stream, the nearness of the ocean gives a milder climate than that of many more southern parts of the mainland."

GERMAN INFANT MORTALITY REDUCED BY HALF

BERLIN, July 3.—(AP)—Statistics recently published show that the mortality among infants is much less than in pre-war days. During the third quarter of last year the death rate was only about one-half the percentage during the years just prior to the World war.

The medical authorities attribute this improved condition to the cold weather during the latter part of 1924, which they state is always more beneficial than warm weather for infants during their first year.

The cost of harvesting and storing feed in the form of silage is the cheapest a ton of any crops harvested.

Mr. Ashley was a brother of the late postmaster Edward E. Ashley of Plainfield. Besides Mrs. Winsor there is another niece Mrs. C. N. Mathewson and a nephew Alfred D. Hawley in Plainfield. Other relatives are a brother George D. Ashley of Los Angeles, Cal., and a sister Mrs. W. C. Heath of Barrington, R. I. He is also survived by his wife who has been blind for ten years and is cared for by a sister, Miss Ida Palmer. Mr. and Mrs. Ashley were natives of Scotland, Conn., and have many friends and relatives in this state.

Mrs. Joseph G. Perkins

Mrs. Louisa Griswold Perkins, 82, widow of Brig. Gen. Joseph G. Perkins of the Civil War, died Monday in her eighty-third year at her home in Old Lyme. She was a daughter of Richard Sill and Francis Mather Griswold, and a descendant of the Griswolds who were prominent shipping merchants of New York early in the last century.

FUNERALS.

Samuel A. Gardner

The Bulletin's correspondent writes: Samuel A. Gardner, 67, son of Rev. Austin and Emily Baker Gardner, died at his home in New Haven Sunday afternoon, from pernicious anaemia. For twenty-five years he had been general humane agent for the New Haven district. He was a deacon of Plymouth Congregational church, and had sung in church choirs all his life. Mr. Gardner's father was the last Congregational minister in Willington, the two churches being federated after his death. He leaves his wife, a daughter, Miss Amy Gardner, who is a teacher in New Haven, a son, Harold Gardner, of Whittier, California, and a grandson, Frank Spooner, of Spencer Mass. A daughter, Linda, wife of Francis Spooner, died several years ago. He also leaves a brother, Dwight Gardner, of Rockville, and a sister, Miss Genevieve Gardner, of Willington Hill. His son, Harold, was a missionary in Turkey for years, returning on account of ill health. Mr. Gardner possessed literary ability and was especially noted for his poetry. He was well known throughout the state. The funeral was held at his home in New Haven, and a service at the grave in the new cemetery extension, in Willington, Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, Rev. E. E. Sundt officiating. Burial was in Willington cemetery in the family lot. Besides the family, the mourners included Mr. and Mrs. Spooner and son Francis Spooner, with his wife and son, Mrs. Hattie Hanmer, of Burnside, Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Flather, of Norwich, and Mr. Brooks, who succeeded Mr. Gardner as humane agent. There were beautiful floral pieces. A number of friends in Willington assembled to pay their last tribute of respect to this man of worthy deeds.

Window in Patriotic Decorations

Among the several Fourth of July patriotic displays in local store windows, which are most favorably commented upon is that of Hawkins the florist which is unique in style and well suited for the occasion.

Both windows are trimmed with grouped or clustered flags woven together in such a manner as to make a solid background of national colors. In one window is a picture of George Washington mounted on a horse, this being set back of an open frame, thus giving depth to the picture. Clusters of small American flags are grouped at either side of the picture. The other window is draped in flags and in the center is placed a prettily worked card bearing the inscription, "With Justice and Freedom for all."

Patent to John H. Barnes

Recent patents issued include: Joseph Regan, Rockville, brick; John H. Barnes, Norwich, closure for shoe uppers; Peter Hardman, Willimantic, card forming machine; Lawrence T. Spear, New London, gun mounting for submarines.

WEST END ASSOCIATION COMPLETES PLANS FOR OBSERVANCE OF THE FOURTH

Everything is in readiness for the Fourth of July celebration by members of the West Side Community association and their friends. During the present week members have been working to put the tennis court into shape and it is now in the best of condition and ready for play. A number of games are scheduled for Saturday to christen the court for 1925.

Sam Slosberg, chairman of athletics for the day, assisted by E. J. Fritts of the Young Men's Christian association, has arranged a fine card of sporting events for the afternoon program, to be staged at the Norwich Fairgrounds. The events in this meet are to be divided into five groups: for younger boys, older boys, men, women and girls and there are a number of events in each class with suitable prizes for the winners.

The events are: Older boys—100 yard dash, half mile relay, obstacle race, half mile bike race, and shot put.

Younger boys—75 yard dash, 440 yard relay, obstacle race, potato race and half mile bike race.

Men—Tug of war between teams made up of the benedicts and those fortunate enough to escape the entanglements of married bliss (?), nail driving contest for amateur and professional carpenters and the shot put.

Women—Tug of war between those who have "got their man" and those who are still hunting, and a needle race.

Girls—75 yard dash, 220 yard relay race and a clothes-line race. A clothes-line race must be seen in order to be appreciated, according to Sam.

Following the afternoon sports other entertainment is provided and the Italian Band will render a two hour concert beginning at 6 o'clock. All the time basket luncheons are being enjoyed. Everyone in the city interested in enjoying a meal out of doors is invited to the basket lunch and community song festival, for there will be pleasure in both events. The singing will be led by Roderick F. Sullivan, an honorary member of the association, and it may be depended upon that a good sing is in store for all attending. During the afternoon and evening Charles Parsons, will be in charge of the refreshments and there will be no danger of thirst.

The celebration is to continue into the evening and at dark there will be a fine display of fireworks. The display is not as elaborate as that of last year but the committee in charge of the night program promises a treat.

The association has been busy preparing the recreation field for the summer and the baseball diamond is now ready as well as the tennis court and these will probably be in steady use by the young people throughout the season. The recreation field is located in the Lucas lot at the city line and is a site well adapted for the use of the sporting element of the association.

LIONS WILL SEND FOUR BOYS TO SCOUT CAMP

President William A. Anderson presided over the meeting of the Norwich Lions club, Thursday noon at the Wauregan House, for the first time in his official capacity and a most enthusiastic meeting was held. Earle Taggart was song leader for the day and a number of snappy songs were sung.

Chairman George Madden of the Ladies' Night committee reported concerning the Ladies' Night Outing to be held at the club at Oswegatchie on Thursday evening of next week. Dinner is to be served at 7:30 o'clock to be followed by dancing and the event is sure to be one of the features of the year.

The club voted to send one boy each week, for four weeks, to the Boy Scout camp at Beach Pond.

President "Bill" Anderson speaking for the first time in his official capacity urged the members to stand by loyally and work earnestly for service to the community and the nation, setting forth the slogan of "service" as the paramount issue for Lions. He also stated that the pep of Norwich Lions was well known and that they always received a royal welcome when they visited neighboring clubs.

WILLIAM A. ANDERSON

The members voted to stand back of President Bill during his term in office.

Past President Dr. Hugh R. Campbell of the Norwich Rotary club was a guest of the club and voiced the speaker at the Rotary International convention held recently in Cleveland, who said, "If war was threatening between the United States and England and if each nation should appoint committees of Lions and Rotarians to discuss their grievances, we surely would have no wars." The Lions and Rotarians, said Dr. Campbell, are patriotic organizations and at the same time they stand for fellowship and brotherly love in the community and between all mankind. Dr. Campbell's message received an ovation.

Manager E. L. McEvoy of the Palace Theatre was also present and spoke at length on the aims and ideals of Lionism. The meeting closed after William Huber rendered a number of delightful piano selections, with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

BACHELORS CLUB GAVE DINNER FOR MEMBERS

About 16 members of the Bachelors Club journeyed to Niantic Wednesday evening, where a most appetizing shore dinner was served at the Bay View hotel. The dinner was given in honor of Frank Loomis and Leroy Spinard who have just returned from college.

After all had satisfied their appetites, the first part of the evening was given over to entertainment. Bert Friswell gave a very intresting talk on his recent trip to Canada. One of the outstanding features of the evening was a sketch put on by two of the members called "A Swan and a Fox." It was in the form of an eating contest, the swan losing out.

Vocal solos were rendered by Mr. Jones and Mr. Spinard, after which the party returned to Norwich where a bowling contest was held at Palace Bowling Alleys. Mr. Kendall took the honors of the evening.

The party disbanded about midnight after agreeing that a most enjoyable evening had been spent by all. The club will hold their next outing August 5th.

WITHDRAWAL IN SUIT AGAINST BONDING CO.

Withdrawal from the dockets of both the superior and the supreme courts was filed Thursday with Clerk George E. Parsons in his suit of Robert W. Perkins, receiver of the Shore Line Electric Railway Co., against Louis I. Levinson and his bondsman, the Maryland Casualty Co.

The receiver obtained a judgment for $33,142.05 against the Casualty Co. on a $50,000 bond which it gave for the performance by Levinson of a contract to buy rails and other trolley road material from the receiver. Both the receiver and the casualty company appealed from this judgment to the supreme court but about two weeks ago the receiver was given authority on a motion in the superior court to accept $18,000 from the casualty company in settlement of the suit. The suit is now withdrawn from both courts.

FRANCES WHEELER SPEAKER ON COMMUNITY MUSIC

All residents of Norwich interested in playground endeavor will grasp the opportunity to attend the final session of the institute which has been held every morning of this week at the Elks' home. The first session began last Monday; the session today (Friday) will close the meetings of the institute. A treat is in store for those who visit the Friday meeting.

To open the programs, the recreation commission had the extreme good fortune to engage Frances Wheeler, community music organizer, Playground and Recreation association of America. Miss Wheeler occupies an office of great distinction, but her reputation as a lecturer even surpasses the dignity of her position on the Playground and Recreation association of America. The subject of her lecture, "Community Music," promises an interesting as well as intellectual treat.

As first speaker of Thursday morning's session, Supt. Earl E. Brigham introduced Professor Adelaide Patterson, State College of Education, R. I. For her lecture, Professor Patterson chose the following subject, "Dramatics for Playgrounds."

In her talk Professor Patterson traced the steady progression of pageantry and dramatic art, beginning with the most primitive types of mankind and journeying down the broad highway of the ages up to this modern era of wonderful scientific achievement and cultural development. Miss Patterson stressed the tremendous importance of dramatized interpretation as attested by the voice of centuries.

"Dramatics," Miss Patterson said, "can and should mean something more to a child than merely a form of amusement. In working out the intricacies of the plot the juveniles realize and appreciate the good and bad qualities of each character and react to them accordingly. In the case of juvenile dramatics the ethical side of the situation is of paramount importance."

Professor Patterson told how a story can be suitably dramatized and taking one in particular, "Why Jimmie Skunk Wears White Stripes," she proceeded to inform the instructors how the story could be fittingly enacted. The institute well-nigh terminated in a riot when volunteers were called upon to fill the role of that well-known "free lance," the skunk.

To complete the morning's program the local authority on dramatics, Miss Catherine Dodd, had a few words to say.

As to Miss Dodd's personal talent nothing need be said. Her best recommendation is that based on past service. In her previous two seasons in connection with the Lake street playground she has endeared herself in the hearts of all, whose good fortune it was to claim her as friend or teacher. It is certainly felt that her new position, special instructor in dramatics, will only give further scope to her earnest zeal and whole hearted endeavor in behalf of her playgrounds.

In her talk, Miss Dodd emphasized the fact that to secure progress in all lines of playground activities and especially in her own brand, "Dramatics," the co-operation of each and every one of the staff of her fellow associates must be had. Miss Dodd told the institute that the value of working side by side with each little pupil cannot be overstressed.

It is the earnest wish of the playground commission that citizens of Norwich realize in some measure the full significance of the institute which is being held this week. A hearty invitation is extended to visitors and friends to attend these morning sessions of the institute.

JAIL SENTENCES WITH FINES IN LIQUOR CASES

Three of the men arrested Wednesday afternoon and evening in liquor raids by state police with the co-operation of local officers were given fines and jail sentences in the city court Thursday morning and the fourth was given a fine without jail.

Joseph Slowikowski of Cove street, Philip Morris of 24 Elm street and Ovilard Bouchard of Merchants avenue, Taftville, were each given fines of $200 and 10 days in jail by Judge A. F. Libby, who presided at the court session. They paid their fines and costs and went to jail. Andrew Bohara of 16 Starr street was given a $200 fine without the jail sentence. He paid.

Five of the eight men who were arrested at the Rose place dock Wednesday evening for intoxication went to jail when they could not pay the $8 fines imposed upon them. Officer Charles Smith took eight men to jail in the patrol wagon.

The total court receipts for the day were about $1,000, of which $835 was received because of the liquor raids.

PAYS UP JUDGMENT IN SUPERIOR COURT

Satisfaction of judgment was filed in the office of the superior court clerk Thursday in the suit of Frank M. Roche, a Waterford contractor, against John C. Robinson of Middletown, owner of a summer cottage in the Great Neck section of Waterford. The contractor secured a judgment for $8,423 and costs of $71.63 in his suit against Robinson for work on the summer cottage. Robinson has now paid the judgment and costs.

WEDDINGS

Law-Brittin.

The Madison (N. J.) Eagle of Friday, June 26, said:

The graduating seniors with whom she sat last night at James hall little guessed that Miss Carol Brittin had already changed her name and that a new wedding ring on her left hand was hidden beneath the black folds of the senior gown. It was generally understood that the marriage would be held later in the week.

Miss Brittin, the daughter of Mrs. John F. Brittin and the late Mr. Brittin, was married to Floyd Alvah Law, of Morristown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Law, of Cape May Court House, Thursday evening at 7 o'clock, in the First Methodist church with the Rev. Philip S. Watters officiating. Only the bridal party and the immediate family were present.

Miss Daisy Herrington, A.A.G.O., musical instructor of the bride for many years, played "O, Promise Me" and "To a Wild Rose" during the double ring ceremony.

Miss Brittin wore a gown of white French voile, embroidered in medallions of French knots, trimmed with white ribbon and carried a bouquet of white roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Natalie Mary Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jones, Woodland road, was pretty in a frock of flowered rose voile. Charles Reade, of Morristown, attended the bridegroom. After the service a supper for the party was served in the apartment of the bride's mother. Early this morning the young couple left by boat for a short visit in Connecticut.

To travel the bride wore a blue and rose figured silk gown, a powder blue coat trimmed with white fur and a small white satin hat. They will make their home in an apartment adjoining Mrs. Brittin's.

The bride is a Golden Eaglet in the Girl Scout order, was graduated from Madison high school last evening and is a pianist of ability, and plans to continue her study and teaching of music. She is a great-great-granddaughter of Colonel William Brittin, who was prominently connected with the early history of Madison. Mr. Law is connected with the Knight Construction company, of Morristown.

The bride is the daughter of former Norwich residents, Mrs. John F. Brittin and the late John F. Brittin, who lived at 46 Geer avenue. They resided in Thamesville for 28 years. John F. Brittin was one of the first employes of the cutlery, helping to set up the machinery before starting up, then inspector and shipping clerk. He was boss inspector for 15 years before and at the time of his death in 1917 from pneumonia after three days' sickness. E. C. Brittin, of 449 Boswell avenue, is a brother of the bride.

Van Heek-Franken

Miss Hildegard Franken of Union City, formerly of Stonington, was united in marriage to Theodore Van Heek Saturday afternoon, by the Rev. William Mager, pastor of Columbia Street Evangelical church. She was attired in white georgette and chantilly lace, her veil being studded with rhinestones and edged with lilies of the valley, and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor was Miss G. Pullman, who was gowned in turquoise georgette with hat and carried Coolidge rosas. The bridesmaids were Miss Augusta Enger and Mrs. Johannah Bishop wearing orchid chiffon gowns with picture hats and carried butterfly roses. The best man was Fred Bishop and John Hammacher and Theodore Pollman were ushers.

They will make their future home at 501 Palisade avenue, Union City, upon the completion of the honeymoon at Atlantic City.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Franken.

McGowan-Wood

Miss Emily Katherine Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wood, of Stonington, was married to Andrew H. McGowan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McGowan, also of that place, at St. Mary's church, Stonington, at 8 o'clock Thursday morning. The ceremony was performed and the nuptial mass celebrated by the Rev. James C. O'Brien.

The bride wore white satin and a tulle veil caught up with pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of Killarney roses. She was attended by the bridegroom's sister, Miss Katherine McGowan, who wore peach georgette and a black picture hat. She carried an arm bouquet of butterfly roses. Charles Wood, brother of the bride, was the best man. Mrs. Murphy, of Westerly played the wedding march from Lohengrin and Mr. Sellman sang O Promise Me, and I Love You Truly.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a novelty bracelet and the bridegroom's gift to the best man was a leather cigarette case.

The bride is a graduate of Stonington High school and of the Hartford Training School for Nurses. Previous to her marriage she was a member of the Hartford Visiting Nurse's association. Mr. McGowan is also a graduate of Stonington High school and is at present a member of the home office of a Hartford Insurance company.

After a brief honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. McGowan will be at home at 272 Edgewood street, Hartford.

Watrous-Nordfeldt

The marriage of Miss Ellen Nordfeldt of New London and Kenneth Watrous of Providence, formerly of Groton, took place in Hartford Monday. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William F. English in the presence of near relatives of the bride and bridegroom. Miss Edith Palmer of West Hartford, niece of the bride, was her only attendant, and Oral Hanover of Groton, nephew of the bride, was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Watrous have been friends from childhood. Both were graduated from the Groton Heights school. Mr. Watrous is an alumnus of Bulkeley school, class of 1901, and has for years been in the employ of the U. S. engineer's office in Providence. Mrs. Watrous supplemented her early education by private instruction in academic studies and is a graduate of the business college. She was first lieutenant in the Red Cross Motor corps and was president of the New London Women's club. Mr. and Mrs. Watrous will reside in Birchmoore cottage, Wintergreen Point, Quaker Hill, for the summer.

Ferguson-Beckett

Arthur W. Ferguson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Ferguson of 111 River avenue and Miss Jonette Greenlaw Beckitt, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth N. Evans of Brookline, Mass., were united in marriage Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the home of the bride's mother, Rev. Mr. Johnson conducting the service.

Among those attending from Norwich were Mr. and Mrs. John A. Ferguson and Mrs. Herbert J. Ferguson.

Mr. Ferguson is a teacher at Dean Academy, Franklin, Mass., and his bride was also a member of the faculty of the academy. Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson will make their home in Franklin after an extended wedding tour.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS LAWN PARTY SUCCESSFUL

The second night of the Knights of Columbus lawn party Thursday evening proved even a greater success than the first night and hundreds of people were in attendance enjoying themselves by trying their luck at the various booths. Dancing again proved a great attraction and the out-of-door dance pavilion was filled with dance lovers until closing time.

The lawn party this year proved as great a success as those held in past years and another party by the Knights is awaited with interest by their many friends in the city.

U. S. TREASURY HAS $250,506,238 SURPLUS

WASHINGTON, July 2—(AP)—close of the fiscal year 1925 on Tuesday found a surplus of $250,506,238.33 in the treasury after expenditure of $3,529,643,446.02 of the ordinary receipts, which totalled $3,780,148,684.42.

The surplus, nearly four times the amount forecast October, is not available for tax reduction purposes this year, having been used to lower the public debt. Secretary Mellon's statement of the treasury's condition said that only the annual surplus to be expected in future years should be used as the margin available for tax reduction.

Treasury officials offered no explanation of the increase of the surplus over earlier estimates but others believe improved business conditions together with the lowering of surtaxes last year were largely responsible. Use of the surplus and funds from other prescribed sources reduced the public debt $734,619,101.59 to a total of $20,516,193,887.90. The amount of the reduction also gratified treasury officials, who had held earlier estimates below the $700,000,000 figure.

Customs receipts swelled the revenue total by $547,561,226.11, or within one-half of one per cent. of the figure estimated a year ago. Miscellaneous taxes produced $828,638,079.90, approximately the treasury's forecast, and income tax returns $1,760,537,823.68, or about six per cent. more than estimated last July. Total expenditures for the year represented a net decrease of $4,444,0,361.91 from the forecast of a year ago.

CLAIMS HUSBAND STOLE SOME OF HER PROPERTY

NEW YORK, July 2—(A. P.)—On complaint of his wife, a Titantic widow, that he stole some of her property, Humberto Aguirre de Urbina is being held to await extradition, the wife's attorney says.

Mrs. Constance Elsie Shack Gracie de Urbina, widow of Colonel Archibald Gracie, who perished when the steamship Titanic struck an iceberg on its maiden voyage, was married to de Urbina one year ago yesterday. Marital difficulties ensued over money.

Before departing from his wife's home in Washington, de Urbina, it is charged, forged her name to several checks, obtained loans from some of her friends and appropriated some of her jewelry.

Just where de Urbina is being held for extradition was not revealed by his wife's attorney, Bernard Sandler, other than that it was somewhere on the west coast of South America. Sandler did say, however, that de Urbina left New York, April 6 as a steward on board the steamship Aconcagua under an assumed name and that his identity was revealed after he had boasted of a rich and handsome young society wife in Washington. Radio messages about extradition followed these boasts.

SYMINGTON TO CARRY FIGHT TO HIGHER COURTS

NEW YORK, July 2—(A. P.)—Thomas H. Symington, wealthy manufacturer of railroad equipment, is to carry his fight for a divorce to higher courts.

Twarted in his first sensational attempt when Supreme Court Justice Ford yesterday threw out of court his 19 charges of infidelity against his wife, Symington said the appeal would be based on the exclusion by Justice Ford of certain letters written to him by Mrs. Symington.

These letters, Symington said, would have disclosed the true facts.

Justice Ford in directing the jury to find for Mrs. Symington said:

"There must be definite proof before a husband can rob his wife of her reputation. Apparently there is no such proof here."

Justice Ford excoriated Talbot W. Chambers, coal dealer, who with Maurice Fatio, architect, was named co-respondent. Chambers was arrested for adultery when his testimony of misconduct with Mrs. Symington was corroborated by another plaintiff witness.

"Any man who can do what Chambers did," the court said, "is such a low, contemptible creature that he isn't worthy of belief."

STATE POLICE MADE 1,861 ARRESTS TO JULY 1

HARTFORD, July 2—(A. P.)—Arrests made by state policemen during the six months to July 1st totalled 1,861. In addition 4,046 complaints were investigated, about 1,000 being motor vehicle law violations and the others various criminal complaints. The officers travelled 484,057 miles while investigating the complaints and patrolling state highways.

An unusual feature of the business of the department was the examination of twenty-four air craft and the licensing of twelve pilots. A total of 26,187 applicants for motor vehicle operators licenses were examined and 310 applicants for motor picture operators' license. Theatre inspections numbered 622 and 4,536 inspections of weights and measures were made.

LETTER FROM A FARMER'S WIFE

"For over two years I suffered from pains in my side and back, with headaches and weakness," says Mrs. Walter E. Anderson, a farmer's wife of Rangeley, Maine. "It seemed as though I could not get my work done from one day to the next, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored my health so that now I can do all kinds of work, sewing, washing, ironing and sweeping. I hope this letter will influence other women to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." Volumes of such letters from women explain why Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., of Lynn, Mass., is the greatest user of roots and herbs in the world.

WILL USE REASON IN TRAFFIC RULES

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 2—(A. P.)—Rhode Island's new traffic regulations for the speeding up of automobiles on the state highways will be enforced with "the rule of reason" said Superintendent of State Police Everitte St. John Chaffee in a statement today.

Pointing out that the resolution of the conference of police chiefs stated that a speed of thirty-five miles an hour was "safe and sane" for "competent drivers" and under "proper conditions", Superintendent Chaffee said:

"It was never any one's intention to tell drivers to keep up to 35 miles an hour regardless of conditions. It is our intention to enforce all traffic regulations as reasonably as possible."

CUBA'S SUGAR CROP BREAKS ALL RECORDS

HAVANA, Cuba, July 2—(A. P.)—Cuba's sugar crop broke all records this year, it is announced, with a total output of 5,100,000 tons. The department of agriculture estimates that

GREB BEATS WALKER IN FURIOUS BATTLE; WILLS KNOCKS OUT WEINERT

POLO GROUNDS, New York, July 2—(A. P.)—In fifteen rounds of terrific fighting tonight, Harry Greb, of Pittsburgh, Pa., retained his world's middleweight championship from Mickey Walker, of Elizabeth, N. J., welterweight king, before a colorful throng of 65,000 spectators in the main bout of a benefit show for the Italian hospital fund.

Lashing back gamely in the closing rounds, Walker saved himself from a knockout by a courageous stand which brought the crowd to its feet in a tribute which has seldom been given a beaten man in the historic ring of the National League baseball park. But Greb had piled up a tremendous lead on points throughout the fight and the judges returned a speedy verdict for the title defender.

Twenty-four rounds of terrific fighting crammed into the card carried the immense audience to the heights of enthusiasm and then dropped it with a thud as Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, battered Charley Weinert, of Newark, N. J., to the canvas in two brief rounds of a 15-rounder, said Lou Snade, of California, stretched the sensational Jimmy Slattery, of Buffalo, on the canvas with an unexpected right in the third round of a carded six rounder.

The New Jersey heavyweight who fought his way back to the ranks of the challengers by a victory last winter over Louis Firpo, proved no match for the giant negro. Wills took the count in the first as Weinert remained at a respectful distance with a staggering right. Weinert, dropped in a neutral corner, tried in vain to draw himself to his feet with the aid of the ropes, but the finishing punch had momentarily paralyzed him.

The final between Walker and Greb was a meeting of modern cave-men armed with five ounce gloves. They battered each other back and forth across the ring and out of it. They mauled each other in the clinches. They rolled around the referee with [illegible] that four times he was thrown to the canvas. On the second trip so badly that his leg was injured and he was compelled to carry the third man limping from gong to gong and often holding himself up [illegible].

Greb, 159 pounds, was seven pounds and he used the margin to handle heavier than the welterweight champion throughout the battle. It was the old story of the good big man against the good little man.

Walker's reign was not a long one, however, until the fourteenth. He had been driven down at this point by his relentless attack and close quarters, but parted from a clinch early in the opening of the round Greb lashed out with a left and a right Walker was staggered. He dropped to his knees under the punch as the Pittsburgher leaped upon him to finish the battle.

Walker toppled over against the ropes and lifted his hands over his face but he was unable to stop the terrific barrage of blows He reeled across the ropes, then lashed out blindly with both hands and kept Greb at a safe distance temporarily at bay. But he was [illegible] on his feet and he lurched unsteadily toward the ball came to his rescue.

There was one more round to be [illegible] apparently a great opportunity for Greb to lay low one of the [illegible] challengers he'd ever faced. But Walker was not through. Coming out of his corner like a wounded lion, he [illegible] upon Greb with a terrific [illegible] of lefts and rights to face and [illegible] for a minute the middleweight king was himself bewildered. [illegible] they went to it, hammer and [illegible] and one of the most sensational [illegible] ever waged in the baseball [illegible] came out with the final gong [illegible] stood toe to toe in a wild [illegible].

[illegible] superior ring skill and a [illegible] decided the first 15-[illegible] battle of the night between [illegible] Weinert, with the negro in [illegible] command from the start. Appearing in perfect condition at 213 pounds and with a weight advantage [illegible] on his opponent, Wills pressed [illegible] to the attack and soon [illegible] backing away and covering [illegible].

The defeat of Slattery at the hands [illegible] was the most stunning [illegible] of the night. The California's [illegible] smooth and peculiar fighting [illegible] baffled the Buffalo man from [illegible] and he never attained the [illegible] form he had displayed in [illegible] fights here.

Fight Sidelights

POLO GROUNDS, New York, July [illegible]—Referee Eddie Purdy went [illegible] twice when windmill Harry [illegible] into action. His first tumble [illegible] his right knee and he [illegible] the remainder of the bout [illegible] grasping the ropes time [illegible] assistance. Purdy did [illegible] fifteen rounds.

[illegible] estimated at 65,000 left [illegible] empty seats in the ringside and [illegible] sections. Several thousand [illegible] were accommodated. [illegible] fairly lifted the seats from [illegible] the spectators in their haste to [illegible] Promotor Fugazy's promise [illegible] the field cleared in time for [illegible] Phillies nine round contest [illegible].

[illegible] be learned, Jack Kearns [illegible] made no appearance but may [illegible] seen in the rightfield [illegible] Weinert entered the park from [illegible].

[illegible] the crowd appeared to [illegible] Wills and Greb—, es-[illegible].

GILES WINS STATE GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 2—(A. P.)—A. [illegible] Giles, of the Wee Burn [illegible] was crowned state [illegible] golf champion, after a close [illegible] fought match with W. J. [illegible], of the Shuttle Meadow club, [illegible] Bristain, at the New Haven [illegible] club today. The match was [illegible] the 36th hole, Giles having [illegible] score by winning the pre-[illegible].

[illegible] ey landed in a trip at the [illegible] third shot on the final [illegible] and Giles, who had brought the [illegible] fifty yards of the hole in [illegible] drives from the tee, [illegible] up as the 1925 champion Swee-[illegible] out of the trap with a little [illegible] strength and then missed [illegible] Giles holed out in five, [illegible] winning the hole and the championship by two strokes.

The total scores were not as good as many made during the tournament, Giles having a 153 and Sweeney a 160. In the qualifying rounds Monday the champion had a score of 153 and Sweeney had 154.

NUGGETS LOSE THIRD STRAIGHT IN TWI LEAGUE

The Nuggets lost their third straight game in the Twilight League, Thursday evening, when they came out at the short end of a 6 to 2 battle with the Palace. The victory sent the Palace outfit into undisputed possession of second place, while the Nuggets in losing dropped to seventh position.

"Bugs" Shahan twirled for the Palace and was in fine form. He limited Madden's team to three hits, two of which came in the third, when the Nuggets scored both of their runs. Shahan fanned nine of his opponents and walked but two.

Johnny Greene, Academy pitcher, started in the box for the Nuggets, and after twirling five innings, retired in the fifth in favor of Leo Jarvis. Greene had considerable difficulty in locating the plate and it was his wildness that finally drove him out of the game. Leo Jarvis twirled the last two frames and was touched up for four hits and three runs.

After a scoreless first inning, the Palace counted enough times in the second to win the game. Leo Morin opened with a single between first and second, stole second and came in on Joe Jackson's terrific clout to center for two bases. Joe took third on a passed ball and after Shahan had fanned counted on Keenan's single to left. Keenan went to second on Shea's infield out. Nat Simcox then singled to center and when Jarvis let the ball go through him, Keenan tallied, and Simcox went to second. Simcox took third on a passed ball, Hamel then walked George Madden, catching for the Nuggets, threw to second in an attempt to get Hamel stealing, and the return throw nabbed Simcox at the plate.

In the last half of the same inning, the Nuggets launched their only attack of the game but fell one run short of tieing the score. With two out, Red Lesseman hit a high fly to left field, and when Shea dropped the ball, Red went all the way to second. Lloyd Jarvis came through with a single to center, scoring Lesseman, and went to second on the throw to the plate. Ken Fox then hit to deep center for two bases and Jarvis crossed the plate with the second run. Gullette ended the inning by fanning.

There was no more scoring until the seventh when the Palace tallied three times on doubles by Hamel and Duras and a single by Leo Morin. The score:

PIPP IN SERIOUS CONDITION AT HOSPITAL

NEW YORK, July 2.—(AP)—Wally Pipp, veteran first baseman of the New York Yankees, was in a serious condition tonight at St. Vincent's hospital where he was removed this afternoon after being hit on the right temple by a pitched ball in batting practice prior to the game with the Athletics.

An X-ray of the injury was taken and will be developed tomorrow. Hospital authorities said that the player was resting comfortably.

Pipp was rendered unconscious for 15 minutes after being struck by a ball thrown by Charles Caldwell, former Princeton University pitcher, who recently joined the Hugmen.

HARGRAVE HITS TWO HOMERS AS BROWNS DOWN CHICAGO

ST. LOUIS, July 2—(A. P.)—William Hargrave hit two home runs, one with the bases filled and the other with two on, and the St. Louis Browns defeated the Chicago White Sox today, 18 to 5. Ken Williams hit his seventeenth home run of the season, scoring behind Sisler. Robert Lamotte got three two-base hits and a single.

Ernie Wingard of the Browns suffered a broken finger when hit by Mostil's liner yesterday, it was announced today. Score:

WORLD'S RECORD BROKEN FOR SMALL BORE RIFLES

SEA GIRT, N. J., July 2.—(AP)—The world's small bore rifle record was broken twice and tied once in the fourth annual eastern zone small bore championships at the state range today. Scoring a perfect 250 bullseye total, R. H. McGarrity, of the National Capitol Rifle Club, of Washington, D. C., won the individual championship match and displaced the old record of 248 bullseyes.

Russell Wiles of Chicago, who took second, also beat the old record with his score of 249. Edward Smelter, of the Roosevelt Rifle club of New York, was third with 248.

McGarrity shot at 50, 100 and 200 yards. He is holder of the world records at 100 and 200 yards and was winner of the Wimbledon cup matches at Camp Perry, O., last year. A field of 73 was entered.

The small bore team championship was won by the Frankford Arsenal Rifle Club for Philadelphia with 969 out of a possible 1,000 points. The Remington Rifle Club of Bridgeport, Conn., was second with 960, and the red team of the Roosevelt Rifle Club of New York, was third with 947.

"Y" Juniors Win

The Y. M. C. A. succeeded in trimming the West Ends in an exciting baseball game played in the "Y" gym yesterday morning to the score of 19 to 16. The line up of teams was as follows:

West Ends—Jacobson, Yalen, Vollevits, Tiger, Burchik, Sakowitz, Hendleman, Sherry.

Y Juniors—Buckley, Smith, Pachewlys, Ryan, Larry, Bogue, Burke, Fitzgerald.

ANOTHER RECORD FOR TROTTERS IS SMASHED AT NORTH RANDALL TRACK

CLEVELAND, July 2—(A. P.)—A world's record was established for the third consecutive day of the grand circuit meeting today, Woodrow L. lowering the mark for trotters for three quarters of a mile.

The Wilbur Lou Gelding, owned by E. J. Baker, Aurora, Ills., and driven by Chet Kelly, of that city, stepped the distance in 1:33, a quarter of a second faster than the mark set by Czar Worthy at Dade Park, Kentucky, three years ago.

Lucera Dillon set the pace, stepping the first quarter in 31 2-5 and the half in 1:03 4-5. Woodrow L. overtook the mare in the stretch, negotiating the final quarter in 29 1-5 seconds.

Thomas W. Murphy won his first race of the meeting when he drove Crawford to victory in the press, value $3,000 for 2:12 trotters. Crawford took the first two heats, but could not get up in the third which went to Walter Cox's Hollywood Jessie in 2:04 3-5, the fastest mile of the meeting.

Murphy made it two straight by taking Clara Dillon to the front in the Woodrow L. in the first heat.

2:10 class trot, after finishing ninth to The 2:14 pace went to Miss Ellen W., a candidate for the $25,000 Kalamazoo racing derby. Braden Ruler, another eligible which finished second, paid $211, for a $2 Mutuel ticket when he won the second heat.

LLOYD JARVIS HOLDS SUB BASE TO 3 HITS BUT LOSES

Lloyd Jarvis, star portside hurler of the Academy team, held the Sub Base team to three hits but the Base bunched two of their hits in the eighth inning behind an error and nosed out the Jewett City Town team 4 to 3. It was a game that should have been won by Jarvis but errors at critical times lost him the chance of a brilliant victory. The Jewett City boy pitched brilliant ball through the game fanning four and issuing but three passes. Gibbons pitched a nice game for the Sub Base, allowing but five hits and fanning four.

The Jewett City runs were scored in the third inning on a double by Nap Liberte, a base on balls, a bunt that went safe while Liberte scored. Joe Gilbert's single scored another run and Lloyd Jarvis hit a long fly to centerfield and Robertson scored on the throw in. This was the end of the scoring for the Jewett City team.

The Base scored one run in the second inning when Benjamin muffed Gibbons' long fly to center and the Base player made third while the ball was being recovered. Gibbons scored a minute later when McDonough drove a single through the infield that was playing in for the runner. Jarvis held the Sub Base hitless for the next few innings but in the eighth LeClaire erred, on Stubbs' grounder. Harrell singled and Stubbs went to third. Anctil caught a high ball and drove it to centerfield for three bases, tying the score. Gibbons brought in the winning run with a slow roller that LeClaire could not field in time to get Anctil at the plate. The score:

RUTH HITS HOMER BUT ATHLETICS WIN

NEW YORK, July 2—The Athletics defeated the Yankees today, 6 to 3, making the 12th time this season that the New York club has failed to extend a two-game winning streak. Babe Ruth hung up his sixth homer of the season in the fifth with none on base.

To add to the troubles of the Hugmen, Walter Pipp, veteran first baseman, was hit on the temple by a wild pitch delivered by Charlie Caldwell, recently of Princeton, during batting practice and was injured so severely that he had to be removed to St. Vincent's hospital. Wally Schang was forced to retire after being hit on the right hand by a fast breaking curve. Score:

AMERICAN PLAYERS REACH SEMI-FINALS IN DOUBLES

WIMBLEDON, July 2—(A. P.)—The two thousand or more tennis devotees, who braved England's latest heat wave to sit in the stands at Wimbledon today found their reward in some of the best tennis of the all-England championship tournament.

Today's tests decided the complexion of the finals. In the men's singles, in which, as during last year, two Frenchmen, Jean Borotra, the champion, and Rene Lacoste will meet. The play also insured the Americans, Ray Casey of California and John Hennessey of Indiana a chance at Jacques Brugnon and Henri Cochet in the semi-finals of the Town men's doubles and sent Suzanne Lenglen and Borotra into the final for the mixed doubles. J. D. P. Wheatley and Mrs. Lambert Chambers of England got a place in the semi-final round of the mixed double by winning from Jean Washer, Belgium, and Mrs. Stattenthwaite.

Lacoste and Borotra in the doubles eliminated J. P. Anderson, the Australian champion, and Cochet, while Hennessey and Casey found easy victims in the English pair F. R. L. Crawford and F. M. B. Fisher, who were defeated 6-4, 4-6, 6-0, 6-4.

GIANTS AND BROOKLYN PLAY POSTPONED GAME TODAY

NEW YORK, July 2.—(AP)—Announcement was made today that the New York and Brooklyn National League teams will play at Ebbets field tomorrow the game postponed from April 21, on account of the death of Charles H. Ebbets, former president of the Brooklyn club. A double-header between Brooklyn and Boston at the same park has been arranged for Sunday, July 5.

CARDS AND CUBS SPLIT EVEN IN DOUBLE HEADER

CHICAGO, July 2—St. Louis and Chicago divided a double header today, the locals winning the first game, 11 to 6 and the visitors the second game, 6 to 5. The initial contest was featured by erratic support of the visitors and the heavy hitting of both clubs, six home runs being accumulated.

Blades of the visitors knocked a brace of homers in the first and second innings, and Hartnett of the Cubs duplicated the feat by poling four-baggers in the third and fifth innings. Hartnett's smashes brought his total of homers for the season to 19. Reinhart pitched great ball in the second contest but weakened in the fifth inning when the first run which he had permitted in 15 1-3 innings crossed the plate. The score:

Takes LESS Room— Does TWICE the Work

25 inches of floor space is all that's needed for the Maytag! Fits snugly in a corner—more compact than you thought a washer could be.

Still, it washes 50 lbs. of dry clothes an hour—just twice as much as ordinary washers. You know what THAT means to YOU on washday.

Delicate silks—fine linens—heavy blankets—crusty, greasy overalls, all spick-span-clean! You know too, how hard it is to clean wristbands, collars and cuffs—yet the Maytag washes them immaculately without a bit of hand-rubbing.

The secret lies in the exclusive Gyrafoam principle. Imagine a napkin in a pan of rapidly boiling water, tumbled about every which way. Multiply that water tempest many, many times and you have the Gyrafoam in action.

Now you must try this washer right in your home where you can see how carefully, thoroughly, and quickly it will dispose of your wash.

So—do this before next washday. Phone—and have us bring a Maytag to your home. There is no obligation. If the washer doesn't sell itself—don't keep it! That is the Maytag way—the way Maytag has attained world leadership.

HOURIGAN POST MOVES INTO NEW QUARTERS

Members of Richard E. Hourigan post, No. 591, Veterans of Foreign Wars moved into their new post quarters, in the rooms formerly occupied by the Community club, on Main street, Tuesday of this week. The new quarters are by far the best the post has occupied in this city, four large rooms being available on one floor, while on the floor above is a spacious hall suited perfectly for dances and entertainments of any kind.

The post is already planning a number of social functions for the fall and winter months, including dances as well as a series of whists which have always proved enjoyable for the members and their friends.

The post has shown a steady growth during the past year as one of the leading veterans' organizations in the city and this has made it necessary to procure larger quarters than were available in the post rooms on Market street, which have been occupied for some months past.

SPOKE ON INDIA AT BIBLE CLASS MEETING

S. M. Ismail, a native of India, greatly interested a good group at the weekly session of the Men's Bible class at the local Y. M. C. A., Wednesday evening. Mr. Ismail told interestingly of the industrial educational and the religious conditions of India, and the men were loath to leave the meeting room. The speaker stated that the Hindoo religion predominated, having some 240,000,000 adherents, while Mohammed has some 70,000,000. The Christian religion, said the speaker, is making good strides in some parts of the nation. Industry is gaining headway in many lines, and while at present there are few manufacturing plants comparatively speaking, there is bound to be an increase of various industries in the coming years. The agriculture of India is greatly varied, and few countries can boast of more kinds of products of the soil than can India. The wealth of India is enormous, but it is concentrated in comparatively few hands, the great bulk of the population being very poor, as well as uneducated.

The speaker stated that in his opinion India would have made greater progress if it had remained an absolutely independent nation.

Mr. Ismail stated as his candid opinion that not until the people of India followed the teaching of genuine religion could she hope to emerge from her condition of poverty in physical and mental lines, but that when she did this India would easily become one of the leading nations of the world.

EIGHT NEW MEMBERS MAYFLOWER DESCENDANTS

GAVE HEARINGS ON BUS LINE PETITIONS

Hearings on two petitions for bus lines between Norwich and various other places where held in the town building Wednesday by Public Utilities Commissioner Charles C. Elwell, formerly of Norwich, and Louis Isaakson, superintendent of jitney department of the commission, a large number of people from Norwich and various other cities and towns attending the hearing.

The application of the Willimantic-Stafford Springs Black and White bus line, for a certificate to operate a jitney commencing at Lebanon Center at Yantic and Norwich over the state highway was withdrawn.

The application of Willimantic and Hartford Jitney Association, Inc., to operate a jitney over the route described below, was heard after which the commissioner reserved his decision on the matter after long arguments.

The route follows:

(A.) Commencing in Willimantic at railroad station; thence to Windham; South Windham, over state road to Hyde corner, over Franklin Hill to Yantic, to Norwich Town, to Broadway, Bath street and Franklin square, Norwich.

(B.) Commencing in Willimantic at railroad station; then to Main street, South Main street, over Brick Top road to Windham Center, over Main road to South Windham, over state road to Hyde corner, to Lebanon, over Johnson-Trumbull highway to Yantic; thence express to Norwich via Norwich Town and main road to Broadway, Bath street and Franklin square, Norwich.

Commissioner Elwell opened the hearing and announced that under the recent law passed by the state legislature, the Connecticut company has the right to operate busses and has petitioned for a bus line between New London and Willimantic via Norwich. He also stated that he believed that there was a need of such a line.

Appealing for the Hartford-Willimantic Jitney company were Attorneys H. R. Jones and William A. King, who called on First Selectman Carl F. Bishop of Lebanon as their first witness. Mr. Bishop said there is already a bus line between Lebanon and Willimantic but none through Lebanon Center. High school children in Lebanon and surrounding towns have no means of transportation to and from school and it is three miles to the railroad for the average resident in Lebanon and four miles to the trolley road. The whole community would find communication with other places if a bus line were operating, he said, and about half the 1300 inhabitants would use the busses.

Town Clerk and Treasurer Charles J. Averill said that the banking business of Lebanon was done in Willimantic and a large amount of private business transacted in Norwich, and present transportatin to these cities is poor.

Attorneys in the matter informed the commissioner that if the certificate to operate was given to their company busses would be run to North Franklin and other places.

William Clark, selectman, also told of the need of this bus line, as did Frank T. Fenton, town clerk and treasurer of Willimantic. He stated that the Chamber of Commerce and others in Willimantic were in favor of the bus line between Willimantic and Norwich. Russell A. Andrews of Willimantic also spoke briefly on the matter.

Asking for those in favor, the following responded: C. B. Davis, Smith Corner, Franklin; Mrs. Margaret Selgal, O. D. Hall, E. J. Tucker, Mary W. Brown, E. G. Maynard, W. R. Clark, S. W. Thorpe Marion Cummings B. F. Nye, Charles B. Davis and others along the route.

Forty-three per cent. of the revenue and 37 per cent. of the service of the entire New London division based on the operating income, after deducting operating expenses and taxes, but making no allowance for depreciation or interest for the year 1924, was $62,23[illegible], gain. The other lines in the division on the same basis had a deficit of $29,446.

The New London division property as a whole, based on the construction costs of today was estimated at $10,000,000, while the New London division is valued approximately at $1,720,000.

The New London, Norwich, Willimantic division, is therefore the backbone of the traffic service, making it possible for the company to operate their other lines which are run at a loss. If a jitney certificate was issued to another company, the Connecticut company would be a losing proposition.

Mr. Blickinger proposed to run an express trolley service two times a day between Norwich and Willimantic and Norwich and New London.

Councilman Fox of New London stating that he appeared for the City of New London and for Mr. Bardelli who runs a jitney to New London, on the west side of the river, making 12 round trips a day, said that granting a bus privilege to the Connecticut company would be a detriment to Mr. Bardelli, and that residents on the east side of the river had not petitioned for a bus line.

Mr. Flickinger, replying to this claim, said that in order to meet other competitors the company must have bus lines.

First Selectman William S. Murray of Norwich stated that the petition of the Connecticut company did not take in the route which the other company does. The Connecticut company proposes to run their busses to Yantic directly on the state road to Willimantic. The other company takes in the outling districts where the jitney service is more necessary. The Connecticut company, he said, in operating their busses to Willimantic, does not include Baltic and other important places, except with the express service.

Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., appeared for the city and for Lebanon, while Attorney Charles Whittlesey appeared for the city of New London, as director of law.

Mayor Milo R. Waters of this city stated that the city should be given the right to map out the routes for the buses in city limits and was informed by Commissioner Elwell that this would be done. According to figures from the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, said Mayor Waters, only eight or ten passengers a trip are taken from Norwich to Willimantic by trolley, and he felt that the day of the trolley between these two cities had passed.

Many arguments arose during the testimony of Mayor Waters due to differences of opinion between the officials of the trolley company and counsel for the bus companies.

"I should want the assurance," Mayor Waters stated, "that the bus line, if granted to the Connecticut company be put into effect at once and that the certificate by the Connecticut company not be held in the air to hold off the rest of the competitors. The party that could give the most service should have the certificate granted," the mayor concluded.

Connecticut Co. Petition

Next came the petition of the Connecticut company for a certificate to operate a bus line between New London and Willimantic as follows:

Beginning at Parade in New London; thence northwest on State to Main street, Williams street to Norwich turnpike, Quaker Hill, Uncasville, Thamesville to West Thames street, Norwich; thence on West Main and Main street, through Franklin square, Bath street, Broadway, Washington street, and thence by Windham road to Norwich Town, Yantic, Franklin, North Franklin and South Windham near N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. tracks.

Figures by Counsel

W. J. Flickinger, vice president of the Connecticut company appeared for the company. In support of his petition he stated that the running time between Willimantic and Norwich was one hour and twenty minutes and from Norwich to New London, one hour. The bus service tended to cut this down about 40 minutes, he said.

DIVORCE SUIT BROUGHT BY HAMBURG MAN

John D. Anderson of Hamburg has brought suit for divorce from Helene Bailot Anderson, formerly of Hamburg, now of parts unknown, alleging a statutory offense committed since May 1, 1925, with an unnamed person. The couple was married Oct. 3, 1916. The suit was filed Thursday with the clerk of the superior court and is returnable in September.

MISS CRANDALL DANCES AT NO. STONINGTON TEA ROOM

At the opening for its fourth season of the Hollyhock Tea Room in North Stonington, Wednesday, Helena T. Crandall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis D. Crandall, of Norwich, entertained with an exhibition of aesthetic dancing, giving a Russian dance and a dream waltz. There were also two dances, a ballet and a Hawaiian dance, by little Eunice Hughes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hughes, of Westerly.

Miss Maud Price, hostess, kept open house throughout the afternoon for friends and patrons, tea being served on the lawn. Mrs. Louis D. Crandall of Norwich and Mrs. Norton N. Fisher presided at the tea tables.

NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL PATIENT LOSES IN SUIT

In his report in connection with the divorce suit of Joseph J. Bowen of Hartford, against Ellen McGuire Bowen, State Referee Marcus H. Holcomb finds, from testimony of physicians, at a hearing before him in Hartford, June 9, that the defendant wife is now permanently insane.

The divorce action was brought on the ground that the plaintiff married the defendant, ignorant of the fact that she had been a patient in state insane hospitals previous to that time Drs. Frederick T. Simpson, after three examinations, diagnosed the case as dementia praecox of an almost hopeless type.

Mrs. Bowen is now a patient at the Norwich State Hospital.

Trolley Bumped Auto

Horace W. Shields of 6 Pequot avenue, Mystic, reported at police headquarters that his automobile had been struck Wednesday night by a trolley car that was making the swing at Thames square. The front left mudguard and the running board of the automobile were damaged.

Figures obtained from the bureau of the public works show that 13,676 motor vehicles are in use in the Philippine Islands, including 8,648 private cars and 1,087 carrage cars.

NO SPECIAL CELEBRATION PLANNED FOR THE FOURTH IN NEW LONDON

NEW LONDON
(Special to the Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 3.—New London is not to observe the Fourth of July except in the most casual way, for no celebration of any sort has been arranged. Even young Americans have not manifested any desire to celebrate the anniversary of the birth of the nation and they have abandoned the use of fireworks in great degree. The vendors of pyrotechnics declare that they have not had the patronage they anticipated when they obtained permission to sell fireworks during the week of the 4th. Friday may bring a change in the feelings of youthful Americans and they may start something that will make the Fourth as noisy as usual.

Archie Harrington and Simon Brophy, fellows on the road, were found at an early hour this morning by a car inspector to be making their lodging place in a freight car on the New Haven railroad. They were arrested and later presented in the police court. They offered that threadbare story that they were on the way to Fisher's Island where, they understood, there was plenty of work. They declared that a friend had written to them to this effect and that they came here in response to the letter. Every fellow who is arrested for intoxication, if he comes from out of town, has had information that laborers are needed at Fishers Island. The strangers today made good with their story, for they were allowed to keep going to Fishers Island. They said that when they paid their fare from New Haven they could not get into a lodging house freight car.

Billy Glossenger broke from the path of sobriety yesterday and at the same time broke a plate glass window in the O'Leary restaurant. Billy was waving like one of the Santa Barbara buildings in the recent earthquake. Finally he brought up against the plate glass and went right through. He was arrested for intoxication and this morning was fined $5 in the police court. Now Billy has another bill to settle if he avoids prosecution for injuring a building not a public building. That will be a good deal larger bill than he paid in the police court, for plate glass windows of the dimensions of about 6x10 feet are costly.

A week from today there is booked for a hearing the proposition to widen Bank street. That is likely to be found a knotty question and a project apt to be expensive to the city. When new walks were laid on the southern end of the street, some months ago, they were laid to the full width, some eight or ten feet. It was proposed then that the walks should be narrowed up, but the Southern New England Telephone company had poles inside the curbing and that corporation did not want to be put to the expense of moving them. They were not compelled to assume that cost either, for the city laid the walks the full width and the poles remained where they were placed. Now it is proposed to narrow the walks on the upper end of the street and make the highway wider for vehicular travel. Four feet or more might have been added to the width of the street below Howard had the suggestion of narrowing the walks been adopted. There is much adverse criticism because of the action of the city in not taking some of the street below Howard for the highway.

When Frederick W. Mercer purchased the Williams property that includes the square bounded by State, Meridian, Huntington and Church streets, he was regarded as having made an investment that would tie up his money for a long term. But Mr. Mercer did not heed the opinions expressed. He went right on and erected one of the finest structures in the city and one that will be an architectural monument to him for generations. Since then he has sold off all that portion of the land which he desires to dispose of and has obtained a most satisfactory price for it. He has demonstrated again that he is a far-sighted and progressive citizen and that what he has attempted he has accomplished to the benefit of his native city. It is unfortunate that New London has not a greater number of citizens of the Mercer sort.

Robert Hammel, of 2 Union street, Graham Bryca, of the United States Coast Guard destroyer McCall, and Manuel Miller, Providence, were patients dismissed at Lawrence-Memorial hospital today.

The deed transferring a tract of land on the former Augustus Williams site, Meridian street, from Frederick W. Mercer to Joseph R. Schwartz, was received for record at the office of the city clerk today. The price paid was $19,000. Mr. Schwartz has also acquired of Miss Eleanor P. Mercer a small parcel of land on the same tract, the purchaser paying $4,500 for the latter tract.

Barney E. Belgrade has sold to Anwathea Constantine a house and lot on Moore Court.

James N. Snow has sold a house and lot on Henry street to Charles S. Amidon.

Henry A. Tisdale has sold a house and lot on Broad street to George F. Crame.

Sidney H. Miner has sold a building lot on the easterly side of Bayonet street to John F. Reynolds.

Frederick Bethel, of West Mystic, employed at Ocean Beach, is a patient at Lawrence hospital with several fractured ribs and a severely bruised back which he suffered late yesterday when he fell from a ladder while engaged making repairs to a cottage.

Mrs. Isabelle K. Allen, 75, formerly of Putnam, died this morning at her summer home, Pine Grove, Niantic. Mrs. Allen, who was the widow of Geer Allen, had been ill a long time. The body will be forwarded to Mrs. Allen's former home, Putnam, for burial.

Morris B. Flint, a sailor attached to the United States Coast Guard patrol boat 132, stationed at the state pier, complained to the police this afternoon that his locker at the Salvation Army lodging house, State and Atlantic streets, had been entered and that a suit of clothes, top coat, suit case and $5 had been stolen.

Flint declared that he locked his effects in the locker and delivered the key to the day clerk. While Flint was absent from the building, he alleges, J. D. Flynn, a former sailor, presented himself at the desk and requested the key to Flint's locker, Flynn declaring that he had personal effects in the locker and desired to get them. When Flint appeared at the place a short time later his clothing, suit case and money were missing and so was Flynn.

Flynn's residence is at Fall River, Mass., and as a search by the police failed to locate him here, the authorities of Fall River were requested to apprehend him if he appeared in that city.

An automobile owned and driven by Thomas Occhialini, 4 Chelsea street, skidded on Pequot avenue this afternoon and crashed against a machine owned by Daniel Buttrick, an employee of the J. N. La Pointe company, which car was parked by the curb, in front of the La Pointe company plant. Button's car was damaged.

An automobile owned and driven by Frederick A. Johnson, of Montville and a machine owned and operated by Charles F. Chester, 16 Starr street, were in collision this afternoon at the corner of Federal and Huntington streets. Both cars were damaged. Chester sustained a laceration of his hand because of the windshield of his car being shattered.

James Wells, of the crew of the government transport General Timothy Pickering, plying between this port and the island forts, complained to the police today that his locker aboard the transport was entered yesterday and that $20 was stolen. Wells stated that Edward Carpenter, a member of the boat's crew was discharged yesterday and that he suspected Carpenter of committing the theft.

Daniel Casey, 5 Grand street, informed the police early this morning that while engaged in a friendly wrestling match he fell through the plate glass window of the Economy store, 783 Bank street and that he would pay the cost of procuring a new window at the store.

Miss Emma Kaufman, of Philadelphia, formerly of New London, is being entertained by her brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Kaufman, of Montauk avenue.

Mrs. Graham S. Hislop and infant daughter, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were dismissed today.

Boys have already started celebrating the Fourth in earnest and as a result of one boy being found discharging a 32-calibre revolver about the streets this afternoon, Patrolman George Perkins relieved the young American of the weapon. As the youth is a minor he will not be prosecuted.

W. N. Keeney, of 718 Carroll street, Brooklyn, N. Y., was arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy, charged with violation of the city automobile ordinances in parking on a restricted section of Main street. He was allowed his freedom upon furnishing a bond of $10 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. When appearing at the police station to furnish his bond Keeney had his nerve with him, for he declared that the signs denoting the restriction were placed on the street after he had parked his machine when, in reality, the signs have been in their present position several weeks.

The first entertainment of the officers and crew of H. M. S. Wistaria, which arrived in port yesterday afternoon, for a stay of eight days and which craft is now moored at the state pier, took place today, when several automobiles conveyed members of the crew to Hartford. Arriving at Hartford the sailors were showed various points of interest and were given a motorcycle police escort about the city. The tourists returned to New London this evening, and tonight they were guests of Manager Walter T. Murphy of the Capitol theatre. Tonight the officers of the Wistaria were tendered a banquet at the Hotel Mohican as guests of the members of the city council, the event also being attended by about 50 citizens and officers of civic societies. Tomorrow evening the sailors not making the trip to Hartford today, will be given the same outing and tomorrow night they will be guests of the New London lodge of Elks, which has arranged an elaborate entertainment for them. The ship's officers not participating in the banquet this evening will be tendered that hospitality at the Mohican also tomorrow night.

Owner Robinson, of the Crown theatre, was in New London late this afternoon and inspected the playhouse that has been closed several days since a section of the ceiling collapsed during a performance there, causing serious injury to one of the attendants, George Babcock, 57 Federal street, who is still a patient at Lawrence hospital. Owner Robinson came here for the purpose of determining how bad the damage to the theatre was and to arrange for its repair.

Thomas F. Morton, former justice of the peace in Waterford, who worked against the establishment of a town court in the town, which resulted in Mr. Morton losing his office of justice, received rebuff in that court, last evening, when he was refused admission to address the court, during the trial of Arthur M. Baker, charged with reckless driving. When the case was called Mr. Morton requested the courtesy of the court in addressing it, that he might say a word in favor of Baker. Prosecutor J. James Floyd quickly dismissed the request with the statement that the court did not consider Mr. Morton in a friendly manner. Judge Dimmock did not impose a fine, but ordered Baker to pay the costs of the court, $10.52, which he did.

AMERICAN LEGION CONVENTION IN NEW LONDON, AUG. 27, 28, 29

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 2.—Plans are under way for holding the seventh annual convention of the American Legion of the state in this city, August 27th, 28th and 29th, and if present plans materialize it will be one of the biggest events to take place in New London in many years. It is anticipated that close to 10,000 delegates and members of the various legion posts and auxiliaries will attend the convention. An invitation will be extended Governor Trumbull, Brigadier-General Clarence Edwards and Senator Hiram Bingham to be present the final day of the convention, when a monster street parade will take place. The parade will be one of the largest in the history of the city and besides the various members of the legion posts and auxiliaries in line there will be a large detachment of soldiers and sailors, the soldiers to include those of the state's quota in Norwich. During the stay of the delegates here, trips will be made to the island forts by transports, so that the World war soldiers may obtain a glimpse of the immense cast guns there. Boxing bouts will be provided and other forms of entertainment given the veterans during their three days' stay in New London.

An Invisible Coat

Many amphibious birds and animals, when swimming under water, appear to be enveloped in a silvery veil. It is because minute bubbles cling to the feathers or hair. To the human eye, which looks at the creatures from above, the silvery sheen makes the bird or animal conspicuous; but a naturalist, who has given much study to the matter, concludes that when viewed from below the surface of the water, or, in other words, as a fish would see it, the film of bubbles helps to conceal the swimmer. By sinking a box at the edge of a pond and inserting a pane of glass below the water-line the naturalist discovered that the film of bubbles acts as a mirror that reflects the colors of objects past which the swimmer is moving. Silvery sided fish, when resting in a natural position, show no sheen at all, for the surrounding water. The investigator is now studying the appearance of trout flies as the fish sees them, and has already made discoveries that will probably lead to considerable modifications in the shape and color of artificial lures.

Stream Beneath Stream

An engineer in the west some time ago encountered a real problem in making a stream cross a stream. In order to accomplish this unique feat of engineering, he built above the main stream a concrete bridge or trough through which stream No. 2 might pass. In a word the situation was this: An irrigating canal 12 feet wide and 4 feet deep ran through a certain stretch of country. Running at right angles to this ditch are a number of natural storm drains. It was desired that these storm drains should not empty into the main ditch, and to avoid this bridges were constructed. The water in the main ditch is used to irrigate valuable orchard land, while that from the various washes goes direct to a nearby river.

The bridge is 15 feet in width and 60 in length. Its walls are 8 inches thick and 42 inches in height.

Mirror Searchlight

For some time there has been on the market a combination of an electric searchlight and a diminishing mirror. The device serves the double purpose of an adjustable searchlight at night and in the day a mirror for rendering visible vehicles approaching from the rear.

The device is equipped with all the necessary brackets and wiring attachments, so that the lamp may be installed on a car in a few minutes' time. The switch is in the handle of the lamp, so that the driver can turn the light on or off as desired without interfering with the other lights. The lamp can be prepared for emergency service by wiring it direct to the battery.

The lamp embodies many conveniences, among which may be mentioned an adjustable bracket which automatically locks at any angle desired, and a detachable back reflector, so that the lamp bulb may be removed and replaced in the reflector without fingering or soiling the highly polished surface.

Got Too Near Volcano

Pliny, the Elder, the celebrated Roman naturalist, met his death A. D. 70 while trying to get as close as possible to Vesuvius to observe to better advantage an eruption of that famous volcano.

Good Book's High Value

A good book is the precious life-blood of a master spirit, embalmed and treasured up on purpose to a life beyond life.—Milton.

To Test Tetraethyl Gasoline

KEYSTONE VIEW CO., NEW YORK

Dr. Wm. H. Howell, physiologist of the Johns Hopkins University, who has been appointed to the committee by Surgeon-General Cumming, of the United States Public Health Service, to look into any "health hazards" involved in the use of tetraethyl leaded gasoline.

Surgical Pencil

Among the most interesting pencils made is one intended for the use of surgeons. For marking outlines or divisions on the surface of a patient's body before performing an operation the use of the pencil is sometimes necessary, and, as the ordinary pencil is useless, a special one is made which marks the skin as clearly as an ordinary lead pencil will mark a sheet of paper.

Wonderful Star Shower

The star shower of November 13, 1833, was the most remarkable one ever recorded. It was visible in America from the Great Lakes southward, almost to the equator. One observer declared that "he never saw snowflakes thicker in a storm than were the stars in the sky at some moments."

For Hot-Water Bottle

Pouring a little cold water in the hot-water bottle before putting boiling water in will prolong the life of the bottle, as the boiling water will burn it and it will not serve half the time. Also if there is any air in the bottle, you are apt to scald yourself by just pouring the hot water in. The cold water will prevent that.—Grit.

Never Blotted a Line

Of Shakespeare it is said that he never blotted a line, so perfect was his command of his native tongue. How much of truth there is in this popular belief it is impossible to determine.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Prospect Street House Sold

[illegible] Peake has sold his two [illegible] house located at No. 152 [illegible] street to John F. Wolfenden [illegible] who will move into one [illegible] apartments at once.

The [illegible] was negotiated through the [illegible] agency of Mrs. Rosa E. Lyon.

Broadway Theatre.

The Spaniard," a Paramount picture featuring Ricardo Cortez, Jetta [illegible] and Noah Beery, which will [illegible] next Sunday at the Broadway [illegible] is an appealing and action-romance woven [illegible] national sport — the [illegible]

The highspots in the production [illegible] is based on the novel [illegible] Savage, include the first [illegible] the Spaniard (Cortez) and [illegible] playing an English soldier at a ball in London. [illegible] there mention of [illegible] hearts [illegible] his match in the beautiful [illegible] She has a long string [illegible] to her credit and looks [illegible] like but another victim [illegible] Cortez has other ideas [illegible] which are brought out [illegible] progresses.

[illegible] high spot in the production [illegible] the Spaniard's mountain [illegible] where he carries Dolores [illegible] captive until she finally [illegible] her love for him. The [illegible] begins at first, but a long [illegible] in the hands of the fiery [illegible] quickly makes her change [illegible] toward the Spaniard. [illegible] to her sorrow, is a [illegible] determination — who [illegible] rivalries after, and he has [illegible] soul set on winning Dolores.

[illegible] big punch scene is the [illegible] which Miss Goudal, after [illegible] the Spaniard, is held [illegible] is headed by Noah [illegible] of Gomez, and [illegible] Pedro.

Palace.

[illegible] star of the previous [illegible] steps out into the [illegible] Wallie Reid in a fast-fleshing melo[illegible] comedy tinge on the [illegible] the title, where [illegible] was shown for [illegible] in the community yesterday.

Davidson Chautauqua Coming

[illegible] me now and our citizens [illegible] an opportunity to see [illegible] of the Swarthmore [illegible] which is scheduled to [illegible] entertainment [illegible] in Danielson, July [illegible]

[illegible] movement is now [illegible] that more people know [illegible] early history, but it [illegible] out of place to repeat a [illegible] since we were so soon [illegible] Chautauqua.

The modern Chautauqua is an outgrowth of the Lyceum movement [illegible] by Josiah Holbrook, [illegible] was organized in answer to the need for an open forum [illegible] speakers would be free from [illegible] of speaking on sectarian [illegible] programs. Filling an important [illegible] in American social life, [illegible] responded to democratic progress [illegible] leaders in American politics [illegible] and social life. Lowell, [illegible] Garrison, Summer, [illegible] Gough, addressed [illegible] and their largest audiences [illegible] the Lyceum platforms.

[illegible] the Lyceum programs were [illegible] by the addition of [illegible] and entertainment [illegible] popularized the movement [illegible] more, in 1874, at Lake Chautauqua, New York, Bishop John H. [illegible] founded the Chautauqua [illegible] association which was [illegible] a summer school for religious [illegible] but now includes [illegible] some field of general education [illegible] persons out of school. In imitation [illegible] these summer assemblies, [illegible] Lake Chautauqua, other assemblies [illegible] the parent institution have sprung up [illegible] over the country. They have, [illegible] fever of the study groups [illegible] more of the musical and entertainment features.

They are called Chautauquas because they are like the summer assembly at Lake Chautauqua. They embody the best and most popular features of both Chautauqua and Lyceum.

Broad Theater

A most unusual picture directed by [illegible] Mortimer in fact one of the [illegible] unusual productions of the year [illegible] The Arizona Romeo, which comes to the Broad theater today for an engagement of two days.

The story taken from an original screen story by Charles Kenyon originally called The Man Who Knew Women put into scenario form and directed by Edmund Mortimer is unique in screen plots. Although Buck [illegible] is cast for a part in which [illegible] every opportunity is given him for daring riding, gallant battle encounters and with the locale in the west, there are several unusual situations in which Jones meets his audiences in a new role.

It is decidedly different and Buck Jones will gain many new friends for his screen portrayals of the character of Tom Lang.

The story, the principal action of which takes place in a small town in Arizona is a comedy drama of the efforts of a father to force his daughter into a marriage alliance with which she is not in sympathy. The will power of the daughter which at times borders on stubbornness leads to many amazing incidents with a happy ending and "the right man in the right place" in the arms of the girl he loves.

Norwich Motor Sales Transferred.

Announcement has been made of the transfer of the Norwich Motor Sales company, the Norwich and vicinity agents for the Hudson and Essex motor cars, by Edmond Prouix, to a newly organized concern which took over the management of the business on May 23, last. The new heads of the company are in the main well-known business men of Willimantic. The officers of the company are: Henry A. Bugbee, president, Maurice S. Leonard, vice-president, both of Willimantic; James C. Adams, of Norwich, secretary; Ray Angier, treasurer, and G. Raymond Young, assistant treasurer. The latter are two enterprising Willimantic young men, Mr. Young, who will take over the clerical work, has had much experience in that line. He took employment in the Windham National bank upon graduating from Windham High school. During the World war he served in the Navy and shortly after returning here was employed at the Willimantic Savings institute. Several months ago he transferred to the Manchester Trust company, resigning from that position to enter the automobile field. Messrs. Bugbee, Leonard and Angier are members of the Leonard Bros., Inc., the Willimantic agency for Hudson and Essex cars. James C. Adams has been named sales manager of the concern and under his promotions the sale of cars is reaching a high mark in the Norwich district. The company is housed in a new home at 394-400 North Main street and maintains the most modern equipment and system to give excellent repair service. This department is in charge of Ernest M. Myers, of Norwich. Mr. Myers is a first-class mechanic and has been specializing on Hudson and Essex automobiles in order that owners of these makes will receive the utmost satisfaction for the lowest cost.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter Overhears Some Talk

Be careful when and how you speak,
Your secrets then will never leak.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit was sitting under his favorite bramble bush in the dear Old Briar Patch preparing to take a nap after having been out all night. He was just dozing off when he heard voices that made his eyes fly wide open and his long ears stand up straight. He knew those voices. He knew them the very instant he heard them, even though he was half asleep. They were the voices of Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy.

"I wonder if they could be talking about Digger the Badger?"

Peter peeked out. Reddy and Mrs. Reddy were sitting back to him, just outside the edge of the dear Old Briar Patch, and they were looking over toward the Old Pasture. "It looks as if he means to stay," said Mrs. Reddy.

Reddy nodded. "It does look that way," said he. "I don't know what the Old Pasture is coming to. It was bad enough to have Old Man Coyote make his home there. With this fellow digging around, the Old Pasture is simply going to be spoiled. The hunting will be spoiled there."

"Well, thank goodness we moved our home from there before this happened," replied Mrs. Reddy. "I don't mind some people for neighbors, but I don't want that sand-thrower living too near me."

You should have seen Peter's ears go up at this. "Sand-thrower," he muttered to himself. "Sand-thrower. I wonder if they could be talking about Digger the Badger? I would like to ask them, but they wouldn't tell me if I did. I wonder if it could be that Digger has moved up to the Old Pasture. That is one place where I haven't looked. I never feel real comfortable over there on account of Old Man Coyote. However, I think I'll go over there the very first chance I get." Then Peter once more strained his ears to overhear what Reddy and Mrs. Reddy were saying.

"That fellow ought to be sent back where he came from," grumbled Reddy. "Just as if we didn't have trouble enough in getting enough to eat without having somebody who doesn't belong here at all settle in the neighborhood. I would like to know how he got here. They tell me that he really belongs out where Old Man Coyote came from."

Peter hugged himself. He hadn't a doubt now. It must be Digger about whom they were talking. It couldn't be any one else. Digger was alive after all, and he was living in the Old Pasture. Peter was as sure of it as if Digger had been mentioned by name.

"It used to be easy enough to get all the Meadow Mice and Wood Mice a fellow wanted before Old Man Coyote and Digger the Badger came. Now there are not enough Mice to go round," grumbled Reddy. "Sometimes I feel like moving way off somewhere."

"That would be a silly thing to do," declared Mrs. Reddy. "If we are not smart enough to get our share, we deserve to go without. I wonder what Digger left the Green Meadows for anyway. I thought he was settled there for life. I never did like him, and I never will. I think he has a mean disposition."

"People who live by themselves are apt to have mean dispositions," declared Reddy. "I don't like him, I never did like him, and I never will like him, but I don't know what I can do about it. That fellow has sharp teeth and stout jaws and claws to go with his mean disposition. The less I see of him the better it will suit me."

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Prospective Bride—Mary, my wedding is fixed for Tuesday, the 28th.

Maid—Oh, Miss, you can't; it's my day out!—Punch, London.

Going along a suburban road a man saw an acquaintance busy in a field. "Hell," he sang out, "surveying a little?"

"No," returned the other, "surveying a lot."—Life.

Mae—Jack was held up last night by two men.

Fay—Where.

Mae.—All the way home. — Penny Punch Bowl.

Irate Wife (discovering inebriated husband on front steps fiddling with door knob)—What are you doing there, Webster?

Husband (continuing to turn knob)—Sshh! I'm trying to get Pittsburgh!—Good Hardware.

When Fred takes us out in his car evenings it costs him an awful lot for gas.

Why more than any other fellow?

You see, poor Fred is so homely that none of us girls will allow him to park.—Boston Transcript.

An absent-minded professor met an old friend in the street and stopped to talk with him. When about to separate, the professor's face wore a puzzled look.

"Tom," he said, "when I met you which way was I walking up or down?"

"Down," replied Tom.

The professor's face cleared—It's all right, then I had been home to lunch.—Boys' Life.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Prayers for revenge are said in Congo by driving nails into a wooden statue.

Job's tears, the seeds sometimes used for beads, are cultivated in Manchuria like corn.

Automobiles equipped with radio sets are being used by Scotland Yard to aid in the detecting and preventing of crime.

Roman pottery of the first century A. D. has been discovered in Caversham, England. One of the vessels is believed to be a burial urn containing cremated human remains.

A cat chasing a mouse caused a $40,000 fire recently in Cardiff. In a large warehouse, overrun by mice, several cats were introduced. One of these, pursuing a mouse over some shelves, knocked down an open box of matches, some of which ignited on striking the floor.

Los Angeles (Cal.) police were herding half-a-dozen men, arrested on the charge of obstructing the sidewalk into the patrol wagon when C. B. Clark pushed forward to see what was going on. Some hours later Clark convinced the judge that he was an innocent bystander.

"I tried recently in a Cleveland hotel to buy an airplane postage stamp for a letter to San Francisco," writes Fred Kelly in the Nation's Business. "The stamp seller had none and said it was the first time he had had such a request. Out of curiosity I then went to another leading hotel and tried to buy stamps for airplane mail. They not only didn't have such stamps but evidently had never heard of them. I next tried the experiment of asking business men for information about the cost of sending a letter by airplane from Cleveland to New York. Of a score I asked not one knew. The fact is that the airplane mail service, notwithstanding the marvel of it, is still too new to be popular. It takes a long time for a novelty to sink into the public mind."

A needle containing $1,000 worth of radium was lost four days from the operating room of St. Michael's hospital in Newark, N. J. It was missed after an operation, and doctors took X-ray photographs of the patient under the belief that the needle, which is no longer than a very small sewing needle, might have remained in the wound. After further search a radium company, of Orange, volunteered use of a detecting device. When the instrument, which has a dial on, which a hand swings when radium is near, was first tried in the operating room, the hand did not move. Then some one suggested that the incinerator, where trash is burned be inspected. As soon as the device was brought close to the incinerator, the hand swung around. Police and hospital attaches sifted the ashes and found the needle.

GERMAN REPUBLICANS HONOR MEMORY OF EBERT

HEIDELBERG, Ger., July—(AP)—The esteem in which large sections of the German people hold the late first president, Friedrich Ebert, finds eloquent expression in the numerous pilgrimages to his tomb by republican organizations of various kinds. There are always fresh flowers on the grave, furnished by individuals or societies honoring his memory, and especially on Sundays there is a constant stream of visitors. Many worker's singing societies pay tribute to their late leader by singing a dirge at his tomb.

JAPAN TO ASSIGN TRADE SCRIBES

TOKYO, July—(AP)The Ministry of Commerce and Industry is understood to have decided to send abroad ten commercial correspondents for the purpose of reporting on trade conditions with a view to promoting Japan's foreign commerce. The correspondents will be sent to the following commercial centers: Vladivostok, Siberia; Tientsin, China; Hankow, China; Canton, China; Saigon, French China; Sombay, British India; Manila; Sydney, Australia, and Port Said, Egypt.

MONTANA TOWN TO JOIN GHOST CITIES

HELENA, Mont., July—(AP)—Marysville, Mont., to be wiped off the railroad map within a few weeks as it has been erased from record in its other activities, once was the goal of a race between two great railway systems and in the thirty-odd years of its life was the source of metals valued at not less than $100,000,000. The town, incidentally, produced a baseball team with a record of defeating all Pacific Coast league clubs of its day and of sending several players to the major leagues. A quarter of a century ago Marysville had a population of 7,500.

RADIO EXPERIMENTS IN FAR NORTH

CHICAGO, July—(AJ)—As broad as the field for scientific discovery on the present MacMillan-Navy Arctic expedition is the field for radio experiments. Of outstanding importance to the radio world will be the results of new low wave transmitting and receiving.

The latest engineering design in low wave apparatus is represented in the radio department carried by the Peary, installed by John L. Reinartz, radio operator and chief engineer of the Zenith Radio Corporation. Its work has been proven in laboratory and was developed exclusively for Arctic use as the result of experiences gained on McMillan's last trip, when radio was first introduced in that region.

FUR TRADERS WIN BATTLE WITH ARCTIC COLD

EDMONTON, Alta. July—(AP)—Delayed word received here this summer from Jack Hornsby, Malcolm and Allan Stewart and Capt. Critchell Bullock, who journeyed last year into Mackenzie, a district in the Northwest Territories of Canada, to buy furs and explore, said the party was forced to live in a hole dug in the ground during the winter, because high winds prevented the erection of a tent or any other structure.

Fish caught below the ice and caribou hunted far out on the barrens, a region northwest of Hudson Bay, formed the winter diet of the explorers. Fuel was hauled 30 miles to the dug out.

MACMILLAN TO RADIO PROGRESS IN ARCTIC

CHICAGO, July—(AP)—Radio messages from the Arctic region have been brought to civilization but not yet the human voice. When the MacMillan Navy expedition's transmitting stations are set up, one within eleven degrees of the North Pole, it is the ambition of Eugene F. McDonald, Jr., chief of radio with the party, to give listeners in a native Eskimos' program as well as have the voices described what the expedition is seeing and doing.

MANY INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCES IN LONDON

LONDON, July—(AP)—London has been the leading center of the world for international conferences this year. Nearly 700 American and Canadian doctors attended the recent convention. After that the next important gathering was the world railways conference, brought to London at the invitation of the Institute of Civil Engineers. Their sessions will end July 2.

An international conference of bankers will be held in August and will be attended by bankers from the principal cities of the world.

In addition to these conventions the year's schedule includes several important sporting events, including international tennis and polo matches.

SPECIALISTS TO HOLD ANNUAL CONVENTION

TORONTO, Ont., July 2.—(AP)—The annual convention of the American Osteopathic Society of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology is in session here until Saturday. Dr. T. J. Ruddy of Los Angeles is chairman of the program committee.

man of the program committee.

The opening day was devoted to clinics in charge of Drs. Ruddy, J. Deason of Chicago, J. D. Edwards of St. Louis, C. M. LaRue of Columbus, O., and Jerome M. Watters of Newark, N. J.

The International Osteopathic convention will be held here from July 5 to 11.

JAPAN-CHINA AIR ROUTE PLANNED

TOKYO, July—(AP)—Plans for a regular aerial service between Kagoshima and Shanghai are being considered here and probably will be included in a bill to be introduced at the next session of the Diet. It is understood a private syndicate, aided by the government, would operate the air service and at the beginning only mail would be carried. Later, however, arrangements would be made for the transportation of passengers. The proposed route would be Tokyo-Osaka-Kagoshima-Dairen-Tsingtao - Shanghai the trip requiring about eight hours flying time.

Gold in North Finland

In the Ivaloda Valley, in northern Finland, has been found gold-bearing sand in which the percentage of gold is so high as to make the washing quite profitable.

For the purpose of operating there a company with a capital of 6,000,000 marks has been formed, and the washing will begin in the near future.

Your Health is affected by wrong hygienic habits

* * *

This NEW way in solving woman's oldest hygienic problem will mean much to you

SIXTY per cent of many women's disorders, doctors now point out, are often traceable to wrong hygienic methods.

Now there is a new way . . . a way that supplants the dangers and uncertainties of the old-time sanitary pad.

Physicians urge it. Women's doctors have adopted it. Hygienic authorities employ it. And your own peace of mind demands it. For it offers charm and immaculacy under any and all circumstances.

The name is Kotex . . . a method scientifically right.

It absorbs 5 times the moisture of the ordinary cotton pad. And that means great protection.

It is as easily disposed of as a piece of tissue—that ends an old-time embarrassment.

It is deodorized. And that prevents danger of offense.

You can get it at any drug or department store, just by saying "Kotex." And that banishes the embarrassment of asking for a "sanitary pad."

Eight in every ten women is the better walks of life have adopted it. Which proves its benefits.

It will mean much to you in health, in daintiness and protection. It proves old ways a needless folly.

KOTEX DEODORIZED

1 Protection: 5 times as absorbent as cotton pads. Absorbs 16 times its own weight in moisture—and scientifically deodorized.

2 No laundry. Discard as easily as a piece of tissue.

3 Easy to buy, anywhere. You ask for them by name. Many stores keep them ready-wrapped — help yourself, pay the clerk, that is all.

No laundry—discard as easily as a piece of tissue

TURNED DOWN FRENCH SENATE'S TAX PROPOSAL

PARIS, July 2—(A. P.)—M. Caillaux minister of finance, failed in his attempt today to persuade the chamber of deputies to adopt the senate's proposal that income tax payers should declare their holdings abroad without taking an oath. The vote was 330 to 229 against the minister, but it was not made a question of confidence, and the government therefore is not affected.

M. Caillaux explained that he wished the chamber to follow the senate because he believed the senate's proposal was the best means to induce people to bring back their exported capital, but the chamber overruled him by a majority of 101.

"We all know people who make false declarations," said M. Blum, leader of the socialists, "but who would not take a false oath."

TRUCK DRIVER HELD FOR CRIMINAL COURT

NEW BRITAIN, July 2—Benjamin Sanders, 18, who was driving a truck which ran over and killed Isadore Martin, 5, in the yard of the Nathan Hale school on June 12, was bound over to the September term of superior court by Judge B. W. Alling in police court today on a charge of criminal negligence. His bond was set at $1,500. Sanders drove his truck through the school yard where the boy was playing for the purpose of delivering a load of building material to a nearby construction job. He was originally charged with manslaughter. He is not a licensed driver.

In discussing advancements made in the direction of rust control, the Iron Age declares that the imagination really pictures the large possibilities of life extension in the substitution of such material for that which crumbles and disappears under common conditions of service. Two advance steps in the fight against rust are the direct and indirect method of supplying chromium. Patent complications which involve all rustless iron processes are said to be holding up their development on a commercial scale.

PERU RAILROADS PROVE COSTLY CAPITAL IS SLY

Engineering difficulties presented by lofty mountains and steadily increasing costs of railroad construction and equipment have been responsible for the tardiness with which Peru's rail communications have been extended. Peru has had to pay for her railroads approximately $50,000 per mile. Because of the difficulty and expense of construction, outside capital has been slow to seek railroad concessions in Peru, except where valuable mining properties have been the objective.

Russia to Expel Nobles

Russia's soviet government is preparing to expel 120 nobles from the Caucasus, most of them from Georgia. The nobles are suspected of having taken part in the recent insurrection. Anyway, they form part of the bourgeoisie. In Georgia there are many nobles because in the early days of Russian history a man was made a price if he possessed 100 head of cattle. Some of the exiled princes return to their native land to form guerrilla bands which operate against the Soviet forces.

PALACES OF HIGH CHINESE ARE SOLD FOR SMALL SUMS

Hard times and the rising cost of living are having a mournful effect upon survivors of the late imperial house of China.

Princely mansions and royal Manchu heirlooms are freely being offered on the market with only a mild response. Owing to financial pressure, Prince Tsai Tao, uncle of the boy ex-emperor, Hsuan Tung, has disposed of his palace and extensive grounds in the north city to a foreigner for a sum reported as $150,000 Mex —about $80,000 in American money. That price is remarkably low.

Prince Tsai Hsuan, another uncle of the deposed young monarch, has sold his residence to a foreigner, and several other palaces are to be had from Manchu princes who either need the money or are afraid that a radical change in the government may bring about the confiscation of their properties.

PAST GLORY OF ROYALTY REVEALED TO AUSTRIANS

In Schoenbrun, the late Emperor Franz Joseph's summer castle near Vienna, there has been prepared a banquet table for 60 guests. It extends the entire length of the feast hall. Snowy linen covers the boards. The silver service has been carefully placed. Flower stands on the table are filled with lilacs from the late emperor's garden. Six crystal glasses are at each place, one is for water the five other for wine. Sixty chairs are about the table, one in the middle at the side of the long board being slightly higher than the others. That is the emperor's chair. The menu, printed in French, calls for many courses. It is the setting for the last banquet, held on February 8, 1912. Today Austrians are paying 3,000 crowns to enter the feast hall, walk around the table, admire the reflections in the wonderful mirrors, and walk out again through the castle grounds to the street.

True, today 3,000 Austrian crowns are equivalent to less than 5 cents, but the difference between the nominal value and the exchange value has been paid in some way. The Austrians lost the war and they know they have paid the price.

Making Chipped Glass

Sheets of glass covered with a shell-like raised pattern are employed for screens, electric light fitures and other purposes. This chipped glass for the pattern is often really chipped out of the surface, involves a process that is interesting.

The sheet of glass to be treated is placed under a sand blast in order to give it a grain. This ground surface is next treated with a solution of good glue and the glass is placed in a drying room, where it remains for some hours. Next the sheets of glass are removed to the chipping room, where they are placed on edge, back to back, with the coated surfaces outward. This room is heated by steam coils and when the heat is turned on the glue attains its utmost degree of desiccation and curls off the glass in pieces of from the size of a dime to that of a silver dollar, but it adheres so closely to the glass that, in its effort to get free, it tears pieces off the surface, forming a beautiful pattern.

Known by Their Sparks

It has been shown that the spark rays made by the incandescent particles thrown off from iron and steel when put upon an emery wheel afford a means of testing the composition of the metals. Carbon steels manganese steels and steels containing tungsten and nickel each give a characteristic spark of different forms and colors easily distinguishable.

The form of the spark picture changes with the quantity of carbon. Even so slight a difference as .01 per cent of carbon can be detected in this manner. Pointed, branching lines denote carbon steel, tool steel shows the appearance of "blossoms" on the branches, tungsten steel gives red streaked rays and shining points, with little balls thrown out of the formation, and an explosion appearance in the articulation denotes the presence of molybdenum, vanadium or titanium.

The Black Hawk war, which almost exterminated the tribe of Sac Indians, occurred in 1832.

President Of Mexico

Underwood & Underwood, N. Y.

The administration officials in Washington are studiously refraining from any comment on the sharp reply of President Calles, of Mexico, to the demands of Secretary of State Kellogg. The situation promises to become tense if the Mexican Government persists in disregarding the rights of foreigners, particularly Americans, in the Republic. Mr. Kellogg intends to press the demands on Mexico and it is hinted that unless they are complied with, United States recognition of the Calles Government will be withdrawn. FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

HEAVY TRADING IN STOCKS.

NEW YORK, July 2.—(A. P.)—Heavy pre-holiday profit-taking interrupted the upward movement of stock prices in today's market, but not until after about thirty issues had been lifted to new peak prices for the year. Trading was again in large volume, the day's sales running close to 1,500,000 shares.

The return flow of funds to the New York market, following heavy withdrawals of interior banks in connection with mid-year settlements, was reflected in the lowering of the call money rate, which renewed at 5 per cent. and then eased to 4 3-4. This was accepted by speculators for the advance as an indication that the temporary money stringency had passed, and they resumed operations with increased vigor distributing buying orders over a broad list but making the best showing in a selected list of motor, rubber, food, merchandising and low priced rail issues. Bullish operations were curtailed, however, under the pressure of realizing sales in the late trading with the result that closing quotations were irregularly lower.

Revival of speculative activity in the Erie and St. Louis-San Francisco issues was one of the day's outstanding features. Erie common advanced about two points to 29 and then cancelled about half its gain, while both the preferred issues showed net advances of over two points. Frisco common moved up more than two points to a new 1925 top at 54 5-8 and Wabash common attained a new peak at 32 1-2.

Outside the stock market, chief financial interest centered in a sharp break of about 15 a bale in cotton prices following the publication of the government crop report showing a condition estimate of 75.9 per cent. or 2 to 3 per cent. above what Wall street had expected and the sharp recovery of continental exchange rates with a sensational advance to new high ground by the Scandinavian currencies.

The recent sluggishness of the oil shares was explained, in part, by the publication of government statistics showing that gasoline stocks had increased about 5,000,000 gallons during May. Special weakness of the Pan-American issues followed publication of a report showing a large reduction in Mexican production.

The list of new highs included such widely diversified issues as Studebaker, United States Rubber, Montgomery-Ward, Famous Players, United Drug, International Agricultural Corporation, Otis Elevator, Continental Can, preferred, Owens Bottle, Robert Reis, Foundation Company, Cudahy Packing, and West Pen Power preferred.

American Can was in rather free supply toward the close, showing a net loss of 2 1-4 points at 194 3-4. Net declines of two points or more also were recorded by Fisher Body, General Baking, Ward Baking "B" and West Penn common.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Demand sterling ruled slightly higher around $4.85 5-8 and French and Belgian francs and Italian lira rallied 10 to 20 points from yesterday's closing levels. Norwegian and Danish crowns each soared about sixty points to 19.40 and 20.74 cents, respectively.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE

General Statutes of the State of Connecticut, Section 5349, Regulating Celebration of Fourth of July:

"Every person who, between sunset on the third of July and four o'clock in the forenoon of the following day, or between eleven o'clock in the evening of July fourth and sunrise of the following day, shall discharge any cannon, pistol, gun, firecracker, torpedo, or any explosive causing a loud report, or who shall by ringing a bell, blowing a horn, beating a drum, or in any other manner make any disturbing noise, or make a bonfire, shall be fined not more than five dollars."

The firing of blank cartridges within the city limits is expressly prohibited.

The police are instructed to enforce the law.

Dated at Norwich, Connecticut, June 29th, 1925.

MILO R. WATERS,
Mayor of the City of Norwich.

NOTICE

Section 25 of an act passed by the recent session of the General Assembly entitled "An Act Authorizing the City of Norwich and Town of Norwich to create Zoning Districts" provides as follows:

Sec. 25. No person shall erect, add to, move or place any building or other structure or addition thereto within the limits of the town of Norwich, outside the limits of the city of Norwich, without having obtained from the town clerk of said town a written permit therefor, which permit shall specify the location, character, and proposed use of such building or structure and the purposes for which it shall be used, and no such permit shall be issued to any person unless such proposed structure shall comply with regulations which shall be adopted by said town, and a copy of such permit shall be recorded by the town clerk in a book to be kept by him in his office for such purpose. The town clerk shall be paid one dollar for the issuance and recording of each such permit by the person to whom such permit shall be issued. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be liable to the penalties of section 25 of this act.

This Act is now in force and any persons performing any of the acts mentioned in this section are hereby given notice to obtain the permit provided for therein before the commencement of any work. The Town Clerk of this town is prepared to issue such permits upon proper application being made.

President's Son Has Romance

There is rumor of a budding romance between the son of President Coolidge, John, and Miss Florence Trumbull, the daughter of the Governor of Connecticut. John made a visit to the Trumbull home last week, but is now back at Amherst College. Mrs. Trumbull denies the rumor, but the young people have nothing to say. They met on a train en route to President Coolidge's inauguration in March. Last portrait of Miss Florence Trumbull.

WEATHER Conditions

The disturbance with its attendant trough that was over Hudson's Bay Wednesday night was advanced to the Gulf of St. Lawrence with the trough extending southwestward to Virginia coast.

During the last 24 hours showers and thunderstorms have occurred in the lake region, and the middle Atlantic and north Atlantic states. Temperatures have risen in the Ohio valley and in portions of the middle Atlantic states, while cooler weather attended thundershowers over the middle and northern Rocky Mountain region.

High temperatures prevail in the middle Mississippi and Missouri valleys.

The outlook is for unsettled weather with local thundershowers in the south Atlantic states on Friday and in the lower lake region on Saturday. Elsewhere east of the Mississippi river on Saturday in the lower lake region and Saturday. It will be warmer on Saturday in the lower lake region and the middle Atlantic states.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook and Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Moderate north and northwest and weather partly overcast Friday.

Forecast

Eastern New York, and New England: fair Friday and probably Saturday; rising temperature Saturday.

SMALL BOY SITTING ON R. R. TRACKS KILLED AT SECOND ST. CROSSING

Peter Wojciechowski, 6, son of Alexander Wojciechowski of 161 Central avenue was fatally injured Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when hit by a train at the Second street railroad crossing. Death was caused by a fractured skull and other injuries.

The boy had been playing at the playgrounds and had left shortly before the train arrived at the crossing, striking the boy who had seated himself on the railroad tracks. William Gorton of 71° Chestnut street and Frank Hoxie of 24 Elm street, local truckmen who were passing, picked up the boy and word was, sent to the Backus hospital for the ambulance, but death resulted before the ambulance reached the hospital on the return trip.

Medical Examiner Dr. C. C. Glidersleeve was called and rendered a finding of death due to a fractured skull and other injuries.

At a cost of approximately $850,000 the state highway department has just awarded thirteen contracts for road work in Connecticut. Three other contracts remain to be awarded of the group recently advertised for bids. They are located in Shelton, Fairfield and Hartland.

The Edward Balf company of Hartford, low bidder on the proposed reconstruction of Maple avenue in Hartford, was awarded the contract for that work, which will be done as a state aid road, the city of Hartford contributing a share of its cost.

Following is a list of the contracts awarded:

Town of Chaplin—9,273 feet of 2 1-2 in bituminous macadam over 6 1-2 inch stone base on the Willimantic-Hampton road to Miller Bros. Construction company, Hartford, for $51,-550.00.

Towns of Roxbury and Woodbury—12,675 feet of 3 inch bituminous macadam over 5 inch stone base on the Southbury road to Miller Bros. Construction company, Hartford, for $67,-161.50.

City of Hartford—3,602 feet of 8 inch asphalt over 6 inch concrete base on Maple avenue to Edward Balf company, Hartford, for $45,901.40.

Town of Glastonbury, 10,913 feet of 8 inch reinforced cement concrete pavement on the New London Turnpike to Frank Arrigoni, Middletown, for $73,843.15.

Towns of Southington, Cheshire and Meriden, 21,573 feet of 8 inch reinforced cement concrete pavement on the Waterbury Turnpike to Daniel O'Connell & Sons, Holyoke, Mass., for $119,193.15.

Town of New Milford, 2,050 feet of 8 inch reinforced cement concrete pavement on Bridge street to Lana Construction Co., Meriden, for $28,-171.00.

Town of Winchester, 2,365 feet of 8 inch reinforced cement concrete pavement on Rowley street, Winsted, to Patterson & Rossi, Torrington, for $62,944.50.

Town of Torrington, 7,492 feet of 8 inch reinforced concrete pavement on the Goshen Road to John DeMichiel & Bros., of Torrington, for $110,-079.50.

Town of Milford, 7,350 feet of 8 inch reinforced concrete pavement on the Milford Shore Road, to the Conn. Nat'l. Pavement Co., of New Haven for $55,117.50.

Town of Cromwell, 14,000 feet of 8 inch reinforced concrete pavement on the River Road to F. Arrigoni & Sons, of Middletown, for $90,086.60.

Town of West Hartford, Bridge over Trout Brook on the Boulevard to A DeMarco, Plainville, for $7,420.00.

Towns of Stamford and Darien, 4,575 feet of 9 inch reinforced concrete pavement on the Noroton Hill Road to W. H. Arthur, Glenbrook, for $109,399.75.

Town of Simsbury, 2,800 feet of 8 inch bituminous macadam over 5 inch stone base on The Weatogue Mountain Road to the Imrick Co., Meriden, for $27,373.00.

Y PHYSICAL DEPARTMENT SUMMER SEASON ACTIVE

The interest manifested by the "Y" boys in the physical activities of the association is very unusual for the summer season. While the rule has been to close the work in the gymnasium during the warm weather, this season an unusually large number of boy members may be seen on the gym floor several times each week, and the noise indicates that they are greatly enjoying the privileges. Physical Director Fritts and Boys' Secretary Davis have set up a pleasing program for the boys for the summer, and the present summer season promises to be one of the most active in many years in the junior department. Gymnasium exercises, outdoor games, lobby privileges of a social nature, shower baths, and the swim in the big pool constitute the program for the younger element of the association. Visitors, especially parents, are most welcome at the association building at any time.

TWO INJURED MEN MAKING GOOD RECOVERY

The condition of, John Bosko, who was shot on the night of June 26th, by Paul Stanklewicz, has improved to such an extent that he was able to be up and dressed at the Backus hospital Thursday. His condition had been serious for a number of days but doctors now declare him to be entirely out of danger.

Andrew Warner, injured in an automobile accident on the Gardner Lake road, when a Cadillac coupe overturned and pinned him beneath it, continues to improve. At first little hope was held for his recovery but he is now out of danger, though still confined to bed at the hospital. It is expected that he will be able to be up within the next ten days.

LISBON MAN SCORES WITH BIG BASS CATCH

As Wednesday, July 1, officially opened the bass season, large numbers of fishermen in this locality responded to the old time lure and procured their rods and tackle from their place of keeping in moth balls. Numerous reports of catches have been received, but that of Robert Winchester, of Lisbon, so far this season is, without doubt, the finest. His catch, on the first day, included one six and four four pounders of the large mouth variety which is considered in these parts a good day's catch.

NORWICH TOWN

Miss Barbara Burdick, of Hartford, who was the guest last week of Miss Patience Norman, of Lafayette street, is passing this week with her sister, Miss Ruth Burdick, who at present is residing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Fraser, of Lafayette street.

Rev. George Ferguson, pastor of the Third Baptist church, Greeneville, is to be the speaker Sunday evening, at six o'clock, (daylight time) at the Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the First Congregational chapel. The meeting, under the auspices of the Good Citizenship committee, will be in charge of Arthur Avery, president of the C. E. society.

CLEVELAND TO ENTERTAIN ORGANIST ANNUAL CONVENTION

Norwich organists are interested in the announcement of the eighteenth annual convention of the National Association of Organists to be held this year at Cleveland, O., August 4-5-6-7. Conveption headquarters will be at the Cleveland Art museum. Noted recitalists and prominent educators from the leading universities will participate in the four-day program which is as follows:

Tuesday, August 4th. Following a brief social hour on Monday evening, the convention will be officially opened on Tuesday morning by addresses of welcome from W. R. Hopkins, city manager, and Russell V. Morgan, as a representative of the state organists. President T. Tertius Noble, of the N. A. O., will respond. The features of Tuesday will be a talk by John Finley Williamson, director of the famous Westminster choir, of Dayton, Ohio, and organ recitals by Carleton H. Bullis, A.A.G.O. at the Temple and Edwin Arthur Kraft, F. A. G. O. at Trinity Cathedral.

Wednesday, August 5th. The morning session will be given over to the Society of Theatre Organists. There will be demonstrations and a feature picture at the State theatre with Ernest Hunt, organist of that theatre, and John Hammond and Frank Adams, of New York city, participating in the program. Palmer Christian, of Ann Arbor, Mich., will give a talk on the "Development of Music for the Organ and Orchestra" and will play several illustrations at the afternoon meeting. In the evening Charles M. Courboin, representing the American Organ Players' club, will play a recital at the Art museum.

Thursday, August 6th. H. Leroy Baumgartner, of Yale university, will open the morning session with a talk on "Placing and Planning an Organ." In the afternoon Albert Riemenschneider, of Cleveland, will talk on "The Development of Organ Music," and Miss Charlotte Mathewson, of New York city, will give a recital illustrating that talk. Mr. Riemenschneider will also play a program of French compositions. The evening recital will be played by Russell Hancock Miles, of the University of Illinois, and Arthur H. Egerton, representing the Canadian College of Organists.

Friday, August 7th. "The Organists' Duty to the Young" will be the subject of a discussion to be conducted by Arthur Quimby, of Cleveland, and Reginald L. McAll, of New York city, at the morning session. The final recital of the convention will be played in the afternoon by Miss Lilian Carpenter, of the Institute of Musical Art, of New York city, and Charles E. Clemens, Mus. Doc., of the Western Reserve university, of Cleveland.

WILL DEDICATE MONTGOMERY CHAPEL AT CAMP HAZEN

Camp Hazen, the state Y. M. C. A. camp for boys at Chester, Conn., opened Wednesday, July 1st. This year's enrolment for the first two weeks surpasses any previous record, one hundred and sixty-three boys being enrolled for that time.

The Norwich boys that will be in camp for the first period include: Robert Otis, Jared Gallup, Courtnay Pitt, Benjamin Shanley, Cecil Henefiel, Guido Ottaviano, Sidney Pitt, William Hastedt, Thomas Eastwood, Edwin Harris, Dwight Richardson, Shepard Pulmer and Earl Swan.

An item that will be of interest during the first period will be the dedication of the Robert E. Montgomery Memorial Outdoor chapel, which is being given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert H Montgomery, of this city, in memory of their son.

The dedication exercises will take place on Sunday, July 5th, at 11 o'clock, standard time.

The dedicatory address will be delivered by Rev. H. J. Wyckoff, a former pastor of the Second Congregational church. A large number of Norwich people are planning to attend this service, which is open to the public.

MALLON-SEITER WEDDING SOLEMNIZED AT CINCINNATI

Norwich relatives of Horace Taft Mallon of Cincinnati have received notices of his marriage to Emily Louise Seiter, also of that city. Mr. Mallon is a Williams College graduate, widely known to students of that university for famous work on the foot ball eleven. The marriage took place on Tuesday of this week at Cincinnati. Mr. Mallon is a cousin of Corporation Counsel William H. Shields Jr. of Norwich.

WILL LOSE TWO FINGERS FROM EXPLOSION INJURY

The condition of John Gryrowiecz, 12 year old son of Frank Gryrowiecz, of 22 York avenue, who was badly injured Wednesday afternoon when a bomb exploded in his hand, is greatly improved.

Later examination of the wound in the boy's left hand made it evident that the hand could be saved and that the boy would lose but two fingers, the second and third, which were practically blown off by the force of the explosion. The burns about the head and face were also healing.

FITCHBURG WANTS SLOGAN TO SELL THE CITY

The Fitchburg Chamber of Commerce wants a slogan which will help sell the city to the world at large and is offering a cash prize of $100 to the person submitting the best slogan in the contest which is now open and will be closed October 1st.

"The following are the rules of the contest:

1. The contest is open to anybody, anywhere, and contestants may submit as many slogans as they desire, but all slogans to be eligible must reach the Fitchburg Chamber of Commerce by noon, October 1st, 1925.

2. Slogans should be brief, clear-cut and a sales argument for Fitchburg. Few slogans adopted by cities of the United States contain over seven words, and it is suggested that contestants keep their slogans within that number of words.

3. Should two or more persons submit the winning slogan, the prize will be awarded to the first suggestor. Time of receipt will govern.

"The judges of the contest will be Fred S. Suthergreen, truck manufacturer and vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce; George H. Godboer, editor of The Fitchburg Sentinel; Gardner K. Hudson, prominent attorney and past president of the chamber, and Edward B. Walker, secretary of the chamber.

"The decision of this committee will be final and will be made public as soon as possible after the contest closes."

HEADLESS BODY FOUND ON CHARLESTOWN BEACH

The headless body of a man, washed ashore on the Charlestown, R. I., beach and found there Wednesday afternoon, ended the search for the man who leaped overboard from the Bay State line steamer Georgia bound for New York on the night of May 13. Rhode Island mounted police and the Providence police department, working together on their first piece of business, believe that the body found is that of the suicide from the ship and that he was beheaded by the ship's propeller. Identification thus far has not been established.

Lieutenant Baird of the Mounted Police was called to the beach to view the body which was that of a man about 40 years of age, was fully dressed with the exception of a coat, and wore a collar and tie fastened by a gold clasp. A Hartford and New York Transportation Line ticket, issued by the Bay State offices was found in a vest pocket with a one dollar bill and sundry small articles. The left forearm bore a tattoo mark presenting a heart enclosing the initials T. L. C. Headquarters.

The body was removed to Wakefield where it was viewed by Medical Examiner Dr. John J. Jones who said it had been in the water for several weeks.

From Bay State Line officials the local police learned that the ticket found on the body had been bought for the trip of May 13. Its purchaser did not obtain a stateroom, therefore his identity remained unknown. Late that night as the Georgian was off Block Island, this man suddenly ran out on the deck, bid a watchman "good night," and jumped overboard.

The Georgian and the Colonial line steamer that was following it, stopped and searched for the man for half an hour, without results. It was presumed then that he had been struck by the ship's propeller and sunk. The affair was reported to the New York police when the Georgian docked the next morning.

EDITORS WILL ASSEMBLE AT CONNECTICUT COLLEGE

The Connecticut college will be the rendezvous of members of the Connecticut Editorial association and their friends at the annual summer outing to be held July 18. Members of the association and others attending the outing will be the guests of the Connecticut college for the entire visit.

In the forenoon the visitors will be given an opportunity to view the attractive buildings of the college. The tennis courts will be at the disposal of any who wish to play. Lunch will be served in the dining room of the new library and the association and its friends will be entertained by the college. Following lunch there will be an informal program of speaking.

Plans for the afternoon activities have not yet been completed by the committee, but there will be an opportunity for visitors to view the various points of interest in and about New London. Arrangements will be made to accommodate visitors who plan to stay over night.

COMMON PLEAS JURY FINDS FOR PLAINTIFF

A verdict for $294.84 in favor of The Atlantic Carton Co., of this city, was given by the jury in the common pleas court Thursday in the company's suit against Adalard & Wolsard. It was a suit over a lot of boxes made for the defendant by the plaintiff. Attorney A. B. Davies tried the case for the plaintiff and C. V. James for the defendant.

Judge C. B. Waller presided and the jury was the following: Norwich Henry C. Hensler; Preston, Frank Palmer, John F. Richardson; Griswold, William R. Palmer, Edmond Herbert, William H. Fogarty, George E. Geer; Colchester, Timothy K. Kelly, E. T. Bunyan; Lisbon, Paul Geist; Sprague Curtis L. Hazen; Voluntown, Albert R. Dawley.

GIVES SUMMARY OF CHANGES IN DOG LAWS

Commissioner James M. Whittlesey, of the state domestic animals department, has issued a summary of the changes in the general dog laws, effective July 1, for the use of town clerks, dog wardens and dog owners. A change of particular interest to dog owners who live in cities is the so-called dog warden clause. This part of the act greatly restricts former powers of dog wardens regarding impounding of animals and provides the penalty of removal from office for violations.

The clause provides that no dogs shall be impounded except those not wearing a collar and tag, No dog less than 6 months old shall be impounded unless such dog shall be doing damage or be homeless, sick or injured. No impounded dogs shall be killed except under the personal supervision of the dog warden. No impounded dog shall be sold by the dog warden or released from the dog pound until the purchaser shall procure a certificate of license and tag. No impounded unspayed female dog shall be sold by any dog warden from the dog pound.

Other changes in the laws outlined in the summary issued by Commissioner Whittlesey follow:

"Every owner or keeper of a dog of the age of six months or over shall pay to the town clerk for a license for a year $1.75 for each male or spayed female dog and $10 for each unspayed female dog, and 25 cents additional in each case for issuing of license and tag.

"If any dog shall become six months old after May 1 the license fee for the rest of the year shall be a proportional part of the fee charged for one year plus the 25-cent registration fee.

"A fine of $1 is provided for failure to secure licenses on or before May 1. Kennel license fees on newly-established kennels may be prorated for proportional part of the year. Any person may bring a registered dog with collar and tag from another state and keep the dog here for 30 days without procuring a Connecticut license."

VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT IN AUTOMOBILE SUIT

A jury in the court of common pleas here Thursday morning returned a verdict in favor of the defendant in the case of Louis Wedlock of Pawcatuck against Clifton D. Hall, an automobile dealer of Westerly before Judge Charles B. Waller.

The suit involved the purchase of an automobile upon which Wedlock was alleged to have been unable to meet the first note when it came due and the dealer took the car back.

The case went into the hands of the jury late Wednesday afternoon and when the jury had been out for half an hour, Judge Waller recalled them from the jury room and instructed them to return Thursday morning and attempt to reach a verdict, which they did.

Famous Handwriting Expert Dead

David Numes Carvalho, famous handwriting expert who was called upon several times to give expert testimony in the superior court here and in New London, died Sunday, at his home in New Rochelle, N. Y. The funeral was held in New Rochelle.

M. Carvalho, formerly a newspaper man, had achieved an international reputation as an authority on handwriting and inks. He was a pioneer in the field of typewriter tracing and was the first to make photographs on celluloid in 1883. A year later he restored for the first time in open court, fraudulently bleached out handwriting.

SUMMER SCHEDULE MAKES TRAIN TIME CHANGES

Numerous changes in the train movements over the New Haven system are noted in the summer schedule, which went into effect on July 1. For the most part they involve additional stops at shore resorts for accommodation of vacationists, although in some instances new trains are added.

The Sea Shore express, a new train for the summer months, will leave New York on Saturdays only at 12.01 p. m., stopping at Bridgeport and New Haven and due in New London at 3.12 p. m., Mystic at 3.33, Stonington 3.37, Westerly 3.46, Wickford Junction 4.18, East Greenwich 4.26 and due in Providence at 4.50 p. m. It will be made up of parlor cars and coaches with one boiler buffet.

The Shore Line express, leaving New York at 12.15 p. m., on Saturdays will stop at Crescent Beach at 3.22 p. m., due in New London at 3.40 p. m.

Some changes are noted affecting Colchester and Willimantic. The train leaving New Haven at 2 p. m. week days will be operated except on Saturdays and Sundays and make a trip to Colchester and return, due in Willimantic at 4.35 p. m.

A new Sunday train will be operated out of New Haven at 9.10 a. m., making a stop at Northford, due in Middletown at 9.59 a. m., thence making all stops to Willimantic, via Colchester, where it is due 11.45 a. m.

The train which has been leaving Colchester at 3 p. m., week days except Saturdays, will leave at 2.40 p. m., stopping at intermediate stations 20 minutes earlier than at present, due at Middletown at 3.40 p. m., connecting with trains over the Middletown branch at Berlin.

Similar changes are listed among trains operating between Hartford and New London via Saybrook. The 3.40 p. m. train out of Hartford on week days will arrive at Middletown at 4.25, leaving at 4.30, stopping at all intermediate stations on the valley route about five minutes later than at present, due in New London at 6.06 p. m.

The train leaving New London at 3.20 p. m. Saturdays for Hartford, will leave the Saybrook station and all intermediate stations north about five minutes later than at present, due 5.33 p. m. at Hartford.

MISS McGARRY HONORED AT NEW ROCHELLE COLLEGE

One of the most artistic, elaborate and expensive of the college year books this commencement season was that issued by New Rochelle, N. Y., college, Annales, Volume XV. The book is copyrighted by Miss Margaret E. McGarry, of Norwich, editor, and Miss Marie N. Morrissey, Haverstraw, N. Y., business manager. It is the last word in typographical art, gotten out by a famous house in Buffalo, N. Y.

There were 89 members in the graduating class—hence the honor won by Miss McGarry, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William P. McGarry, of Washington street, in being made its editor.

The standing of New Rochelle as a college is too well known to require comment. It has a faculty of 46, including a majority of noted lay teachers as well as the gifted Sisters, who have made this college for young women so famous that its students are enrolled from all states of the union.

The class sketch of Miss McGarry reads:

Margaret Flood McGarry, B. Litt., Norwich, Conn., Norwich Academy, Connecticut College (1); Editor-in-chief of Annales; president of A. N. O.; Press club; literary staff of "Tatler"; literary staff of Quarterly; Reapers; Le Cercle Francais; chairman Senior Class Day committe.

"Peg" and personality are synonymous. That elusive, intangible something which makes one so attractive is Peg's possession. From the moment we meet her, we have the feeling that here is a girl who is interesting and whom we should like to know. Our first impression in this case is correct. Peg is interesting—and charming. She has the most fascinating little mannerisms which belong to her alone and which make her so individual. When she is particularly gay, it will be made up of parlor cars and coaches with one boiler buffet.

PHYSICIAN GIVES WARNING OF LOCKJAW DANGER

Fourth of July, safe and sane as it may be planned in many communities, still if a day that stands out for its large number of accidents because of the celebration, according to hospital and police records. The majority of these are among children of school age, girls as well as boys, and in seriousness range all the way from the slight burn to injury or loss of sight and occasionally tetanus.

"The practice among physicians of immediately injecting the anti-toxin for tetanus when called to dress the deep jagged of puncture type of wound is undoubtedly responsible for the comparative rarity of this disease," said Dr. Chester T. Brown, associate medical director of the Prudential Insurance Company in calling the attention of parents to the dangers children run in handling fireworks. "However, there is a real danger of tetanus resulting from the wounds caused by the explosion of giant fire crackers or toy pistols. It is in such a deep wound that the tetanus bacillus, which cannot live in air, flourishes. These wounds should never be given merely amateur home treatment. A physician should always be called promptly for tetanus, for lock jaw as it is frequently called, is fatal.

"The tetanus bacillus is also found in the excreta of animals such as sheep, cows and horses and therefore children should be warned against running barefoot in meadows where they are pastured, or about stables and barns. A child easily punctures the flesh on his feet and it is such a wound that would harbor the tetanus bacillus.

"In most cities board of health stations are open all day on the Fourth of July and the tetanus anti-toxin may be procured there.

"Don't leave children alone while boys and girls, even the larger ones, are amusing themselves with the fireworks. The youngsters are likely to lose their heads in the excitement of the noise and get careless. A slight accident throws them into a panic. A child whose dress catches fire runs blazing down the street too frightened to remember the warning that a person should throw himself flat on the ground to smother the flames. Keep flimsy frocks off the little girls. Let them wear the heavier middies and flannel skirts or bloomers.

"Give the youngsters a good time, all means, but stay right on the job yourself and be prepared for an emergency. Preparedness is great stuff any line," concluded the doctor.

W. E. Manning Estate Appraisal.

An estate of $44,537.13 was left by the late William E. Manning of Yantic according to an appraisal and inventory filed in the probate court. N. A. Gibbs and James J. Semple were the appraisers and Fred F. Manning executor of the will.

W. B. L. Cranston Estate Appraised

An inventory and appraisal of the estate of the late W. B. L. Cranston which has been filed in the probate court makes the estate $35,048.96. The appraisers were C. D. Greenman and Gilbert S. Raymond. The executor of the estate is A. B. Davies.

Pass State Bar Examinations.

Among 68 who have passed the state bar examinations which make them admissible to the bar are J. B. Harvey, A. T. Kelly, J. H. King, Willimantic and J. P. Smith, Moosup.

PRES. COOLIDGE PLEDGES SUPPORT TO SECURITY PACTS

Speaking At Washington Anniversary Celebration At Cambridge Chief Executive Couples His Promise With Warning That On No Other Terms Could America Be Expected To Contribute To Old World Financial Revival—Says People of Europe Should Enter Into Mutual Covenants For Mutual Security—Urges Arbitration As Means To Settle Differences.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 3.—(A. P.)—Near the spot where George Washington took command of the Continental army, President Coolidge called on the nations of Europe today to enter into mutual covenants for their mutual security, pledging the moral support of the American government if they do so.

"While our own country should refrain from making political commitments where it does not have political interests," he declared, "such covenants would always have the moral support of our government and could not fail to have the commendation of the public opinion of the world.

Such a course would be sure to endow the participating nations with an abundant material and spiritual reward. On what other basis can there be an encouragement for a disposition to attempt to finance a revival of Europe?"

The president made brief but general reference to the European situation in an address delivered on historic Cambridge common. His speech was the feature of the celebration of the 15th anniversary of the day Washington assumed command of the colonial troops under the famed elm which formerly stood a stone's throw from the speaker's stand.

The president, accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge motored from Swampscott to take part in the fete, heading a parade and reviewing it before delivering his speech.

After tracing Washington's achievements and praising his character and services, Mr. Coolidge asserted that the nation's first president had "demonstrated by his arguments, and our country has demonstrated by experience, that more progress can be made by co-operation than by conflict."

"To agree quickly with your adversary always pays," he added, continuing:

"I want to see America assume a leadership among the nations, in the reliance upon the good faith of man kind. I do not see how civilization can expect permanent progress or any other theory.

"If the people of the old world are mutually distrustful of each other, let them enter into the mutual covenants for their mutual security, and when such covenants have been made let them be solemnly observed, no matter what the sacrifice.

"They have settled the far more difficult problems of reparations, they are in process of funding their debts to us, why can they not agree on permanent terms of peace and fully re-establish international faith and credit.

"If there be differences which cannot be adjusted at the moment. If there be be conditions which cannot be foreseen, let them be resolved in the future by methods of arbitration and by the forms of judicial determination.

"The world has tried war with force and has utterly failed. The only hope of success lies in peace with justice. No other principal conforms to the teachings of Washington; no other standard is worthy of the spirit of America; no other course makes so much promise for the regeneration of the world."

President and Mrs. Coolidge were accompanied from Swampscott by U. S. Senator Butler of Massachusetts and Secretary and Mrs. Sanders. As the president's automobile turned into the boulevard skirting the Charles river, a salute of 21 guns was fired by an artillery unit.

The president was first taken to the Walker Memorial building at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for a brief rest. Then he entered a touring car with the top down for the ride at the head of a lengthy parade through cheering lanes of people along Massachusetts avenue, past the Cambridge city hall, along the Harvard college campus and on to the reviewing stand at the edge of the Common, across the street from the famous Christ church.

In the reviewing stand Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge were joined by Gov. Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts, Mayor Quinn of Cambridge and Mayor Curley of Boston. The procession took more than an hour to pass the stand. Military units were followed by floats depicting important events in American history and by a wide range of city and fraternal organizations.

One of the fifty bands in the parade, marching at the head of a body of Elks, stopped in front of the reviewing stand to play "Lord Geoffrey Amherst," the school song of the president's alma mater. This brought a smile from the president. He also enjoyed the antics of a negro drum major and the appearance in the parade of a dilapidated one-horse shay.

As the parade was passing, the airship Shenandoah poked her nose above the horizon and eased her way over the Common.

FLOOD WARNING ISSUED AT DENVER

DENVER, July 3—Warnings that a large portion of South Denver and communities to the south for a distance of forty miles along Cherry Creek were in imminent danger of flood because Castlewood dam, a giant reservoir in the mountains is threatening to give way under water from cloudbursts, were broadcast by the police early tonight.

Residents along the forty mile stretch of Creek Bank were notified by the police to be prepared to flee at a moment's notice. Police patrols were stationed along the creek banks throughout Denver as the water rose rapidly.

The caretaker at the dam reported at 7 o'clock that a cloudburst struck Castlewood at 5:30 o'clock tonight and rain still was falling in torrents.

The strength of the dam, which holds back an enormous amount of water, has been a matter of debate among engineers since the devastating Cherry Creek flood of 1921.

WANTED—25,000 POSITIONS FOR WORLD WAR VETS

NEW YORK, July 3—(A. P.)—A nation-wide drive to place in industry and general business 25,000 rehabilitated World War veterans, was launched today by the National Association of Manufacturers, under the leadership of Frank T. Hines, director of the United States veterans bureau.

The entire body of men must be located in self-supporting positions by June, 1926, when this phase of the bureau work will expire by congressional limitation, it was announced.

"The government has had as its task the training of this body of men in more than 500 separate occupations", General Hines said in opening the campaign, "the occupations which have had the greatest appeal and in which more than 1,000 men have been trained include bookkeeping, accountancy, agriculture, engineering, dentistry, electricity, jewelry, law, machinery, salesmanship and tailoring.

"No undue consideration has been asked, as these men have a distinct pride in their ability to stand on their own feet and to render service fully equal in value to the compensation given them."

TO HOLD NATIONAL DEFENSE TEST TODAY

WASHINGTON, July 3.—(AP)—Beginning at daylight tomorrow, America once more, theoretically will be mustering for war. The occasion will be the second test of national defense plans.

The war department and general staff were already on a simulated war footing tonight. Headed by Major General John L. Hines, chief of staff, with General Pershing standing by to observe results of the nine months' work on muster plans since the first test September 12, the whole military establishment in Washington was on duty, and in immediate communication with the nine corps area commanders on whom chief responsibility for the test devolves.

NORWAY PREPARES TO GREET CAPT. AMUNDSEN

OSLO, Norway, July 3—(A. P.—Norway's capital is in gala dress for the reception on Sunday of Captain Roald Amundsen and his colleagues, returning from their Polar flight. The admiralty expects that the explorers will land at Olso at one o'clock in the afternoon. Unless unforseen circumstances develop they will fly from Horten to Oslo on the N-25, on which they returned to Spitzbergen after having been wedged in the ice for many days.

Venetian masts line the route from Tordenskjold Square, near the Waterside, where a pavilion has been erected for the municipal reception, to the royal palace, where the Amundsen party is to be welcomed by the king.

The government steamer Albert W. Selmer, which is bringing the explorers from Spitzbergen to Norway, will be saluted by warships, gaily decorated for the occasion, on its arrival at Horten.

INS. COMPANIES SHOW MARKET VALUE INCRAESE

HARTFORD, July 3—(A. P.)—Showing an increase of $129,410,237.50 in the market values of their stocks during 1924, twenty-two stock insurance companies have reported to the state board of equalization that the aggregate values at the end of the year reached $367,530,237.50, an amount unprecedented in the history of Connecticut insurance companies. Certification of these values was made to the state treasurer today by Tax Commissioner Blodgett and taxes aggregating $1,108,732, or $470,199 more than for the previous year, will be payable July 15 on the market value of the stocks.

HEALTH DEPT. WILL INSPECT SUMMER CAMPS

HARTFORD, July 2—(A. P.)—Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, the state commissioner of public health, has assigned Howard Dunbar and Howard Shaughnessy, who are employed in the bureau of sanitary engineering of the department, in charge of Warren J. Scott, to inspect, during the summer, summer camps, boarding houses, wayside eating places and shore resorts to see that they are kept in a sanitary condition. Mr. Dunbar and Mr. Shaughnessy will act in cooperation with local health authorities in all the towns of the state. A similar course was taken last year with satisfactory results.

NAMED PRESIDENT OF LAWRENCE UNIVERSITY

MIDDLETOWN, July 3—(A. P.)—Henry Merritt Wriston, Ph. D., professor of history at Wesleyan University, has resigned to accept the presidency of Lawrence University, Appleton, Wis., which office has been vacant since the death of Dr. Samuel Plant in November, 1924. Professor Wriston was graduated from Wesleyan in 1911 with the degree of B. A., and obtained his M. A., at the same institution. He took his graduate work from 1911 to 1914 at the Harvard Graduate school by which he has been granted the degree of doctor of philosophy.

Big Stock Exchange Firm In Bankruptcy

Amount of Money Involved Is Largest of Any Stock Exchange Failure In Recent Years.

NEW YORK, July 3—Encumbered by slow moving assets, the New York stock exchange brokerage firm of Dean, Onativia & Co., was thrown into bankruptcy today with liabilities estimated at approximately $35,000,000 and assets at $30,000,000 or more. While the amount of money involved is the largest of any stock exchange failure in recent years, counsel for the firm declared that the actual loss would be small that creditors and customers were well protected.

Large holdings of grain company stocks which were not readily marketable and which tied up the brokerage firm's working capital, were among the main factors in its inability to meet its obligations. The bulk of these investments was said to be in the Rosenbaum Grain Corporation, controlled by two of the firm's partners, E. S. and E. S. Rosenbaum.

Transacting a huge business in both stocks and grain, the company maintained large offices in both New York and Chicago and branch offices in Washington, D. C., and Plainfield, N. J. Upon announcing its failure to meet its obligations following the calling of a loan by a Chicago bank, the firm was immediately suspended by the New York stock exchange, the Chicago stock exchange and Chicago board of trade, the New York curb market and the New York cotton exchange.

William M. Cannon was appointed receiver for the company in New York after three employes had filed a petition in bankruptcy in the federal court. The application estimated the firm's liabilities at $5,000,000 and its assets at $4,000,000 but Gilman & Unger, New York, counsel for Dean, Onativia & Co., later asserted that these figures should be in excess of $30,000,000.

Failure of the firm temporarily unsettled the stock market and caused forced liquidation of some of its stock holdings. These included shares of the stewart-Warner Speedometer Co., the Yellow Cab Co., and other so-called Chicago stocks, such as Sears-Roebuck and Pullman. The New York curb market suspended trading in stocks of the Rosenbaum Grain Corporation and the American Rayon Products Corporation, in which the house was interested.

Irving L. Ernst, representing the attorneys for the creditors, said that a committee of creditors is being organized which will work in connection with the receivers and assist all creditors in liquidating the accounts, assist the receivers in realizing on assets and advise regarding any possible adjustment.

This committee, Mr. Ernest said, is expected to start functioning about next Tuesday.

MOVIE TAX WILL DRIVE PRODUCERS FROM STATE

HARTFORD, July 3.—(AP)—In actions instituted today in the United States district court at New Haven, two motion picture producers stated that, if the enforcement of the motion picture tax and censorship law of Connecticut "is not restrained or abandoned, they will be driven out of the state of Connecticut, for it will be impossible for the plaintiffs to carry on their business on a profitable basis in the state."

Papers were served by United States Marshal Jacob D. Walter at the offices of Governor Trumbull, Tax Commissioner Blodgett, Superintendent of State Police Hurley, State Police Commissioners Isbell, Stoeckel and Salmon and Motion Picture Agent John J. Splain notifying them to appear before a constitutional court to be held at New Haven Friday next for a hearing on the new law before Federal Judges Rogers, Thatcher and Goddard.

MINING DEADLOCK IS EXPECTED IN ENGLAND

LONDON, July 3—(A. P.)—Refusal by delegates representing miners in all parts of the country to consider proposals of the mine owners for a new agreement, embracing reduction in wages and an increase in the working day, makes a deadlock in the mining industry inevitable. It is considered almost certain that the annual conference of the Miners' federation at Scarborough on July 14 called to consider the wage question, will indorse the decision taken by the delegates at their private conference today.

The miners representatives say that unless the owners show willingness to make further concessions giving the miners a living wage, war is certain. Despite these assertions, it is pointed out that the mining industry is in no position to stand a long strike or lockout. Much will depend on whether, and how far, the miners and railwaymen can work together to resist the demands by the employers for lower wages.

RECOMMEND RATIFICATION OF CHINESE TREATIES

PARIS, July 3—(A. P.)—The two treaties relating to China which were drawn up during the Washington conference were recommended today for ratification by the foreign affairs committee of the chambers of deputies. Foreign Minister Briand requested this action be taken.

Two Women Killed In Auto Accident

Sedan Demolished When It Crashed Headon Into Seven Ton Truck On Berlin Turnpike.

MERIDEN, July 3—(A. P.)—Mrs. William McCarthy, 50, and daughter, Miss Frances McCarthy, 22, of 1650 Dorchester avenue, Boston, Mass., died at Meriden hospital this afternoon as the result of an automobile accident on the Berlin turnpike in Berlin nearly opposite Silver Lake Inn. Miss Agnes McCarthy, another daughter, 28, is at the hospital in a critical condition, not expected to live. William McCarthy, the father, 55, suffered cuts about the face, temple, left arm and right shoulder. He will recover.

They rode in a sedan. Cutting out of the line of traffic, Miss Frances McCarthy drove squarely into a seven ton truck driven by William C. Berghaus, of 19 Kenton road, Jamaica Plains, Mass. The automobile was smashed to bits. The truck driver pulled his fully loaded vehicle through a fence in an attempt to avoid disaster. the truck fell on one side in a ditch off the road four feet deep, the front wheels being ripped off and the body ruined.

Berghaus, in the employ of the T. Libby French Trucking company, of Boston, miraculously escaped from any injury. He held to the wheel as the truck keeled over, crawling out to see the scene of the maimed and dying.

Mrs. McCarthy was buried in the ruins of the car, her skull fractured, and her leg broken, her right arm suffered compound fracture, and lacerations.

Agnes McCarthy suffered severe injuries. Little hope is held for her recovery.

Mr. McCarthy escaped serious injury. He suffered abrasions of the face.

Berghaus risked his life in his vain attempt to save the lives of the others. He was driving a load of goods worth several thousand of dollars from New Haven to Boston. Truck and fabric are spread over a large area adjoining the turnpike.

State Policeman Budden announced that Berghause would be arrested on a technical charge of reckless driving, pending a hearing for manslaughter. The examination would be held in the town court of Berlin when the condition of Mr. McCarthy permitted.

BRITISH LEADERS MEET AT BANQUET TABLE

LONDON, July 3—(A. P.)—Final demonstrations of peace between Lord Oxford and Asquith, formerly Herbert H. Asquith and David Lloyd George, were made last night at a dinner of the Eighty club. The club is composed of strick Asquithians who formed the club as a result of the wartime liberal break which at times has threatened to separate permanently the followers of the then prime minister, Lloyd George, and those of his predecessor, Asquith.

Lord Oxford referred to Lloyd George as possessing the methods both of a seer and of a gladiator through his happy endowment of temperament, sleepless interest and unfailing sympathy with the needs of the common people.

Lloyd George referred to the "characteristic warm and generous tributes of Lord Oxford."

After this handsome hatchet burying both liberal leaders passed on to discussing what is to be done to revive their party.

Lord Oxford consoled those present with the reflection that at least twice previously the liberal party has been in domestic trouble equal to that of the present.

Mr. Lloyd George's speech contained a veiled challenge to Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin to reintroduce the issue of protection in England. Lloyd time Mr. Baldwin had "simply mounti- George said that up to the present ed sentimentalism as the head of a government on "slosh."

STAMFORD MAN HELD FOR SUPERIOR COURT

STAMFORD, July 3—(A. P.)—Arraigned in city court today on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, Thomas McCarthy, of 216 Pearl street, Bridgeport, pleaded not guilty and was released in $1,000 bail for superior court. McCarthy, a security dealer now employed in Waterbury, is alleged to have sold Winfred Scofield of Stamford, 250 shares of stock in a life preserver company for $250 which he did not have. McCarthy claims that he had not delivered the shares, which he said he bought in a block, because Scofield had not paid all of the $250.

DRIVER CLAIMED HE DID NOT SEE WAGON

SOUTHBURY, July, July 3—(A. P.)—Coroner John J. Phelan reserved decision yesterday after an inquest into the death of Alfred Shepard of New York, a visitor at the Berkshire camp here who was fatally injured on June 26 when a wagon in which he was riding collided with an automobile operated by Michael Wskpiet of Seymour. The latter, held in $500 bail, testified that he was blinded by an approaching car's lights and that he did not see Shepard's wagon which he claimed carried no light.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

As you touched off crimson crackers by the dozen and the score,
Shot rockets, stepped on caps, and fired a gun,
While happy children laughed aloud at each resulting roar,
And reveled all day long in noisy fun:
Did you even once consider, in the midst of jostling throngs,
The reason why the Fourth is set aside?
Or did you cast away the thought by humming ragtime songs,
And cranking up your motor for a ride?

As you speeded over country roads some shady spot to find,
Or watched the racing motor boats compete,
Were sacred thoughts of history dashed quickly from your mind,
By noises, sights, and dreams of things to eat?
While you celebrated noisily with millions free from care,
As though the Fourth were made for fun and play,
Did you fail to pause a moment and consider with a prayer
The meaning of our Independence Day?

SHENANDOAH ARRIVED AT BAR HARBOR LAST NIGHT

After Day Trip Over New England States From Lakehurst Big Navy Dirigible Appeared Over Bar Harbor Early Friday Evening—Trip Was Made Under Sunny Skies And In Schedule Time—Huge Crowd and Boat Whistles Welcomed Giant Craft As It Hove Into Sight—Washington Grants Permission For Women To Accompany Governors On Sight Seeing Flight To Be Made Today.

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 3—(A. P.)—Word that the navy department has for the first time granted permission to women to go aboard naval aircraft was received from Washington by navy officials here today. The permission was given to enable the women in the party of governors now touring Maine to go aloft in the airship Shenandoah, which arrived here tonight from Lakehurst, N. J.

Gov. Nellie T. Ross, of Wyoming, and Mrs. E. Lee Trinkle, wife of the governor of Virginia, have signified their intention of going up in the dirigible tomorrow. A flight has been scheduled with one of two alternative routes not yet selected.

The Shenandoah cruised about over her mooring mast on the mother ship Patoka for some time this evening and at 10:30 (daylight time) two hours after her arrival, she was still cruising about. The Patoka moved several times in search of a more sheltered anchorage, but it was thought that the Shenandoah would soon be tied up to her mast.

When the great craft hove in sight a huge crowd gathered and small boys equipped for the Fourth staged their own welcome with fire crackers and cap pistols. Boats in the harbor added their tooting to the din, and cheers went up along the water front as the dirigible approached.

BAR HARBOR WELCOMES VISITING GOVERNORS

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 3.—(AP)—State governors who traveled in triumphal procession through northern Maine today were received with equal enthusiasm at the exclusive summer resort of Bar Harbor. One of the greatest demonstrations given the visiting executives since they set out on their tour of Maine Wednesday after closing the business of their 17th annual conference at Poland Spring was accorded them today when they arrived here from Mount Desert, after leaving the special train which had carried them to the New Brunswick border and back in the past two days.

The party, headed by Gov. Ralph O. Brewster of Maine, landed from the Mount Desert ferry at 10 o'clock (eastern standard time) on a wharf packed with townspeople and summer visitors. Three naval destroyers and the U. S. S. Patoka, mother ship of the great naval dirigible Shenandoah, greeted the visitors with a deafening chorus of whistles and a band played "America" as the governors stepped ashore. They were conveyed to the Hotel Melvern in automobiles provided by citizens, and the program of the day included an open luncheon at the Pot and Kettle club at Hull's Cove, a drive about the island to view the great estates of summer residents, a dinner at which the visitors were given respite from speech-making, and finally a ball at the Swimming club.

CHANGE IN PLANS FOR FLIGHT TO MINNESOTA

WASHINGTON, July 3.—(AP)—The flight of the dirigible Shenandoah to Minnesota, which had been planned for early this month, has been postponed for late August or early September.

The change in plans, it was announced at the navy department today, was due to summer weather conditions in the interior and the schedule of operations mapped out for the airship after her return from Maine.

PRES. COOLIDGE TO OBSERVE BIRTHDAY TODAY

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 3.—(AP)—Somewhat fatigued by his afternoon motor trip to Cambridge to take part in the George Washington celebration there, President Coolidge, again resting tonight in the seclusion of the summer White House here, had before him plans of a celebration for tomorrow—the Fourth of July and his 53rd birthday.

His plans for the day had not been definitely formulated, but it is probable the President and Mrs. Coolidge will motor to nearby Marblehead to board the Mayflower for a short cruise.

Should this trip be made it will be the first Mr. Coolidge has made to sea on the presidential yacht. This has been a favorite form of diversion enjoyed by him while in Washington but the cruises there have been confined to the Potomac.

Mr. Coolidge feels confident from reports of physicians attending his father at Plymouth, Vermont, that the latter is on the road to recovery.

TRANSFER SCOPES CASE TO FEDERAL COURT

DAYTON, Tenn., July 3.—(AP)—Various expressions came from Dayton folk today when it was learned here that defense counsel would move to have the Scopes evolution case transferred from the jurisdiction of the state courts to a federal court with either Nashville, Knoxville or Chattanooga as the scene of the fight.

Dayton counsel for both the defense and the state expressed the belief that such a move would prove futile, pointing out that in their opinion it was not likely that the federal courts would intervene in a case in which criminal proceedings already had been initiated.

J. L. Godsey, local defense counsel, suggested the Oregon case as an example. In that case, he said, an injunction was asked to prevent state schools from enforcing a recently enacted law. That case he pointed out, however, was one in which there had been no previous criminal proceedings.

INCREASED VANDALISM AT SYDNEY MINES

SYDNEY, N. S., July 3.—(AP)—Although Provincial police and United Mine Workers' union committees are guarding the property of the British Empire Steel company, vandalism has increased in the area affected by the strike of the company's coal miners.

The latest depradations were the burning of two of the company's buildings last night. One was a small warehouse, the other an empty building. The preceding night in Glace Bay a gang entered the home of a Belgian national and assaulted him and his wife. At the same time others were stoning houses and breaking windows. The gangs were finally dispersed by Provincial police.

APPOINTED CHIEF OF DARIEN POLICE DEPT.

STAMFORD, Conn., July 3—(A. P.)—Harry Smith, named as chief of police at Darien, today asked the board of trustees of the Stamford police pension fund for retirement on a pension. He was first appointed as policeman in 1899, and had been desk sergeant in 1923. If he obtains a pension he will draw $1,100 a year. The salary of his new position will be $2,000.

WILL OPEN EMBASSY BUILDING AT PARIS TODAY

PARIS, July 3—(A. P.)—The opening tomorrow of the United States embassy building, owned by the American government, will feature the celebration of the Fourth of July in Paris. Myron T. Herrick, ambassador, will give a house-warming reception during the afternoon to the members of the permanent colony in Paris and tourists visiting the capitol.

FRENCH DEBT MISSION IS NOW ASSURED

PARIS, July 3—(A. P.)—The French government has decided to send a mission to the United States with the object of reaching an agreement with the American debt funding commission relative to the payment of France's debt.

The plan was approved by the council of ministers today and it is taken for granted that the cabinet at a full session tomorrow will give its formal assent. It is even considered likely that the cabinet will proceed to discussion concerning the makeup of the mission and the time of its departure.

Foreign Minister Briand has asserted that the mission will start as soon as possible, but Finance Minister Caillaux's preoccupation with grave financial problems has caused September to be mentioned as the most likely time.

The government's decision to send a mission has revived expressions of hope that the United States will be generous enough in its terms so that France can really begin to pay with a reasonable moratorium.

The magnitude of the burden is emphasized by the newspapers which calculate that the debt, including $4,000,000,000 for army stocks on which France accrued interest at 5 per cent, to 91,000,000,000 paper francs.

The American debt funding commission is described by the papers as willing to give France better terms than were given to Great Britain, and 2 per cent, interest is suggested as the possible figure, with payments extending for seventy or eighty years.

Lately, the payment of the debt has come to be accepted as inevitable and as absolutely necessary for French credit. Discussion now centers on how it can be done, instead as formerly on whether it ought to be done. There are still notes of regret, however, that Great Britain and the United States allies of France in the war are representing their bills and insisting on payment.

THREE MORE SHOCKS AT SANTA BARBARA

SANTA BARBARA, July 3.—(AP)—Three distinct shocks and a number of tremors did not halt reconstruction in Santa Barbara today. With private enterprise activity in the business district, the county supervisors in their first session since the quake of Monday hired an architect to plan a $1,000,000 court house and a $200,000 county hospital. In making a general outline for the new building plans the supervisors ordered that provision be made for a doubling of county business in ten years.

Along the main business street of the city plate glass men were busy repairing display windows in stores not otherwise damaged and "business as usual" was resumed at a great number of stores.

CANADA SENT MUCH LIQUOR TO U. S.

OTTAWA, July 3—Whiskey, ale and beer to the value of $12,284,387 were exported to the United States from Canada, during the 12 months which ended May 31, official trade returns of the dominion bureau of statistics show.

MIDDLETOWN, July 3—The body of a woman found in Pameacha pond on the Durham road by Francis Wolfe a boy today was later identified as that of Mrs. Louisa A. Kendel, 50 years old, of Hunting Hill avenue, Middletown. Identification was established by Mrs. Kendel's son, William Kendel. Coroner L. A. Smith made an examination but reserved decision.

Mrs. Kendel is survived by two sons here and a daughter in New Haven.

WILLIMANTIC

The back to the farm movement which has prevailed in the town of Chaplin during the past few years has so crowded the town, which is one of the smallest in the state that it has been found necessary to open a drive for more school room. Foreign born families came to the section with many children and last year the two schools, one at Chaplin Center and the other in South Chaplin, were crowded. Over seventy-five persons attended a special town meeting held this week with Winslow B. Gallup, moderator, and Burt M. Welch, clerk. The general trend of opinion was that more school floor was necessary. The board of selectmen and town school committee were authorized to make a survey of the situation and arrive at an approximate cost of providing more room. A report is to be made at a future special town meeting. The board of selectmen comprises: Frank White, Floyd Lewis and Henry Eaton and the school board is Floyd Landon, Burt M. Welch, Edward Beleck, Charles Wilson, Frank Wilson and Wesley Deming.

The automobile accident which happened on the North Windham Road in the town of Chaplin Sunday evening, June 28, resulting in injuries to Mrs. Mary Guay of Chaplin and damage to the Guay machine, when it was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Rose Tine, of Providence, R. I., has developed into a series of damage suits, brought against Mrs. Tine by the Guay family. The suits represent a total of $3,300 and will be heard during the September civil term of the Windham County superior court. For injuries, Mrs. Mary Guay sues for $1,100, Ethel Guay for $600 and for damages to the car, Lewis L. Guay, driver, claims damages of $1,600. Constable Joseph Peck has placed an attachment on the Tine car. Mrs. Guay sustained the most severe injuries. It is expected that she will be discharged from the hospital within a few days.

Thomas Murray was tendered a farewell party at the home of Charles B. Clark, Thursday evening, with officials of the Quidnick-Windham Manufacturing company and other friends present. Mr. Murray leaves today (Saturday) for Providence where he will make his home and conduct a general store. He was presented a purse on behalf of the guests, by Clarence E. Chamberlain. Mr. Murray has been connected with the company twenty years and enjoys a wide friendship in this vicinity.

Train schedule changes involving stops at shore resorts for excursionists are noted in the summer time table of the New Haven railroad which goes into effect tomorrow, Sunday, July 5. But few of the changes, however, affect this city. Train No. 1018, on the Air Line Division, which leaves New Haven at 2 p. m. on week days will be operate dexcept Saturdays and Sundays and make side trips to Colchester, arriving in Willimantic at 4:26 p. m. A Sunday train will leave New Haven at 9:40 a. m. with a stop at Northford, one in Middletown at 9:50 a. m. and making stops to Willimantic, via Colchester being due here at 11:45 a. m.

Sam Tine of Pawtucket, R. I., was in Chaplin town court Thursday afternoon charged with reckless driving, to which he pleaded nolo contendre. Tine's car collided with a Chevrolet car driven by Lewis L. Guay, of Chaplin, Sunday night, injuring Guay's mother, Mrs. Mary Guay and the latter's daughter, Ethle Guay, besides badly damaging the car. Grand Juror Frank Landon presented the facts in the case. Justice of the Peace Charles S. Russ found Tine guilty and imposed a fine of $25 and costs, amounting to $42.25 which was paid.

Automobile drivers are now paying from 27 to 28 cents a gallon for their gasoline since the addition of the two cent gasoline tax levied by the state.

KIDNAPPING RUMOR ANDOVER SENSATION

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 3—What appeared, on the surface, to be a daylight kidnapping case was called into the attention of the state police, Friday afternoon, about one o'clock, when a note which read as follows was dropped out of an automobile which speeded through the town of Andover: "Against my wishes I am being taken forcibly away; Please notify my lawyer, F. B Gaffney, of New Britain and Richard Rand, of New Haven. Signed, Emma Brice." Miss Alice Hutchinson was sitting on the front porch of her home on the state highway in Andover when she saw the slip of paper flutter out of the car and she went and secured it. Upon reading the contents she notified the local police department and Chief of Police Allan McArthur dispatched Motorcycle Officer Arthur M. Hurley to halt the machine when it arrived here; but it failed to put in an appearance and the case, being out of the jurisdiction of the local department was turned over ot the state police barracks at Stafford Springs. Officer Edgar D. Alsid was detailed on the case and is conducting an investigation. Richard Rand is said to be a well known physician in New Haven. Attorney Gaffney is also known here.

A GOOD DEED DAILY

A "good scout" lives not to see how much he can get OUT of life but rather to see how much good he can DO during his life time.

One of the good things he is taught early—is THRIFT.

A thrifty BOY means a thrifty MAN. And that's the kind of a man who does the most good for himself, his family and his community.

Ours is a Good Bank for a "Good Scout."

PLAINFIELD

With the closing of the Community house for the season the townsfolk of Plainfield are complimenting Teddy Dissinger for the eficient manner in which he has made the Community house so successful during the spring season. Mr. Dissinger has the people of Plainfield working with him. He has made the Community house the center to which all societies of the town turn and has co-operated with all. He is a leader in athletics and the juniors of the town look to him with admiration and confidence. To Miss Birtwistle, librarian, praise is also due, for the eficient way in which she has filled a difficult position.

Local citizens are talking about putting through a deal to have the main street of the town widened. As the road stands the section in front of the postoffice is but twenty feet wide, while the section that faces the mill yard gate is approximately forty feet in width. Hardly a day passes without some kind of a tie-up in tranic through the town, or a minor accident. During the past week each day has brought a new accident and the townsmen are now ready to put anything through that will remedy this situation. Local automobile owners do not obey the parking regulations and there are no official parking laws in the village so it becomes necessary to widen the highway, that lives of citizens may be protected.

Richard Procvost, tree surgeon, who has been home on a few days' visit from Great Neck, was stricken at four o'clock Friday morning with an attack of acute indigestion. A local doctor is attending him.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Archer and family are at Ocean Beach for a few days.

Island, N. Y., where they will spend several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Oates and family are at Ocean Beach for a few wdays.

The Plainfield town baseball team has a tough game on today (Saturday) and Sunday when they play the Coast Guard ball club.

The fight fans sat close to the radio set Thursday night for returns on the flock of bouts coming through. Betting in town was very light as many fight followers had predicted the outcome days ago.

John Oates, retired cotton manufacturer who is touring Europe with his family, was among prominent fight fans missing at the Polo Grounds Thursday night. Mr. Oates is known as one of the big sportsmen.

Friday morning the truck of the New Britain Mattress company backed into a Cadillac touring car parked near the postoffice. The top of the passenger car was sipped as a little, which was the extent of damage done.

Charles F. Montgomery, of Oneco, was a business caller in Plainfield Friday.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

A fire at noon Friday in a dwelling in Furnace street, owned by Luther Pilling and occupied by the families of Gurdon E. Withey and Mrs. Lena Bowen, damaged the building and its contents to the extent of $2,000 to $3,000, according to the estimate of Chief A. P. Woodward, of the fire department.

Howard Withey, resident in an adjoining house, was first to notice that there was a fire in the tenement occupied by his parents. He pulled in an alarm from Box 18 at the corner of Furnace and Cottage streets, and rushed back to make his way into the Withey apartment, both Mr. and Mrs. Withey being absent at the time. The house was smoke filled when he forced an entrance, too late to save the life of a hunting dog belonging to his father. The animal had been suffocated.

Firemen encountered a difficult situation to deal with, as the fire was between the partitions and eating its way about from point to point. Holes were cut through partitions and through the roof in the process of extinguishing the fire, which caused the greatest amount of damage on the Withey side of the house. The firemen were engaged for about an hour and a half before the recall was sounded.

Chief A. P. Woodward said after the fire that he was uncertain as to the cause of it. It may have been caused by an oil stove in the Withey tenement, but this was not definitely established.

The house was insured, but there was no insurance on the contents and the tenants, especially Mr. Withey, suffered heavily. Mr. Withey has for years been an able member of the fire department and his loss came as a blow to him. Mrs. Bowen's household goods were damaged by smoke and water, but the loss there was not as great as on the other side of the house.

A hearing before members of the Public Utilities commission at Norwich on petitions for permission to establish bus lines between Norwich and Willimantic and the fact that the Connecticut company is one of the petitioners, seems to forecast for some minds the possibility of motor busses replacing trolleys between North Grosvenordale and Central Village, or possibly Norwich, at a not distant date, with the trolley company as the operating agency. It is patent to any observer that the trolley business between North Grosvenordale and Central Village is not lucrative and that it is apparently less in volume now than it was even a year ago. Substitution of busses for electric cars on this line is regarded as a possibility here, though no hint of such a plan has come from anyone connected with the trolley company. The change would effect a reduction in operating costs. The legislature has authorized the Connecticut company to operate bus lines.

East Killingly will open its Fourth program at 9 o'clock this morning with a parade. Hon. Augustus Lonergan, of Hartford, a former congressman from Connecticut, and Rev. E. Chester Farley, of Suffield, and Rev. Chester J. Armstrong, of Danielson, will be the speakers, of exercises to be held at 1 o'clock. At 3 o'clock there will be a program of sports, including a half-mile race for men, greased pole contest, tack driving contest, 50-yard dash, horse-shoe pitching contest, etc. The contests are open to everyone. East Killingly observes standard time and the events of the day will be presented in accordance with it.

As forecasted in this column some time since, the work of tearing up the rails and taking down the overhead of the old Providence and Danielson trolley line between North Scituate, 15 miles east of here, and the Providence city line is under way. This is the last link of the road excepting that still in operation between Danielson and East Killingly. The rails now being taken up for a distance of about eight or nine miles will be sold as opportunity offers as used material. The same disposition will be made of the overhead material. Through service on the Providence and Danielson road was discontinued a number of years ago, prior to the completion of the present state highway between Providence and Danielson, because the road did not pay—was a losing proposition. In service today, it would meet even sterner competition because of the development of motor bus and truck facilities and because of the splendid highway running between this community and the Rhode Island capital.

Where the rails now being taken out run along the state highway the old roadbed will be incorporated into the trunk line highway, this work to be done by the state of Rhode Island.

If everything went well with the Service battery, 192nd F. A., the command arrived at Tobyhanna, Pa., Friday afternoon, and they are spending the holiday at the military reservation. The battery left here about 3:45 Wednesday morning in a motor convoy.

Chief John McFarland, of the borough police court, expressed, Friday, his appreciation of the restraint shown by all tempted to set off explosives and fireworks in advance of the holiday. The record here was exceptionally fine this year, and that may be a reason for greater enjoyment today, when the ban is off.

An automobile driven by Irvis Potter, of Dalton, Mass., was in a rear-end collision, Thursday evening, in Brooklyn, with another car driven by Edward Hellsten, of Brooklyn. No one was injured and the damage to the machines was slight. The accident is believed to have been due to Hellsten stopping his car unexpectedly.

Dancers at Wildwood park on the eve of the Fourth were not handicapped as to where to spend the "night before." A dance ending at midnight was immediately followed by a midnight dance that continued until 3:30 this (Saturday) morning. There was a large attendance.

State Officer Morse and State Officer Carmody, who have been attached to the Danielson barracks several weeks, have been transferred to Hartford and are succeeded here by State Officer Parker, of Waterbury, and State Officer Foley, of New Haven. A detail of police in charge of Sergeant Albert S. Field remains on duty in Willimantic.

For the convenience of many, a special trolley service between Danielson and East Killingly will be maintained today. East Killingly is having its annual celebration of Independence day and hundreds are expected to flock to the highland community of the town.

At the horse races at Pascoag, today (Saturday), J. Carl Witter, of Danielson will act as starter.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Spalding are occupying their new home on upper Reynolds street, moving there from near South Killingly.

Jewett City's celebration of the Fourth will attract numbers of people from Danielson and other communities in this immediate vicinity.

Mrs. Herbert C. Keech and family are to spend the summer at the Keech cottage at Alexander's lake.

PUTNAM

Two new ministers will preach their first sermons in Putnam, Sunday, July 5.

The new rector at St. Philip's church is Rev. W. Goring Alder, who comes here from Grovetown. He succeeds Rev. Mr. Hatch, who has been rector-in-charge for the past year. Mr. Alder has served 25 years in the ministry.

At the Second Congregational church Rev. James F. English, who accepted a call extended him three months ago, will officiate for the first time. He is from Elmwood, a suburb of Hartford.

Mr. English was born in East Windsor, Conn., in 1894, the youngest son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. William F. English. Dr. English was pastor of the First Congregational church of East Windsor for twenty-three years and is now treasurer of the Missionary Society of Connecticut. The younger Mr. English was a student in the grammar schools at East Windsor and the Enfield Public High school. In 1912 he was graduated from Monson, Mass., Academy, from Trinity College, Hartford, in 1916 and from the Hartford Theological Seminary, in 1921.

Rev. Mr. English served as a first class sergeant in the Medical corps during the World War. He saw service both in France and in camp in this country, with the Fifth Artillery Corps. While a student in the theological school he served parishes in North Newry, Maine, Riverton and East Hartland, Conn. After his graduation he became first pastor of the Elmwood Community church when it was organized, in 1921.

Mr. English married September 1, 1921 Miss Alice B. Welles, of Hartford, a graduate of Smith College. They have two children.

James B. Cassidy, 71, died at Pomfret, Friday morning, after an illness of several weeks. He was born and spent all of his life in Pomfret. The illness that caused his death is said to have been induced by an injury to his foot which refused to yield to treatment.

Edward E. Keefe, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Keefe, of Ring street, has finished his first year at an accounting and secretarial school at New Haven and has received diplomas on Income Tax Procedure 924, Salesmanship and Junior Accounting. In the fall he will re-enter this school for the Senior course. August 1, he leaves for a month's training at Fort Terry camp.

Miss Elsie Swanson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Swanson was operated on for appendicitis at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester and is making a good recovery.

John Hanley has purchased the H. H. Davenport property, in Pomfret, next to the Albert Day house. It consists of a two-apartment house and a garage with a large tract of land.

Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent of schools will be in Putnam Wednesday, July 15, and for the remainder of the week, at which time parents of school children or others who wish to see him in connection with school matters will find him at his office in the Israel Putnam building.

Frank Dean of Hartford has entered the employ of the Putnam Light and Power company. Mr. Dean is moving his family from Hartford in to the house owned by the Child Lumber Co. at No. 1 Vandale street.

Miss Sybilla Gilman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Gilman attended the graduation exercises at Bay Path Institute, Springfield, Mass., and the Alumni banquet held at the Hotel Kimball. Miss Gilman, who is now a teacher in the commercial department of the North Grosvenordale schools, set a new record for speed and proficiency as a typist, during her second year at Bay Path and won a new typewriter.

Miss Ruth Foster, teacher in the third, fourth and fifth grades the latter part of last year, at the Smith street school has announced her marriage with Pearl Phelon of Granville, Mass. They will make their home at Granville.

Mrs. Mary Boles, 67, formerly of North Grosvenordale, committed suicide at her home in Webster by hanging herself in her bed room. She had been in poor health for a long time.

The Annual Bible School picnic of the Baptist church will be held this week Saturday, July 4, at Roseland Park.

The teachers of the Putnam public schools will spend their summer vacations as far as known as follows:

Superintendent Ralph C. Jenkins will teach psycology in Keene, N. H., where he taught last year. This will take half of his day.

Otto Smith at Dorchester, Mass.

Marjorie McGillicudy, Portland, Maine.

JEWETT CITY

Alex McNicol and L. M. Carpenter went over the line of march Thursday evening, and measured the distance by streets for the parade today (Saturday.

The figures appearing are to be reckoned as tenths of a mile: Post office to Ashland, .2; East Main to Brown avenue, .2; Brown avenue to North Main, .4; North Main to Mathewson, .2; Mathewson to R. R. Crossing, .5; Crossing to Lisbon Tres, .4; Tree to R. R. (countermarch), .4; Crossing to Post office, .1; Post office to Palmer avenue, .4; Palmer avenue to Fanning park, .3; total, 3.3 miles. Dr. G. H. Jennings, marshal of the day, expects to be able to route certain divisions of his big parade through Mechanic street. The marshal and his aides are asking that every float, order, or organisation be ready to "fall in" promptly at 1 p. m., that there may be no delay in moving the line at 2. The wonderful decoration scheme that has been in progress since the first of July, will be completed this morning, when the finishing touches of fancy outside trimming are given. All roads will lead to Jewett City today, and there will be something doing, that historians will make special mention of in books about Griswold, written in future ages.

The big navy dirigible Shenandoah passed over Jewett City a little before 3 o'clock p. m., Friday. Notice was given by telephone from all quarters by those who spied it first. People ran from every direction for points of vantage, but there was no hurry. Either the pilots of the great airship were anxious that their passengers and crew should get a better view of the wonderful street decorations, or, more likely, something happened to the air bag or mechanism. Anyway, off to the east of the town, the big balloon seemed to dip several times, then the engines were stopped altogether and the lengthy, shining steel-colored visitor, hung motionless for a long time. Although several hours behind its schedule, it was in full sight above the northern portion of the town for more than an hour.

Edward Thornton is at home from East Greenwich over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gordon left Thursday for an automobile trip to Canada, to visit Mr. Gordon's aged father. They will visit Montreal, Quebec, Niagara Falls and several other places. They were accompanied by their niece to her home in Glenn's Falls, N. Y.

Miss Bessie Leonard, principal of the Clarke school in Northampton, Mass., a sister of F. S. Leonard, will spend two months abroad, sailing on S. S. Samaria. She will be accompanied by Miss Fitz, head of the Boston schools for feeble-minded children.

The White Eagle society has given $63.57 each, to Mrs. Gartska and Mrs. Osga, whose husbands lost their lives in an automobile wreck.

Firm theatre management has booked The Ten Commandments, one of the greatest screen pictures ever shown.

The Manchester Leader published the following item, sent to this column by Miss Elizabeth Dealy: George A. Ross, of Lisbon, Conn., has a pair of cart wheels that were used in the Revolutionary war and were at York (now Yorktown) when Cornwallis surrendered. The tires on these wheels are in sections, which are spiked on the felloe, splicing them and making the rim strong.

The communion service will be observed at the Congregational church, Sunday morning.

J. G. Kelley, 91, wealthy farmer of New Zealand, refused to register at a San Francisco hotel, unless he was permitted to "make his own bed." Mr. Kelley explained that he had made his own bed for 80 years and he did not intend to break his habit.

MDME. CYR'S SUDDEN DEATH IN MONTREAL FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, July 3.—Her relatives and many friends in Danielson were shocked, Friday evening, when a telephone message, at 7 o'clock, brought news of the death in Montreal, a few minutes before, of Mrs. Valerie Goyette Cyr Trudeau, who, for more than 40 years, had been engaged in the millinery business in Danielson. Mrs. Trudeau had been ill since her return to Canada from Danielson, about three weeks ago, but her condition was not regarded as alarming. A heart attack Friday evening brought her life to a sudden close.

Mrs. Trudeau, better known here as Mdme. Cyr, came to this borough as a young girl from Canada and by remarkable industry achieved one of the finest business successes in the history of Danielson. Starting in a small way, with the benefit of her business acumen, she built up one of the largest millinery trades in this section of eastern Connecticut and her patronage was representative of many towns in this section. A few years ago she went to Montreal and established a beautiful home in the Outremont section of the ity. Periodically, in the spring and fall of each year, she has spent several weeks in Danielson, supervising her business affairs. A monument to Mdme. Trudeau's labors and success in Danielson is the Cyr building, one of the finest business blocks in town, this property being sold by her a few weeks ago to Dr. J. N. Perreault.

Mrs. Trudeau, whose first husband, Joseph Cyr, died about three years ago, leaves her second husband, Oscar Trudeau, of Montreal; a brother, Moses Goyette, of Haverhill, Mass.; three sisters, Mrs. Moses Chartier and Mrs. Benoni Meunier, both of Danielson, and Miss Eugenei Goyette, of Montreal.

POETRY

From the Ode for the Fourth of July, 1870

Flawless his heart and [illegible] to the cord
Who, beckoned by the forward-leaning wave,
First left behind him the firm-footed shore,
And, urged by every nerve of sail and oar,
Steered for the Unknown which gods to mortal gave,
Of thought and action the mysterious door,
Bugbear of fools, a summons to the brave;
Strength found he in the unsympathising sun,
And strange stars from beneath the horizon won.
And the dumb ocean pitilessly grave:
High-hearted surely he;
But bolder they who first off-cast
Their moorings from the habitable Past
And ventured chartless on the sea,
Of storm-engendering Liberty:
For all earth's dith of waters is a span,
And their convulsed existence mere repose,
Matched with the unstable heart of man,
Shoreless in wants, mist-girt in all it knows,
Open to every wind of sect or clann,
And sudden-passionate in ebbs and flows.
They steered by stars the sister sumpmen knew,
And laid their courses where the currents draw
Of ancient wisdom channeled deep in law;
The undaunted few
Who changed the Old World for the New,
And more devoutly prized
Than all perfection theorized
The more imperfect that had roots and grew.
They founded deep and well,
Those danger-chosen chiefs of men
Who still believed in Heaven and Hell,
Nor hoped to find a spell,
In some fine flourish of a pen,
To make a better man
Than long-considering Nature will or can.
They wasted not their brain in schemes
Of what man might be in sume bubble-sphere.
As if he must be other than he seems
Because he was not what he should be here.
Postponing Time's slow proof to petulant dreams:
Yet herein they were great
Beyond the incredulous lawyers of yore,
And wiser than the wisdom of the shelf.
That they conceived a deeper-rooted state,
Of hardier growth, alive from fold to fore,
By making man sole sponsor of himself.
—James Russell Lowell.

WORK WITHOUT HOPE.

All Nature seems at work. Slugs leave their lair—
The bees are stirring—birds are on the wing—
And Winter, slumbering in the open air,
Wears on his smiling face a dream of Spring!
And I the while, the sole unbusy thing,
Nor honey make, nor pair, nor build, nor sing.

Yet well I ken the banks where aramanths blow,
Have traced the fount whence streams of nectar flow.
Bloom, O ye aramanths! bloom for whom ye may,
For me ye bloom not! Glide, rich streams, away!

With lips unbrightened, wreathless brow, I stroll:
And would you learn the spells that drowse my soul?
Work without Hope draws nectar in a sieve,
And Hope without an object cannot live.
—Samuel Taylor Coleridge.

FINE GIVEN A NEW LONDON MAN WHO CAUGHT EGG-BEARING LOBSTERS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 3—Elizo Minucci, a fisherman for lobsters, was fined $10 when presented in court today, on charges made by Deputy Fish and Game Warden Christopher Culver for having 65 female lobsters with ova attached, the possession of which is contrary to law and likely to result in diminishing the supply of lobster in the waters hereabouts. The law provides that such lobsters shall be immediately returned to the water whenever caught. Minucci was aware of this fact, but he had his own notions about the casting of the spawn and represented that when the lobsters had cast their ova they would be put backs into the sea. Minucci was also charged with failing to burn the name of the owner of the lobster cars on them in letters three-quarters of an inch in height, as provided by law, and took the chance of painting his name on the cars instead. He now understands that the laws of the state are made for compliance and that it is expensive not to conform to statutes.

Harry Wolfe pleaded not guilty when up for violation of the traffic laws of the city and then went on the witness stand and convicted himself of having left his auto beside standing signs that forbade the leaving of autos on the east side of Bank street where the curbing is painted white to warn against parking. He was fined $5 and settled.

W. N. Kenny, a [illegible] posted a bond of $10 when he was ordered to court for parking his car on Main street in front of the savings bank where the street is very narrow. He was to have appeared today to explain, but he didn't show up and his $10 went to the court's treasury.

Lester Berkhalter, a sailor on a mine planting vessel in the harbor, was charged with intoxication. He was penitent and had overstayed his leave ashore, so he was allowed to leave the station without further penalty for his indiscretion.

Bert De Vault [illegible] up that he has not experienced before, when he was brought into the police court this morning facing charges preferred upon Patrick Reagan, whose hat was tread by De Vault, a much bigger man, on Atlantic street, at an early hour this morning. Reagan was so badly used up that he was unable to appear in court. De Vault was probably half-drunk when he was given a place in the "cage" to await a hearing. He kept up a line of abusive talk till patience of those in the court room was tested to the breaking point. Sergeant Smith argued with him, but that was a useless endeavor to quiet DeVault and he became more abusive than ever as the talk went on. Then he applied a vile name to the sergeant and the pair mixed things up in the cage, but only for an instant, for four other officers in the court room got hold of De Vault and he went down nineteen steps to the cell room on his back with an officer holding him by the arms so that his head would not bump against the steps and others at his feet to make sure that Bert kept going. Judge Crandall was in chambers at the time and the commotion in the court room was such that he ordered that De Vault should be locked up and examined by the city physician and then be held till the Glorious Fourth for arraignment. De Vault has been out of jail but a few days after a stay there of six months for an assault upon Catherupo Bruno, an inoffensive fellow who served him with drink and was robbed and beaten in return for kindness. Reagan's face was a sight when he was brought to the police station. De Vault has been divorced by his wife since he started on sprees several months ago. He was a soldier at Fort Wright when he was married. It would not be surprising if he worked for the county for a few months this summer.

Mrs. George Harris of 253 Pequot avenue; James Perry, United States Coast Guard cutter Redwing; Miss Jennie Zelezmicky, Chesterfield; Manuel Miller, Providence; Joseph Buckley, United States Coast Guard cutter Redwing and Charles Jackson, United States Coast Guard destroyer McCall, patients at Lawrence-Memorial associated hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Mary Kane Kelley of Hartford, a summer resident in New London, died this morning at Ocean Beach She was of advanced age and had been in ill health for a long time. Mrs. Kelley is survived by two daughters.

Marshall Raymond, 11 Fitch avenue, was committed to Norwich State Hospital, this morning by City Physician George P. Cheney. Marshall was taken to the institution in the police automobile and in charge of Captain Charles A. Pinney and Sergeant Nelson Smith.

The police early this morning received a telephone message from a woman residing on Federal street, who refused to reveal her identity, stating that two men and two women were on the steps of the Stanton school, corner of Federal and Union streets, and by their conduct were annoying residents of that vicinity. Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray were sent to the school, but when they arrived there the men and women had departed.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of Dennis Patterson, 16 State street, to be returned to the owner. The license was suspended recently, Patterson being charged with violation of the motor vehicle laws.

An automobile truck owned and operated by Michael Rean, 118 Thames street, Groton was in collision this morning, corner of State and Main streets, with an unidentified pleasure machine. The latter car sustained the brunt of the damage. The driver of the unknown car assured Rean that the latter would file a record of the collision at the police station, which he failed to do and upon the promise of the driver to do as he assured, Rean failed to obtain the registration number or the name of the driver of the colliding auto.

Miss Doris Rowland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Rowland, of Thames street, is visiting at Twin Lakes villa, Lake Sunapee, N. H.

The condition of Mrs. [illegible]beth Murphy, who has been seriously ill at her home, Garfield avenue, several weeks, is reported as being somewhat improved today.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bowker of Pacific street, departed for Springfield, Mass., this noon, being called there by the sudden death of Mrs. Bowker's sister, Mrs. Rachel Longdon.

Miss Jane Cavanaugh of Shaw St., is visiting friends in Hartford.

Miss Martha Decker of Reverie avenue, is spending a few days with her father, Ira C. Decker in Mystic.

Prohibition enforcement agents and state police also visited the residences of Mrs. Nicholas Homan, Lyme turnpike, and Joseph Hanoski last night and early this morning, being armed with search warrants, as they had information that liquor was being dispensed at those places. A search of the houses, however, failed to find any liquor and if it was secreted in the places, the officers could not locate the hiding places.

Samuel Santanello, 44 Shaw street, was arrested by State Police Officer Giles Watson and Traffic Officer John Courtney, late this afternoon, charged with violation of the motor vehicle law in operating a machine that was equipped with defective brakes. Santanello was ordered to appear in the police court tomorrow morning.

An automobile owned by Attorney Frank L. McGuire, 85 Vauxhall street, a member of the law firm of Hull, McGuire & Hull, was stolen this afternoon and all efforts of the local police and those of surrounding towns and cities failed to locate the stolen machine.

Mr. McGuire parked his car in the rear of the Alling building on State street, about 2 o'clock and he did not return to take possession of his machine until about 5:40 o'clock when he discovered that it had been stolen. Mr. McGuire communicated with the police and a request to the Norwich, Westerly, Providence, New Haven and Hastford police was made to be on the lookout for the stolen car. The automobile is of the sedan type and bears registration, L-964.

John Moriarty, of Westerly, came to New London this morning and during the course of his shopping, he purchased strong drink, with the result that he did not return to his home; for when he went to the Union station to await a Westerly bound train he was so intoxicated that he was taken into custody by Sergeant Nelson Smith. Moriarty will be in the police court tomorrow morning.

Josiah Keeney, formerly of New London, now residing in New York, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Mary E. Keeney, Williams street.

The influx of holiday visitors to New London this evening was the largest in many years, all of the east and west-bound trains bringing men, women and children here, some to visit relatives and many to take up their abode here for the balance of the season. Thousands also came by automobiles, to say nothing of the thousands of tourists that arrived here for the week end or en route to eastern cities. So great was the motor traffic that State, Bank and Main streets were congested at times to the extent that cars were stalled for five or ten minutes. Because of the great traffic, regular patrolmen were brought into service to perform traffic duty.

The premature celebrators of the Fourth brought about one of the noisiest "nights before" in many years for long before sundown cannon crackers were exploded with great frequency in the heart of the city, particularly by sailors. On State street, near the Union station, the greatest noise prevailed and until long after midnight the terrific din was kept up.

An automobile bearing New York registration was struck by an incoming Groton and Stonington Street Railway car, on Main street, near Church street this evening, the automobile being forced against the curb and damaged.

State Hospital Patient Escapes.

The authorities of the Norwich State hospital, late Friday afternoon, requested the New London police to maintain a watch for James Crandall, who escaped from the institution earlier in the day. Crandall, who is about 30, formerly resided in New London and was employed as trap drummer at the Crown theatre. He was committed to the Norwich institution about two months ago. Crandall is about five feet, four inches in height and weighs about 140 pounds. When he escaped Crandall was attired in a gray suit of clothes, white shirt and soft white collar. He has relatives living in New London. His parents are dead.

WATERFORD INN "SPEAK EASY" FOR NEW LONDON VISITORS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 3—Clark A. Brown, colored, employed at the Rossitterie Inn, Waterford, was taken into custody last night by Constable Peabody, of Waterford, charged with violation of the liquor law, the arrest of Brown resulting from information that the Waterford authorities had received from time to time that liquor was being dispensed at the inn.

The inn, which was formerly known as "Secord's" was raided about two years ago and a heavy fine was meted out to one of the help there, who took upon himself the ownership of the liquor.

Brown has been in trouble before, having been arrested in New London in 1923, charged with assault. At that time he drew a fine of $200 and was sentenced to jail for six months.

Since the inn adopted its present name it has been managed by a man named Barrett, and it is claimed that liquor has been dispensed freely on any and all occasions by help at the place, particularly by Barrett, to New Londoners and others, who motored to the place at night. Frequent information of the alleged sale of liquor at the place being turned over to the Waterford authorities, the services of a stool pigeon were obtained, it is said, and the latter went to the inn earlier in the week and made a purchase of the liquor. With this information in their possession the Waterford authorities caused a warrant to be issued for Brown's arrest, for it was the waiter that it is claimed sold the liquor to the stool pigeon.

The inn is owned by Mrs. Secord and is managed by Barrett, who came to the place about two years ago and has since acted as manager of the establishment.

Brown was given a hearing before Judge Frederick Dimmock, in Waterford town court, this evening at 6 o'clock, and pleaded not guilty to the charge of selling liquor. He was represented by counsel in William F. Connor and was held in bail of $1,000 for hearing, next Saturday. In default of a surety on his bond, Brown was taken to jail.

It is understood that the state will claim that a bottle of whiskey was sold to an agent of the Waterford authorities and that the price paid for the liquor was $8.

Taking a tip from the glass bottomed boats running to Catilina island, off California, a railway, has fitted its coaches, running through scenic regions with glass roofs. This enables the tourists to see the towering mountains in comfort from their seats and has increased tourist traffic considerably.

MYSTIC

Mystic Grange, No. 178, met in G. A. R. hall, Thursday evening. The lecturer's hour was in charge of Mrs. Ellery Burdick and was open to visitors. The program commenced with singing of the Star Spangled Banner and salute to the flag. A playlet, "The Photographer," was well given. Zenas Snyder took the part of the photographer who had the camera and the following pictures were taken: Hazel Main Leeds Main with Mrs. John Jones as mother (the costumes made a hit). Next Mrs. Samuel Lamb acted her part well and the ancient costume was a sight. In the next, a group, William Stott acted as "Pa," while Mrs. Harry Cook as his daughter with Evelyn Burdick and John Jones as grandchildren created much laughter. Misses Mildred Chesbro, Ella Watson and Evelyn Burdick, in a group in present-day dress and Mrs. Henry Johnson alone completed the pictures. A three-piece orchestra gave selections. Then followed a reading by Miss Louise Schroder, a public lemon sale and William Stott gave a song story of Robinson Crusoe, after which there was a recitation by little Martha Morgan and an encore. Mrs. O. A. Wilcox, Miss Louise Schroder, Mrs. Thomas Pollard and Mrs. Walter Morgan were in an apple peeling contest. Mrs. Wilcox singing before the apple peeling. Mrs. Morgan won the prize. This preceded a recitation by Miss Blanche Sallis, a recitation, Mrs. Ellery Burdick with an encore that created the most laughter of the evening; a solo by Miss Josephine Foote, accompanied by Mrs. James W. Jackson with encore; a recitation, Zenas Snyder, and then came a corn-shelling contest between Charles Foote, Henry Johnson, Harry Sook. Henry Johnson won the prize. There was a selection by the orchestra, after which Mrs. Burdick and daughter Evelyn and Miss Pauline Reiners gave a dialogus that was very droll. The program ended with a selection by the orchestra. Sandwiches, cake and lemonade were served; 132 were present. The third and last of the entertainments is to be given July 16, the Old Mystic club furnishing it. Visitors were present from Stonington, North Stonington, Norwich, Groton, Ledyard, New Britain, Colchester, and one from Keene, N. H., granges.

Mrs. Nettie Crandall, of Groton, visited her sister, Miss Louisa Schroder, Thursday. On Friday she went to Jewett City to visit another sister, Mrs. Lottie Wolfe.

Mrs. Fannie Maguire called on her sister in Ledyard, Thursday.

Mrs. H. D. Bromley, of Westerly, visited Mrs. Mattie Richmond, Thursday afternoon.

Miss Corrine Paine left here Thursday for her home in Danielson. She will go next week to Boston, where she is to be with an insurance company. Miss Paine was in charge of the Community House, the past year, conducting the various activities in a most satisfactory manner and many regret her leaving here.

Fire Chief Frank A. Mabbett has asked the merchants and townspeople to remove all rubbish from their property in order to prevent fires on the Fourth.

Mrs. Anna Paton has carpenters shingling her house.

Carl Patterson, in the Cedar Crest district, fell from a tree, Wednesday, and dislocated his shoulder.

At the meeting of Stonington lodge, No. 26, I. O. O. F., in Odd Fellows hall, Wednesday evening, District Deputy Grand Master Orville Lewis installed the recently elected officers.

Rev. and Mrs. J. Garfield Sallis were given a surprise, Wednesday evening, when at the adjournment of the Sunday school board meeting the members and friends present remained for a social hour in honor of the eighteenth wedding anniversary of the pastor and his wife. Refreshments were served and a happy hour was spent. It happened with singular appropriateness also that the meeting had to be held in the parsonage, owing to defective lights at the church.

The Methodist Sunday school is to hold its annual picnic at Ocean Beach, Thursday, July 23. The committee on transportation is H. B. Mackenzie, G. W. Wallace and the pastor. A committee to plan a program for the day was also elected, consisting of G. W. Wallace, Mrs. Ellery Burdick, Mrs. A. H. Board, Harry McNally and Albert Neff.

The bi-monthly service of Holy Communion is to be held in the Methodist Episcopal church, Sunday at 10:30.

The Women's Home Missionary society plans a special work meeting, Tuesday next, in order to complete some unfinished work and will also hold a picnic at Atlantic Beach on Thursday of next week.

POMONA ANNUAL FIEED DAY AT ORAL SCHOOL IN AUGUST

(Special to The Bulletin.)

MYSTIC, July 3.—The annual field day of New London County Pomona Grange is to be held at Mystic Oral school in August. Dr. C. F. Congdon, serving on the committees, has secured permission from the trustees and principal of the school.

COLCHESTER

Manager Friedman of the Colchester baseball team has secured for the game on the Park grounds this (Saturday) afternoon, the All-Stars from North Grosvernordale. The game will be one of the best that has been played here. The battery for Colchester will be Hall and Slavkin.

George B. A. Baker and family, of Meriden, were guests of Mr. Baker's parents Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Strong were guests of friends in Norwich Thursday.

Fred B. Ames and son, Ray, of Salem, were callers in town Wednesday.

Arthur Holmes, of New London, was a caller in town Thursday.

Tony Rutka was in Salem Friday.

Timothy F. Kelly, local agent for the Metropolitan Insurance company for the past 24 ears, was retired on a pension last week. Mr. Kelly will now devote his whole time to collecting the town and borough taxes. Harry F. Friedman, who has been acting as agent in Willimantic, for the past six months, has been appointed Mr. Kelly's successor.

Miss Eliza Murphy, of Naugatuck, formerly of this place, is a guest at C. A. Kramer's on Chestnut Hill.

The large smoke stack that was blown down by the storm last week Monday, has been evicted again. Repairs have been made to the building, which was badly damaged by a large tree which was blown over in the same storm.

Harold Gunning has moved from the Stankiewiez house on South Main street, to a tenement in C. F. Brown's house, on Norwich avenue.

Mrs. Edwin Morrison, of Yonkers, has arrived at her summer residence, on Upper Broadway.

WESTERLY

Westerly people again had a distant view of the United States navy dirigible Shenandoah, when about 1:11, Friday afternoon, observers from elevated viewpoints beheld the aluminum colored air craft on the distant horizon, making its approach above Hinckley Hill, but at least fifteen to twenty miles to the north. As the silvery outline grew larger the nose of the giant aircraft was observed to point downward wit hthe craft tilted at an angle, then to proceed on an even keel and again to nose upward when at a higher altitude it proceeded along the northern sky line above the elevations of Brightman and Diamond Hill, to fade in the distance on its journey to Providence, Boston and Bar Harbor, Me. The Shenandoah was visible to Westerly observers for from fifteen to twenty minutes.

In the regular session of Third Distrcit Court, Friday morning, before Judge Michael J. Turano no cases were tried: The case of the State, Sheriff T. Mitchell vs. George Perkins of Exeter, involving a violation of state automobile laws on the Esquehaug road June 24th, was continued one week. The cases of State, first brought on June 19th against Natale Lupinazzo and Newman F. Tuckerman involving an alleged violation of State automobile laws as viewed by the Rhode Island State Board of Public Utilities, were each continued one week, pending a decision of the superior court at West Kingston on Monday next when an injunction granted the Mooney bus interests of Westerly, restraining Lupinazzo and Tuckerman, will be heard.

Numerous complaints have reached the Westerly Police Department of late relative to certain dogs in and about Westerly which have constituted a nuisance and have been the cause of much grumbling. Dogs of notably vicious disposition have been reported to the authorities and dog officer Russell L. Slocum is planning prosecutions of the offending dog owners.

The funeral of Miss Agnes Scott, R. N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scott, was held from her home at Chase Hill Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The house was filled with relatives and friends, and there were beautiful floral tributes, Rev. A. L. Schoning, pastor of the Broad Street Christian church, conducted the service. Burial was in the First Hopkinton cemetery, four cousins, Thomas and John Patton and James and William Hamilton being bearers. Among the out of town friends in attendance at the funeral were Miss Pringle, supervisor at the Lawrence and Memorial hospital at New London and several nurses from that city, and Mr. and Mrs. David Clark, also of New London, with whom Miss Scott made her home while in training.

Miss Scott, 32, was born in Westerly, the daughter of Robert and Jane McCheyne Scott, most of her life having been spent at Chase Hill. She attended school at Ashawa, graduating with the class of 1913. Following her graduation she entered the training school for nurses at the Lawrence hospital, New London, where she finished her course, becoming a registered nurse. She practiced her profession but a short time when she became ill and was obliged to enter the Norwich State sanitarium. She failed to improve, and for the past nine months was a patient sufferer, being confined to her bed most of the time. Besides her parents she is survived by two brothers, Patrick and Owen Scott, and two sisters, Miss Catherine Scott and Mrs. James Hirst.

The Two Hundred and Forty-third Coast Artillery, R. I. N. G. will go to Fort H. G. Wright, Long Island sound, July 19, for a 15-day tour of duty, it was announced in an order issued by Adjt. Gen. John J. Richards, Friday. Three officers and 45 enlisted men will go to the fort two days in advance to complete arrangements for the camp.

Failing to arouse their uncle, James M. Blake, 74, when they went up to his room Thursday morning two children of Alexander M. Blake of 9 Spruce street, ran downstairs to tell their mother, who went to the room and found the man had passed awa. Mr. Blake, had been in apparent good health. He had evidently arisen as usual for he was partly clothed when the children went to his room. He was born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, but came to this country when a young man. For a number of years he was employed at the Smith Granite company. His nearest relatives were Alexander M. Blake, a double nephew, with whom he made his home, and the following nephews and nieces: Frank Haswell and Misses Elizabeth Haswell and Mary Morgan, all of Westerly, and Charles and William Blake of Chicago, Ill.

The July meeting of Phebe Greene Ward chapter, D. A. R., was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Milo Clarke, 47 Summer street, Mrs. Allan L. Thompson, the regent, presiding. BIG FOURTH OF JULY PARADE FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE DAY

WESTERLY, R. I., July 3—National Defense or Muster day will be observed in Westerly Saturday morning, July 4th with a Defense Day parade, generally participated in. Marshal George E. Leonard and Chairman of the Defense Day committee George P. Chapman have made the following plans:

For the street parade, which forms at 8:15 Saturday morning in front of the Broad Street Christian church with start at 9:30 oclock, the line will be: Marshal and Aide from American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars, Westerly Band, Charles C. Gavitt, leader; Battery E, 243rd, R. I. C. A. (H. D.) Capt. John F. Datson; Westerly Sanitary Corps; Boy and Girl Scouts; Moore's Band; United Spanish War Veterans, Robert Brucker Camp; American Legion, Harold K. Merrill Post; Veterans of Foreign Wars, Harley P. Chase Post; Rhode Island State Guard, Fourth Company; Sons of Veterans, Amos P. Chapman Camp; Willimantic Boy Scout Band; and United States Reserve army. All citizens who enlist their services for one day.

The line of march will be Broad street to High street, Grove avenue, Granite and Broad streets, West Broad street to Moss, countermarch West Broad, Broad and Granite streets to the Granite street entrance to Wilcox Park.

The parade will form with colors massed and armed guard, to be reviewed at the Westerly Memorial Library building by Veterans of the Grand Army and Woman's Relief Corps. At Wilcox park Rear Admiral H. O. Dunn, retired, will deliver a short patriotic address. Every able bodied man is being urged to report at the Westerly Town Hall Saturday morning at 9 o'clock and thus insure a successful Defense Day parade and at the same time carry out the wishes as expressed in the proclamations of the President of the United States and the Governor of Rhode Island.

CANTERBURY GREEN

A well attended Ladies' Aid society meeting was held at Mrs. Clinton Frink's Tuesday afternoon. Plans were made and committees appointed for the annual lawn party in August. Two visitors from Brooklyn were present, Mr. Charles Hyde and Mrs. Pearl.

The R. F. D. carrier, Mr. Ferguson, is having two weeks' vacation, Fred Sackett is substitute carrier.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fawley and children, and Mrs. Beadle, of North Braintree, Mass., were visiting friends in town Sunday.

Other visitors Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Larkham and son, Mrs. Larkham's mother, and Miss Mellora Larkham, of Plain Hill, Norwich, who visited with the families of Henry Larkham and Levi Clark.

Carlton Lovell spent a week's vacation at his home here, returning to New York Monday.

Howard Walker, of Hartford, is visiting his aunt, Mrs. Clinton Frink.

Mrs. Lemuel Carpenter, who recently underwent an operation at a hospital in Willimantic, is reported as recovering steadily.

In the marriage notice that was sent in last week the name of the woman should have been Beatrice instead of Alice Hart, as was printed.

Miss Marion Safford has been spending a fortnight in Springfield, with her cousin, Mrs. Walter Pratt.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Berger and son, of New York, are spending their vacation at Henry Larkham's.

Mrs. W. B. Herr, of Hyde street, is visiting in Pennsylvania, accompanying her daughter, Mrs. Freeman Strunk, on her return home.

A committee from Canterbury grange is planning a clam bake on the grange grounds for today, July 4th.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Graves have returned from New London, and are at their home here. Mr. Graves having finished his work in that city.

Rev. Ralph Knight was at Storrs this week and attended the exercises in celebration of breaking ground for the new community building.

LEDYARD

The third and fourth degrees, patrons of husbandry, were worked on a class in Grange hall, Monday evening, June 29. A degree team came from Groton and worked these degrees, the ceremony being finely carried out. Supper was served at the close.

Albert Selzer recently purchased a fast trotter from Mr. Storm of Norwich. Mr. Selzer has a large acreage of sweet corn planted and buys this valuable animal to help in his delivery business.

Mrs. Florence Smith and daughter, Elizabeth Isabel, of Franklin, were Wednesday and Thursday guests of Mrs. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac E. Geer.

ASHFORD

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carpenter and family, of Willimantic, were callers in town Monday.

William Poole, of Wallingford, and daughter, Leola, of Hartford, were home over Sunday.

Miss Inez Whittemore, of Providence, is at Hearthstone cottage, for the summer.

FOURTH OF JULY

It is nearly a century and a half since this government was established by those sturdy patriots who realized the time had come to put an end to the conditions which existed prior to the revolution. They were not unmindful of what they were doing. They knew it meant a struggle but they had the courage of their convictions. They believed that they were right and they were prepared to fight for it.

The Declaration of Independence set forth their attitude. It was a new political gospel which Jefferson set forth. It was a revelation to that age but there was a rallying about it and the meeting of the necessary hardships entailed which showed the character of the people as well as that of the leadership. Of that great document it has been said: "Probably no human paper ever more perfectly satisfied the immediate purpose for which it was set forth than this declaration. From one end of the country to the other, as fast as it could be spread among the people, it was greeted in public and private with every demonstration of approval and delight."

It has been said that the first public celebration of the Declaration of Independence was probably that of July 8, 1776 when the statement was read in the yard of the statehouse at Philadelphia and the king's arms were taken down in the courtroom.

Celebrations have not been lacking since then as the anniversaries have rolled around. It will get proper consideration from one end of the country to the other today, and as an additional mark of attention it will also serve as Defense day, when a test of the military strength of the country will be made.

Fourth of July has in years past been the occasion for rash and reckless acts. Lives have been lost, sight destroyed, serious injuries received without in any degree demonstrating how more patriotic fervor than would have been done under a safe and sane system. There are reasons for gratification that many of the dangerous practices have been disappeared as the result of the sensible appeals to make the celebration adequate without jeopardizing life and property.

The modified celebration doesn't mean a decrease of interest even though it was 149 years ago that the Declaration of Independence was signed.

HELP PREVENT ACCIDENTS

With a fair day it is to be expected that there will be extra heavy automobile traffic today and tomorrow. The holiday coming on Saturday means that many are going to get away in their machines for one or two days. Crowds will be attracted to various points, to the shore to other cities, to the country and it can be anticipated that the roads will be jammed with the traffic in most localities.

That means of course that added precautions must be taken in order to keep down the number of accidents. Safety and sanity may well be applied to the automobile traffic as well as to the celebration. When there are baseball football games or races there are regulations are made to govern the motorists and the general plan of these may well be remembered by all who drive for the next two days. In the interest of safety over the country certain rules have been provided for the automobile drivers of Rhode Island, of which the following may well apply anywhere with good results:

Don't drive so slowly as to cause unnecessary congestion and accidents.

Don't attempt to drive with one arm and attend a female companion with the other, nor permit her to interfere with the proper operation of the car.

Don't attempt to operate with one light. Such is dangerous.

Don't attempt to teach new drivers on heavily traveled highways.

Don't start a trip until you make certain the brakes are in effective working order.

Don't allow passengers to ride on the front seat in any manner that will interfere with the proper control of the auto by the driver.

Don't attempt to stop or change the course of your car without signalling.

Do everything to drive safely and avoid accidents.

No set of rules will ever serve to prevent all the accidents. Rules in fact are of little avail unless they are respected. Many of the highway accidents are preventable and if there is an effort made by all to do their part in protecting others as well as self there will be a large reduction in the accident and fatality records.

DEBT DISCUSSIONS

Just because the representatives from Italy who came here to discuss the funding of the war debt of that country to the United States have returned home does not mean that insurmountable obstacles have been encountered or that negotiations are all off. There is nothing of the kind. The Italian commission has been engaged in a preliminary discussion. It has discussed the matter with the American commission and it has learned that until there is some reason for taking a contrary view this country expects an adjustment of the debt along lines similar to those agreed upon with Great Britain.

There has been an expression from the Italian delegates to the effect that it would be impossible for Italy to comply with any such terms, that it is not financially able to do so and there are certain facts which they want to assemble in support of their contention. Thus the negotiations are by no means broken. It is a case where an adjournment of the discussion has been taken until Italy is prepared to go on, and that doesn't mean an indefinite delay.

When this country reached an agreement with the British it was arranged that the payments should cover a period of 62 years and that the interest for the first ten years should be at the rate of three per cent. and thereafter at three and a half per cent. It is natural that terms of a similar nature should be offered to others. We would not think of requiring payment in a shorter time, or exacting a higher rate of interest from the others. On the other hand it would not appear quite just to the British to offer easier terms to the others unless it is possible for the other nations to show that their financial condition is such that they cannot comply with the same terms as the British. The circumstances of a debtor must get some consideration and if Italy, France, Rumania or the others can back up any claims they may make for different terms with facts a different basis of agreement may be reached. Italy is now engaged in trying to assemble such facts.

THE FUEL SITUATION

The miners have completed their session at Scranton where they formulated demands much in keeping of what had been predicted. They are asking the operators to grant an increase of ten per cent in wages, to adopt the check-off, to establish a five day week and to grant an increase of one dollar a day to mine employes who are not miners.

Next week the operators will have a chance to consider these demands and decide whether they are going to grant them, or enter into a new agreement containing them when the present agreement expires August 31.

To grant the demands means that the cost of producing coal will be increased and when that is done it is going to mean that the operators must fix a higher price for their product. In other words when and if an increase is granted the consumer must foot the bill. That has always been so and there is no reason to expect anything different now despite the feeling on the part of the consumer for some considerable period that he is paying too much for his fuel.

Thus public interest centers upon what action the operators take, it being recognized of course that failure to comply indicates that coal mining will cease the first of September until new terms are agreed upon, or until some method is devised for providing the coal consuming public with fuel. Each year finds less and less dependence being placed upon anthracite. It has found that there are other satisfactory fuels and those who demand such are getting sick and tired of having a forced shortage thrown up to them every year or so.

BONUS CERTIFICATES

Many of the world war veterans will be interested in the seizure of 235 bonus certificates in the hands of a money lender in San Antonio, Texas, because it means early action in curbing such illegal transactions have been uncovered and the enforcement of that protection which has been thrown about the veterans certificates.

It was provided under the law that the certificates should be payable in 20 years. Them, that there is no cash value but they have a loan value after two years. Such loans can be made by organized banks or trust companies at a stated rate of interest, the loan being a lien upon the certificate.

The money lender in San Antonio was disregarding the provisions under which loans can be made on the certificates. He was charging a big commission for making the loan, which loan was in violation of the law, and in addition he was charging what is said to be about 100 per cent. interest.

The government caused an investigation to be made and took action because the transaction was unlawful. It disregarded the protection that had been thrown about the policies in the interest of the owners. Whether the certificate holders realized what they were doing is not disclosed, but it is probable that the money lender was wise and expected to get his protection from the large amounts he was charging for the illegal service.

The situation at San Antonio calls attention to the fact that the governmen doesn't propose that the veterans shall be deprived of the full benefit of their certificates or be made to pay more than the legal amount for such loans as they may obtain on them.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Independence day is always an occasion for the display of Old Glory.

The man on the corner says: Remember there are other days coming.

How many others besides the president are celebrating their birthday anniversary today?

If you cannot be sane and safe today, try to display as much safety and sanity as possible.

Take particular care that your method of celebrating doesn't result in calling out the fire department.

President Coolidge in making a start to ward off a coal strike doesn't believe in waiting for its arrival before starting preventive action.

With the saving deposits throughout the country gaining a little over half a billion during the year to June first there's not much cause for complaint.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Primitive America. Of all the national days we celebrate, the Fourth of July—this day—is easily the first in importance. It may be well for us on this day to take a bird's eye view of the great things in our eventful history which this day recalls. Subsequent America is not a logical development of primitive America. That seems strange until we realize that present America is more the result of migration and transfusion than by the development of original America. In the far distant past northwestern America and northeastern Asia joined, and along this pass the hordes of Asia came. Here climate and other facts of natural life produced the Indian, who was not the progenitor of the modern American. In the ninth century there was an invasion of Norsemen from the northeast who came as far south as the 41st degree of latitude. But they left no lasting impression here. This is the reason why present America is not a lineal descendant from primitive America.

Colonial America. It is an indisputable fact that it was the Anglo-Saxon race that put the American continent virtually upon the map and has kept it there ever since. No person with historical sense will underrate the wonderful pioneer work of Columbus and his successors in the work of discovery. They transplanted to these shores the medieval civilization of Europe, and it is not this that has made America to "bud and blossom as the rose." The greatness of America is due to the expansion of three strains of Anglo-Saxon blood: the Jamestown settlement of 1607, the Dutch settlement in New York in 1609, and especially the Pilgrim settlement of Plymouth in 1620. Jamestown was too aristocratic, and the Dutch too inclusive for general expansion in the virgin soil of America. It was Plymouth with its democracy and its spiritual enthusiasm that was to be the keynote of our growth.

Revolutionary America. The time came when this lusty political lad thought that he ought to exchange knee pants for trousers. He thought that his growing boyhood was entitled to some things that were denied him. His obstreperous parent, however, sought forcibly to remind him that he was not of age. But the boy made a strenuous effort to break away from his mother's apron strings, and to the amazement of the entire civilized world he succeeded. It has been related when the first kick on the part of the boy was mentioned in the house of commons, it was met with suppressed laughter, but several years later when an obscure young man by the name of Washington was closing in upon Yorktown, it is not related that any of the high and mighty were smiling in the mother country. But there were some men like Fox and Pitt who didn't smile at the beginning, because they were big enought to realize that justice and humanity were bound to prevail.

Expanding America. After the long drawn-out revolutionary strife the weakened colonies were ready for the life of peace. When the sword was laid down the plowshare was gripped, and by no feeble hand. No race of men ever walked this earth of finer physical strength than the sons and daughters of the Pilgrims. They felled the forests, cleared the land and made it bend to the purposes of civilization. It was the age in which the American pyramids were built, by that I mean the stone walls everywhere seen in New England, and may they ever remain as a monument to their mastery of the soil! These were the days of the covered wagon, when sturdy yoeman plunged into the wilderness of the west, changing primitive America into civilization wherever they went. And from this sowing in hardship and tears came subsequent America.

Slaveholding America. While the north and to some extent the west was moving on to industrial and agricultural prosperity, a terrible disease was getting a strangle-hold upon the the south. The great era for agricultural supremacy for the west was not to come until this national disgrace had been wiped out. Slavery was the all absorbing question in the presidential contest of 1860. Its arrogance was becoming more and more self assertive in both branches of congress. President Lincoln saw clearly that the issue could not be avoided. But the south itself precipitated the inevitable conflict by firing upon Fort Sumter in the spring of 1861. This brought the issue squarely before the new administration only a month after its inauguration, and the challenge was met in a manner that become historic. How the north responded in preserving the integrity of the Union is known to all.

Reunited America. The wound that were created by a civil strife which lasted four years were not healed in a day. It was more than a generation before the south recovered her normal activity. The fighting was largely on her soil, and of course it was she who bore the brunt of the carnage. Her cotton industry had been ruined; her fields neglected and desolate, and her state treasuries emptied. But the north was magnanimous, and did everything she could for her civil reconstruction. The mistakes of the so-called "period of reconstruction" were many, but the intentions were right. Schools of all grades were started and maintained in the south by northern capital. In many other ways northern money was not lacking nor northern readiness to blot out all memories of the once divided nation.

Benevolent America. After the cancer of slavery had been removed from our national body. The nation went forward in leaps and bounds in all branches of prosperity to the complete amazement of the world. Nothing parallel to it could be found in the entire history of the world. Prior to 1860 the region beyond the Mississippi, was for the most part unexplored. In this period captains of industry began to emerge with financial foresight that was clearly prophetic Money by the millions began to flow in for the betterment of the unfortunate. Our own Mr. Slater was among those who gave vast sums for educational purposes. George Peabody was another great spirit who figured in this period. It was a season too, when our colleges and universities began to attract the attention and generosity of wealthy men. States legislatures took their cues from them and we had, particularly in the west, the rise of the state university that has since grown to such mammoth proportions.

International America. Long after the United States became independent of Great Britain it continued to be an isolated country. She was not strong enough to rise above the influence of geography. The time was not ripe for breaking down the barriers of the Atlantic ocean. Every atom of the nation's strength was required in the work of internal development. But the time came, in the providence of God, through the advance made in modern science, to blot out practically the three thousand miles that separated this "colossus of the west" from the European states, and now this country can hardly afford to shirk in her duty in asserting her influence on world affairs. As the leading money nation her voice is powerful on all international questions which involve money. May this influence be world wide in the interests of God and humanity.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

In The Beginning

So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female, created he them. Gen. 1:27.

Man can never have been the product of mere evolution from a lower plane of being. All efforts to connect him even with the higher forms of the brute creation, have been miserable failures, and the distance between man and the beast is still impassable. The scientist can deal with the structure of his body and reason on his special physical adaptability to his surroundings, but he cannot explain self-consciousness, that peculiar power which no theory of evolution can elucidate, and which marks man distinct, not only from "every meaner thing that bounds across the plain, or gambols in the mighty deep, or sports in summer air" but from his fellowman. Self - consciousness instructs man that he is not only distinct from creation but related to the Higher Power from which creation came and in that self-consciousness is seated the religious nature common to the entire race. No race of men exists so utterly destitute as to have no idea of one or more gods, no stretch of imagination can enable the most enthusiastic scientist to clothe the brute creation with any semblance of spiritual self-consciousness. A horse cannot be anything but a horse. He lives and dies a horse. What is true of the horse is true of all brute creation, nor is it at all probable that God would have permitted an organization so wonderfully endowed as that of man to develop gradually from a germ, that in time He might stamp the plastic mould with a sense of individuality. How much better is the sublime declaration of Holy Writ: "God created man in His own image, in the image of God created He him." How much easier to believe. How much easier to understand. How readily a child will understand the Bible story of creation. How much more beautiful is the Bible account than the theory of evolution. How much better and more glorious to believe that we were created in the image of God by God than to believe evolution. Another distinction between man and beast is, that through the exercise of his will, he can rise to the most sublime height of virtue or sink to the lowest abyss of degradation, while a cow must always be a cow. It can never be more or less than a cow. It has no moral nature, nor can it rise or fall. Again man is gifted with wonderful powers of retrospection, which differs from memory in that it is entirely dissociated with any idea of self. This links him with all the great and good whose names star the pages of history and teaches his relationship to the past. The beast knows naught of the past or of the future. It will browse placidly over the graves of its progenitors, and care only as the herbage is sweet or bitter, plenty or scanty. In all these things man differs from the beast and shows that God created him to rule over all creation and inherit eternal life and to glorify God.

Japanese Vacationists Climb Fuji

"In reprisal for the torture of captives, the British troops sacked the Summer Palace, in 1860, burned its buildings to the ground and leveled the pagodas. Today the grass buries broken fragments of grandeur and only some fine bridges and a bronze tempe remain as reminders of 'the palace that lost its soul.' Nearby the Dowager Empress later built herself a summer home with $50,000,000 which should have paid a navy to defend China from Japan. The only boat that China got was the marble barge on the sapphire lake which has a hideous wooden cabin where tourists may now buy lukewarm beer.

"Climbing Fujiyama is the cherished Japanese idea of a vacation. Although the numerous hot springs of the nation attract thousands annually; Mount Fuji is their Mecca. Every true Japanese expects to climb it once in his life time. It is sacred to both Shinto and Buddhist believers; to the former it is the beautiful goddess 'causing flowers to bloom brightly,' to the latter it is the folded bud of the sacred Lotus.

Expenses Paid by Lottery

"The desire to climb the perfect snow-white cone of Fuji has given rise to vacation lotteries throughout Japan. The lucky ticket gives its holder sufficient funds to ascend the Supreme Altar and salute the Sun as it turns the Seat of Cotton, as the Japanese call the cloud roof, into a Fleece of Gold. All summer thousands of pilgrims, staves in hand, gowned in heavy clothing for the low temperatures, and wearing straw hats shaped like the cone of Fuji itself, toil up the trail marked yellow against the black volcanic sand by discarded sandals.

"Whether by accident or plan, the most holy time to journey to Mecca coincides with the most delightful season in the desert. Spring in the Arabian desert comes after the winter rains in January and February. Then the waste of sand and rock is cool green for a brief time. Dusty shrubs bearing all appearances of having been years dead, suddenly burst into new green. Brilliant desert flowers blossom into tinted meadows. The wells are full with water that must last another long, dry year. Camels once more acquire fat humps. This is the time when thousands of pilgrims take the long road to Mecca to satisfy religious duty, and though they may not admit it, to satisfy the wanderlust and the human desire to see new beauty.

Salt Water Bathing Lures All

"Each nation has its Atlantic City. Peruvians go down to Barranca on the Pacific, the French in Algeria go to Tlemcen in the hills back from the Mediterranean, Athens listens to French operettas in Phaleron on the bay where galleys of ancient Athens were sheltered. Egyptians desert the muddy Nile for Ramleh a few miles from Alexandria and on the edge of the delta's fan. Outcast religious sects used to find refuge in the heights of Lebanon mountains of north Palestine. Now the remaining cedar groves offer retreat for vacationists from the hot plains. In India the British annually move their capital to Simla in the hills. The Lido, an island near Venice, is the famous ocean resort of Italy; and the east shore of the Baltic is one vast bathing beach during the brief summer. Mount Omeishan, a sacred peak of China rising high above the Yangtze in Szechewan, yearly attracts thousands of pilgrims and now has an annual summer colony of American missionaries."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Sir John Michael Higgins, who proposes the formation of an association of Australian wool growers with a capital of $250,000,000 in order to give more stability to prices, has earned the gratitude of his fellow-Australians many times in the past by his self-sacrificing assistance to his country. A native of Victoria, Sir John was indentured at 14 to a manufacturing chemist in the gold-mining city of Bendigo, and took up the study of metallurgy and chemistry. For some years he practiced as a consulting metallurgist, and visited all the principal mining fields in Australia. Becoming interested in the pastoral industry, he took up holdings in Queensland and New South Wales. In course of time, he became one of the leading men in the wool industry. He also founded the Australian Metal Exchange. During the war he served as a special adviser to the Commonwealth and for his services was knighted in 1918.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

Girolamo Genga, the Woodworker, a Great Italian Genius

To live in the middle ages, and to be poor, ignorant and unknown, meant usually that one would remain a humble toiler all his life. In those days the doors of opportunity were not open as they are today. Anyone who rose from obscurity must be a genius indeed. In these days it is comparatively easy for a person of small ability to rise very high if he will only work persistently; in those days it was almost impossible for a genius to succeed unless he was of highbirth or unless he gained some powerful support. Thus it speaks high for the great genius of Girolamo Genga, who lived in the latter part of the fifteenth century and the first part of the sixteenth, that he lifted himself from the hard work of dealing in wool, to a leading position as painter, sculptor, musician and architect.

When he was set to work as a very small boy, he was thoroughly likable. He had bright eyes and a handsome face. He was full of laughter and smiles, and chatted away in small boy fashion to any who would listen to him. He was put to work in a place where wool was made over into cloth, and he was to learn the art of weaving, the various qualities of cloth, and the methods of selling. Like all others he was given the hard work to do, with the idea that he should pick up what knowledge he could—or go without. "What doest thou?" the master said one day when he found the 16-year-old boy neglecting his work and bending over a table. "Well!" the man cried when he saw what the boy had drawn. "Thou has done well—but it is working in wool!" The child had drawn a picture so real that it was startling. Many times after this the master found him drawing. "Indeed, the lad will never know wool when there is a picture to be drawn," he said. "Send him to an artist and not to a merchant!"

That kindly advice was the making of Girolamo Genga—as kindly appreciation has been the making of many a great man. The boy learned from a professional artist how to draw. In his new work, which he began at 13, he found himself in the seventh heaven of happiness. From grinding and preparing colors he began to use the brush in rough work, and then in finer work. He gained proficiency in painting, and turned also to sculpture and music and architecture. He beautified palaces and churches, painted great pictures, associated with the immortal Raphael, erected the front of a cathedral, and in many ways made himself useful and famous of a discerning and appreciative wool merchant.

SELECT JURY MONDAY FOR EVOLUTION TRIAL

DAYTON, Tenn., July 3—(A. P.)—A jury for the trial of John T. Scopes on charges of violation of the Tennessee law prohibiting the teaching of evolution in public schools of the state will be selected Monday at a regularly convened session of the county court, it became known here today.

Peter Discovers Digger

Who does a simple, kindly deed,
Of future friendship plants the seed.
—Digger the Badger.

Peter Rabbit waited until the Black Shadows came creeping down from the Purple Hills across the Green Meadows to the dear Old Briar Patch. Then when little Mrs. Peter wasn't watching, he slipped out of the dear Old Briar Patch and started off lippety-lippety-lippety-lip, straight for the Old Pasture. He knew he was running a risk. He knew that Old Man Coyote was living in the Old Pasture and there was always a chance of meeting him. But he also knew that Old Jed Thumper, the gray old Rabbit who was little Mrs. Peter's father also lived in the Old Pasture and had managed to keep out of Old Man Coyote's stomach. So Peter felt that he could do the same thing.

Of course Peter had no idea in what part of the Old Pasture Digger was living. He must just trust to luck unless he should meet some one who could tell him where Digger's home was. Peter thought of going to Old Jed Thumper, but Old Jed Thumper never had been the least bit friendly. So Peter decided to keep away from him.

"The thing for me to do," said Peter, "is to hurry around until I find some freshly dug sand. Then I'll be pretty sure of finding Digger somewhere about."

So Peter scampered from bramble-tangle to bramble-tangle, all the time watching for newly dug sand. He began to get discouraged. The fact is he had gone to far up in the Old Orchard. By and by he stopped to rest in a bramble-tangle down near where the Old Pasture joined the Green Meadows. The moon was up and its soft silvery light made the night almost as light as day.

A shadowy form appeared, moving along between the bushes of the Old Pasture as silently as if it were in truth a Black Shadow. Peter grinned. He knew who it was. It was Old Man Coyote starting out for his nightly hunt. Old Man Coyote stopped very abruptly. Then he flattered himself about behind a little bush. Peter knew by his actions that he saw some one whom he hoped to catch. Peter looked very hard in the direction in which Old Man Coyote was looking, and then Peter's heart gave an extra beat or two. There, moving along in the most independent way, was Digger the Badger.

It was plain that Digger had neither seen nor heard Old Man Coyote. It was also plain that if he kept on as he was going, he would pass just the other side of the bush behind which Old Man Coyote was hiding. If he did this without discovering Old Man Coyote, he would give the latter a chance to spring out on him from behind. Peter knew very well that Old Man Coyote wouldn't think of attacking Digger, the Badger face to face.

What to do? Peter didn't know. He couldn't say that Digger the Badger was a friend of his, because Digger wasn't. It really was no business of his if Old Man Coyote did surprise Digger. If Digger should be caught and killed no one would mourn for him. On the other hand if he, Peter, should give Digger warning, Old Man Coyote never would forget or forgive it. It would be safer for him to do nothing. Perhaps this is why just a little minute later Peter suddenly thumped the ground hard with those long hind feet of his. Instantly Digger the Badger stopped.

Had skin trouble so bad was ashamed to appear in public. Resinol completely healed it

Estriken, Pa., March 4:—"Last summer I had a skin affection on my face, hands and arms. It kept spreading until I could not shave and hated to be seen in public. The itching was very annoying and nothing I tried gave me any relief. A friend recommended your Resinol Ointment and I bought some at once. The first application gave me relief, but I continued using it freely and in a very short time the itching disappeared and the trouble was completely cured. Needless to say, I have great faith in "Resinol" for skin disorders." (Signed) T. H. Ketterman.

AMERICAN LEGION POST ACTS ON CAMPAIGN FUND

At the meeting of Robert O. Fletcher Post, No. 4, American Legion, held Friday night at the Legion rooms on Main street, it was voted that the American Legion Endowment Fund drive within the membership of the post be officially closed on the evening of the first meeting in September. At this time final plans will be made for the campaign among the citizens of Norwich for the $5,000 fund Norwich is asked to contribute towards this national fund of the American Legion.

Everywhere the drive has been staged the cities have been going over the top, believing that orphans of World War veterans and disabled men should be given proper care by use of this fund, the income of which is to be handled by a national committee, comprising many leading citizens of the country as well as Legion officials.

It was also voted that delegates and alternates to the state convention of the American Legion, to be held at New London on August 27, 28 and 29, will be nominated at the next meeting in July.

Considerable business of importance was talked over and plans made for fall activities, after the Endowment Drive has been brought to a successful close.

PAWCATUCK BOY OF FIVE IS ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., July 3—James Vardilos, 5 1-2 year old son of Horace Vardilos, of Pawcatuck, was peppered with the wadding of a 22-blank cartridge, Friday night, about 7:30 o'clock near the corner of Palmer and William streets, on the West Side. Cyril Kenyon, 14, with other companions was playing with a pistol, which, it was reported, was accidentally discharged when the trigger caught on the boy's clothing. When the gun was fired Vardilos' waist and shirt were burned through and the upper portion of his abdomen was scorched and burned by the spreading wadding. It is thought that the abdominal wall was not penetrated. Medical attention was given by Dr. Michael H. Scanlon. Patrolman Varian Burdick, of Pawcatuck, investigated the accident.

Automobile Trip of 1,400 Miles

Mrs. Flora Noyes of Church street, returned from a slightful automobile trip of 1,400 miles. OBITUARY

Mrs. Fred H. Butterfield.

A letter received by Miss Lucy Geer, of 25 Park street, brings news of the death of Mrs. Butterfield, 72, wife of the late Fred H. Butterfield, for a number of years instructor in music in the Central district school, Norwich. The notice of the death came through her son's wife, Mrs. Walter H. Butterfield, of Providence. Mrs. Butterfield passed away very peacefully, June 17, on her seventy-second birthday. She writes, "Glad news that God gave to Mother release from suffering which could only become more acute if she lingered with us.

"Sad news again, too. Mr. Butterfield's sister Clara passed away in East Dixfield, Me., a month before, May 10, 1925 from influenza followed by pnuemonia following an operation a short time before and although she made a tremendous fight, she was quite content if the outcome was death to end all the struggle."

One sister, Edith A. Butterfield, is left alone, living in East Dixfield, Me.

Miss Geer is of the opinion that Mrs. Butterfield died at the home of her son George, in Manchester, N. H. She was buried in East Dixfield, Me. Her other son, Walter H. Butterfield, is director of music in the public schools of Providence, R. I.

When Mr. Butterfield came to Norwich, he was with the family of Mr. and Mrs. James Geer and soon afterwards he brought his beautiful young wife to make her feel welcome and their friends became her friends. After the family moved away from Norwich and later, after Mr. Butterfield's death, Miss Geer and her sister kept up a correspondence with Mrs. Butterfield. They had made pleasant visits frequently in their happy home.

Teachers in the Central district during Mr. Butterfield's term as music instructor here will learn of the death of his beautiful wife with sincere regret.

FUNERALS

Miss Marguerite R. Shields

Funeral services for Miss Marguerite R. Shields were held Friday morning at 8:30 o'clock at the home of her parents, No. 85 Cliff street, with solemn high requiem mass at St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock. Rev. William A. Keefe celebrated the mass and was assisted by Rev. Myles P. Galvin as deacon, Rev. Frederick M. Coholan as sub-deacon and Rev. John McCarthy of Guilford, as master of ceremonies. Raymond LaFontaine was acolyte.

During the service Mrs. Timothy Donovan sang Pie Jesu at the offertory and as the waiting hymn, Some Sweet Day. As the body was conveyed from the church she rendered Nearer, My God to Thee. Miss Elizabeth Malone was at the organ during the service.

Burial was in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery where the committal service was conducted by Father Keefe, assisted by Father Galvin. The following friends acted as bearers, William Murphy, New London; William F. Murphy, New Haven; Frank J. Scanlon, Middletown; and Joseph R. Bowen, Felix P. Callahan and James C. Mara, of Norwich.

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the service from New Haven, Middletown, New London, Hartford and other places. The floral pieces were numerous and beautiful. The funeral arrangements were by Hourigan Brothers.

HEADMASTER TAFT FOR BAPTIST CHURCH ADDRESS

The speaker for a patriotic service Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church will be Horace D. Taft, headmaster of the Taft school, at Watertown, this state, whose coming here will be of wide general interest. Mr. Taft is a brother of Chief Justice Taft. He will be introduced by General William A. Aiken, whose guest he will be while in Norwich.

A special organ recital of numbers appropriate to the Fourth of July will be given at the opening of the service by Miss Louise Fuller.

The church officials are extending a general invitation to the public to hear Mr. Taft whose address will be of interest to the whole community.

HOSPITAL PATIENT THREW NOTES FROM AUTOMOBILE

MERIDEN, July 4.—(A. P.)—The Bristol police tonight said that William Bryce, of Bristol, husband of Emma Bryce, who threw a note from a speeding auto in Andover today saying she was being taken away forcibly, declared that his wife was being taken to the Norwich state hospital.

The men in the car with her were officers. They took her from the home in Bristol, and were taking her away. The names she mentioned in the note were written at random, the Bristol police said.

Surprise Party in Colchester

A surprise party was enjoyed at the home of C. A. Kramer at Colchester in honor of his birthday on the evening of July 2nd, when a large number of his friends gathered at his home. A concert over the radio was one of the enjoyable features of the evening. Cake, ice cream and fruit punch were served and all wished Mr. Kramer many happy returns of the day. Friends from out of town were Miss Eliza Murphy of Naugatuck, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Lappie and Miss Anna and Mrs. Douglas Winchester of Fitchville and Robert Case of Norwich.

Will Hold Summer Sessions.

The Men's class of the Central Baptist Sunday school will hold sessions throughout the summer. A special committee has been appointed to arrange for the meetings.

PRESTON BROS. STORE FIRE IS QUICKLY CONQUERED BY FIREMEN

Damage estimated at between $5,000 and $10,000 was caused by fire which swept through a part of the Preston Bros. hardware store on the third floor of the Strand Building on Franklin Square about 9.00 o'clock Friday evening, which for a time threatened to sweep through the entire third floor of the large structure.

The fire was discovered about 9.40 o'clock when flames were seen shooting through the windows in the rear of the structure and an alarm was sent in from Box 25 at Franklin Square calling out the apparatus of the department. Some confusion resulted for the department when the box struck 13 on the first round but the apparatus was guided to the square by people along the street and a quick fight was made, getting the blaze under control within a half hour after the arrival of the department.

The fire started in one of the store rooms on the third floor of the section of the building occupied by Preston Brothers Co., owned by the Aben Hardware company of New London, A. J. Agranowitch, proprietor. By the time the firemen arrived the blaze had spread to two adjoining rooms and the hallway, eating its way to the fourth floor and the roof.

Four lines of hose were laid and the firemen attacked the blaze from the rear of the block, being able to get within a few feet of the windows by use of the platform where the skylight was located. One line of hose sent into the fire from this point soon had the blaze knocked down and entrance to the building was gained through adjoining windows giving the fire fighters opportunity to hold the fire to a section of the building occupied by three small store rooms.

The fire ate its way from the third floor to a room on the upper floor and burned off a section of the roof, making it necessary to rip out this section and the cornice of the building, at the rear.

By using as little water as possible to fight the blaze inside, where the materials were light lathing and heavy paper the water damage to the main floors of Preston Brothers Co., was held at a minimum.

Damage to the building will probably amount to not more than $5,000 and the loss to the hardware store about the same amount, a remarkably small loss considering the start the fire had when the firemen arrived.

Owners of the hardware store estimated that their loss would be covered by insurance and Peter Sellas, who is joint owner of the building, with T. J. Constantine of New London also estimated that insurance would cover his loss.

As soon as the fire started Edward L. McAvoy, manager of the Palace Theatre had men connect up the powerful searchlight owned by the theatre and threw a light onto the burning building from the roof of the theatre. Owing to the narrowness of the space around the skylight his act was highly commended by Chief Howard L. Stanton and members of the department. The searchlight threw a light into the building which aided greatly in making the fight easier for the firemen.

As a special precaution Superintendent Leon F. Hutchins of the W. W. Backus hospital summoned the ambulance to the scene of the fire to be ready in case of emergency. This policy is being adopted by the hospital in all large fires where injury is likely to result.

The fire started at a time when hundreds of people were in the city and Franklin square was soon blocked with people, their numbers hindering the firemen in laying hose and endangering their own lives as apparatus dashed about following orders. By order of Police Sergeant Matthew Delaney a fire rope was stretched around the Main street side of the building, holding the crowd well back from the fire. This was the first time the fire rope had been stretched in Norwich in a number of years and it worked to perfection.

The cause of the fire, is unknown but it is believed that some employe of the hardware store may have dropped a cigarette while working on the third floor Friday night. Excelsior and paper would have aided the start of the fire and gave it the headway gained in the short time the store had been closed, for it had been open until 9 o'clock and no sign or smoke or fire was noticed at that time by employes.

The confusion in the ringing of the alarm sent some apparatus to Box 13 on the West Side for this number came in first. A delay prevailed however as this number came in, but the second round was No. 23 at Franklin Square. The alarm was sent in by Manager McGarry of A. Schulte's Cigar store, and according to a member of the police force the box was properly rang in. A test found the box in working order and Chief Stanton believed that the box had been improperly rung in when the fire was discovered.

Other stores in the Strand building, those of Savard Bros., Smith's Pharmacy and The Princess Shop, had no damage by water as far as could be learned. Preston Bros., Co., also were fortunate in the loss by water for it ran down upon glass and aluminum ware, where it could cause no damage. Hundreds of dollars worth of stock in racks and shelves a few feet to either side escaped all damage and there will be no cause for any suspension of business.

The management of Preston Brothers Co., and Mr. Sellas, owner of the block, gave much credit to the firemen for holding the fire to so small a loss and holding the water damage to a small figure.

SHENANDOAH SAILED OVER THIS CITY ON FRIDAY

Norwich people had their second view of the Shenandoah, pride of the navy, about 1 o'clock Friday afternoon, when the big dirigible sailed over the southern portion of the city en route from Lakehurst, N. J., to Bar Harbor, Me., where it is to remain until this (Saturday) evening before returning to Lakehurst.

Notice had been given that the big ship might pass over Norwich and about 1 o'clock people in towns farther south sent word that the Shenandoah was headed this way. Hundreds of people climbed to vantage points on the high ground in the city and enjoyed an excellent view of the big ship as she glided majectically towards the east, in the direction of Westerly.

The Shenandoah was at first supposed to take the shore route but evidently a change was made for the ship came inland after it passed New London and gave Norwich and other towns a chance to view it to advantage.

This is the second time the huge dirigible has passed within view of hundreds of Norwich people, the first time being on November 20, 1924. Besides having views of the Shenandoah Norwich people have been fortunate enough to have the ZR-3 sail over the city, this being on October 15, 1924.

Many people are in hopes to catch a view of the monster ship of the air when it makes the return trip to Lakehurst.

New London had an exceptionally fine view of the Shenandoah as she glided over the central part of the city headed toward the northeast to pass over the Submarine Base on the Thames.

Damage on Westerly Road

While William Corfrey of 59 Palmer avenue, was teaching Miss Teresa Fahey to drive an automobile on the Norwich-Westerly road early Friday night, near the Dew Drop Inn, a car hitting the car driven driven a Massachusetts man turned off and ran up a bank to avoid hitting the other machine, which the driver was turning into a road preparatory to backing. The Massachusetts car received a damaged mudguard and hub cap from striking a rock.

Authorizes Payment

Judge Isaac Wolfe of the superior court has granted the application of Receiver Frank W. Browning of the Uncas Paper Board Co., to pay $4,933.34, the balance due to the Terry Steam Turbine Co.

COMMANDANT WILBUR SAYS FAREWELL TO NORWICH

Commandant and Mrs. E. W. Wilbur after serving the Salvation Army for thirty-five years, eight years of which were employed on their different appointments in Norwich have finally left the city for a much earned rest. Commandant and Mrs. Wilbur found it very hard to part with the many friends which they have made here and very reluctantly are giving up the work to which they have dedicated practically their entire adult life. The Commandant and Mrs. Wilbur wish to express to the citizens of Norwich, heartfelt appreciation and sincere thanks for the support and encouragement which they had received during the eight years in which they had charge of the Salvation Army in the city of Norwich. Especially for the kind cooperation and assistance which they have received in the last year and a half of their Salvation Army activities. The Commandant and his wife believe that the kind friendship shown to them by the people of Norwich and vicinity is proof that the Salvation Army work has found a place in the heart of the people and that it has earned their good will and patronage.

Before leaving the city, Commandant Wilbur, speaking for himself and Mrs. Wilbur said: "We are leaving the city of Norwich with the satisfaction of a task well performed, at least to the best of our ability. With healthy seeds planted in a very fertile and promising soil. No work was too hard for us in the performance of our work of helping the down and out unfortunate poor; no difficulty was too much in surmounting the performance of our duty to God and to man. We feel thankful to the Lord for giving us patience, perseverance and that loving kindness which enabled us to do our humble part in this noble service. When things looked blue and the strain of the work was the hardest; when disappointments and discouragements were enough to try the soul of the strongest and the devout believers, we never for a moment lost faith in the help of God and the kindness, generosity and magnanimity of the people of this city. Norwich citizens of all faiths have been our nearest and dearest friends, all the beloved children of one Father in Heaven, all interested in the cause of humanity; all morally enlisted on the side of righteousness—their hearts always open to sympathy and compassion for the unfortunate poor. Our last words to the people of Norwich are: "God bless you all and send you all earthly bliss." The Lord always repays many fold to him who gives and whose heart beats with pity and with mercy for those who have met with adversity in the struggle for life. We shall always bear the most tender memories to the people of Norwich and we sincerely believe that those who famed the city, "Rose of New England" had in mind not only its natural beauty but also the spiritual beauty of its people.

Commandant Wilbur also quoted his successors, Captain and Mrs. Cashman, as saying that during their twenty-two years of service in the Salvation Army they had charge of multitude of posts but nowhere have they received a friendly welcome and kind reception to equal the welcome which they have received in Norwich. Nowhere have they ever found a field more replete with universal and unanimous good feeling and good will for the Salvation Army as they find in this city.

FOUR NORWICH MEN IN HOSPITAL AT FORT WRIGHT FROM AUTO CRASH

(Special to the Bulletin)

FISHERS ISLAND, N. Y., July 3—Four Norwich men are in the Fort Wright hospital and three others escaped with minor injuries from an automobile accident here this afternoon when the machine driven and owned by Andrew Leblanc of Greeneville crashed into two trees and upset in the ditch by the side of the road.

Leblanc, the most seriously injured suffered a fractured skull at the base of the brain. His injuries are regarded as critical.

The others in the hospital are:

John Asher, 116 Main street, broken right leg and internal injuries serious.

Roscoe Zigara, 16 Silver street, ribs broken, ear partially torn off.

Henry Nelson, 715 Boswell avenue, internal injuries, right ear badly torn.

Christopher Dixon of 44 Sumner street and his two sons escaped with scratches and bruises and were able to return to their home.

The party of men are employes of William C. Young of Uncasville, a contractor who is doing work for the Fishers Island Corporation on bath houses and other preliminary work in the corporation's extensive development plan.

The men had finished work for the day and were on their way in LeBlanc's machine to their boarding place before taking the boat for New London to get home for the Fourth of July holiday. One version of the accident was that a rear tire came off and another report was that the machine turned out to pass another and ran into soft dirt. It crashed into a tree, carried off and uprooted a second tree before it turned over in the ditch. Three of the men were thrown 25 feet through the air over an embankment. The machine, an Oldsmobile eight, was demolished.

The four badly injured men were rushed to the Fort Wright hospital, where they were attended by Col. Miller and Maj. Lewis of the medical corps, with Mrs. R. Sylvia as special nurse in attendance.

The family of LeBlanc was notified and his brother and sister reached here later in the afternoon.

COUPLE WRECK ROOM IN AFTERNOON FIGHT

William H. Dearborn, 63, white, and his housekeeper, Prascola Howard Thompson, 40, colored, were arrested late Friday afternoon on charges of intoxication and breach of the peace after a fight at their home on an East Great Plain road in which about every movable thing in the room was wrecked, according to the report made by the police. The battle apparently proceeded for some time as several telephone calls came from the neighborhood to police headquarters. Constable Lucius Fenton who went to the house asked for reinforcements to get his prisoners to police headquarters and Chief Linton sent Officers Charles Smith and Luke Riley to his assistance.

The man and woman were locked up over night.

A NEW BOOK OF POEMS BY REV. FELIX J. O'NEILL

Referring to a former assistant pastor at St. Patrick's church, Norwich, the Stafford Press says: "A book of poems by Rev. Felix J. O'Neill, pastor of St. Edward's church, Stafford Springs, has recently made its appearance. Its title is Songs from the Hills and is bound in red cloth and red leather. The cover design, drawn by the author, to convey ideas of song and music, is a real work of art, and as a work of art won a place on the table of the Boston Art club.

The poems are divided into six parts. There is a fine philosophy, a charming rhythm, a kindly wit and a keen satire running through the volume, along with the lofty thought of the more serious phases of life.

MLLE. LENGLEN WINS ALL-BRITISH TENNIS TITLE FOR THE SIXTH TIME

WIMBLEDON, England, July 3—(A. P.)—Today the all-English tennis tournament brought forth the expected and the unexpected. Suzanne Lenglen, the French marvel, did what had been expected when she captured the women's singles for the sixth time since 1919 by defeating the young English girl Joan Fry, 6-2, 6-0. The American doubles pair, Ray Casey of California and Hennessey of Indiana, accomplished the unexpected when they overthrew the favorites in the men's doubles semi-final, Jacques Brugnon and Henri Cochet of France, 7-5, 5-7, 7-5, 6-4 and entered the final against Jean Zorotira and Rene La Coste, also of France.

Off to a bad start, Casey, who was serving the first game, twice double-faulted and the game went to the Frenchmen. Then Casey and Hennessey, with deep drives and kills at the net, broke through and evened the score. The lead see-sawed back and forth until it stood 5-5, when Hennessey took three points on service and drove the fourth to a deep corner of the court, clinching the game.

A moment later the Americans had swamped Cochet's service and then it was theirs 7-5.

The pace for the second set was terrific. Again the lead went from one side to the other, largely on service, but the Americans each lost a service game and the score went against them 7-5, after they had been within a stroke of winning.

The third was the most bitterly fought set of the match, Casey and Hennessey carrying the battle to the set at every opportunity. Again it was Cochet's loss of two service games that gave the Americans the advantage, and they grasped it with hard drives and cross-court kills. The score at the end was 9-7. The Frenchmen were wilder in the fourth set. They threw away easy ones and could not stop the furious smashes the Americans sent over. This set ended 6-4. The figures for the match were 7-5, 5-7, 9-7, 6-4. It was one of the greatest of the tournament.

Hennessey lost one service game in the last set, but took the next with an ace and two service points while Casey's cannonball service was at full swing. In a terrific drive the two Americans polished off the final game by taking Brugnon's service for a love game, winning the set and match and ending as strong as when they started.

Mlle. Lenglen's match against Miss Fry was as tense in its way as the doubles encounter which followed it. It was a match of long rallies from the base line, neither player often venturing near the net, each waiting for breaks in her opponent's armor. Both played accurately. The English girl perhaps performed with the greater force, while Suzanne was willing to wait. She kept Joan moving along the baseline from right to left and left to right like a puppet while she herself rarely left her commanding position in the center. Then, when for an instant, Joan left her backhand unguarded, Suzanne pounced, and the point was hers. The English girl took two games off Suzanne's services in the first set, but after that the French champion never left herself open for a winning stroke.

HOOVER ELIMINATED IN DIAMOND SCULLS ROWING

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England, July 3—(A. P.)—The sensation of today in the elimination heats of the diamond sculls competition, was the defeat of Walter M. Hoover, of Philadelphia by Jack Beresford, Jr., holder of the trophy.

The Englishman won by the comfortable margin of three lengths in the semi-final heat. His time was 8 minutes 27 seconds. Beresford apparently was fresh when he crossed the finish line while Hoover, contrary to his form of Thursday when he won easily from M. K. Morris of England, seemed all spent in trying to keep up with Beresford. The American was a strong favorite to win from Beresford and to enter the final race for the trophy, and his downfall created a sensation among the oarsmen.

Beresford will now defend the trophy against D. H. Gollan, of the Leander club, who today won from H. P. Dutton of France, in the other semi-final of the contest.

After the race, Hoover said he was disappointed over his failure. At the same time, however, he paid a sporting tribute to Beresford.

HOLLYWOOD A. C. WINS NATIONAL JUNIOR MEET

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3—(A. P.)—Hollywood Athletic Club, with 58 points, won the National Junior A. A. U. track and field title in the municipal stadium here this afternoon. Los Angeles Athletic club was second with 51 and the San Francisco Olympic club third with 47.

R. Stever, another Hollywood entry, took the final in the 120 yard hurdles in 15 seconds flat, equal to the record.

L. N. Snyder, Ohio University, had won his heat in 14 4-5. Snyder was disqualified in the final for knocking down too many stocks.

Officials were of the opinion that the shot put achievement of J. Kuck, Kansas State Teachers College, would be accepted as a new record. He heaved the iron ball 48 feet 2 4-5 inches. The record is 47 feet 6 inches and has stood since 1909.

TIGERS GET TO DAVIS IN FOURTH INNING

ST. LOUIS, July 3—Pitcher Frank Davis weakened in the third inning and the Detroit Tigers defeated the St. Louis Browns today 8 to 4. Ken Williams hit his 18th home run of the season in the eighth. No one was on base. Score:

Voluntown vs. So. Windham All Stars

What promises to be a real ball game will be staged Sunday at Voluntown when the home team meets the South Windham All Stars.

Manager Porter is going to bring down a fast bunch of players and according to reports is saving his ace, Mathewson to do the twirling and Matty will want to be in the best of trim as he will be up against a real hitting crowd.

Voluntown will have their usual strong lineup in the field and are trying to land several new men which will make them one of the fastest teams in Eastern Connecticut, so the lineup will not be announced until game time.

Who will toe the slab for Voluntown, has not been decided on, but in all events the All Stars will know they have been in a ball game.

Tom Corcoran, formerly of the Cincinnati Reds and N. Y. Giants, will hold the indicator and call the plays in his usual efficient manner. Game will be called at 3.15 d. s. t.

NEW RECORDS MADE IN SMALL BORE SHOOTING

SEA GIRT, N. J., July 3—(A. P.)—Three rifle teams set new records in the Palma small bore team matches at the state range today, each getting 883 bullseye totals out of a possible 900 to displace the previous record of 883.

The White team of the Roosevelt Rifle Club of New York won the match by making the best record over the long distance range.

Fifteen teams of four were entered, and they shot over distance of 150, 175 and 200 yards.

John W. Hesion, of Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., member of the victorious team, won the Palma individual matches in which 31 contestants were entered. He shot a perfect score of 225 to win the individual match and he also shot a perfect 225 in the team matches. His total of 90 bullseyes in the two matches, each of which scored five points, tied the score for the Palma matches.

WHITE WITT RELEASED BY NEW YORK YANKEES

NEW YORK, July 3—(A. P.)—Whitey Witt, veteran outfielder, was released unconditionally by the New York Yankees today. The club also disposed of two pitchers under option, sending Walter Beall to the St. Paul club of the American Association and Elmer Duggan to Hartford in the Eastern league.

Witt was displaced in centerfield at the start of the present race by Earl Combs after he had filled the position for three seasons. He played a prominent part in two of the New York club's pennant winning campaigns after his purchase from the Athletics in April, 1922. He topped the batting order and for a time was considered one of the best hunters in baseball.

PIPP'S CONDITION IS MUCH IMPROVED

NEW YORK, July 3—Belief that Wally Pipp, first baseman for the New York Yankees, is not suffering from concussion of the brain as first indicated and that his injury will not prove serious was expressed by hospital authorities tonight. He is resting comfortably.

The player was struck by a ball thrown by Charlie Caldwell, former Princeton pitcher, during batting practice yesterday.

Profs Win Easily

NE WHAVEN, July 3—(A. P.)—New Haven hit James hard today and scored an easy victory over Albany 11 to 3. McKent pitched gilt-edge ball for the Profs, striking out eight batsmen. Score:

New Haven	3	0	0	3	4	1	0	0	x	—11
Albany	1	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	—	3

NORTHERN KING LOWERS ANOTHER WORLD TROTTING MARK AT CLEVELAND TRACK

CLEVELAND, July 3—The racing of Anna Bradford's Girl and the lowering of the world's record for trotters at three quarters of a mile for the second time in two days featured today's grand circuit program at North Randall.

Anna Bradford's Girl, driven by W. K. Dickerson, paced the fastest miles of the year when she won the times race, value $3,000, for 2:06 pacers from a good field, including Theodore Guy, which went through last season without a defeat. The mare stepped the first mile in 2:03 3-5, the second in 2:03 1-5 and the third in 2:03 2-5.

It was in the second that she showed her gameness. After leading for half a mile, Anna Bradford's Girl went into a break and came from far back to win easily.

Anna Bradford's Girl was sired by the Northern Man, which also sired Northern King, the maker of the new world's record today. In stepping three-fourths of a mile in 1:33 2-5 in the 2:14 trot, Northern King clipped three-fifths off the mark established yesterday by Woodrow L. The first quarter was trotted in 31 seconds and the half in 1:01 3-5.

Northern King then trotted a mile and an eighth in 2:21 4-5, to capture the second heat and the race. He was driven by "Doc" Vail.

Dr. Strong Worthy, for which Thomas Murphy was reputed to have paid $25,000 last winter, was never prominent in the first two heats, but had little difficulty taking the third.

The 2:18 trot went to Van Todd. Quilberry captured the first heat, but found the distance in the other two heats too long.

COVELESKI SHUTS OUT BOSTON WITH 4 HITS

BOSTON, July 3—Stanley Coveleskie hung up his tenth victory of the season today when the Washington Senators overwhelmed the Boston Red Sox, 11 to 0. The Red Sox were only able to get safely four times while the league leaders were slugging Zahniser mercilessly. McKeely knocked out two home runs over the left field fence and J. Harris duplicated this feat once. The combination play of Peckinpaugh and S. Harris was a big factor in four Washington double plays. Score:

THE SOCIAL CORNER

IN THE DARKEST DAYS A GOOD NAME KEEPS ITS LUSTRE.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
The Roll Call

"Corporal Green!" the orderly cried,
"Here!" was the answer, loud and clear
From the lips of a solider who stood near,
And "Here!" was the word the next replied.

"Cyrus Drew!" then a silence fell
This time no answer followed the call,
Only his rear man had seen him fall,
Killed or wounded he could not tell.

There they stood in the failing light,
These men of battle, with grave dark looks,
As plain to be read as open books,
While slowly gathered the shades of night.

The fern on the hill side was splashed with blood
And down in the corn where the poppies grew
Were redder stains than the poppies knew,
And crimson dye was the rivers flood.

For the foe had crossed from the other side,
That day in the face of a murderous fire,
That swept them down in its terrible ire,
And their life blood went to color the tide.

"Herbert Kline!" at the call there came
Two stalwart soldiers into the line
Bearing between them this Herbert Kline,
Wounded and bleeding to answer his name.

"Ezra Kerr!" and a voice answered "Here!"
"Hiram Kerr!" but no man replied.
They were brothers, these two, the sad wind sighed
And a shudder crept through the cornfield near.

"Ephriam Deane!" then a soldier spoke,
Deane carried our regiment's colors," he said:
"Where our Ensign was shot, I left him dead,
Just after the enemy wavered and broke.

"Close to the roadside, his body lies.
I paused a moment and gave him a drink.
He murmured his mother's name I think,
And death came with it and closed his eyes."

'Twas a victory: yes, but it cost us dear
For right company's roll, when called at night,
Of a Hundred men who went into the fight,
Numbered but twenty that answered "Here."

IDAHO BALL

Tie your little sage hens ready
Trot 'em out upon the floor.
Come up there, you cusses: Steady!
Now, now! One couple move
Snorty, shed that old sombrero;
Here, douce that cigarette.
Now that cussing, Casimero!
Please the ladies; Now all set.

Circle your ladies, all together!
Ladies opposite, the same.
Hit that heifer with your feathers.
Balance all, and swing your dame.
Pinch the heifers in the middle
Make stage, and do-se-do.
Pay attention to the fiddle
Swing her round and off you go.

Just forward, to your places!
Second fellow shuffle back,
Now you've got it down to cases,
Swing 'em till their trollers crack,
Gents all right, a heel and toeing,
Swing one kiss 'em if you kin,
Come to next, and keep a goin,
Don't get not yer pards again.

Ladies to center, ladies 'round 'em
Form a basket balance all;
Promenade gals to where ye found 'em
Promenade around the hall.
Return to your pards and trot 'em,
Right and circle double quick!
Come and kiss 'em, while you've got 'em
Don't dast to lick it if they kick.

Ladies left hand to your sonnies,
Right grand right and left,
Balance all and swing your honies,
Heft 'em up and feel their heft,
Promenade like sandy cattle—
Balance all and swing your sweets;
Spur your spurs and make 'em rattle
Keno! Promenade to seats.

SOCIAL CORNER EVENTS

July 8—Annual picnic at Versailles, Methodist church.

FOM ONE EXTREME TO ANOTHER

Dear Social Corner Friends: I enjoyed the account of Uncle John in the country, in the edition of June 25th by Roxanna Keables.It was right to the point and appealed to me in a special manner. In fact it recalled our experience of moving from one environment to another, only the shoe was on the other foot.

Our family moved from an up to date apartment in New York city, to an old colonial house in the country, 150 years old. You might well say it was going from one extreme to the other. The house was so primitive that it was wonderfully restful. There were twelve rooms with very low ceilings and gable roof, an immense square chimney in the center with brick bake oven and in the attic a smoke oven. Four of the larger rooms had one entire side of carved wood with hand made nails, and large square wooden posts in each corner. The flooring was formed of wide oak boards and impossible to drive a nail in them. Twenty eight windows with small panes and these windows were taken out when washed. There was a brass knocker on the door and a pretty colonial hall with winding stairs.

The old house was indeed a revelation to us and every day we used to go about exploring to see if there wasn't something different that we had not noticed before and there was always something new looming up before us. We took great interest in furnishing the old house, having a color scheme for each room. We had the woodwork painted white and every room repapered, having the paper to match the cretonne furnishing and our rugs. The floors were covered with Japanese matting and large rugs. The 28 windows had white shades and white dotted Swiss draperies finished all around with Swiss ruffles and tied back with white cord and tassels. So when all the furniture and fixings were in place it was indeed a very pretty home.

The house was painted white on the outside with green blinds, we had fruit trees on the grounds, five apple trees, one pear and one cherry and our enthusiasm knew no bonds when they blossomed forthe in the spring. When the small fruit began to form we inspected them everyday to see how they were coming on and though we could never wait until they were ripe. However the flower beds diverted our attention for a while. We also had a vegetable garden, which we had ploughed and gotten ready for planting and with suggestions from our kind neighbors we did very well for beginners. We planted about everything we could think of and our neighbors kept a watchful eye. For instance they would tell us when the corn was ripe, otherwise I suppose it would be there until the snow flew.

I would be thankful if Don't Worry would please let me know where I can purchase the Scoffdirt for scrubbing paint. I find white paint is hard to keep clean, although pretty to look at.

FOUR WAYS TO COOK EGG PLANT

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I haven't read in The Corner how to cook egg plant. You may all know how but think I will write you a few ways that I learned while in New Orleans. I hope some of them will be to your taste. This vegetable is used so commonly among the Creoles that they have some splendid ways of preparing it I think.

Fried Egg Plant: Choose your egg plant as you would cucumbers, that is buy small ones with succulent pulp, rather than large ones in which the seeds are too well developed. Slice very thin and put to soak in salt and water for about 1-2 hour. Drain off the dark liquid that forms, wipe dry, and put into a light batter made of beaten egg, salt and pepper and as much flour as will give right consistency. Allow one egg to each egg plant. Fry on both sides in boiling lard in a deep spider. The fat does not have to be very deep but should cover the edges. Use a griddle cake turner. Drain on paper keep in a hot place until served.

Escalloped Egg Plant: Peel, slice, soak in salt and water for 1-2 hour then place a layer of the slices in the casserole, sprinkle with any preferred cheese and a few pieces of tomato. Keep repeating until dish is filled. Put bread crumbs dotted with butter on top.

Stewed Egg Plant: Three small egg plants, 2 tomatoes a small quantity of ham already fried or boiled, 1 clove of garlic, 2 small onions, salt, pepper, and a spoon of any snappy table sauce. Parboil the egg plant for 1-2 hour—take out and skin and cut into small pieces and set aside, mince the onions very fine, fry in butter or lard until brown then add the tomato, garlic, chopped ham, salt and pepper. Let simmer a few minutes then add the egg plant. Cover the spider tightly and let smother for 1-2 hour, stirring every few minutes to prevent burning, add snappy sauce last, tasting it to see about what amount is required. If you use lard in frying you will find it is best to drain off as much as possible before seasoning. This is my favorite Creole dish and a favorite one in Louisianna too.

If any of the sisters find they like it they will enjoy preparing it ever after as one doesn't have to be accurate as to the amount. Guard against overcooking the egg plant itself.

Stuffed Eggplant: Allow two egg plants to serve 6 people. Do not peel but cut in half length wise and put in cold water. Take it out before fully cooked, scoop out the soft pulp but leave the skin unbroken. Set them aside and prepare the stuffing as follows: 1-2 cup of dried bread crumbs moistened with water 1 small tomato, 1 small onion, 1 clove garlic, the cut up pulp of the eggplant, and plenty of salt and pepper. It is best to start this soon after breakfast. Mince the onion, add tomato and other seasoning, lastly the egg plant pulp and bread. Cook a little longer, stuff the egg plant put in oven and bake.

PETTICOAT LAMPS

Dear Cornerites: Just a line to remind the older as well as the new members I am still among you all in thought and glad to see many of the older names appear.

Grandma Gray: You have my deepest sympathy. Only wish I was near, and could run in and see you once in a while.

Rural Auntie: Glad to read a line from you once more. They tell me that berries are turning quite fast. If that's the case I must get busy. Don't think I will use my sun bonnet, but will try and find my shaker. That's a little more modern.

Recently I called on Historian and while there he showed me a petticoat lamp which was made of tin. So if any of your readers know what year they were made write and tell me.

Balsam Fir: Trust Sciatia is much better, and trust you many enjoy the rest of the season in comfort.

Where is Ma of Greene Gables? Hope she is well as usual.

If not too late would like a pin.

Enought for this time. Success to the Corner.

KOCHIE.

GREETINGS FROM VIOLET

Dear Editor and Cornerites: Will take time and pleasure to write a few lines to the Corner. It has been a very long tiem since I last wrote, but have enjoyed reading the Corner letters each week.

Crimson Rambler: How are you this lovely weather, busy as can be helping with farm cares? I'll never forget what a fine time I had at your home at a Social Corner gathering.

Red Clover: Was sorry to hear you are still in bed and having also to suffer with neuritis, for that is so very painful, but hope you will soon be well again.

Hello, Aunt Jerusky, How are the turkeys and other farm yard friends, getting on? Was sorry I couldn't call when I was last up to mother's. Something took all of my little boys' ducks' eggs out from under the hen. So we won't have any little ducks for this year.

Mr. Editor, if I'm not too late may I please have a Social Corner pin? Thanking you in advance, will close, or my letter will get in the waste paper basket.

ANNUAL PICNIC AT VERSAILLES JULY 8

To Sisters of the Social Corner: A number of the sisters are asking when are we to have our annual picnic at Versailles. We usually have it early but this year it was impossible for me to do so.

Now I have set the date Wednesday July 8th. Each one please bring your own dishes and food for the table and as the church is in need of money a collection of 15 cents will be taken. There will be ice cream for sale on the grounds. To those who have not attended our picnics will say, there will be yellow streamers at the top of the hill where the car stops, and follow the yellow streamers to the Versailles Methodist church. Hope some come prepared to speak or read so we can have a program.

Dinner will be served at 12 o'clock, daylight saving time.

I will sign as usual.

THE TALES MY UNCLE TOLD
Lizzette—The Beautiful

Dear Social Corner: One blustery March evening in 18—a carriage rolled up and halted at the front entrance of the Old Monangahela House in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. I was acting as night porter. The big hotel was was managed by Mr. and Mrs. Crossan— the proprietor and his wife. They were strong abolitionists and reposed the utmost confidence in their employes who assisted in providing for the comforts of an exacting public.

As I said in the beginning a carriage at the main entrance. Two travellers, a man and a woman alighted and walked rapidly to the door, which I opened to admit them, then hastily closed it against the swirling snow and the biting blast which swept the street.

The arrivals were without baggage except a small leather bag carried by the man. I directed him to the desk. As he removed his gloves and unbottoned his overcoat diamonds flashed from his fingers and bosom. He was below medium height, slender and dark, straight hair fell over his collar. A heavy drooping mustache could not hide the sneering curl of his lip. A wide brimmed black hat shaded his ferret-like eyes which were deep set and restless. His appearance and manner proclaimed him a southern planter before he uttered a word. He spoke in an undertone to the clerk who turned to me and said: "Show the gentleman to room 15 second floor." "Take the girl to room 40 third floor back." The gentleman will give you further orders." At the word girl I looked keenly at the woman who until now stood in the shadow of a pillar. The bright light fell upon her fair face. Never shall I forget that lovely young girl! Her tall slender form enveloped in a long cloak of some dark stuff. The hood which had partly concealed her face was thrown back revealing her wondrous beauty. Her finely chisled features and clear olive complexion were enhanced by large dark eyes, white glowed, held within their depths both fear and sorrow. Glossy black hair waved from a smooth brow and was hidden beneath her cloak which she drew closely about her. At a glance I comprehended the situation. This girl was a slave. The man her master. That moment I was fired with determination to rescue her from his clutches. No matter what the cost might be The man snapped his fingers in her direction, signifying she was to follow low him. For an instant she receded, her face paled, then flushed. With downcast eyes she walked gracefully to the corridor followed by admiring glances from loungers in the lobby At No 18 the man bade me halt while he entered the room and deposited the bag; then followed the girl and myself to No. 40, third back. I unlocked the door, opened it and turned on the light scrutinized the room, tested the walls, opened and examined the closets; raised the window sash, looked out and down as if measuring the distance to the pavement below shut and locked the window. Apparently satisfied with his findings he turned on his heel walked out of the room without so much as a glance at the girl. He shut and locked the door, pocketed the key. Although I towered head and shoulders above him and felt myself infinitely his superior as a man he said: "Boy, are you on watch all night? Replying in the affirmative he continued: "Bring this girl some bread and butter and tea. How soon will dinner be served?" I replied, "In half an hour sir." Bring this girl's supper at once, he said, consulting his watch. "Yes, sir," replied hastening away. In less than 20 minutes every sympathizer in that Old Monongahela House knew there was a slave girl in No. 40 third floor back and indignation ran high. On my return with the tea, I found the planter impatiently pacing the hall. He unlocked the door and we entered. I placed the tray upon a small table which stood in the center of the room. The girl had thrown off her wrap and was seated on a stool at the foot of the bed. Her hands tensely locked, lay in her lap. Her wavy black hair was unconfined and literally swept the floor falling like a cloud about her girlish form. She raised a tear stained face in mute appeal. I dared not look at her again for fear I should say an impudent word or commit a rash act. so I stepped into the hall where I could observe all without being seen. The girl arose, stood erect with the palms of her shapely hands pressed to her temples. The sight of that stricken girl exasperated the master beyond expression. He advanced toward her with menacing finger, stamped his foot and cried angrily but with suppressed wrath—"Lizette stop that nonsense. Eat your supper than lie down until you are called. Come now stop that sniffing. Mind what I say and be quick about it too." From the hall I heard the angry words and saw the look of utter despair on Lizette's face, but not a murmur escaped her trembling lips. Again the master locked the door and kept the key. Almost immediately the light in the girl's room went out.

With a muttered imprecation he commanded me to call the girl at 11 p. m., to order a cab to take them to meet the midnight express south, then strode haughtily downstairs and into the dining room. Shortly afterwards, a half dozen determined men held a brief but decisive consultation. Mrs. Crossan and the chambermaid on the third floor were taken into our confidence. Watches were stationed in the several halls and on stairways, a special one was placed to observe the movements of the planter. The headwaiter was instructed to delay serving the courses at dinner. With all speed messages were dispatched to friends in the city. The word soon came that a closed carriage would be at the door at 9 P. M. The planter had met some boon companions and everything favored our daring schemes. I was given the task of getting the girl out of the room. How was it to be done? The clerk, whom we did not trust, held the pass key. The planter had the other one safe in his pocket. Keys were brought from every part of the house but the lock of number 40 would not yield. All plans and suggestion failed. Time was flying. We were getting desperate! Finally I called in a low tone through the key hole, "Lizette, Lizette. We are your friends. Come nearer. Are you a slave." "Yes," came the faint answer, "Do you wish to be free?" "Yes, God knows I do." "Will you trust us and do as we tell you?" "Yes, I will" came the prompt response. How were we to get her out. Like a flash the idea came to me. There is but one way, draw her through the transom over the door. "Quick," I cried bring a strong rope and ladder. Then the thought, would she consent? Had she courage for such an ordeal? It was a trying moment. We worked nervously almost breathlessly. The rope and ladder were secured. We made a noose and threw it through the transom. The girl put it around her waist as we directed. With great daring and heroism she suffered herself to be drawn through the transom into the hall. We could have shouted for joy but the battle was not yet won. Lizette was hurried into the chambermaid's room and dressed in male attire. Her shapely head was quickly shorn of its tresses, green goggles concealed her bright eyes, a wide brimmed hat shaded her face. I threw a gentleman's cape about her shoulders. Leaning on my arm as an invalid we passed within a few feet of the master, puffing his after dinner pipe in great contentment, passed the loungers in the lobby and the clerk at the desk out into the street and the wintry gale. The poor girl trembled so violently I feared she would fall. I actually carried her from the door to the carriage. A Quaker Lady gathered Lizette in her arms as I quickly closed the door of the carriage. The whip was given to the horses and the vehicles was soon lost in the blinding snow storm. I returned to the lobby just as the clock chimed nine O'er work was accomplished. At the home of the Quakeress. Lizette told her simple story. She had gone from Virginia to Baltimore, Md., as maid to her mistress. Longing for freedom she ran away but was apprehended. At her third attempt to escape her master, who was her half brother decided to sell her to a Georgia Soul Driver who was to claim her the next day. With the master she was on her way to the place where she was to be turned over to her purchaser. Kind friends aided her gave her a well filled purse and she was soon speeding to Canada and freedom. The planter was furious when the truth became known and wanted everybody arrested. He left the Old Monongahela House swearing vengeance on the house, everybody in it, all Pittsburgh and the north generally. but beautiful Lizette he never saw again.

HEN THAT LAYS BIG EGGS

Dear Social Corner Friends: I will write a few lines to thank the editor for my pin, and the sisters for their kind letters and presents to me. I enjoy reading all the letters so much I neglect to write. My two grandmothers are with me since school closed. They are so much company and help to me. They love to feed the chickens and get the eggs and get my mail. They both have gained so much since coming where it is all standard time. Daylight saving time is always to much for them when going to school.

Violet: Am glad you are the little soul you are and along good.

Crimson Rambler: How are you? Do you remember the nice time at Mrs. Nichols?

What a lot of changes since then!

Am glad the shut ins are better. Hope all will be well soon. While I cannot connect with Aunt Jerusky on turkeys I can boast a hen that lays every day an egg weighing 1-4 pound apiece four weigh a good big pound and not double yolked either.

Eastern Lee: Enjoy your letters to the Corner so much.

Rosa: Do very well Was reading your cards and letters to Blue Bell, the other day. It brought pleasant memories of the past to me. How pleased Blue Bell was when one came from you.

Kitty Lou: How I would like to see you and have a chat as we used to. How are you all. Well I hope. Best wishes to you all, and Ethelyn's mother-in-law. Would like to see her. Have not been that way in a long time. Called on you last time I was there.

Calla Lily: Suppose you and Old Glory are having a fine time at the cottage, enjoying the sea breeze and bathing. How I wish I was there to go bathing.

L. T. H.: How are you this summer? I miss your nice letters to the Corner. Hope you are not sick. Best wishes to all.

L. T. H. (March 21).

THE WORD "SISTER"

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Just how much I appreciate the word "sister" is neither strange nor new to the Social Corner members. I had a very pleasant surprise recently. I was standing waiting for a car when a lady came up to me and said in a pleasant voice, "How do you do sister, and how are you today?"

I do not know as I ever heard anything sound so sweetly as that word sister. I knew she meant just what she said for the tone of voice could not be mistaken. Truth like a cork will always come to the top.

It is something that cannot be kept down.

Sweet William: I had such a lovely visit with you. Baby W. is so cute.

Frozen: I looked for a letter from you this week. Do not stop writing now you have started again.

Grandma Gray has my sympathy. Best wishes to all.

PON AMI.

A SUMMER LUXURY

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Your hot water bottle that has served you so efficiently during the winter months by keeping you warm or relieving your pain may also be used this summer to keep you cool.

When you are overheated and tired, if you will fill your hot water bottle with cold water and rest it at the back of your neck, you will soon have great relief or if the night is uncomfortably hot and you will rest your neck on this cold bottle it will cool your brain and your body and in place of a restless night you will enjoy a refreshing sleep.

Who does not enjoy the luxury of a cool bed after a trying hot day in summer? Place the cold water bottle between the sheets sometime before you retire. The bed will be nice and cool instead of the same temperature of the room.

ETHELYN.

GREETINGS FROM LYDIA

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I surely did have a lovely time at Eastkillingly June the 5. I saw so many of my friends.

Twice Twenty: Wish I could write like you.

Keziah Doolittle: Will try and not tell any more tales but you know now it is with me.

Alice: Wish I could run in and see you this lovely morning. The roses are beautiful.

Alwilda: I have the poem pinned over my sewing table. Thanks for sending it.

Neighbor Eveready: I know you wonder if you do know me.

Buffalo: Please accept my heart felt sympathy as I also know what it means to you and yours. I never saw my boy after he enlisted until he came home to sleep his long last sleep. With best wishes to all.

INQUIRY ABOUT SHORE LINE CLUB

Dear Social Corner Folks: First of all I wish every body good morning this lovely day.

Saville: Your letter at hand, and as usual pleased to hear from you. Hoped you received that package o. k. Should have sent it before but I was rather delinquent.

U. C. E.: Thank you. Did you go to the social? I thought of you that evening. I saw an account in the paper.

Balsam Fir: Reading matter came in the nick of time. Thanks. You must spend a little of your time preparing those articles. You don't say a word of late about all your adopted children. Trust they are well and happy. How is everything at Crystal? Have you plenty of water now? We are nearly flooded at the present time. Plenty of rain, may be too much now as the haying season is soon to be here.

E. L. M.: Didn't I see your name in the Bulletin where you attended the Ladies Society of the Baptist church. Have you got the club started yet?

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

WHAT IS HAPPINESS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: So glad to see such wonderfully helpful and interesting letters in our Corner lately. I think the members send in splendid poems. I save a copy of all of them for my scrapbook. I wish to thank the editor for prize. Shall purchase postage stamps with same, that I may write letters to the Social Corner page and members.

Butterfly: The other snap shot was not perfect. You did not appear in it, but the gentleman and other lady were good.

Twice Twenty: Your letter on Lady Slippers was fine, I have a small book called Flower Guide in which they are described but I have never found any except the pink variety.

Little Spinster: I enjoyed your letter "To the Wild Rose." How quickly they fade and wilt when gathered from their bush!

Will not other members write letters describing our native wild flowers? The laurel (our state flower), is wonderful. I love the clover; the pond lilies, the gentians, milk weeds, bouncing Bet, cat tails and all other flowers in their season. Examine the still life under a magnifying glass and we find they are beautiful beyond description.

Paula has written on What is Success, I will write a few lines on What is Happiness. Happiness is said to be a contented state of mind.

Unhappiness is said to be a mental and spiritual defect, like jealousy. Happiness is healthy and natural, and a harmonious way of thinking and living. The less we chase after it, the more surely we will possess it. Unabiding peace is in heart. Empty the heart of all superficial and artificial rubbish; clean house, as it were, and behold! Happiness abides.

Potlatch, Balsam Fir, E. M., C. P.: Your interesting letter received.

Here's wishing all a safe, sane, and happy Fourth of July.

ARIES.

A FEW CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Dear Cornerites: Did you ever make a "Goose bag?"

Recently I saw a bag just finished and ready to present to a church sale, that I at once dubbed a "goose" bag, although the maker said it was just a bag, the head and legs were cut from plain yellow cloth, a sort of a cotton suede finish stuff but filled fairly plumb with cotton batting. The eyes were a cluster of black french knots.

The body of the bag was of gay cretonne having 2 1-2 inch plaits at the top for fullness. It had side openings near the top and was roomy as the whole bag from top to toe literally was about three quarters of a yard long.

The legs, fastened on part way up the sides, held the bag out curiously like a waddling goose. A band of the yellow fastened about the neck covered the seam and the end was long enough to double back and make the loop for carrying on the arm. Altogether it was quaint and handy.

A very old lady was made happy with a little bag I made from some gay cretonne and filled with two balls of yarn, a bone crochet hook and a pair of bone knitting needles.

Little boys like to make gifts all by themselves—for mother, auntie and sister—and are often delightfully nimble with help fingers. It isn't a bad plan to teach them to use a needle. The best part of a heavy black stocking leg, cut about 2 fingers in width by four in length overcast all around with bright thread or worsted with a brass curtain ring sewed in the middle of one end, makes a very useful holder around the kitchen stove.

A little boy that has learned to use a jack knife could whittle out a little paddle which is much better than a spoon for stirring candy. Another little girl boys can make is a little wooden knife that can be used as a paper cutter. They can make a pencil box 2 inch square pieces of cedar wood.

E. L. M.: Have sent you letter.

KITTY LOU.

A HAND PAINTED BREAD BOX

Dear Social Corner Members and Editor: First I want to thank the editor for my pin, I meant to do so before now, but never got to it.

Last week's page was not full, and I hope those sisters who write such nice letters will write to fill the page. There are so many names we hardly ever see.

Lo; Where are you? Why don't you write?

Student: I've been looking for you to announce the picnic, but have not seen anything yet. I know it must be hard for you, and I wish I could offer myself as a helper. But that is impossible.

One of the sisters wrote sometime ago about painting a bread box inside if it got rusty. Well mine was not very rusty but I thought it would look fine if I painted it so I did. And I have never been able to use it since. I can't get the smell out of it. I wonder if the sister who wrote that can help me now. My box looks like new but it's no good to me.

Forget-Me-Not: You had me wondering if I could know you I wish you had said how long ago you lived in Occum and Versailles.

With best wishes for the Corner.

ANASTASIA.

LIKES THE SPRING

Dear Editor and Social Corner: I want to send my thanks for the pretty pin which came recently.

I enjoy the spring time so much when the trees spring into life with the leaves bursting forth and then the flowers come out so beautiful. I am so thankful to the Giver of all good.

I have but just joined the Corner, live in a country place and go out but little. I walk a mile to church and live with another woman.

CHEERFUL.

A LETTER OF THANKS

Dear Social Friends: This is to be a letter of thanks, First, to the Social Corner editor for my yellow slip which came as a great surprise to me, but is welcome just the same. I feel I must think well before I decide what to use it for as I can't remember that I ever won a prize before. Then I wish to thank both Kensey and Anne D for sugesting ways of getting rid of ants. I tried both ways as soon as I had the Bulletin and read the letter. I can't say now which was successful as I never caught one either in the fly paper or on the crackers, but they had a call in another direction and I've only seen just a very few in my pantry since.

I'm still keeping the poison fly paper on the shelf. It is such a comfort to not have them running all over everything.

Of course, every one is busy making preparations for the coming holiday. With parades and addresses in the morning and family parties in the afternoon, the day will be full. Here is wishing you all a pleasant time.

O. D.

O. H. O. WOULD LIKE TO HEAR FROM CORNER MEMBERS

To the Social Corner: One of the members, O. H. O. (Mrs. Lizzie Richards) is in the Johnson Hospital, Stafford Springs, Conn., and would like to have the members of Social Corner write to her. She never will be able to do anything again, and has been in the hospital a long time. Her address is Mrs. Lizzie Richards, O. H. O.), Johnson Hospital, Stafford Springs, Conn.

Wish I knew Crimson Rambler's address, he birthday and mine are the same.

TRIALS WITH PIGS

Dear Social Corner Friends: Somebody, I think it was Ellis Parker Butler once wrote something called Pigs is Pigs. I never read it but believe it was considered very bright. There have been several times in my life however when I sincerely wished that pigs were not pigs, and I am confident that all the sisters familiar with affairs "down on the farm" have wished so too. Of course there are pigs and pigs as well as hogs and hogs. Road hogs I will leave to be described by Chauffeur and other 'bilists. To those who know pig and hog only as presented in meat markets the names Berkshire, Chester White, etc., have little meanings. If I had dealt with pigs and hogs in cement residences the difference in the shape of their snouts would not be impressed upon me so indelibly but when confined in an old barn for instance, the Berkshire's long snout proves very useful in pushing off boards so as to make his escape. There is something about watching boards coming off in this manner however, not soothing to the nerves when there is not a man on hand or likely to be for hours.

I shall never forget John. Long John, he should have been called for he was the longest hog I was ever acquainted with. For want of a better place at the time of his arrival John was put in rather small quarters,—the house being big enough for him to be full length and that was all. As I looked out one day in the direction of this domicle I could scarcely believe my eyes. It lay in pieces flat upon the ground like a scattered pack of cards. Evidently John had stretched in his sleep and like Samson of Bible fame had brought the house down upon himself. But where was John? In the last place I should have liked to see him. He was just going through the open barndoor and Fancy, our pretty driving mare, was in a stall within three feet of that door. Suppose John should go in beside her or bite her legs! The Goodman was away, as Goodmen usually are at such times, so I must rise to the occasion as best I could. I quickly donned my seven league boots and down the road I sped in search of a friendly neighbor who returned with me. Apparently John hadn't had any trouble with Fancy at all and I had been terribly scared without cause. I never have regained the five pounds or so I lost in weight that day. Baby pigs are just too cute! One year we had a family of eleven, two of them being very tiny, the size known as Titmans. They stood no chance with their bigger brothers and sisters so I brought them up, feeding them from a bottle. How they grew and how they would run for me when I appeared with a bottle of milk.

I christened them George and Martha as I wished to give them a good start in life and I didn't feel so badly at parting with them as I otherwise should have because they went to a first class home, namely to Ma of Greene Gables farm where their stockings were kept mended and their stomachs well filled with squash pies and other good things. They grew rapidly and must have weighed 100 pounds each when I saw them again. They didn't appear to recognize me at all and I confess I felt somewhat peeved. I have decided not to go into the pig business again. It is too strenuous. With best wishes to you all.

EVELINE BURR.

OUR FLAG.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It has been a long time since I wrote, so as long as the Fourth is so near thought I would send in a few lines about "Our Flag."

"When the flag is passing on parade, if you are walking, halt; if sitting, rise, stand at attention and uncover.

"The flag should never be worn as the whole part of a costume, as a badge, it should be worn over the left breast.

"The flag should never be placed below a person sitting.

"When carried in parade, or when crossed with other flags, the Stars and Swipes should always be at the right.

"As an altar covering, the union should be at the right as you face the altar, and nothing should be placed upon the flag except the Holy Bible.'

I could write a lot more about Our Flag but I am afraid to take up so much space. So with best wishes to all Social Corner Sisters, I am

Yours, WETONA.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Proposals to increase the pondage of water in Norwich reservoirs by purchasing more land were defeated at a special meeting a half century ago the citizens feeling that the old reservoir had sufficient water to supply the needs of Norwich.

Incidents of the week as recorded in The Bulletin in 1875 are reprinted in part as follows:

Monday, June 28, 1875—A game of ball was played on the Park Saturday afternoon between nines from Hood's pistol shop and the Bacon Arms Company but proved an uninteresting game resulting in a victory for Hood's by the score of 30 to 12.

Some three hundred persons attended the meeting Saturday to act upon the proposed extension of the Water Works and James Lloyd Greene seconded the motion of the water board made at the last meeting, recommending the proposed extension. It was proposed to buy 215 acres of land, construct a dam 200 feet long, part of it 25 feet high and the rest from 25 to 11 feet in height, the capacity to be 1,000,000,000 gallons, to buy and clear it, fence it, and lay in 16-inch pipe from the new reservoir to Dr. Gulliver's and from that point back to the old reservoir, at a cost of about $32,000.

It was denied that the old reservoir could supply 22,000 persons and claimed that 18,000 could be cared for. Figures showed that the old reservoir was more than half emptied in 1873 and that with annexations to the city supply would become inadequate.

Arguments against buying the land from Mr. Smith and Mr. Carew cropped up during the meeting and the resolution to purchase the land was lost by an overwhelming vote. A committee was then appointed to study the situation and report to some future meeting.

Tuesday, June 29, 1875—The A. M. E. Zion church on Franklin street was dedicated Sunday, the bishop preaching to a large audience. The collection takes up during the afternoon and evening amounted to over $50. The church should have a prosperous future.

The police have appeared in their summer uniforms of blouse, Panama hat and buff vest.

The bridge at the Falls known as the "Paper Mill Bridge" is completed and ready for use. It was commenced last fall and is a good piece of work. The woodwork was done by J. E. Carrier and the stone work by W. L. Sherman.

Yesterday afternoon while Gen. Aiken was driving towards the city from the West Side depot, one of the shafts on his carriage broke and frightened the horse, which ran away, and at the Norwich Elevator was running at top speed. Fearing injury to others, Gen. Aiken guided the carriage against a heavy team near the Breed building, upsetting the carriage and freeing the horse. Gen. Aiken was not seriously hurt and probably prevented serious damage by his nerve and presence of mind in forcing the collision. The horse ran to Shetucket street where it fell, breaking a leg, and had to be shot. The horse was a valuable one, having been owned by the late Senator Buckingham and ridden by him at most of the inauguration parades. It was a pure Morgan of great spirit and beauty and Senator Buckingham had never been able to find a match for it.

Wednesday, June 30, 1875—The class of '75, Free Academy, graduated last night, exercises being viewed by parents and friends of the 12 members of the class. The diplomas were presented by Prof. Hutchinson.

Messrs. Smith Bros., florists at Norwich Town have a rare flower on exhibition at their nursery. It is the Holy Spirit, flower of South America, so called from its pistil bearing a close relationship to a white dove with extended wings. There are few of these plants in America but the Norwich florists have three of them and they attract wide attention.

The Hon. William L. Brewer retires from the office of clerk of the superior court soon, after a service of 19 years. Mr. Park who succeeds him and Mr. Kellogg, the new assistant clerk are well known and have ability and capacity for their offices.

Sanderson reports that many entries have been received for the horse racing at the Fair Ground.

Thursday, July 1, 1875—N. R. Allen, of this city has patented a most ingenious folding chair. It is composed of brass rods with stuff top, weighs less than two pounds and can be carried in the pocket. Besides its strength and compactness, it can be made exceedingly ornamental and is destined to become a general favorite.

Among the prizes awarded at Yale yesterday were first prizes for excellence in English composition to H. S. Gulliver of this city and Carl T. Chester, now of Buffalo but formerly of Norwich.

The stringency of the money market in Norwich has affected the boot blacks, who now shine for five cents.

The water in the reservoir is now 21 inches below full pond and still more families are asking for city water.

Schools in the Central district close today for the summer, an exhibition of the Broadway school to take place this afternoon.

Friday, July 2, 1875—Mr. Tomes, for some time manager of the Atlantic & Pacific Telegraph Company's office here, has been transferred to the management of a branch office in New York city, E. C. Cook, for some time connected with the Western Union office takes his place.

There were twenty five graduates from Broadway school this year and the exercises were held yesterday afternoon with a fine program for the enjoyment of parents and friends.

The total number of vessels which passed Bartlett's Reef lightship for the year ending June 30th was 44,939; barges in tow of steamers 933.

The Brooklyn Post in an issue this week urges the expenditure of money on the navy yard at New London, claiming that a quarter of a million spent there would be better than 6 million and a half at League Islands, and will give the country a navy yard second to none in the country.

Saturday, July 3, 1875—The Fourth promises to be a banner day for Norwich. A number of Catholic societies are to hold their annual picnic in Roath's woods, the Caledonian society goes to Quinebaug lake, the steamer Ella goes to Watch Hill and Osbrook grove and the steamer Lawrence goes on the Newport excursion. There will be a trot at the the Fair Grounds and Greeneville will stage the parade for the day, mostly horribles but with three fine bands.

Although this sounds "fishy" it is a true story. A Norwich man suffering from the heat yesterday went into the woods to find a cool spot but without success. At night he found the cause of his trouble to be "too much shirt." There was an undershirt, a night shirt, a soiled shirt he intended to change and a clean shirt.

The trustee for the Horse Railroad has advertised the Norwich road for sale. There will be bidding for this property for it should be made to pay under proper management.

J. P. Collins & Co.'s new turbine water wheel factory on Thames street is up, and is one of the most conspicuous objects on the west bank of the river.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

THE STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, July 3.—(AP)—A wave of pre-holiday profit-taking and forced liquidation in connection with the failure of a large stock exchange house engulfed today's stock market, turning the trend of prices downward. Despite the market's unsettlement, constructive operations continued in a number of popular specialties, lifting them to new high prices for the year.

Readjustment of speculative accounts for over the holiday contributed to the uneven character of the day's trading. Easier money rates were ignored in view of the desire of many traders to withdraw from the market during the two-day suspension.

The most severe losses of the day were recorded by stocks which were subjected to selling "under the rule" following announcement of the failure on the stock exchange. Stewart-Warner broke about six points to sixty, but subsequently rallied to 64 1-4 at the close as supporting orders appeared in the market. Other shares which were depressed by the failure included Sears-Roebuck, Pullman, Willys-Overland, Chicago Yellow Cab, Nash Motors and Reynolds Spring. Another factor in the weakness of Reynolds was the anticipated omission of the quarterly dividend which was announced after the close of the market.

Intermittent rallies took place throughout the day but in view of week-end realizing recoveries were not well maintained. Prominent industrials, including United States Steel, Baldwin, Woolworth and American Radiator, yielded to selling pressure.

Operators for the rise, however, found encouragement in the absorption of selling in the general run of stocks and the success of some of the most aggressive pools in bidding up their favorites. Vigorous buying operations lifted almost a score issues to the highest prices of the year, including such diversified stocks as Western Union, Cudahy Packing, Fleischmann, Corn Products preferred, American Ice, Foundation company, Associated Dry Goods and Columbus Gas preferred. In an exceptional transaction S. H. Kress sold more than 76 points above the last previous sale recorded seven months ago.

Independent strength was shown by several rail shares in the late trading, the buying movement in these issues exerting temporarily stabilizing effect. New York Central was pushed up 1 3-8 points to 117 1-8 and Southern Railway sold as high as 99. Wabash common rose a point to a new high at 33, coincident with the announcement that the road had sought formal approval for its acquisition of the Ann Arbor railroad. This action is believed to mark the first step in the eventual inclusion of both roads in the proposed Loree Trunk line.

BOND MARKET DULL.

NEW YORK, July 3.—(AP)—Preholiday dullness settled over today's bond market, greatly reducing activity and narrowing the movement of prices. Indications of a returning ease of money was a steadying factor, although it failed to stimulate trading.

U. S. government obligations drifted irregularly lower as scattered profit-taking was invited by the record high levels attained during the week. Losses, however, were extremely moderate and the decline was accompanied by a marked lessening of activity.

Foreign bonds maintained a firm tone, with some of the French issues aided by the announcement that actual debt funding negotiations will be opened here late in the summer. Following the lead of Norway, Denmark and its decision to refund an outstanding 8 per cent. bond issue at a lower rate and an offering of about $25,000,000 for this purpose is expected here before the end of the summer. The 8 per cent. bonds, which are callable at 110, declined on the news but the government's 6s advanced.

Price changes of domestic corporation issues were mainly fractional. Contrasts were supplied by advances in American Smelting 5s, Commonwealth Power 6s, Republic 5s, Southern

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE

Section 25 of an act passed by the recent session of the General Assembly entitled "An Act Authorizing the City of Norwich and Town of Norwich to create Zoning Districts" provides as follows:
Sec. 25. No person shall erect, add to, move or place any building or other structure or addition thereto within the limits of the town of Norwich, outside the limits of the city of Norwich, without having obtained from the town clerk of said town a written permit therefor, which permit shall specify the location, character, and proposed use of such building or structure and the purposes for which it shall be used, and no such permit shall be issued to any person unless such proposed structure shall comply with regulations which shall be adopted by said town, and a copy of such permit shall be recorded by the town clerk in a book to be kept by him in his office for such purpose. The town clerk shall be paid one dollar for the issuance and recording of each such permit by the person to whom such permit shall be issued. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be liable to the penalties of section 23 of this act.
This Act is now in force and any persons performing any of the acts mentioned in this section are hereby given notice to obtain the permit provided for therein before the commencement of any work. The Town Clerk of this town is prepared to issue such permits upon proper application being made.
By Order of SELECTMEN.

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The disturbance that was over Manitoba Thursday night was advanced to Hudson Bay. Pressure is relatively high along the middle and North Atlantic coasts. During the last 24 hours scattered showers and thunder storms have occurred over the upper lake region. Cooler weather has overspread the Missouri valley. The highest temperature of record, one hundred and two degrees, is reported from Augusta, Georgia. Temperatures are quite high in the Mississippi and Ohio valleys.

The outlook is for local showers and thunder storms on Saturday over Northern districts east of the Mississippi river. Otherwise the weather will be generally fair Saturday and Sunday. It will be warmer Saturday in the middle Atlantic states.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook:—Fresh southwest and weather partly overcast Saturday.

MUSIC AND STORIES IN PLAYGROUND WORK

Friday morning's session completed the term of the Playground Institute for 1925. All the playground instructors are unanimous in their opinion that every lecture held during the past week at the Elks' home has been of tremendous importance and interest.

The final session of the institute was opened by the introduction of Francis Wheeler, first speaker of the morning. Superintendent Earle E. Brigham introduced Mr. Wheeler whose official title is community music organizer, Playground and Recreation Association of America. Mr. Wheeler besides occupying a position of signal dignity has that most estimable quality of being a "hale fellow, well met." With his opening words Mr. Wheeler proceeded to make friends of all his listeners.

Throughout his lecture "Community Music" displayed a thorough understanding of his chosen line of endeavor. "Music As Applied to Community Work."

As a supplement to his lecture work, Mr. Wheeler led the institute in several catchy ballads. e then proceeded to tell the institute how playground community singing should be led and of the little realized importance to such singing of that very inexpensive, yet popular instrument the "uke."

As a special feature of the program Mr. Wheeler on the ukelele assisted by Earle E. Grigham on the French harp carried out a special concert program. The two talented performers delighted their audience with renditions of Mendelssohn's 'Son'ata in Five Flats For reed and strings", and Chopins "Nocturne in Blue."

To complete his subject Mr. Wheeler gave a very interesting as well as highly instructive discourse on "The Psychology of Music As Applied to The Juvenile." The lecture emphasized the fact that song is a splendid means of relaxing the tired nervous system that music is one of the best methods for stimulating the sluggish brain. Many years of endeavor which included years of service as community song leader in some of the largest training camps during the period of the World War, Mr. Wheeler has come to realize and wants all those whom he addresses to realize, the tremendous importance of the sense-touching element in the rhythmic beat of music.

As last speaker of the morning, as well as final lecturer of the Institute, Superintendent Brigham introduced Miss Meunah E. Keefe, children's librarian, Memorial Branch, library, Springfield, Mass. For her lecture Miss Keefe chose the topic Story-Telling.

"The story teller," she said, "possesses a powerful influence over her hearers. She has the faculty of carrying her hearers to far-distant lands: in the minds of her audience she can conjure up elusive fantasies and shimmering chimeras."

As an aid to the work of the playground instructor Miss Keefe gave the names of a number of books and their authors which she considered really worth while. Miss Keefe very appropriately completed the final session of the institute by telling two short tales in her own admirable way.

As a story-teller Miss Keefe possesses a very peculiar appeal endowed with a clear well modulated voice and enriched by a charming personality. Miss Keefe interpreted her two selections in a thoroughly interesting and artistic fashion. Seldom has her audience had the pleasure of listening to such pretty little stories as she read to them.

While the institute has ended the playground work has only just commenced and the season will see an application at the Norwich playgrounds of the hundred-and-one helpful little suggestions and pointers gleaned from the past week's meetings. The institute's aim has been to encourage bigger and better playgrounds for Norwich. The playground commission hopes that the people of Norwich will grasp the significance of this fact and will consider the playground movement as something which is vitally essential to the welfare of Norwich.

Sunday at Westminster

Communion of the Lord's Supper is to be served at Westminster Sunday, July 5th. The address of Dr. Claypool, postponed on account of weather last Sunday, will probably be given July 12th.

CITY WINS SUIT OVER HOUSE BURNED AT EAST GREAT PLAIN

The city of Norwich is the winner in two suits brought against it because of the destruction by fire on Dec. 23, 1924, of the residence on Salem turnpike, East Great Plain, which was owned by Sarah E. Willard and occupied by Alfred H. Beebe.

Judge Isaac Wolfe, before whom the Willard and Beebe suits against the city were recently tried, handed down a decision for the city in both suits Friday and directed that judgment to that effect be entered.

The suits were brought against the city on the grounds that a gasoline torch used by a man named Grady, an employe of the Norwich city gas and electric department, set fire to the house while the torch was in use to solder a joint.

Mrs. Willard, owner of the house, brought suit for $10,000 damages and Mr. Beebe, her tenant, sued for $2,000 for the loss of his furniture.

Preston Farm Foreclosure

In the foreclosure suit of Pawel Sablewski of Norwich against John Dydo of Preston, Judge Wolfe finds that the debt due is $125.10 and directs that judgment be entered for that amount.

Sablewski sued to foreclose a $2,500 mortgage given by Dydo when he bought a farm from Sablewski Aug. 19, 1924. Dydo made a counterclaim for $1,000 damages, alleging that he had been induced to buy the farm by false representations, that the farm was not worth what he paid for it, that the size of a milk route was misrepresented and that the well was contaminated.

In his memorandum of decision, Judge Wolfe says:

The execution of the mortgage and the delivery of the mortgage note are not disputed, and it is also not disputed that on June 18, 1925, there was due thereon the sum of $272.10. Judgment should therefore be entered for such sum, unless the defendant has prevailed upon one or more of the issues alleged in his counterclaim.

While the defendant alleges that certain false representations were made to him to induce him to purchase the property in question, I find that there is only one ground upon which he is entitled to recover damages from the plaintiff and that is the loss resulting to him by reason of the failure of the plaintiff to comply with the order of the dairy and food commissioner, of date of April 30, 1924.

Under such order the plaintiff was required to clean up the milk room and cooling tank and to remove the sink drain from near the well.

By reason of the failure of the plaintiff to comply with this order of the commissioner, of which order the defendant, at the time he purchased the premises, was in ignorance of, the defendant was required to make the necessary improvements, and until made, he was directed not to sell or distribute milk from such premises. Such order was given on Aug. 23 and the prohibition removed on Sept. 16, during which time the defendant bought milk from other dealers with which to supply his customers. From his own testimony it appears that he lost no money by reason of such fact. What he could have made on his milk, if he had not been prevented from using his own product, during the period, did not clearly appear.

It does appear, however, that the defendant fed necessary grain to his cows during the closed period, at a cost of $54, and also some hay, although the value of such hay was not given and, therefore, cannot be considered.

It also appeared that it cost the defendant, in labor and material in making the drain comply with the order of the commission, the sum of $43.

In repairing and cleaning the well the defendant went beyond the order of the commissioner and expended the sum of $125. It is impossible for me to determine what part of this was for cleaning the well, which was all that the commissioner required. I therefore cannot allow any of this item.

It cost the defendant the sum of $50 to put the milk room in condition, the cleaning of which was included in the order.

I therefore allow as damages to the defendant, under the counter-claim, the foregoing items, amounting in the whole to the sum of $147, which being offset against the amount due on the mortgage note, leaves the sum of $125.10, for which the plaintiff is entitled to judgment.

I fix the law day to be Aug. 31, 1926.

CARELESS BICYCLE RIDERS CAUSE MANY ACCIDENTS

In the face of a general increase in motor vehicle accidents, there has been a marked decline in collisions between automobiles and bicycles in the first half of this year, according to the records of the state motor vehicle department. Up to Tuesday, which closed the half-year period, 137 bicycles had been struck by motor vehicles and all but forty of these accidents are recorded as having been due to the bicyclists' carelessness.

At that rate, the total number of automobile collisions with bicycles for this year would be nearly 30 per cent. less than last year's record. The decline is believed to be due in part to a systematic campaign of education being carried on by the cycle trades of America. This organization assigns field men to cover certain prescribed routes throughout the country, spending a full week in each city, calling at schools and giving collective classes instructions in the proper ways of riding bicycles, and educating the bicycle riders to observe the rules of the streets and highways.

Some of the points emphasized by these instructors are to warn the children not to ride in "zig-zag" fashion, not to "hitch on" to other vehicles, not to carry anyone on the handle-bars, not to ride through groups of people getting on or off street cars and to equip their bicycles with warning signals and with a lamp for use when riding at night.

The state motor vehicle department is giving its cooperation to the safety campaign among bicycle riders. Out of 399 collisions between automobiles and bicycles in 1923, 354 were due to the bicyclists' carelessness and, out of 380 such accidents last year, carelessness of bicycle riders was held to be responsible for 313.

CATHOLIC COUNCIL'S GIFTS TO STATE HOSP. PATIENTS

Miss Mary Hartle, visiting secretary of the Connecticut council of Catholic women, visited Norwich state hospital and with the assistance of Mrs. M. V. Murphy, distributed cake, ice cream, jellies and fruit in the women's wards. William Dougherty loaned his automobile for their use on the trip to the hospital.

To Attend Nurses's Congress

Miss Yvonne H. Belanger, R. N. is sailing with Mrs. W. T. Tingley and Miss Agnes McKenna aboard the S. S. Caronia on July 8th, for Helsingfors, Finland, to attend the Congress of the International Council of Nurses from July 20th to 25th. After the adjournment Miss Belanger will enjoy a two months trip in Germany, Switzerland, Italy, France and England.

Bromley Street Barn Burned

Fire thought to have been caused by spontaneous combustion completely destroyed a small barn owned by Ralph Yeit zon Bromley street, about 3:30 o'clock Friday morning. Hay was stored in the barn and this evidently caught fire. The Norwich Fire department made response to the call for aid but the building was a total loss when they were notified.

CHAPMAN'S JUDGE SAYS DESPERADO HAD FAIR TRIAL

Judge Newell Jennings, of Bristol, who sentenced Gerald Chapman to death for murder, sailed with Mrs. Jennings and their two children Thursday from New York, on the Royal Mail liner Ohio, for Hamburg. They will tour Europe until September. Among those at the pier to see them depart was County Prosecutor Hugh Alcorn of Hartford, who prosecuted Chapman.

Judge Jennings asserted that Chapman had received a fair trial. He said he had not received any threatening or criticising letters after the trial. Judge Jennings suggested that Chapman made a big mistake when he did not become a publicity man instead of a desperado.

"It is unfortunate that he has not used his obvious natural talents in a better way," he added. "He was a likable man and had he worked along different lines would have been useful to society."

IRVING WOOD'S ASHES BURNED IN CANTERBURY

The Bulletin's Canterbury Green correspondent writes:

The burial of the ashes of Irving Wood, of Boston, took place in the family lot at the Carey cemetery last Saturday.

Mr. Wood, whose will disposing of a large estate, has been widely printed in the papers the past week, was of a family long identified with Canterbury.

His grandfather, Levi Wood, was for many years proprietor of the old Canterbury hotel which stood opposite the present store of Frink and Wright. His father, Darius Wood, lived in the town as a young man and in later life was a frequent visitor at the home of his sister, Mrs. Harvey Dyer, a woman of influence in the village and town.

PLAINFIELD BRANCH RAISES $140 FOR HOSPITAL

The Plainfield branch of the Women's auxiliary of Backus hospital, Norwich, has completed its canvass for funds in that town with $140 as the total, most of which was raised in Moosup and Central Village.

Miss Evelyn Cranska, of Moosup, was chairman of the committee for Plainfield, with Miss Loretta Bigonese, Miss Angelina Moreau, Thomas Hope, and Stuart Ellsworth as canvassers.

The purpose of this auxiliary, says the Moosup Journal, is to help provide the hospital with incidental equipment which it may need and for which funds are not provided in the normal sources of income. Among present needs are a new etherizer, new silverware, new trays, etc.

Returned From Baltimare

Mrs. John T. F. Burns, of 205 West Town street, has just returned from a two weeks' stay in Baltimore and Washington. While in Baltimore she attended the Moose convention and was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rich. Mrs. John LaValle having gone with Mrs. Burns, will remain for the summer with her sister.

NORWICH SAVINGS SOCIETY ADOPTS QUARTERLY DIVIDENDS

Quarterly dividends on deposits will be inaugurated by The Norwich Savings Society October 1. The last session of the General Assembly of this state enacted a statute making this possible. The Board of Directors, having in view the interest and convenience of the depositors, have taken the first opportunity to put it into effect.

For one hundred and one years the Society has paid dividends twice a year, January 1, and July 1, compounding the interest semi-annually.

Hereafter dividends will be paid four times a year, January 1, April 1, July 1, and October 1, and interest will be compounded quarterly. Depositors will therefore receive dividends twice as often as heretofore.

Few realize the important part played by a mutual savings bank in the development of a community. Its deposits are loaned under legal restrictions for building and improving homes, business structures, churches, schools and industries. The Society has always had the interests of Eastern Connecticut in view in this respect.

On July 1st the 202nd semi-annual dividend was paid depositors. Over $404,000 in amount, this disbursement from the earnings of the last six months, is equal to four-fifths of the sum the Town of Norwich will raise by taxation this year.

For more than a century the Society and its officers have stood ready to help its depositors and the community with financial counsel, and to assist in the upbuilding of this section by a proper use of its resources.

It has withstood every financial storm which has swept over this country since the war of 1812. It was never stronger than it is today.

$15,000 AUTOMOBILE SUIT WITHDRAWN FROM COURT

The $15,000 damage suit brought by Lycurgus M. Sistare of New London against the Connecticut Co. for damages alleged to have been caused to his automobile and physical and mental injuries to himself, when his machine was struck in New London by a trolley of the company, July 13, 1925, was withdrawn without costs from the superior court docket Friday. It is understood that settlement has been made.

Mr. Sistare was awarded a verdict of $4,500 in the superior court last year and the Connecticut Co. appealed the case to the supreme court of errors, which found error and ordered a retrial.

Mr. Sistare claimed that while driving his Willis-St. Claire car in Broad street near Morgan street, it was struck by a trolley car which rounded a curve at an alleged reckless rate of speed and without proper warning.

WESTERLY PRIEST ADDING FOUR ROOMS TO SCHOOL

A former pastor of St. John's church Montville, Rev. John F. X. Quinn, pastor of St. Michael's parish, Westerly, has announced plans for an addition to St. Michael's Parochial school. Ground was broken this week to make excavations for four new rooms to supplement the six rooms in use up to the present.

The old rooms will be completey renovated and when the fall term opens the parish will have practically an entire new school to care for the children in its jurisdiction.

SUPREME COURT APPEAL AGAINST $6,000 VERDICT

An appeal to the supreme court has been filed with Clerk George E. Parsons by the defendant in the suit of Laura C., wife of E. Frank Morgan of New London, against Robert Smith of Saranac Lake, N. Y.

A jury in the superior court recently gave Mrs. Morgan a verdict for $6,000 damages in her suit against Mr. Smith for injuries in an automobile accident on the Goshen road in Waterford.

WATCH HILL TAILOR SHOP YIELDS SUPPLY OF WET GOODS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., July 3—A successful raid at Watch Hill was conducted Friday night by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown armed with a search warrant and assisted by Officers Robert Kessell, George Madison, Leroy Norman and Fred Ferraro. The tailoring establishment of Leonard Johnson on Bay street was visited and the officers' search was rewarded by the finding of a quantity of wet goods, consisting of whiskey, gin and alcohol, which were taken to the Westerly police station.

Workmen's Compensation.

Two workmen's compensation agreements as follows have been approved by Commissioner J. J. Donohue:

The Connecticut Co., New Haven, employer, and H. F. Savage, 106 Smith avenue, Norwich, employe, wrenched left side in groin, June 20, at rate of $13.

Archibald Torrance, Norwich, employer, and John Niles, 102 Bliss avenue, employe, left leg bruised at cut below knee, later became infected, June 3, at rate of $18.

Return From Vacation Trip.

Rev. and Mrs. Hunzinger have returned home from their vacation trip through western New York and parts of Canada. Rev. and Mrs. Hunzinger also attended the 135th convention of the Evangelical Lutheran New York Ministerium held in Niagara Falls.

Unclaimed Letters

Unclaimed letters in the Norwich, Conn., post office for the week ending July 4, 1925: Miss Josephine Connelly, Mr. Abraham Cohen, Mrs. Charles Ingram, Mr. Leonard A. Jackson, Mrs. Marion Strong.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

S. OF H. AUXILIARY

Immergrun lodge, No. 12, held their regular meeting Wednesday evening in its rooms, 25 Shetucket street. Lester Briggs, Milford; department patriotic instructor, W. L. Deere, New London; department historian, Rheinhold Herson, Bridgeport; department marshall, Charles P. Dunlay, New Haven; department quartermaster, Geroge K. Dwyer, Hartford.

ODD LADIES, M. U.

The regular meeting of the Independent Order of Odd Ladies, M. U., was held Thursday evening in Steiner hall at 7.30 with Noble Grand Sister Nellie Ince in the chair. Officers were installed by Deputy Grand Lady Sister O'Brien of Waterford assisted by Prov. Grand Lady Sister A. Partridge of Norwich. The following were installed: Grand lady, Sister Nellie Ince; N. G., Sister B. Hartley; R. S. to N. G., Sister A. Wooley; L. S. to N. G., Sister H. Addison; V. G., Sister M. Greenhalgh; R. S. to V. G., Sister N. Unsworth; E. S., Sister E. Hartley; warden, Sister E. Mather; guard, Sister E. Tarbuck; chaplain, Sister D. McNeely; treasurer, Sister M. McNeely; P. S., Sister M. Armitage; pianist, Sister M. Wooley. Deputy Grand Lady Sister O'Brien presented a Past N. G. Lady's jewel to Sister Dorothy McNeely and Sister M. Armitage. A social hour was enjoyed by all. Cake and ice cream was served by the committee. It was voted not to hold any meetings until Sept. 3rd and to hold a whist in the near future.

PYTHIAN SISTERS

Clover Temple, No. 9, held its regular meeting Thursday evening with Most Excellent Chief E. Grace Fowler in the chair. Regular routine business was transacted, after which some very interesting remarks about Our Flag were made by Sister Lillian Rogers and Sister Annie Ableman. The prize of the evening went to Sister Ableman.

A. O. H. AUXILIARY

Division No. 54, Ladies' Auxiliary, A. O. H., held its regular meeting on Wednesday evening at the rooms at No. 99 Main street. There was a large attendance of members and the reports of the officers were accepted. Miss Catherine Coughlin reported on the pinochle and whist play to take place next week on the lawn at the home of Mrs. Charles O'Neill of East Great Plain. The next meeting of the division is to be held on August 15th.

GROTTO

Reports from the Grotto convention at Atlantic City are to be made at the Nemrod Grotto meeting on the evening of July 6, at which also plans for the annual outing will be discussed.

The annual outing given for the children of the New London county home has been set down for Saturday July 11. Grotto members who have automobiles will furnish them for transportation of the children. Those willing to render this service are to notify Prophet Louis Brown at the meeting on July 6.

At the meeting on July 20 plans will be launched for the fall ceremonial, which, it is expected, will be the largest and best which Nemrod Grotto has held.

CATHOLIC LADIES OF COLUMBUS

On the evening of June 26th at Hilltop Casino, Mercier Assembly, No. 12, held its second annual summer's night frolic, which was one of the most successful of social events which the assembly has held. The casino was the scene of a merry crowd who enjoyed themselves dancing from 8.30 to midnight, the music being furnished by Thumm's orchestra. The affair was in charge of Miss Mary Hamil, chairman, who, with her committee, worked hard to make the affair such a grand success. The patronesses for the evening were: Mrs. Thomas J. McVeigh, Mrs. Margaret Dutton, Mrs. Nellie McHale, Mrs. Elizabeth Hamil, Mrs. William Ward, Mrs. John Sweeney and Mrs. Bernard Coyle.

AMERICAN LEGION

New London will be the seat of the seventh annual convention of the American Legion of the state of Connecticut on August 27, 28 and 29. The affair will bring in the neighborhood of 10,000 delegates and members of the various legion posts and auxiliaries to the city. The three days of the convention will wind up with a monster parade which promises to be one of the largest seen in New London since the huge procession of July 4, 1917.

Tentative plans are already under way for taking care of the great influx of legionaires and members of the Forty and Eight which incidentally holds its state convention at the same time.

Col. Henry S. Dorsey has been appointed general chairman of the convention committee.

Decorations, Albert E. St. Germain; hotel and housing, Thomas McGinley, parade, Lieut Col. Thomas McGinley; printing and badges, Raymond Howlett; invitations, Gen. Morris B. Payne, amusements, Dr. R. Scott Linsley; publicity and advertising, Willard Cooper; convention hall and arrangements, W. Ray Bliven; information booth, Erneat F. Gates.

It is expected Brig. Gen. Clarence N. Edwards, Senator Hiram Bingham, Governor Trumbull and other dignitaries will attend. National Commander James A. Drain will also be at the convention.

Many of the legions will arrive in motor caravans and will find plenty of parking space at the commodious Riverside park. Already New London clubs have been formed in various cities and towns of the state. These clubs have been raising money for the trip, most of them intending to bring bands with them.

The parade which will be the feature of the convention will consist of many battalions of sailors and soldiers and a request will be sent to Washington for as many as can be sent for the day. The troops from the island forts with the 11th Coast Artillery band will also be on hand, as will detachments from New London and Norwich of the 192nd Artillery Battalions of Coast Guardsmen and Submarine base and other naval detachments, as well as parade apparatus of the 40 and 8 societies in the state.

Practically every legion post in the state will be in line, many of them headed by bands and fife and drum corps. All the civic organizations of the city will be invited to participate in honor of the World war veterans either by turning out or entering floats.

An invitation will be extended to Palestine Commandery No. 6, Knights Templar of this city and to Columbian Commandery of Norwich to parade in full templar regalia.

Thomas E. Donohue commissioner of boxing, has assured General Chairman Dorsey that he will bring some boxers of note to the city for the entertainment of the guests. It is planned to have a number of bouts between local and prominent out-of-town talent to entertain one night together with vaudeville talent of high class.

The tentative plans also include trips to Forts Wright, Michie and Terry and to the submarine base, where it is expected those who desire to may have the privilege of submerging in a submarine.

Already an attempt is being made to have the various merchants contribute to adopt the flag system in the city which is a distinct decorating novelty and inexpensive. The system calls for a small metal socket being installed in front of every store in the main streets of the city and in the sockets are placed tall flag staffs bearing Old Glory. This system when once installed, can be used for years on occasions and is most impressive as has been found in Norwich where merchants have adopted the system through the efforts of Robert O. Fletcher post of that city.

Booklets are now being arranged in handsome portfolio designs, carrying the three days program and line-up of the large parade.

One thing of importance which Colonel Dorsey wished to be known in connection with the parade was that an agreement between State Department Commander Ned White and the committee calls for the starting of the parade promptly at 2 p. m. and positively ended at 4 o'clock. This is important because of the fact that the parade falls upon a Saturday afternoon and by this arrangement the merchants will be left to full hours after the parade.

For one year the Meriden post has been planning to make the trip to New London and from predictions there, the post with its own legion band will be a feature of the parade.

The Mohican hotel will be the official headquarters of the convention, while the meetings will all be held in the armory as will much of the entertainment. Trips are planned to points of interest about the city and in the nearby vicinity.

The convention committee met in New Haven Thursday to go over and make further plans for the big time.

At a meeting held Wednesday night, the John Coleman Prince post elected the following members as delegates to the convention: Commander W. Ray Bliven, Adjutant A. E. St. Germain, and Treasurer Henry S. Dorsey; alternates, John H. Cruise, Senior Vice-Commander Frank Bradford and A. M. Cabral.

$15,000 AUTOMOBILE SUIT WITHDRAWN FROM COURT

The $15,000 damage suit brought by Lycurgus M. Sistare of New London against the Connecticut Co. for damages alleged to have been caused to his automobile and physical and mental injuries to himself, when his machine was struck in New London by a trolley of the company, July 13, 1925, was withdrawn without costs from the superior court docket Friday. It is understood that settlement has been made.

Mr. Sistare was awarded a verdict of $4,500 in the superior court last year and the Connecticut Co. appealed the case to the supreme court of errors, which found error and ordered a retrial.

Mr. Sistare claimed that while driving his Willis-St. Claire car in Broad street near Morgan street, it was struck by a trolley car which rounded a curve at an alleged reckless rate of speed and without proper warning.

WESTERLY PRIEST ADDING FOUR ROOMS TO SCHOOL

A former pastor of St. John's church Montville, Rev. John F. X. Quinn, pastor of St. Michael's parish, Westerly, has announced plans for an addition to St. Michael's Parochial school. Ground was broken this week to make excavations for four new rooms to supplement the six rooms in use up to the present.

The old rooms will be completey renovated and when the fall term opens the parish will have practically an entire new school to care for the children in its jurisdiction.

SUPREME COURT APPEAL AGAINST $6,000 VERDICT

An appeal to the supreme court has been filed with Clerk George E. Parsons by the defendant in the suit of Laura C., wife of E. Frank Morgan of New London, against Robert Smith of Saranac Lake, N. Y.

A jury in the superior court recently gave Mrs. Morgan a verdict for $6,000 damages in her suit against Mr. Smith for injuries in an automobile accident on the Goshen road in Waterford.

WATCH HILL TAILOR SHOP YIELDS SUPPLY OF WET GOODS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., July 3—A successful raid at Watch Hill was conducted Friday night by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown armed with a search warrant and assisted by Officers Robert Kessell, George Madison, Leroy Norman and Fred Ferraro. The tailoring establishment of Leonard Johnson on Bay street was visited and the officers' search was rewarded by the finding of a quantity of wet goods, consisting of whiskey, gin and alcohol, which were taken to the Westerly police station.

Workmen's Compensation.

Two workmen's compensation agreements as follows have been approved by Commissioner J. J. Donohue:

The Connecticut Co., New Haven, employer, and H. F. Savage, 106 Smith avenue, Norwich, employe, wrenched left side in groin, June 20, at rate of $13.

Archibald Torrance, Norwich, employer, and John Niles, 102 Bliss avenue, employe, left leg bruised at cut below knee, later became infected, June 3, at rate of $18.

ALTO AUTO DRIVER RUNS INTO FILLING STATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., July 3—Angelo Bovasso of Alton, R. I., is detained at the Westerly police station on a possible charge of reckless operation of an automobile. The accident which resulted in his detention was caused when, in heavy traffic on Railroad avenue, about 5 o'clock Friday night, automobiles were met going in each direction, near the entrance to the railroad station yard. To avoid hitting an auto, Bovasso drove his new Jewett sedan, 40-420 R. I., onto the sidewalk and bumping a small boy, crashed through the large plate glass window at the side of the Terminal gas filling station, operated by Charles Rathbun. The driver stopped only when the automobile, was in the show window with just the rear end hanging out.

Anthony Bovasso, 27 months old son of Mr. Bovasso, received a cut on the right side of his head and nose, from broken glass of the side door. The forward right mudguard and headlights were broken, forward spring twisted and a spoke broken from the wheel. Other passengers in the automobile, Mrs. Angelo Bovasso, her 7 months old son, Patrick, and the driver's, brother Salvatore Bovasso and wife, escaped with a shaking up and shock.

Albert Vitterido, a 10 year old boy, standing on the sidewalk, was struck a glancing blow in the back, as he jumped and was pulled from the car's path by his 17 1-2 year old half brother, Joseph Meringo, of 35 Railroad avenue.

Following the crash of the breaking glass, Sergeant Michael Curtin and Officer Robert Kessell investigated. The damaged automobile was towed to the Rhode Island garage. The injured boys were taken to the office of Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, who gave them medical attention.

"Chums" Day at the Y. M. C. A.

Today Let Us Honor Those Who Made Possible and Preserved Our Independence

Once more comes the day when business ceases that all may celebrate the anniversary of the signing of that historic document declaring the independence of the United States of America.

Let us pause in our celebration to do honor to these two great American leaders—Washington and Lincoln—to the former for making possible the realization of the Nation's independence and to the latter for the preservation of the unity of the States.

Therefore let us enter into the spirit of Independence Day with our patriotic jubilation tempered with reverence for those to whom we owe so much.

We Will Be Closed Today.

PICKWICK CLUB DISASTER DEATH LIST REACHES 39

Rescue Crews Still Far From End of Their Task In Clearing Away Wreckage of Popular Dance Resort That Collapsed Early Saturday Morning Carrying Over Hundred Fourth of July Merrymakers Down Three Stories To Death And Injury. Many Bodies Buried Under Tangled Mass of Wreckage—Weakening of Structure By Recent Fire And Overcrowding Given As Cause of Catastrophe.

BOSTON, July 5.—(A. P.)—The number of victims known to have lost their lives when a wall of the Pickwick club, all night Chinatown resort, crashed in upon a party of more than 100 dancers early yesterday, grew steadily larger tonight as firemen dug deeper into the mass of wreckage left by the collapse. At midnight 39 bodies had been recovered, 32 of which had been identified. No one knew how many more might be found. Sixteen persons were in hospitals, four of them seriously hurt. Seven of those identified were women.

Sixteen of the bodies were found before 3:30 this morning, about 24 hours after the crash occurred. Two more were uncovered soon afterward and another at 5 o'clock. Sixteen injured were in hospitals. Police and fire department officers refused to estimate the number that might still lie beneath the piles of brick and wood. It has been impossible to check up on the number of merrymakers who rushed to safety through doors and windows when a wall of the old five-story building that housed one of Chinatown's best known all night resorts buckled into the basement.

The Dead.

Mrs. Edith Jordan, 28, Somerville.
John J. Scales, 21, Roxbury, singer in the club cabaret.
Margaret Murphy, 29, Roxbury.
J. Lanzer, alias Serge Penta, 25, Boston.
Carl Paulson, Jr., 28, Roxbury, taxi driver.
Patrolman Paul Halloran, 33, Dorchester.
Stuard Henderson, Milton.
William D. Cochran, 28, Malden.
Frank Tillo, 25, North End boxer.
William J. Grossman, 36, West End.
James F. Glennon, 28, Roxbury, manager of the club.
John J. McLaughlin, 30, South End.
W. H. Marr, 30, U. S. Coast Guard cutter Mojave.
Loretta Keegan, 36, Cambridge.
Edward S. "Neddy" Flanagan, 23, Malden.
Bartholomew O'Donnell, South End.
Margaret "Peggy" Lawson, 27, Brookline.
Mrs. Pauline De Luca, 35, South End.
Frank "Teddy" Vra, South End.

Of the 16 injured at the hospitals, four were in a critical condition while six of the others suffered from broken bones. The other six were suffering from shock, cuts and bruises. Among them was Edward F. Doyle, a fireman who assisted in the rescue work. He suffered a mental breakdown under the stress of the work and it required eight of his comrades to put him in the ambulance.

Benjamin Alexander, Boston.
Joseph Smith, Providence.
Mrs. Dora Stern, 24, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Terry Longobarti, Revere, Mass.
Miss Noxon, New York city.
John Duffy, 30, of Boston, a boxer.
William Murray, 35, West Somerville, Mass.
James Congdon, 45, West End.
Patrick Glavin, 40, Dorchester.

Tonight, as the workers succeeded Arthur M. Graham, address unknown.

Mrs. Della Sullivan, address unknown.

Mrs. Della Sullivan McEachern, Roxbury, address known.

Esther Wilson, Jamaica Plain.

In clearing away much of the material which yesterday was merely turned over, they found more bodies. In the extreme lower level, buried under tons of brick, five modies of men were found. Only a start had been made on this level and the searchers believed that still more would be uncovered.

The number of known dead was later increased to twenty-nine with the finding of five more bodies, three women and two men. Two of the dead previously found were identified as James Congdon, 45, of the West End and Patrick Clavin, 40, a waiter, of the Dorchester district.

One man was shot and three others were arrested as suspicious persons when police found them rifling the cloak room of the Pickwick club today. This room was in the corner of the building left standing and was partially shielded by the falling floors.

William Robinson of Mexico was shot in the arm by a patrolman. The others submitted to arrest without resistance. The men had taken advantage of the confusion at the scene to enter the room from the adjoining building.

The number of identified dead was increased to twenty-two with the identification of the body of Inspector Benjamin Alexander of the police headquarters.

Two revolvers were found in the ruins, one of them a police weapon and thought to have belonged to Alexander.

Further identifications made among the dead were those of Joseph Smith of Providence, Mrs. Dora Stern, 24, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Joseph G. Phanuf, address unknown.

Jacob Rosenberg, another member of the crew of the Mojave, has a fractured back and left leg. Branche Kent, of Wedford, has a fractured spine while Frank Gasaloni and John F. Hofferman have fractured skulls. The physicians have little hope for recovery of any of these.

Lost somewhere in the tons of wreckage was the body of "Ella," her friends said. She was a waitress at the club, a diminituve young girl with a turned up nose and was earning a share of the stake which was to have established her home. Ella turned the club, but kept them as friends. Tues stood about watching the search. Tues sto doabout watching the search. Today when scores of the club's habitues, as the workers succeeded in clearing away the debris, it was "Ella's" name which was mentioned more frequently than any other.

A force of 60 firemen, with an even larger gang of contruction laborers, assisted by two steam shovels began methodically this morning to remove the wreckage. Fresh crews relieved the workers from time to time and the work went ahead rapidly. It was estimated that the debris be cleared some time before dawn. Huge searchlights erected last night again were used.

While the search goes forward, an investigation into the cause of the calamity has been started and will be pushed tomorrow. "Over crowding" in the building weakened by a fire ten weeks ago and flanked by a lot in which a building had been removed to make way for new construction was the only reason assigned today by officials. Meanwhile all other night clubs and resorts of the city have closed pending inspection of their buildings and a theatre and other buildings bordering on that which collapsed have been closed.

The Pickwick club had flourished for more than a year. All classes visited it. Bankers and politicians brought parties there from the theatres and earlier closing dance places theatrical persons, boxers, sporting men and a wide variety of others dropped in frequently.

The club served light meals and much gingerale. Patrons brought their own or bought liquor from bootleggers they met there. An orchestra played for dancing and a cabaret program from just before midnight to three o'clock. On holidays the time was extended.

Admittance was by membership card generally but if the crowd was thin officers of the club would admit the stranger.

Originally the club occupied the first floor of the old Dreyfus building, located in a district with the Chinese restaurants, burlesque theatres and cabarets. The Dreyfus, before prohibition, was famed for its food and liquors. Not long ago the club moved to new quarters up stairs and the first floor was opened as the Greenwich Village Inn, an eating place which lacked the sporting blood of its neighbor. A fire ten weeks ago closed both places and only the Pickwick reopened. The rest of the five-story building was vacant.

ORDERS PROBE TO SET RESPONSIBILITY

BOSTON, July 5.—(A. P.)—Gov. Alvan T. Fuller announced tonight that he had ordered Commissioner of Public Safety Alfred F. Foote to make a complete investigation of the collapse of the Pickwick club building yesterday and to make a report to him tomorrow. Reports on the legal responsibility for the catastrophe has also been requested by the governor from the attorney general and the secretary of state.

BOSTON CHIEF BLAMES COLLAPSSE ON OVERCROWDING

BOSTON, July 5.—(A. P.)—Fire Chief Daniel F. Sennott placed the blame for the collapse of the Pickwick club building here yesterday on the management of the club.

"The building was allowed to become overcrowded," he declared, "and the tremendous weight, combined with the rythmic trend of the dancers was too much for the walls and floors. The fire of a few months ago had nothing to do with the collapse, as the damage from that was confined entirely to the floors above the club."

TWO AUTOS AND TROLLEY CRASH—EIGHT HURT

HARTFORD, July 5.—(AP)—Jammed with incoming picnickers, a Prospect avenue south trolley car and two automobiles, one also in-bound, traveling abreast of the summer type trolley and the other parked at the curb on Farmington avenue, thirty feet east of Flower street, smashed together amid the wildest confusion in front of the Farmington avenue hotel at 8:25 tonight. Eight people, five of them passengers on the in-bound trolley and the other three, occupants of the light automobile which the driver, Joseph Pero, of 441 Ann street, claimed was "pocketed" between the trolley and the parked machine at the curb were injured.

Miss Anna Parnas, of 31 Darling street, East Hartford, was the most seriously injured. With arteries cut in her right leg she was taken to the Mt. Sinai hospital where she was treated. The other injured passengers of the trolley, all riding in the sixth, seventh and eighth seats of the open street car, suffered minor bruises and contusions. They were treated by Dr. Robert B. Garland, police surgeon at the station, where they were brought after the accident by John Moran, the motorman of the wrecked street car.

LINEMAN KILLED WHILE WORKING ON WIRES

NEW HAVEN, July 5.—(AP)—Hugh Mooney, of William street, Bridgeport, an expert high tension lineman employed by the New Haven railroad, was killed here tonight while repairing wires in the railroad cut near the Olive street bridge.

Mooney with other workmen was working on a "dead" wire and in some unexplained manner touched a "live" wire nearby with his hand. Eleven thousand volts of electricity passed through his body, killing him instantly. Mooney fell from the tower upon which the men were working, receiving a compound fracture of the skull.

He had been working for the New Haven railroad for eight years.

Missing Men Found Chained to Tree

Badly Beaten And Near Starving Point They Were Discovered In A Hollow On Signal Mountain Handcuffed and Chained.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 5.—(A. P.)—Dr. W. D. Mason, veterinary surgeon and Lawrence Bowman, who have been the object of a ten days' search by a posse of more than 150 men since their mysterious disappearance in Signal Mountain the night of June 24, were found handcuffed and chained to a tree at 10.30 o'clock this morning by Jim Thomas, mountaineer.

Both men were alive but in serious condition due to their long exposure and insufficient nourishment. They were brought to the city in an ambulance.

Mason and Bowman, after being revived, said that they had been set upon the night of their disappearance by five hooded men, carried off from Dr. Mason's car and chained to a tree. Each night they were blindfolded and removed to another place.

As the two men were found on a spot that had been previously searched by a posse, it was believed that the men were moved each night to a section of the mountain that was searched on the previous day by the posse.

The men were found when Thomas, accompanied by his nine year old grandson, and a German police dog, were seeking dogs that had escaped from his farm. He was amazed, he stated, when he saw Bowman, his face covered with a heavy growth of beard, and thought he was an apparition.

"I first asked him if he was thirsty," Thomas stated. "With an oath, he replied; 'Yes.' I always carry water on my horse, as it is impossible to secure water on the mountain due to the long drought. I fetched him a bottle of water which he grabbed at greedily. I succeeded in twisting it from his frenzied grip after he had taken about three swallows, as I feared the effects might kill him.

"I then turned my attention to Dr. Mason who was lying in a stupor, and Lawrence said he had not spoken all morning. I forced the mouth of the bottle through his lips and allowed the water to go through his teeth.

"Presently he began to show signs of life, and began sucking at the bottle. I let him have about three or four spoonfuls but was afraid to give him any more.

"Leaving my little grandson with the men I rushed off to the nearest telephone. I couldn't find the sheriff's telephone number, so I communicated with Joe Willis' stable, from where ambulances were secured for them.

"I then realized that I shouldn't have left the boy alone for the bandits might have come back and killed him, as well as spirited the men away. However, nothing like this occurred, the men having been frightened away.

"Bowman told me that they usually kept guard over them some distance away. From where I found them a creek run only a short distance away. The sun beat down upon them unmercifully, while gnats, mosquitos and other insects preyed on their bodies.

"Dr. Mason's wrists were badly cut by the handcuffs, which I severed with a saw and file I secured at the home from where I called the ambulances. The handcuffs were fastened to the chain, which was wrapped around the tree. Mason was chained the tightest, it being possible for Bowman to raise himself up on his hands and knees."

ARMY OFFICIALS AGREED ON DEFENSE TEST NEED

WASHINGTON, July 5—(A. P.—Within two months from today, when complete reports of what happened yesterday in the second nation wide defense test muster are received at the war department, a study will be initiated by the general staff to determine how future inventories of America's defenses shall be made.

The question whether national tests shall be held at a fixed date each year as has been the case, or whether the musters shall be divided as to time and by components of the three part army of the United States, already has come to the forefront.

There is no division between army authorities as to the need of some sort of stock taking each year. They unanimously declare that the tests last September and yesterday fully proved their value and that the popular support given them throughout the requests that congress authorize the holding of similar musters every year.

There are those who contend, however, thath since President Coolidge has said the authority of congress must be obtained if the muster is made an annual event, such authorization would be more readily given if sought in the form of divisional or corps area musters, held at various times each year, and not as simultaneous tests of the army as a whole. One handicap that unquestionably caused more concern than any other this year was the selection of July 4. The same difficulty may arise with the next year if a national muster is held, but that obstacle would not be met if localized tests of the army units were authorized.

PASSENGER TRAIN WRECKED NEAR WHEELING

WHEELING, W. Va., July 5.—(AP)—Passenger train number 555, Pennsylvania lines, from Pittsburgh to Wheeling, was derailed at Top Mill, between Wheeling and Warwood, early tonight. The train carried a hundred or more excursionists. The locomotive, tender and baggage car left the rails. First reports said no one was injured seriously.

Reports of the accident said the cause had not been determined.

At the point of derailment, the tracks are about fifty feet from the Ohio river bank. Ties along the right of way were torn up for a distance of several car lengths before the train was stopped.

A wrecking train reached the scene soon after the accident. Traffic into Wheeling will be routed via the Wheeling and Lake Erie at Mingo Junction until repairs are made.

Before his death, the man said someone had kicked him in the mouth, and that for this reason he left the 101 Ranch circus which showed here June 26.

Two Alarm Fire In New Haven

Four Story Business Block Was Destroyed With Loss of $100,000—Two Firemen Overcome By Heat And Smoke.

NEW HAVEN, July 5.—(AP)—A two alarm fire, the origin of which has not been determined, destroyed a large four story block at 437-425 Congress avenue, occupied by the M. L. Stickle pants factory, the D'Orme Chemical company, the Adapta Fabric company and the Eastern Bakers' Supply company, early this morning.

All available fire companies responded to the two alarms, and it was several hours before the fire was out. Because of the intense heat, the firemen were forced to fight the blaze from aerial ladders and adjoining roofs. Two firemen were overcome by the heat and smoke but returned to the fire a short time later.

The loss is estimated at $100,000.

Other concerns which suffered heavy loss in the fire were the Rubber Shop Supply, the Congress Square Billiard Supply company, and the Congress Pool Parlors. All of the concerns lost practically all of their stock and fixtures.

ROYAL WELCOME FOR CAPTAIN AMUNDSEN

OSLO, Norway, July 5.—(AP)—Captain Roald Amundsen, with Lincoln Ellsworth, his American colleague, and the others who accompanied him on his north polar expedition, came to Oslo today in the Seaplane N-25, which they were able to salvage from the polar ice for their return to Spitzbergen. From Spitzbergen the explorers were brought to Horten on the government steamer, Albr W. Selmer, reaching Horten at midnight last night.

The explorers landed at Oslo amid scenes of enthusiasm only comparable to the return of Fridtjof Nansen from the far north in 1906. It seemed as though everyone in Oslo was astir early to throng the approaches of the pier on Pipervik Bay to welcome Norway's national hero, and when, shortly before one o'clock, five seaplanes, coming from Horten, were sighted on the horizon, a tumultous roar went up. Four of the planes withdrew, leaving the new famous polar plane, N-25 with Amundsen and the other explorers on board, to descend alone on the outer bay.

Then the plane was towed for some distance amid the thunder of salutes from the Akershus fortress and the visiting British cruiser squadron and the blowing of sirens and whistles from the craft in the harbor. The party was transferred to a naval sloop and rowed to the pier. Amundsen, Ellsworth and Karl Feucht, one of the mechanicians, wore plain dark suits: Hjalmar Riiser-Larsen and Leif Dietrichsen, the pilots and Oscar Omdahl, mechanician, wore naval uniforms.

All of them received affectionate embraces from Director Thommessen of the Norwegian Aero Club. Loaded with flowers the explorers proceeded to the pavilion where the burgomaster and the president of the Storthing, M. Lykke, delivered addresses of welcome, emphasizing the prestige Norway had gained by the daring of Amundsen and his companions.

Cheers were raised, and Captain Amundsen responded briefly saying he was overwhelmed and that he could not find words with which to voice adequate acknowledgement.

After the welcome at the pavilion, the bands played the national anthem, in which the crowds joined with enthusiasm. The party was then driven in horse carriages to the palace, where King Haakon extended his greetings and conferred decorations on the men.

Afterwards the party drove to the Grand Hotel, traffic all along the way being at a standstill. Captain Amundsen and his companions were compelled to appear on the hotel balcony to acknowledge the cheers of the crowds massed in the square.

The aero club gave a luncheon, at which "The Star Spangled Banner" was played in honor of Ellsworth. In a speech Amundsen paid handsome tribute to the American for the part he had played in the enterprise.

SERIOUS SET BACK ON MOROCCAN FRONT

PARIS, July 5.—(AP)—The ministry of war in an official note issued tonight, admits what is considered a serious setback on the Moroccan front near Taza. Some of the loyal tribes have seceded and the Riffians have succeeded in carrying out the attacks on the French troops through the break thus caused.

The note says: "Certain despatches give a pessimistic aspect to recent events on the eastern end of the Moroccan front in the region of Taza.

"After valiantly resisting persistent attacks by the enemy, certain loyal tribes partially seceded, opening a wide breach in the front line through which the Riffinas passed to attack our regular troops. The latter are now making the best preparations to drive back the enemy and make him pay dearly for his aggression.

"Public opinion ought not to allow itself to be disturbed by such episodes, which are customary in colonial wars."

SET PIECE EXPLODED IN SMALL BOY'S FACE

DANBURY, July 5.—(AP)—Edward Basher, 11 years old, is in the Danbury hospital, probably fatally injured as the result of a Fourth of July accident last night. If he recovers, doctors say, the sight of both eyes will be lost.

The boy had lighted a set piece last night and when it failed to go off, he bent over it to see what the trouble was. The piece exploded in his face. The explosion set fire to fire crackers in the boy's clothing and his garments caught fire. Companions, however, beat out the flames.

FOUR DIE WHEN TRAIN HIT AUTO

NEWARK, N. J., July 5.—(AP)—Four persons were killed here today when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Baltimore and Ohio train at the northern outskirts of the city. The dead are: Katherine Sprague 5, Reibert Sprague, 20; Edith Humphrey, 19; Leora Sprague 7.

RECOMMENDS RESTORATION OF COAL TRADE COMPETITION

Federal Trade Commission In Report To Congress Believes More Effective Competition In Anthracite Industry Would Assure Adequate Supply at Reasonable Cost—Lack of Information Is Great Obstacle To Intelligent Action On the Part of the Public And the Government In Frequent Emergencies In Coal Trade—High Premium Prices At Mines Have Encouraged Excessive Profits.

WASHINGTON, JULY 5—(A. P.)—Re-establishment of more effective competition in the anthracite industry so the present generation may have an adequate supply at reasonable cost has been recommended to congress by the federal trade commission in a report on premium prices of anthracite.

The report, made public tonight, declared that complete restoration of competition in the industry was not only practicable, but preferable to price regulation, often advocated with respect to the anthracite industry.

The report set out in detail the "large degree of success which has accompanied the persistent efforts of the department of justice to disintegrate the anthracite combination," suggested additional steps "which apparently lend to restore the industry to a normal competitive basis," and recommend measures designed to aid in preventing the recurrence of high premium prices in times of actual or anticipated shortages.

"The greatest obstacle to intelligent action on the part of the public and the government in the frequently recurring emergencies in the coal trade," said the report, "is the lack of adequate current information, particularly with regard to prices, costs of production, and profits."

The premium prices of 1923 were the result of an anticipated shortage and a panic demand due largely to general ignorance of the real conditions."

Publication of the facts at that time by the commission assisted in restoring normal conditions in the interstate trade, the report stated, and premium prices and speculation by coal wholesalers began to decline when the commission started its bi-weekly publication of such data.

This experience led the commission to believe that, if the matter was within the legislative power of congress, some federal agency should be directed to assemble and publish current data on production, prices costs, and profits in the industry.

The commission found that 70 per cent. of the anthracite produced annually was mined by eight large companies, which are or recently have been owned or closely affiliated with the railroads, tapping the coal fields while the remaining 30 per cent. was produced by 180 independent companies.

The railroad coal companies were said in the report to have followed a policy of announcing prices periodically, usually about April 1 each year, which did not fluctuate with current changes in supply and demand, while the independent companies did not announce their prices in this manner, but took the highest price obtainable at the time of marketing their product.

Failure of the industry to increase its mining capacity to meet increased demand, the commission asserted, has resulted in establishment of an unduly high price level, and, in times of temporary or threatened shortage, in high premium prices at the mines which have encouraged and facilitated the taking of excessive profits both by wholesalers and retailers.

The high premium prices charged in 1922 were attributed to an actual shortage of coal while in 1923 a merely anticipated shortage, gave opportunity for the high premiums charged by independent operators for a small proportion of the total output. During August, 1923, for example, when the highest railroad coal company price was $5.35 per gross ton, wholesalers reported purchases from independent operators of a considerable tonnage at $14 or more per ton at the mine.

FARMHAND STRUCK BY SPEEDING AUTO

MERIDEN, July 5.—(A. P.)—Two men and a girl lay at the point of death at the Meridan hospital tonight as the result of auto accidents since Friday afternoon.

Struck by a speeding auto as he was walking on East Main street, in the outskirts of the city at 12:15 a. m., today, Steven Conover, 55, farmhand, has a probable fracture of the skull.

Valentine Coleman of Middlefield, was arrested at his home, where the local police traced him, and is being held without bail, pending the outcome of Conover's condition. He is charged with reckless driving and evading responsibility.

Benjamin Meyers, of Bloomfield Hartford, remains in a critical condition and may die. His car was demolished by the 8 a. m., New Haven train in Berlin Saturday.

Miss Agnes McCarthy, of Dorchester, Mass., whose mother and sister were killed in the crash near here Friday is making a courageous struggle for her life, but physicians doubt that she will live. Her father, William McCarthy, shows improvement. The bodies of the mother and daughter were taken to Dorchester Saturday afternoon.

Coroner Eli Mix held a hearing on the fatalities Saturday morning at the conclusion, of which Cosmo Angeletti, of Meriden, operator of one of the three cars involved, was arrested and released on $1,000 bonds. He is charged with reckless driving.

Returning here after an accident in Madison, Saturday afternoon, George F. Toldo found he had injured his knee cap, Mrs. Toldo had a broken collar bone, and their daughter had a severe scalp wound.

There were a total of five arrests for reckless driving here over the week end.

WILL SAIL FROM NOANK FOR NORTHERN VOYAGE

HARTFORD, July 5.—(AP)—Bound for Cape Chudleigh, northernmost tip of the Labrador coast, George G. Williams, of Farmington, will leave Noank this week in the "Nanu," a 34 foot cabin cruiser of the Atlantic sea skip type, which Mr. Williams has had constructed especially for the trip and which will be the first boat of this kind to attempt the voyage through miles of ice-floes and in the heavy seas off this Arctic coast. With Mr. Williams will go two other veteran sailors of northern seas, Captain Charles Janssen, who has sailed with Mr. Williams for twenty-five years, including seven trips of exploration on the Labrador coast, and George Jerrett, of Brigus, Newfoundland, who came to this country in 1923 with Mr. Williams and has been studying electrical engineering in Philadelphia. He has spent all his summers for twenty years at Labrador.

AMUSEMENT PARK DAMAGED BY FIRE

Chicago, July 5.—(AP)—Fire which originated in the shooting gallery of White City, an amusement park here tonight created a brief panic among the crowds of patrons and swept one side of the plage for a loss that may total $50,000. No injuries were reported.

AIRMAN FATALLY HURT WHEN PLANE FELL

MINEOLA, N. Y., July 5.—(AP)—Losing control of his airplane while flying over Curtis Field tonight, Leroy Disbrow, 23, of Richmond Hill, N. Y., fell 800 feet to earth and was fatally injured. Serafin Cirigiano, of Hempstead, N. Y., a passenger, escaped with slight injuries.

LITTLE CHANGE IN VOLUME OF BUSINESS

NEW YORK, July 5.—A. P.)—The transition from the first half of the year to the second found most of the markets in a state of suspended animation, with the business world watching alertly for signs of increased trade activity which are expected to develop during the next six months. Actual statistics showed little change in the evolume of business from previous weeks but certain elements in Wall street were confident that moderate improvement in the stock market foretold a better trade outlook.

No better picture of the satisfactory conditions which have prevailed in the industry for the last six months could have been supplied than the disbursement of almost $428,000,000 in dividends and interest on July 1, breaking all records for mid-year payments.

The needs of funds to make this huge distribtuion unquestionably exerted a strain on the money market, which was manifested by a rise in the rate on call loans to 6 per cent., the highest figure in several years. Coincident with the tightening of the money situation, uneasiness over the California earthquakes caused heavy selling of securities early in the week and temporarily shook business confidence.

The discovery that the disaster was purely local and less severe than at first reported came as a relief to investors in California industries and prices rebounded as quickly as they had fallen. At the same time the return flow of money to Wall street began, swelling the reservoir of reinvestment funds and supplying a large potential purchasing power which was felt in both stock and bond trading and in the market for new offerings.

Favorable crop reports unsettled the grain and cotton markets. The government's forecast of a 1925 cotton crop of 14,339,000 bales indicated the third largest yield in the history of the country. The estimated condition of 78.9 per cent. of normal on June 25, was unexpectedly high and only fractionally below that reported a month before. A break in prices running up to more than $4 a bale, which followed publication of the report, was felt in the textile trade, where buying of cotton goods was retarded.

Operations in the steel industry continued to drift along without much change. Daily pig iron production in June averaged about 6 per cent. less than in May, which in turn showed a 13 per cent. decline from the preceding month. This was interpreted by the weekly steel trade reviews to mean that the adjustment of the output to demand was well advanced. Attempts were made to check the declining tendency of prices.

In the oil industry, the favorable effects of four successive weeks of creasing crude production and record-breaking gasoline consumption were offset partially by the announcement that stock of gasoline in storage increased in May after an April decline.

Railroad freight traffic continued at a high level and for the first six months of the year car loadings stood well over 23,000,000, substantially above the corresponding periods of 1924 and 1923.

NEW YORK WOMAN DIES FROM BURNS

NEW YORK, July 5.—(AP)—A woman was burned so severely that she died and a three-weeks'-old baby was saved after being tossed from a third story window in a fire which consumed a four-story tenement house in West 50th street, today.

WILLIMANTIC

Not as many dollars as usual went up into smoke July Fouth, there being several half-hour lulls during the quiet holiday when nothing more than a few stray cap pistol shots could be heard. Other than an increase in the motor vehicle traffic and the exchange of visitations in households, the day was quietly observed here. There was no evidence of an old fasion bang-up Fourth. While many went to beaches and other resorts a large number went to South Coventry Lake, where the amusement facilities for dancing, boating and bathing furnished at the Lakeside Casino were enjoyed. There was a normal amount of firework displays in the evening. The mishaps were few and of slight consequence.

Mary Lavigne, aged 10, of Carey Hill was treated for a powder burn on her hand by Dr. A. J. Girouard, Dr. F. M. Smith attended to two cases of slight injuries at St. Joseph's Hosoital and one young man suffered the ruin of a new suit of clothes when a rocket-back-fired and peppered the coat and trousers with powder.

Two cases of evasion of responsibility and two of reckless driving will be taken up in the police court this (Monday) morning. One of the cases is the continued one of Richard Haddad of Union street, charged with reckless driving.

Frank Larkham of 26 Spruce street sustained cuts about the face and shoulder, about noon July Fourth, when he started to cross Jackson street and was knocked down by an Overland car owned by Mr. Martineau of Temple street and operated by Charles Deschener of Winter street. Deschener drove on and his identity was not known until evening when he was arrested, following an investigation by the police. Deschener will be charged in police court this morning with evasion of responsibility.

Many attended the July 4th exercises and antique and horrible parade held in Columbia during Saturday with a picnic lunch on the green at noon. In the morning the gathering listened to stirring addresses by Rev. C. C. Haun, Hubert P. Collins and Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch. A Hebron orchestra furnished music for the day. The parade was held at 1:30 o'clock and was one of the most unique witnessed in the community in some time. A baseball game between the married men and single men at 2:30 o'clock was a drawing card. The events were brought to a close in the evening with a beautiful display of fireworks. The program was in charge of a committee from the Grange composed of: Clinton Lewis, chairman, Lucine Hertbequin, Stanley Fields, Helen Fields and Mrs. Elsie Collins.

Oscar Reasenberg of No. 1854 Benson Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., will be in the police court this (Monday) morning to answer to a charge of reckless driving, as the outcome of a collisson of his machine with another on West Main street, Saturday. Reasenberg was coming down the street when he heard a suitcase drop from the running board of his car, where it had been attached. In anxiety he turned around to see what was happening to his luggage and his car struck an automobile parked along the curb.

In observance of July Fourth, the residents of Willington carried their annual old-fashioned program, making the dominant note this year, that of a spirit of fellowship. Early in the forenoon the gathering assemble on Willington Hill and at 10:30 o'clock the musical and song numbers were given. An old fashioned basket dinner was eaten at noon and this was followed by sport events and folk dances on the green. The grounds were splendidly arranged for the events. A refreshment booth was in charge of the Boy Scouts. The Men's Civic Club carried out the celebration under their auspices with George Smith, chairman.

Joseph Bridges of Meriden drove his car off at a good clip, after telescoping the silent policeman at the junction of Bridge on to Main street, Saturday. But someone had taken the number of his car and later in the day he was apprehended by Motorcycle Officer Grant Bombria who notified him to appear in the police court this (Monday) morning to answer to a charge of evasion of responsibility.

The strike at the American Thread Company opens its eighteenth week today (Monday) with conditions remaining at a standstill in the striking ranks. The company, insists, however, that the situation is repairing itself at the plant where employes are at work and more being added each week. Some of these employes are those who never abandoned their jobs, others who have returned since the strike and the majority, people who have been employed through the Lowell, Boston and Providence employment offices of the company. The influx of young girls at the mills from other cities has caused the removal of the detachment of state police officers from the Elms, the company boarding house, to a private tenement, in order to allow room to house the new help. The strikers, about two thousand in number, are still holding firm and following the instructions of national textile organizers sent here to assist in conducting the strike. A large meeting of all the state presidents of the United Textile Workers of America is scheduled to be held here today (Monday) National President Thomas F. McMahon of Providence, presiding. The matter of a general strike throughout the entire system of plants controlled by the American Thread company will be discussed. Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock the Tented City will be officially opened, with an address by William Greene of the American Federation of Labor. There are now about two dozen tents ready for occupancy, by evicted striking families, on the Capen lot, bordering the Natchaug river, on the North Windham road.

Miss Marguerite St. John, formerly of this city, now of Manchester is named as one of the fair entrants in The Herald beauty contest who has a splendid opportunity of being named Miss Manchester.

Principal Exbert A. Case and J. Zaimon S. Hunt of Windham High school have left to take a summer course in advanced studies at Columbia University, N. Y.

St. Peter's School of Liberal and Humane Studies opened Sunday afternoon with services in St. Peter's church, Hebron, conducted by the rector, Rev. T. D. Martin, honorary president of the school. Dean Austin Warren, of Princeton Graduate school, was at the organ. A Choral Eucharist by Marbecke, was given by St. Peter's choir, composed of James Martin, of East Hartford, tenor; Mr. and Mrs. John Morton, of New York, and Misses Marjorie Hough and Clarissa Lord, of Hebron. At the offertory Mrs. Morton sang, "Come Unto Me," in an effective manner. Classes will open this (Monday) morning at 9 o'clock in the Town Library, following matins in the church, with Dr. Benjamin H. Bissell's course in 17th Century Poetry. President Bissell's reception will be held in St. Peter's rectory this (Monday) evening.

Delia A. Robinson, widow of Remus Robinson, died at her home in North Windham, Saturday evening. She was born in North Windham, May 29, 1846, a daughter of Pearl L. and Fannie A. Brown Peck. Her only survivors are several nephews and nieces.

Frank Nycek of lower village was taken into custod, afte ra chase up Jackson street, about three o'clock Sunday morning and held for reckless driving. Nycek was detected driving his Nash touring in a dangerous manner up the thoroughfare and Officers Lariviere and Laramee pursued him in another machine. The man will be presented in police court this (Monday) morning.

The annual Library Tea held on the grounds of the library in Windham Center July Fourth afternoon netted a substantial sum for the benefit of the Library. Refreshments were served in charge of Misses Dorothy Weir and Dorothy Brown. Many old friends of Windham had returned to the village to attend the affair.

The American Legion Post, J. Merly Jones of Hebron put over a sucessful Fourth Night dance in the town hall there.

A Buick car driven by Jeremiah Darby, of Preston, sustained a broken left wheel when struck by a Hudson coach operated by William I. Johnson of 16 Hendrick St. Providence at Thread Mill square here Sunday afternoon. Darb had the right of way and in attempting to slow up his machine, Johnson's foot slipped from the brake and struck the accelerator. The Providence man agreed to settle all damages.

A Ford roadster owned by Albin F. Greene, of Columbia, and a Lafayette coupe driven by Oscar J. Palmer of 181 Main St. Middletown, owned by William L. Truedell of 462 Main St., Middletown, were somewhat damaged, Sunday afternoon, near the trolley terminal on Main street when Greene attempted to turn his car around in the street. The drivers agreed to a settlement of damages.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jacobs and little daughter May Eileen, of Holyoke, Mass., spent the holidays as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar W. Jacobs and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph J. Lussier.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Smith entertained over the week-end the latter's mother, Mrs. Charles S. Parker, of Concord, N. H.

Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones, of Mansfield, is to give one of his interesting illustrated lectures, "Around the World," Wednesday noon next, at the regular meeting of the Exchange club of which he is a member.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Taylor have gone to Westbrook, Me., where Mrs. Taylor will remain for several weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Louis Hills and family.

CAPT. GEORGE W. SHEPARD DIES IN HIS 88TH YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, July 5.—Captain George Webb Shepard, 88, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Harold Merritt, of North Scituate, Mass., July Fourth, in the afternoon. Captain Shepard was born in Moosup, August 13, 1837. Eight years later his family moved to Central Village, later residing for a time in Voluntown, but again returning to Central Village, from where he enlisted as a private in the 21st Regiment at the outbreak of the Civil war, August 9, 1862. The following September he was ranked as sergeant, thence promoted to second and first lieutenant, receiving his captaincy commission in 1863, being an officer in the old Company H. He was honorably discharged on May 1, 1865 and returned to Central Village, where he went into the dry goods and grocery business, abandoning that later to move to Wauregan, where he became overseer in the mill.

August 1, 1907, he came to Willimantic to make his home with the late Jay M. Shepard, who conducted the undertaking parlors taken over at the time of his death by Avery & VanZandt. Shortly after the death of his son in 1923 he went to make his home with his daughter in Scituate. He is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Merritt, a grandson, George W. Merritt, and a grand-daughter, Miss Madeyn Shepard, of this city.

ITALY BUYS VALUABLE HISTORIC DOCUMENT

Rome, July 3. (AP.)—One of the most interesting historical documents of Italy's struggle to free herself from foreign rulers, has been snatched out of the hands of private collectors and purchased on behalf of the Roman Museum of the "Risorgimento" through the personal intercession of Premier Mussolini.

The document is the protest made July 4, 1849, by the Roman Constitutent Assembly "before Italy, before France and before the whole world" against the violent invasion of its headquarters on the Capitol hill. It bears the autographed signatures of nearly all the members of the Assembly from Garibaldi to Mazzini.

WESTERLY

A base of Westerly granite was set last week on Boston Common where, on Lafayette Mall, opposite West street, as a part of the Fourth of July celebration of Boston; Miss Evelyn Cummings, a real descendant of Robert Treat Paine, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, unveiled a model of what the completed monument will look like, next Columbus day, when the finished monument can be viewed. Before that time a honed nine-by-six block of Westerly granite will be placed on the base surmounted by a bas relief granite eagle, also of Westerly granite. On the face of the block will appear a bronze replica of the words of the Declaration of Independence and just above it in bronze a bas relief of the famous painting of that event. A half hour's program followed the unveiling.

Angelo Bovasso, of Alton, was driver of a new Jewett coach, which, Friday night, in traffic congestion on Railroad avenue, near the Westerly station of the New Haven railroad, to avoid hitting another auto was driven upon the sidewalk, striking a 10-year-old boy and crashing into the show window of the Terminal Filling station through the large plate glass show window. He has been given a summons by the Westerly police to appear in the regular session of Third district court, next Friday morning.

John Smith, Mrs. Jeannie L. Smith, and daughters, Misses Jessie L. and Jeannie N. Smith, all of Westerly were members of an automobile party which motored down Cape Cod over the week end, going by way of New Bedford to Provincetown, Mass., and returning home by way of the north shore of the cape and Plymouth, Mass.

At 12 o'clock, midnight, two 52's were sounded on the Westerly fire bell, for a fire within a stone's throw of the fire engine house and caused by a sky rocket sent up on the Fourth of July, but coming down next day to set fire to the wooden shingles on the roof of the house, No. 9 Crafts court, owned by Ernest and Antonio Panciera, and occupied by Mrs. Thomas B. Hartley who was awakened by a fireman.

An automobile collision occurred Fourth of July afternoon about 4:30 o'clock when William Holliday, of 610 Smith street, Providence, R. I., operating an Oldsmobile up Crandall avenue from Pleasant View, struck the Essex car of Costello B. Walker, of 199 Bellview avenue, Mystic, which was on the Shore road, knocking it over on its side and damaging it to such an extent that it had to be towed to the garage. During the accident one of the occupants of the car fainted.

Mrs. H. F. Grieverson and daughters Bettie and Isabelle, of Elmhurst, L. I., are vacation guests of Mrs. John J. Donahue, in Westerly.

"BIBLE AND GUN" SAYS ADMIRAL " BUT DON'T GIVE UP THE GUN"

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., July 5.—National Defense or Muster day was observed in Westerly, July Fourth, with the carrying out of plans as generally laid out by the Defense day committee which was named by the commanding officer of the First Corps area. Many delayed their departure from Westerly for the Fourth of July holiday until the close of the demonstration with the manouvers executed in Wilcox park by Battery E, 243rd C. A. (H. D.) shortly after 11 o'clock.

A short street parade by Battery E, 243rd R. I. C. A. (H. D.), Capt. John F. Dalson commanding, and mustered out over minimum strength, opened the exercises. Other patriotic organizations marched with the artillerymen and line officials were Parade Marshal George E. Leonard, Louis Rossi, H. Russell Burdick and Robert Freestone. The Westerly Band headed the procession. The Willimantic Boy Scout band of 50 pieces was included in the line and the march ended at the Granite street entrance to Wilcox park, where the assembly of 1500 grouped about the bandstand.

George P. Chapman, chairman of the Defense day committee, presented Col. John Champlin, of Westerly, of the program committee. Col. Champlin in outlining the Defense day idea said that in 1873 Westerly was honored by the appointment of the future Rear Admiral Dunn to the Annapolis Naval academy. He was the first young man to be sent by the town to that institution.

Col. Thomas Denny, chief of the ordnance department, Munitions building, Washington, D. C., a Watch Hill cottager, and Major Hector R. Burrows, group assignment officer from the Second Corps area of New York, were also seated on the reviewing stand.

Rear Admiral Herbert O. Dunn, retired, was presented by Col. Champlin.

Admiral Dunn declared that the "crime of unpreparedness is the greatest thing we can learn from the World war. We sent our untrained sons to face an enemy skilled in the art of war and hardened by modern warfare. They went bravely, but like lambs to the slaughter."

"It is a high privilege to be a citizen of the United States, but remember, eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. It is to the young, the coming generation that I appeal. Liberty will not live without support. Had we lost the last war there would have been little liberty to boss of at the present time. Most of the world would be speaking German."

Admiral Dunn declared that rivalry in trade and land-hunger are the two prime causes of all wars and he warned that this rich nation might have war forced upon it.

"The real remedy against agression is thorough and complete preparedness," he emphasized. "Don't be afraid of the cost. We spend more money on chewing gum than it costs to run the navy."

DEATH OF LOUIS A. CELLA, HOST ONCE ABRAHAM LINCOLN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I. July 5.—Westerly lost one of its oldest Italian residents, Saturday afternoon when at 2 o'clock at his home, on Liberty street, Louis A. Cella died after an illness of about two years. Mr. Cella often said that Frank Boletti, who took up his residence in Westerly six months before his arrival, was the first Italian to locate in Westerly, residing on Main street, and that he, himself, was the second to take up his permanent abode here. During his long years of residence here Mr. Cella made several visits to Italy, the last about three years ago. Mr. Cella was known to the residents of his section by his fruit, candy and peanut business. Mr. Cella acquired the title Peanut King when for years he held a peanut stand concession at Kingston Fair.

Born in Genoa, Italy, Feb. 27, 1849, the son of Peleg and Catherine Cella, at the age of six he came to America with his father who with his son followed the armies in the Civil war as a sutler. Journeying through the different camps among the soldiers selling one thing and another, such as cakes one day and fruit the next and traveling in many different towns of the south, they came one stormy night in 1863, to the house occupied by President Abraham Lincoln. The elder Cella directed his son, Louis, to ask the woman of the house, not knowing the identity of the occupants, if they could sleep in the barn. The boy Louis was told to wait and returning the woman told him to call his father and both were taken in and given a hearty supper. A good chat followed with the boss of the house and they were shown to an attic bedroom and then given a good breakfast. The next morning Mr. Cella's father asked, "How much I owe you?" They were told "I guess you both need all you've got," and with that they went about their business. Their host of the evening was Abraham Lincoln.

Mr. Cella returned to Genoa at the age of 19 and there learned the stone mason's trade. He married and with his wife, Nancy Mary, came to the United States and settled in New York city. Going to work in Washington market, he was made foreman of the roasting department for coffee, etc. In five years he went into the fruit business for himself and for his wife's health went to Newport, R. I., for a year, then to Fall River for nine months and Bristol for six months. On the advice of a traveling salesman he moved to Westerly in 1879; he had a fruit push cart on the Pawcatuck river bridge, then went to a stand in front of the Briggs building, followed by the occupancy of a store in the Krebs block now occupied by the Boston market.

In 1886 he built the present building at 9 Liberty street and after occupying the store in it for about 36 years retired from business three years ago having conducted a saloon and fruit store while living there. He is survived by two younger brothers, Peter of New York, retired, and Christopher, who resides on a farm near Genoa, Italy.

Following are the children of Mr. Cella: John P. Cella, Manuel, George P., Frank, Amelia (Mrs. Michael Bray), all residents of Pawcatuck; Laura (Mrs. William Carney), of Easton, Pa., Nellie (Mrs. George Fagan) of Plainfield, N. J., Louis C. J. Cella, of New York, William D., deceased and Lee A. L. Cella of Pawcatuck.

DR. FRANK I. PAYNE IS CRITICALLY ILL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., July 5.—Dr. Frank I. Payne, of Westerly, formerly of Norwich, is reported to be in a critical condition at his home on Granite street.

RULES FOR YOUNG WRITERS

1.—Write plainly on one side of the paper.

2.—Use pen and ink, not pencil.

3.—Short and pointed articles will be given preference. Do not use over 350 words.

4.—Original stories or letters only will be used.

5.—Write your name, age and address plainly at the bottom of the story.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

The Rhinoceros Viper

From any form of snake I shrink,
When through the woods I see him slink.
Though he be brown, or black as ink,
Of green or mauve or mottled.
I always gaze, alike askance,
On cobra, rattler, fer-de-lance,
I'll not feel safe by any chance
Till all the breed is throttled.

Dame Nature, I have read, adorns
The head of one dread snake with horns,
Long, sharp ones, like a unicorn's,
So when his venom misses
The victims he would fain destroy,
These weapons he can straight employ—
The while he vents his brutal joy
With loud and raucous hisses.

The mildest snake is full of spite.
He forks his tongue and tries to bite;
The while a frown of fierce delight
Reposes on his forehead.
But when a snake has horns as well
As fangs where lethal poisons dwell,
No fiend in Mr. Dante's hell
Can be so truly horrid.

I see this monster in my dreams,
His eyes alight with baleful gleams—
A keen and ardent hatred seems
To mark his every feature.
A snake with fangs is bad enough
But adding horns was much too rough,
Old Nature overdid her stuff
When she produced this creature!

—James J. Montague.

The Bird's Story

Do you know what a little bird told me today?
I'd never have dreamed it, my lad,
That a brave, manly fellow would throw clear away
His courage and manliness, even in play—
But a little bird told me you had.

A little bird told me a story that's true—
He told me, although he was dead,
How his body was crushed by a stone that you threw,
At first I could hardly believe it of you,
But that's what a little bird said.

But the little bird thought, if I once made it plain
How nothing is noble or bright
That makes any creature feel sorrow or pain,
You'd promise me never to do it again.
Now tell me, my boy, was he right?

—Roy Temple House.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Have you ever wondered how little birds learn to sing and why it is that birds have many kinds of songs? The study of birds and their habits is a most interesting one and if you should study about their singing you would learn many interesting things.

Many people think that birds just grow up and sing without being taught, just as seals take to the water by nature. This is not true for baby birds are taught to sing and baby seals make a great fuss about going into the water when young just as small children object to a bath.

Little birds are born with voices just like children are born with voices, but they must be taught to use them. The baby bird has no knowledge of song. A chicken brought up alone learns to chirp and no baby chicken ever grew up and quacked like a duck. Strange to say however little song birds learn to sing by being taught.

A linnet placed in a skylark's nest learn the song of the male skylark and does not know the song of the linnet. Other linnets brought up with woodlarks learn the song of the woodlark. When grown up and placed with other linnets they continue the song learned in their cradle.

All birds do not do this however for the young cuckoo does not do this. The mother cuckoo lays her eggs in many birds nests but the baby cuckoo never copies the songs of the birds who rear it. The young canary learns to sing like other birds but yet his song is that of the canary, perhaps not so sweet as the trained canary but never the less a separate and distinct canary song.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Queen Esther's Grave

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to your page in the Norwich Bulletin.

I live on a farm of 80 acres along the west bank of the Thames river. My great, great grandfather bought the land from the Indians at Mohegan. He had to buy it in small sections, so it did not all join.

I wonder how many know where Queen Esther, who was Uncas' wife, is buried? She is buried close beside a stone wall on the Senator Brandegee estate farm at Massapeag, and has nothing but a small stone from the wall to mark her grave.

We never plow on land without finding arrow-heads, and on our land there used to be a big pile of oyster shells where the Indians opened the oysters that they took from the river.

Massapeag means A good place for fishing.

We are enjoying our school vacation now, and when it opens in September I will be in the seventh grade. I am 11 years old.

The JUDGES' CRDLU—

The Judges' Cave

Dear Uncle Jed: Last summer when I went to New Haven, my aunt, some of her friends, and I went to Westrock. When we got there we saw the Judges' Cave.

In the olden days three judges did a wrong deed to their king. In order to escape punishment they hid in the cave. Their names are Dixwell, Whlenoy and Whaley. There are three avenues in New Haven named after the three men.

EARLE CHANDLER, Age 11.

An Auto Ride

Dear Uncle Jed: Last Sunday my uncle took us for a nice long auto ride. We went through New London to Saybrook and up as far as Hadlyme where we crossed the Connecticut river on a ferry.

We were afraid to go across at first but when we were about half over we began to wish the river was much wider. From the ferry we saw a stone castle and we would have liked very much to have gone into it but could not.

From Hadlyme we went to the Devil's Hop Yard which is now known as the connecticut Sstate park. Here we had our lunch and saw the beautiful water falls.

Later we went to Colchester, through Fitchville, to Norwich. We had a very pleasant trip and saw a turtle, two gray squirrels and a woodchuck. I hope all the Wide Awakes will enjoy my story.

MARJORIE HILL, Age, 9.
Norwich.

My Dog

Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you something about my dog. She is brown and white and we call her Nellie. She is a very good dog. I give her a bath every day. When anybody comes in my house the dog runs after them and barks. When I come in the house she jumps and runs all over the beds. This is my second story and I hope to succeed.

MARLOUISE RAYMOND, Age 11.
Jewett City.

The Boat Race

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you and I am going to tell you about the boat race. I went with my uncle in an auto. We first went up on a high hill and sat for a long time and then we came down near a fence and saw the race. Yale and Harvard were the crews. There were a great many yachts on the river and three aeroplanes flying up in the sky and one came so close that we could see the man in it. Yale won the race. After it was over we had a lunch. Then we went home.

JESSIE HILL, Age 10.
Norwich.

Fruit

Uncle Jed: Fruit is the part of a plant which ripens with the seeds and either incloses them or bears them upon its surface.

In common usage, a fruit differs from a vegetable in being the product of any plant, herb, shrub or the tree having a decided flavor and generally being eaten raw as a dessert.

Fruits are classified according to their sex as follows: simple, when they arise from a single simple pistil, as the peach; aggregate, when a cluster of simple pistils have ripened in a mass, such as the raspberry; multiple, when formed from several consolidated flowers, as the pineapple.

In regard to texture, fruits are classified as fleshy, drupes or stone fruits, and dry fruits. Fleshy fruits are subdivided into the berry, the pepo, of which the melon is an example, and the pome, or applelike fruits. Stone fruits have hardened centers surrounded by juicy coverings. Dry fruits are grains, nuts, pods, key fruits and capsules.

The production of new and choice fruit with better flavors and fewer inedible parts is becoming one of the chief tims of the horticulturists of the United States.

A Picnic

Dear Uncle Jed: Last Saturday a few girls and I went on a picnic. We played games and then had our lunch. After we had our lunch my brother and a few other boys came and bothered us. We did not think it was very nice of them. They made so much noise that a man came and chased us. We took our things home and we found that it was some one we knew. He was just trying to frighten us. I hope that all the Wide Awakes will enjoy reading my story.

MILDRED E. BRODEUR, Age 10.
Norwich.

Physical Culture

Dear Uncle Jed: Physical culture is the art of caring for the body in order that it may carry out efficiently the will and the commands of the mind. The two go together very closely, so that a sound mind usually lives in a sound body. The healthy body is much less liable to disease, and is happier not only for its owner, but also for other people to live with. A healthy body must be kept clean, outside by a daily bath and tooth brush drill, inside by drinking plenty of fresh pure water. Take some brisk outdoor exercise every day, and sleep with your window wide open, winter and summer. Learn to stand and sit erect, you will look better, and give your lungs more chance to breathe deeply.

Watch what you eat. Learn what foods are necessary for good health, and eat them. Don't eat too much. Most Americans overeat. Meals should be simple, not many different things at one time, but well cooked and served. Eat plenty of fruits and vegetables and chew the latter well. Vegetables are digested chiefly by the mouth juices, so see that they get plenty. Go light on sweets, though a little pure candy is good for you, unless you are too fat, or if it is very hot weather. Sugar makes heat. Leave coffee, tea and chocolate alone until you are 21 but a pint of milk a day is a very necessary food. Make your will master of your body, not your body master of our will, if you would live a happy and useful life. Play hard and work hard, love your neighbor as yourself, and don't worry. I will close for this time with greetings to Uncle Jed and all the little Wide Awakes.

EMMA I. ROODE, Age 13.
Voluntown.

My Trip to Stone Hill

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write and tell you about my trip to Stone Hill. One day my uncle and aunt took me on a trip to see my uncle's mother. It was in the spring and every thing was beginning to look nice and green and trees were leaving out. We saw a few wild flowers but as we were riding we could not see as much as if we had walked. When we got to uncle's mother's house we had lunch. I was very glad as I was hungry. I ran around the place and gave the little chicks some feed. I like farms as you can have chickens, ducks and everything. I hope you will like my story.

EDITH MILLIARD, Age 9.
Jewett City.

A Visit to Grandma

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write about my visit to my grandma I was out in the yard. A quail came to the tree over my head and whistled. He stayed in the tree a long time before he flew away. He was so pretty and tame. Then I saw a flock of pheasants and we all watched them until they flew away. They were so tame they did not mind us at all. My brother and I are having a good time on the farm.

HAROLD GEER, Age 9.

The Birthday Party

Dear Uncle Jed: You might be interested how I spend my vacation time. I get up late in the morning play the whole day outdoors, and breath all the fresh air I can. Today I was up to a birthday party, where I met all my friends. We had a jolly time.

My birthday is in August and I hope to get many presents. Rest of all I wish to get a fountain pen.

My father promised one, for which I will be thankful.

Yours with best wishes.

ROSE BERNSTEIN, Age 8.

Three Little Kittens

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about three little kittens.

One day we went on a picnic near a swamp. While we were eating we heard our dog bark. He had found three little kittens. One was all black and the other two were black and had white paws and white chests. We gave them some milk and they did not know how to drink it. We put their noses in it and they licked it off. Then they drank the rest of the milk.

When we were going home my sister put them where she found them. Then we went home.

VIRGINIA TUBBS, Age 7.
Fort Point.

To the Beach

Dear Uncle Jed: Last Sunday about 11 o'clock another family came and took us to the beach. We went in bathing. I tried to swim but I could not, so I sat down in the sand. Pretty soon my mother told me to get dressed, after I got dressed I had my supper. Then we went home. I hope that all the Wide Awakes will enjoy reading my story.

ANNA F. PEDACE, Age 8.
Norwich.

My Kitten

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to tell you this time about my kitten. It is a male cat. His name is Toby. I like him very much. My uncle got him in Norwich Town and gave him to my mother. Every morning when my father gets up to build the fire he will cry to come in. Then he will cry to come into my bed room and then my father will let him in. If we are asleep he will lick our eyes with his tongue until we wake up. After he wakes my sister and I up he will go out. He is a very good hunter for only two months and a week old. Rusty, my other cat got killed by an automobile. I felt very sorry too. This makes the fourth yellow kitten we have had. He is a yellow kitten.

DOROTHY PATRIDGE, Age 12.
Norwich.

Betty

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing you anpther story as follows: One night last month I got a telephone call from my sister-in-law, and she asked me if I wanted a pet. I am very fond of animals, so told her that I would take it. When she told me that it was a nice dog. The next Sunday, my friend and the rest of my folks went to Massachusetts to visit, and also to bring back the dog.

Her name is Betty. She is a shepherd, and the color of her hair is tawny and white. She will shake hands, and I am going to teach her some other tricks.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The verdict is about unanimous that Danielson had the quietest night before the Fourth in its history. For a half dozen years past the fact has been chronicled after each observance of the anniversary of independence that it was no longer difficult to keep Young America in bounds. Sad as it may seem, youth appears to have lost interest in the significance of the day, not that it is necessary that one make a tremendous noise to assert one's patriotism, but because, on the other hand, youth today appears to flutter inward the frivolous and the froth of life at the slightest mention of a national holiday. Youth did that this year. Youth has done it for several years past—hereabouts, anyway. Even the kidies went to bed early Friday night, apparently perfectly content to rest comfortably, and let tomorrow take care of itself. Chief John McFarland said Sunday morning that his special officers might as well have been dispensed with—there was not a thing for them to do. The world has not been the same since the World War. Cynicism has replaced enthusiasm. An apathetic chill is prevalent. For many it is an effort to wiggle a finger in recognition of things that have been sacred patriotically for more than a century. Essentially wrong as this may be, no one seems to know the real answer why, though a thousand will give you their own personal versions and assert they are right.

A death from pneumonia—that of Albert J. Chenail, 44, Sunday morning—is an unusual feature of the local news this morning. Mr. Chenail, a semi-invalid for years, passed away at his home on Water street. He was a native of Canada and worked in mills here and hereabouts during his active years. He leaves four children. Mrs. Chenail died a number of years ago.

William S. Brown, of the Shepard hill farm, was proud Sunday over the fact that a cow numbered in his herd of pure bred Holsteins has just completed an official test showing butter fat of 6.7 per cent. Mr. Brown also has a cw in his herd—a two year old—that has given 20,000 pounds of milk during a period of one year.

Mr. Brown is one of the farmers of Windham county who during the past few years have spent much money and great energy in an effort to improve the county's dairy herds and make it as far as is in their power, the finest dairy section of Connecticut.

Over the holiday period Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kennedy have been entertaining Mrs. Barbara Yahn of Schenectady, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Head and members of their family, coming here from Winsted, were guests over the holiday period of Michael Head and family of Academy street.

Not one arrest was made in Danielson over the holiday perid.

Street cleaners have a special job in clearing streets of the remnants of fireworks set off on the evening of the Fourth.

Henry C. Lehman of Pawtucket, was a visitor with friends in Danielson over the holiday period.

Another hot wave appeared to be developing Sunday afternoon, when the temperature climbed to 95 degrees in the sun, here in Danielson.

Sunday morning, the body of Mrs. Valerie Cyr Trudeau, who died suddenly Friday evening at her Outremont residence in Monrteal, was received at Worcester by L. E. Kennedy and brought by motor hearse to the home of her sister, Mrs. Moses Chartier, on the West Side. There during Sunday afternoon and Sunday evening large numbers of relatives and friends of the deceased for a life time called to pay a tribute of respect. The unexpectedness of Mrs. Trudeau's death really shocked hundreds who knew her hereabouts and who knew of her departure, during June, apparently in excellent health, for her Outremont

PUTNAM

Armand Hebert, a Goodyear youth, while wrestling with a companion Saturday was thrown and struck, the ground in such a way that his arm was broken. He was taken to the Day Kimball hospital for treatment.

Miss Edith C. Bowen, for seventeen years bookkeeper for the John A. Dady corporation, and since the illness of Mr. Dady, assistant treasurer, has tendered her resignation to the corporation, completing her services Saturday.

F. B. Christmas and family, of Center street, left Saturday for ten days' vacation, which will include a trip by motor through Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Mr. and Mrs. John Moss and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Keith with the children of both families have returned from a two weeks' visit to Juniper Point, Maine.

The weather Saturday was not Fourth of Julyish. The day was cloudy and unpleasantly cold and rain fell in the late afternoon and evening, but it is estimated that one-fourth of the population went by automobile to some beach resort. There was no public celebration of any kind and aside from the explosives and fireworks there was nothing to indicate the nature of the day. Beginning the afternoon before, Putnam probably saw the greatest number of automobiles during the following thirty-six hours that ever passed through the city in that period of time, but so far as known there were no accidents. The factories, stores and banks all closed for the day.

Two of the churches had picnics. The First Baptist church had its annual outing at Roseland park, with what is said to have been the largest attendance in the annals of the church. The Methodist church had an enjoyable picnic, together with the North Grosvenordale church, at Green's grove at Quadic pond.

Many parents and friends of the boys who are at the Y. M. C. A. camp at Black Pond spent the afternoon with them.

But little has been learned about Irving Wood, of Boston, who died June 21, leaving bequests to the Day Kimball hospital of this city, the Backus hospital of Norwich and City hospital of Worcester, Mass., estimated at $250,000 each.

All that is known by the trustees of the Day Kimball hospital is what they have learned from the newspaper story. The trustees hold a meeting this week when it is expected they will take steps to investigate the matter. That the hospital is named as a beneficiary under the will of Mr. Wood is undoubted, but the amount of the bequest is uncertain. The amount can not be known until the estate is inventoried. Mr. Wood's fortune has been estimated as about a million dollars.

The will was drawn by Attorney George Stobbs, of Worcester, Mass., formerly of Webster and well known in Putnam. The United States Trust company, of Boston, is named as trustee. It is said that there will be no contest over the will as drawn.

Mr. Wood was 81 years old when he died. His youth was spent in Webster where his father kept a grocery, but he left there fifty years ago. He visited the Woodstocks frequently while in Webster and kept up these

A Grave Folly

Some Beauty Seekers May Be Practicing

In "removing" germs, no toilet soap is more effective than Palmolive

THIS is published in your interest, for the good of all concerned, to protect beauty seekers from some grave mistakes. Ordinary soaps may be used on precious complexions in ignorance of the truth.

There's an idea, we are told, that some soaps combat germs; and others not. That for aseptic reasons certain soaps must be used.

Soaps to "destroy" germs should be used only on advice of a physician. All soaps "remove" germs to a certain degree. No soap suitable for toilet use will "remove" germs any better than Palmolive.

The true difference in soaps is in their effect upon your skin. So, for your own sake, remember this when you purchase soap. Good complexions are too priceless for experiment.

In old days, women were told, "use no soap on your faces." For soaps were too harsh. Then Palmolive came. A soap made of cosmetic oils. A soap made to be used lavishly on the skin.

Then note what happened. Women tried it and found amazing new complexions and charm. Palmolive became quickly the leading toilet soap of the world. In France, home of cosmetics, Palmolive is one of the two largest selling toilet soaps. French soaps are being supplanted by Palmolive.

That is because Palmolive Soap is a unique creation based on 60 years of soap study. A scientific soap made for ONE purpose only: to foster good complexions.

Don't expect Palmolive results from ordinary soaps. Don't expect them from medicated soaps. Even genuine castile failed in bringing them. Certainly no ordinary soap can. Protect your skin's beauty by using a soap made to protect it.

Palmolive is not the only good complexion soap. We know of two others that compare favorably. But they cost you 25 cents, while Palmolive costs but 10 cents ... no more than ordinary soaps. Enormous production brings you this modest price.

Wash, launder, cleanse with any soap you wish. But when beauty is at stake, take care. Use Palmolive, a soap you know is safe to use. It is nature's formula to "Keep That Schoolgirl Complexion."

THE PALMOLIVE COMPANY
(Del. Corp.)

No "Many-Purpose" Soap Will Bring Palmolive Complexion Results

Palmolive Soap is made for ONE purpose ONLY—to guard your youthful charm. It is not intended for laundry use, nor even for fine fabrics. To make it good for those things, its cosmetic qualities would need be much reduced. And good complexions are too precious to be thus imperiled.

Don't expect Palmolive results from common soaps. Don't expect them from "jack-of-all-trades" soaps—soaps claiming to be good for scores of different uses. Palmolive is a secret blend of rare cosmetic oils, a scientific soap to be used freely and safely on the skin—millions of clear, pretty skins prove Palmolive results.

Soap from Trees

The only oils in Palmolive Soap are the soothing beauty oils from the olive tree, the African palm and the coconut palm—and no other fats whatsoever.

That is why Palmolive Soap is the natural color that it is—for palm and olive oils, nothing else, give Palmolive its green color!

The only secret to Palmolive is its exclusive blend—and that is one of the world's priceless beauty secrets.

Note carefully the name and wrapper. Palmolive is never sold unwrapped.

SPEAKING TO EUROPE

What President Coolidge had to say on the occasion of his address at Cambridge shows that this government is not departing from its policy of keeping free from European affairs. He took occasion to urge upon the countries of Europe the importance of peace, and to give his endorsement to the desirability of insuring it through the signing of security pacts. He showed his approval of such a plan by stating that it had the moral support of this government.

That doesn't mean, of course, that this country is going to step in and see that these security pacts are lived up to. It doesn't mean that we are going to act as an enforcement agent or that we are going to punish those who break their promises. It is a support of the desirability of coming to a mutual understanding regarding conditions and endeavoring not only to respect the rights of others but to provide the co-operation that is necessary to keep peace.

When the president indicates the desirability of having differences adjusted through "arbitration or by the forms of judicial determination," he voices only what has been urged before and what has been put into practice in behalf of others. Peace through Justice may be something new to Europe but it may well get serious consideration. None more than the countries of Europe, which have gone through the devastating effects of so many wars, should be anxious to put such a plan into effect. It represents a new deal in that part of the world, where it is not so easy to break away from deep-rutted habits and practices.

It is, however, during the period of reconstruction abroad that this should get the most serious consideration. The fact that the president has said such a move would have the moral support of this government cannot be regarded as other than beneficial among the European countries. Giving our moral support pledges no action. The knowledge of what carries the endorsement of the nation, which weighs so heavily with other countries, cannot fail to serve as a valuable support in behalf of peace.

TALKING THROUGH THE AIR

We speed along with each day presenting something new. It was not so many years ago that there was no communicating by wire. Then came the telegraph, afterward the telephone and then came the communication over long distances by wireless. Today the radio is to be found in a great many homes by which communications are received through the air from long distances as a means of entertainment and instruction.

Within this month reference has been made to wireless telephony between ocean going vessels. Such communication is not a new discovery but it is being put into use where it has not existed before. Most of the ocean going vessels, including the tramps are equipped with wireless in these days, it being necessary for the passenger carrying ships to have such a safeguard, and yet there is no telling how soon these same lines will find it necessary or desirable to have wireless telephones ready for the use of all those aboard who may want to use them.

Are we getting to the time when the seclusion of the ocean voyage is to be ended? There are those who think the trip to sea about the only way of getting free from the cares and bustle of every day life, but now it would seem as if that was to be eliminated. With vessels equipped with wireless telephones all that will be necessary will be to know the plans of the other fellow and he can be called at sea as well as at his office. There may be the same resort to "line's busy," "no answer," and many other answers, but going on an ocean trip will not necessarily prevent being called out of bed or being interrupted at dinner or during a snooze on deck.

The advantages which such a means of communication indicate, and the disadvantages which may be imagined, are in keeping with the progress that is being made by science and the readiness with which such developments are seized upon for the accommodation of the great mass of people who are looking for additional service. With the ocean voyages subject to telephone calls the polar regions may not even be immune from communications should you go properly equipped.

THE AFTER EFFECT

"It's an ill wind that doesn't blow somebody good" is an old saying that has wide application. It has been subjected to tests of various kinds and in accordance with the view that is given to trouble, storm or disaster is found to be true in many instances.

It can be appreciate of course that trouble, accidents and disasters invariably teach their lessons. It may not be possible to correct all the conditions leading up to them and it may not be possible to prevent all of them, but steps can be and are taken for overcoming conditions of the past which have been found to be defective and dangerous.

It did not seem so at the time but repeated are the instances when great fires, earthquakes and catastrophes have resulted in the institution of greater care and marked reforms. Such changes might never had been brought about but for some such underlying cause. Certainly no one would advocate that method of getting action for the relief of ills, but when such things have happened it is unfortunate if there is not the disposition to make the best of them and so govern future action as to endeavor to escape part at least of the trouble henceforth.

It can be recalled what Chicago did following its big fire, what San Francisco did after its terrible earthquake, what Japan is doing in reconstruction work after its frightful experience. It is also known what certain sections of this country do for the purpose of applying safeguards in case of severe windstorms and tornadoes. All of these things will be taken into consideration during the reconstruction of Santa Barbara as far as they are applicable. Certain of its own problems must be met according to the best knowledge of architects and builders, who have had the chance to note how similar things have been handled elsewhere.

Santa Barbara stands as good a chance of being better than ever as any other community, although the shaking which it has been receiving since the destructive quake doesn't serve to inspire confidence among the tenderfeet.

CUTTING THE DEBT

Cutting down the national debt is a process that has been going on with that persistency which calls for enthusiasm from all who make note of it. With the closing of the fiscal year June 30 the total was just over $20,-500,000,000, which represents a cut of $734,000,000 during that year. That doesn't mean that the whole debt is going to be wiped out in a few years, even if that rate of reduction was continued, but it shows excellent progress. The reduction was brought about from the moneys intended for that purpose and the $250,000,000 surplus at the end of the year, which surplus developed from the economies which have been practiced and the increase in revenue over the estimate receipts.

Such a reduction in the national debt means an appreciable reduction in the annual interest account, for when debt reduction wipes out the necessity of paying $30,000,000 in interest it means just that much less for the taxpayers to provide and hastens the day when the indebtedness will cease to be a burden.

It is possible of course for the quarter of a million to be devoted to the direct reduction of taxation, in addition to the expected economies. That would mean the payment of interest over a long period of years, instead of getting it out of the way as soon as possible, and by the general nature of things it would mean passing the debt payment along to taxpayers for a much longer term of years.

Having cut the national debt to the present point through the means under the control of the government the country has gotten the benefit of the keen financial advice and guidance of Secretary Mellon of the treasury department for which it cannot show too much appreciation.

LEAVING NICARAGUA

News that the American marines will leave Nicaragua in another month is cause for gratification.

There is always satisfaction when our forces are withdrawn from foreign territory and all the more so when there goes with it the strong indications, as in this case, that conditions have been made better because of their presence and the outlook is for continued peace in the future.

Sent into Nicaragua for the purpose of protecting the American legation they have been there for more than a dozen years. They have had the effect of reducing disorder and producing an attitude more responsive to peaceful methods and sane government. They have rendered a highly valuable service to Nicaragua, where it is pleasing to note there is now the feeling that the moral support given to the government through their presence is no longer needed.

It is certainly to be hoped that the situation is as promising as pictured. It has been unfortunate that certain of the small republics have been torn by the methods which have been followed. To have kept out of them would have been the desire of this government. Only necessity called us to action in the interest of protection. We sought nothing else and have gained nothing else and if the wish of this government were to be fulfilled conditions there in the future would be such as to never call for their presence there again. It will be a happy day when the Latin republics can be brought to the point of settling their differences by ballots instead of bullets and adhering to constitutional government.

EDITORIAL NOTES

An earthquake by any other name is just as unpopular.

The man on the corner says: Those who complain of the cold may be soon satisfied.

Firecrackers and fireworks are just as painful and injurious as they ever were unless used with care.

It is to be hoped that interest in the dictionary will not wane just because the crossword puzzle are not being tackled as feverishly as during the winter.

The good results achieved during the school year are pretty well understood just now. Interest now centers on the results to be gained from the long vacation.

Naugatuck in rejecting a city manager form of government apparently believes that good government rests with the men elected rather than the form under which they do business.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Corks can be made acid-proof by soaking in hot paraffin.

Stir cereals with a silver fork and they will not become pasty.

Iodine stains can be removed from fabrics by soaking the articles in lime water.

Line your garbage can with newspapers and the cleaning task will not be so distasteful.

A cloth dampened in vinegar wrapped around the cheese will prevent it becoming moldy.

Melted paraffin poured over the top of paint will prevent its hardening.

Knitted silk underwear should be pulled and stretched by hand, never ironed.

Hunger will keep one awake, but it is more often the midnight lunch that does the trick.

A discarded shaving brush is excellent to dust the phonograph records. Keep one handy with the records.

Close the piano in damp days.

The tea ball is excellent to hold the spices during the canning season.

Tungsten lamps give twice as much light for the same power as carbon lamps.

Never put cucumbers in the refrigerator after they have been sliced. The odor will go through the entire ice chest.

Fruit salad may be purchased already prepared. It may be served one day as a salad and what is left over used the next day in gelatin dessert.

In choosing papers for either walls or ceiling avoid shiny, smooth surfaces. Such paper holds no light, softens no reflection and is hard.

Heads of cabbage may be kept several days by first wrapping in a wet cloth and then in several thicknesses of newspapers. Do not let the cloth become dry.

WHEN LINOLEUM GROWS OLD

When holes begin to appear in the linoleum that has been down for a number of years, try pouring hot paraffin into them and pressing it down evenly with a knife until it cools evenly. It will prevent further tears, as the heels will not catch in the holes and the paraffin will show surprisingly little.

BRIGHTEN BEDROOM

One need not go to great expense to have an attractive bedroom, for one or two chairs covered with slips of green glazed chintz which has small flower motifs and a flat, low dressing table draped with the same material will do much toward improving the appearance of a room. Boudoir lamps of crystal with long facets are in keeping with the general effect.

FORETHOUGHT

One housewife who packs her husbands lunch frequently makes her pies in the form of tarts or tiny pies baked in ramekins. Then the following day one or two of these delicious dainties can be packed in hubby's lunch.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

To correct enlarged pores in the nose apply a paste made of equal parts of oatmeal, glycerin and lemon juice. Wash off after five minutes.

Do you trim your toenails straight across? If you do, you are doing the right thing. Only ballet or toe dancers' nails should be cut at the corners. If you trim the toenails squarely across you are not apt to be afflicted with ingrown toenails. Round-toed shoes and well-fitting stockings are other preventives of this complaint.

To massage the nose, place the first and second fingers on the bridge and press and gently knead the flesh with the thumb of the same hand. A rotary, pinching massage between thumb and forefinger will help reduce a fleshy, spreading nose.

Scientists have recently discovered that every one should get a minute quantity of iodine regularly through his food. This has given rise to a series of analyses and experiments which have resulted in canned spinach being put on the lists with those foods recommended for iodine. Spinach is rich also in vitamins.

TO WRING HOT CLOTHS

When hot cloths are needed in cases of illness, an easy way to do them without burning the hands is to hold an end of cloth in each hand and dip the rest of it in the boiling water. Then quickly twist the cloth at the ends in opposite directions.

CONCERINING CUT GLASS

Never take chances with cut glass, such as rinsing it under the running faucet. Breakage is due to sudden changes in temperature and care must be taken that the water is neither too hot nor too cold. Tepid water and ammonia bring best results. Dry with a Turkish towel, so all crevices can be reached and polished.

TO CLEAN SLIVERWARE

We are all glad of easier methods of cleaning silver during the summer months. Dissolve a handful of baking soda in a pan of water, put in silverware and boil until the tarnish will wash off in soapy water. Dry and polish.

VOGUE FOR YARN FLOWERS

An artistic adornment which requires little skill or ingenuity to make is the hooked yarn flower. These flowers are worn on ensemble or tailored suits or used as decoration on knitted shawls, scarfs, sweaters and even on pillows and hangings.

JUST A THOUGHT

Black glass vases and bowls are very fashionable at present, and one woman tells me she gave a clear glass vase of hers a coat of black enamel and it turned out beautifully and is much admired.

DICTATES OF FASHION

By buying white satin slippers and having them dyed, bridesmaids for July weddings are able to have their footwear match exactly.

The favorite bag now is of moire silk, edged with metal. The under-arm variety predominates and the proportions o fthe receptacle are most generous.

Grossgrain ribbon hats have also come to the fore with warm weather, always in soft shapes and most frequently in pinky beige, buis de rose, cream or ecru.

Now, quills are put behind the brim of the small flexible hats of oriental straw. Many of the quills which trim these creations are silvered or gilded.

Cretonne has come to have a definite place in bathing suits. It fashions brief slim little tunics worn over knickers of jersey or satin, and it is used for striking beach pajamas and for the slipon hats which are now considered indispensable to the correct beach costume.

Gloves that will slip on easily and still present a snug, trim appearance have now been achieved. They are of English doeskin with six-inch long limp gauntlets with elastic at the wrists. A suitable gusset assures a shapely appearance and comfort. They are usually worn in white.

An oval buckle of artistically fashioned dull gilt has an outer line of vermillion. The center is of gold-colored silk finely pleated. Another, a circle of bronze-colored metal, has a center of gilt kid.

Every summer sees a recurrence of the ever attractive field flowers in design. This year they appear in all their glory as a wide border upon black chiffon lingerie. The little garments are piped in poppy red and gay little ribbons of the same shade carry out the color note.

The check to the recent terrific heat has given opportunity for the new knitted coats to assert themselves. These garments are light in weight, but provide protection, at the same time fitting in charmingly with the summer garments worn underneath. White is seen more frequently than other colors.

DRAPED SASH AT WAISTLINE

Slowly but very surely the waistline has been creeping back, but its exact position has been the cause of much conjecture. Some have placed it far below the natural line, others have attempted tentatively to review the raised line but from present indications the lines sponsored by the well known houses of Paris is a compromise between two extremes. An interesting waistline is often achieved by the use of a wide sash draped closely about the hips with the top on a line with the natural waistline or by a narrow sash wound several times about the figure frequently interlaced.

FALL COATS VIEWED

Women's coats for fall designed and executed by men's tailors, which have just been placed on view, indicate that outer coverings of this type will be shorter this autumn and of the boldest designs and colors. Tweeds, saxonies and cheviots in brown and blue predominated while such designs as rag rug, broken trellis, mosaic and geometric designs also were shown. The severe masculine designs were feminized by the flare of the skirts.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Before washing lingerie, tie a piece of twine to one end of the ribbon. As you draw out the other end of the ribbon, the twine will take its place. When the garment is laundered the fresh ribbon can be fastened to the twine and quickly drawn into place.

For drying colored dresses select a shady spot. Do not expose them to the direct rays of the sun.

A gown that that has been spotted by rain should be covered with a clean damp cloth and pressed with a moderately warm iron.

Never starch linens that are to be stored away for a long time. They are apt to crack. Rinse free from starch, dry and fold away if possible in blue paper. The blue paper prevents them turning yellow.

When washing new curtains, you will generally find that they are full of lime, and require a large quantity of soap to make them anything like clean. This expenditure of soap and a great deal of trouble may be saved by soaking the curtains overnight in water in which a handful of salt has been dissolved. The salt draws he lime out of the curtains, making them quite easy to wash.

TO WHITEN CLOTHES

To whiten clothes that have become yellowed in consequence of being laid away for some time, soak them overnight in luke-warm water and the next morning wash in good clean suds. Then put them in the boiler with cold water and some pieces of white soap and one teaspoon of powdered borax. Boil for one-half hour, rinse immediately and leave them for another night in clean cold water to which one-half teaspoon of powdered borax has been added.

READY TO SERVE

Pineapple may now be obtained in two ways, sliced and crushed. This is done as a matter of convenience and economy to the housewife. The sliced pineapple can be served as a fruit dessert or salad right from the container, and the crushed can be served as a breakfast preserve like marmalade or mixed with cream cheese for sandwiches and in many delightful recipes where it would be a waste to use the slices.

A CORK PULLER

How often have you wanted the vanilla extract bottle in a hurry and find the cork must be pried out? Try screwing tiny screw-eyes into the small corks and use them as cork pullers. They can be placed in the new bottles instead of the new cork and their usefulness proves unending.

CANDY BOXES HANDY

If you are going to the seashore, or are going to travel, save the pretty tin boxes candies and cakes come in. Aside from their decorative value, they perform a real service in keeping steel accessories such as scissors and needles and manicure from dampness and rust.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Miss Victoria Kent is Spain's first woman criminal lawyer.

Twenty-two of the 1812 war widows are still on the United States pension roll.

Queen Elena of Italy is foremost among the royal collectors of stamps.

The slave market is not yet extinct in Syria, girls occasionally being sold on the streets.

Miss Eleanor McCarthy, New Orleans society girl, makes her social calls in her airplane.

Of the 12,000 people employed by the state of Massachusetts more than 5,000 are women.

There are about 200 Japanese women in New York City, nearly all the wives of Japanese men.

Fraulein Ruth Eber, who recently qualified at Leipsic, is the first women vererinarian in Germany.

SUET

Suet will keep for months if wrapped in grease-proof paper, put into a linen bag and then kept in a dry, cool place until needed.

THE BATHROOM ENSEMBLE

The ensemble idea has reached even the bathroom, and now one can purchase bath slippers, bathrobe, face cloth, towel, and bath mat, all made of the same toweling, which has large flowers woven into the material itself.

RECIPES

Strawberry Crumb Pudding: Cream two tablespoons of butter, add gradually one-half cup of sugar, the yolks of two eggs well beaten, two cups of milk and one cup of stale (not dry) bread crumbs. Mix lightly and turn into a buttered baking dish, cover and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) until firm. About 30 minutes. Remove from oven, sprinkle one cup of strawberries cut in halves (if large), over the top spread with a meringue made of the whites of two eggs beaten until stiff and four tablespoons of sugar. Sprinkle meringue lightly with granulated sugar, and return to a moderate oven (325 degrees Fahrenheit) to cook and brown meringue. It will take about 15 minutes. The recipe makes six portions.

Rhubarb Punch: Wash, drain and cut four pounds of rhubarb into one-inch pieces. Add one quart of water, one small bay leaf and cook 20 minutes or until rhubarb is soft. Strain through a double fold of cheesecloth; do not squeeze the pulp as it will cloud the juice. Add two cups of orange juice, one cup lemon juice and one-half cup of ginger (taken from a jar of preserved Canton ginger.) Add sugar or sugar sirup to sweeten to taste (about two and one-half cups.) Cook five minutes if sugar is used and strain again. Chill and dilute with carbonated water or ginger ale and cracked ice. If ginger ale is used the ginger sirup may be omitted. The mixture may be colored a deep pink or red, using diluted red fruit color paste. The recipe will fruit color paste. The recipe will serve 30 guests, one sherbet glass each. The mixture may be stored in sterile glass jars and diluted as needed. It is a wholesome and delicious summer beverage.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

White Way Needs Extension.

Mr. Editor: The last Armistice day celebration will ever be remembered in Norwich by three landmarks which it has left. The first is the beautiful tablet on Chelsea parade, commemorating the noble service of the sons of Norwich who gave their lives in the service of their country. The second landmark is the opening of the "white way" which marked one of the most important steps for progress in our city in recent years. The third, and not the least, important landmark, is the arrangement for the display of Old Glory on the curbing of Main street and of Broadway. This modern and appropriate display of the American flag lends a dignity to its glory. It no doubt swells the heart of our patriotic citizens with pleasure and pride as they walk our business streets and see our flag so properly honored. Especially at night when the beautiful and modern "white way" lights up Old Glory, displaying it in all its grandeur.

There is no doubt in my mind that the citizens of our city and who are interested in its welfare have learned of the great value which the new lighting system has added to the mercantile development of our city, by properly lighting up the streets for the strangers who enter or pass our city at night. I am confident that our citizens will work for the speedy extension of the "white way" to other business streets of Norwich. But I sincerely hope that the merchants of those streets will also follow the method of displaying the American flag on the curbing of their streets the same as their neighboring merchants are doing today. We can never show too much respect for our national emblem which stands for principles that rise in esteem and reverence from day to day, not only in our own country but also throughout the entire civilized world.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborn, who heads the list of scientific experts who will be called to testify in the defense of John T. Scopes for alleged violation of the Tennessee law prohibiting the teaching of evolution in the schools, is a veteran professor of Columbia University and is regarded as one of the foremost scientists in America. He is also widely known as an eminent paleontologist and educator throughout the world. He is author of several books bearing on the subject of the present controversy, among them being "Evolution of Religion." "From the Greeks to Darwin," and "The Earth Speaks to Bryan." Professor Osborn was born in Connecticut in 1857 and was graduated from Princeton at the age of 20. He has been president of the American Society of Naturalists, president of the American Morphology Society, vice-president of the American Society of president of the American Museum of Natural History, and secretary of the Smithsonian Institution.

From Small Beginnings

Sir Joseph Cook, the Coal Miner, An Australian Patriot

At the beginning of the World war the Australian minister for the navy, Sir Joseph Cook, at once expressed his own loyalty and that of the Australian people, to the British Empire by placing the battleships and other craft of the Australian navy under the orders of the naval authorities in England, thereby aiding in consolidating unifying the fighting power of the empire. Such an action thrilled the hearts of the English people for it showed them that the ties of race and blood, even though on the opposite side of the earth, were one with them in the fight for democracy and freedom from German military tyranny.

Sir Joseph Cook, who is now one of the leading men in the great continent of the antipodes, was not always Sir Joseph Cook. About 50 years ago he was plain Joe Cook, a coal miner in England. The poverty of the home in which he had been born made it impossible for him to go to school except for a short time in his very early childhood. He had to take whatever work offered itself in order to gain the little money that was needed for the support of the humble home. The work that offered was that of laboring in the English mines. He was only a small boy, but he took up the work with good spirit and a firm determination to do all that his people expected of him. For some years, therefore, grimy and black, with calloused hands and aching muscles, he worked in this hardest of all work.

By the time he was 25 he had been thrifty enough to save money, and intelligent enough to gain a little education, by reading and conversation. He took fortune into his own hands and emigrated to Australia in whose wide spaces he hoped to find greater opportunities. He had force, strong individuality and natural leadership. At 31 he had so impressed his associates that he was sent to represent them in the New South Wales legislature. There he again showed ability becoming Minister of Mines and Agriculture, Minister or Defense and Minister for the Navy. For his great public services he was honored with knighthood.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Digger the Badger Is Grateful

Who gentle is and always kind,
Will never lack for friends, he'll find.
—Old Mother Nature.

When Peter Rabbit thumped in a bramble tangle near the edge of the Old Pasture, two very important things happened. Digger the Badger, who had been moving along rather carelessly, stopped abruptly and at once became all attention. Old Man Coyote glared over at the bramble tangle where Peter was, growled an ugly threat, and then with hardly so much as a glance at Digger the Badger, turned away. He had no desire to attack Digger unless he could surprise him, and there was no hope of this now.

Digger the Badger watched Old Man Coyote trot away. Then Digger the

"Thank you, Peter Rabbit," said Digger in a deep, gruff voice

Badger came over and peered into the tangle where Peter was hiding. He didn't try to get into that tangle, for he had too much respect for the brambles, and he was too big to move along Peter's little path.

"Thank you, Peter Rabbit," said Digger in a deep, gruff voice. "You saved me some trouble. In fact, I am not at all sure that you didn't save me more than that. If Old Man Coyote had sprung on me from behind I should have been in real trouble. Thank you."

"Don't mention it," replied Peter very politely. "It was nothing. Please don't mention it."

"I won't," replied Digger dryly. "But neither will I forget it. What are you doing up here in the Old Pasture?"

"If you please," replied Peter timidly, "I came up to look for you."

"Bless me!" explained Digger, looking as surprised as he evidently felt. "Why are you looking for me?"

"Just to make sure that you were not dead," replied Peter.

"Bless me!" exclaimed Digger again, and he looked even more surprised than before, "who said I was dead?"

"No one," replied Peter, and he looked as if he felt just a wee bit foolish. "I found your house down on the Green Meadows was deserted, and I couldn't find you anywhere, so I was afraid that you might be dead."

"Well, supposing I had been dead; would you have cared?" demanded Digger, with a twinkle in his sharp eyes.

Peter didn't reply right away. That was a question to be considered. He meant to answer it truthfully. Peter always tried to be truthful. "No and yes," said he at last.

Digger's eyes twinkled more than ever. "Explain," he commanded, "I don't understand an answer like that."

Peter stroked his whiskers. Then he scratched a long ear with a long hind foot. After that he scratched the other long ear with the other long hind foot. "Well?" prompted Digger.

"I wouldn't have been sorry the way I would be to lose some one I was fond of," explained Peter slowly, "but I would have missed you, and for that reason I would have been sorry. I know some of the neighbors think you don't belong around here, but you've never bothered me and I've always liked to see you and often have wished I knew you better. I've wanted for a long time to ask you some questions, Mr. Badger."

Again Digger's eyes twinkled. "Well Peter," said he, "now is your chance. You'll never get a better one." (Copyright, 1925, by T. W. Burgess.)

SPRAYING Flit quickly rids the house of roaches.

Flit spray destroys roaches, bed bugs, ants and insect eggs. The cracks and crevices where insects hide and breed are readily reached by Flit spray. It is clean, easy and safe to use.

Kills Household Insects

Flit spray clears the house in a few minutes of mosquitoes and disease-bearing flies. Spraying Flit on garments kills moths and their larvae which eat holes. Extensive tests showed that Flit did not stain or injure the most delicate fabrics.

A Scientific General Insecticide

Flit is the result of exhaustive research by expert entomologists and chemists. More than 70 formulas were tested on various household insects before Flit was finally perfected. Flit is a 100% effective insecticide containing no inactive (inert) ingredients.

WRINKLES, LINES OR CROWS-FEET

Lemon Juice Tightens Skin

Squeeze the juice of two lemons in a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents, shake well and you have the very mildest anti-wrinkle lotion to tighten relaxed skin, erase fine lines and eradicate crows-feet.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion into the skin at night. By morning most of the tell-tale wrinkles, tired lines and crows-feet are smoothed out, giving a more youthful contour to cheeks, chin, throat. It leaves the skin velvety soft, clear and fresh.

Beauty experts use this astringent lotion for enlarged pores, also to bleach and whiten sallow, tanned skin.

Mix this harmless lotion yourself since it acts best immediately after prepared.

SHOT IN WESTERLY BY UNKNOWN ASSAILANT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., July 5—Annunziato Renna, 31, of 67 Perkins avenue, Westerly, laborer employed by Samuel Nardone, is a patient at the Lawrence Memorial and Associated hospital in New London, suffering wounds about the body caused by being shot about 11 o'clock tonight while in the neighborhood of Pierce street.

It is understood that Renna went into the Pierce street section, having had trouble with someone living on that street, also to look up a bicycle which had been stolen from him. Another man helped him look for the stolen bicycle and after finding it accompanied Renna for a short distance, then left him.

Renna mounted the bicycle and rode away, but coming to the foot of a steep hill dismounted and started to push the bicycle up the incline. When near the top and close to a clump of bushes at the left of the road, a shot was heard and Renna was knocked down, suffering painful injury. Friends rushed to him to his home and Dr. Charles E. Crandall was called and gave treatment. It is believed that Renna was shot at with a sawed-off shotgun for over 55 pieces of shot entered his body at various points. Twenty-nine pieces entered his left arm, 13 on the left side of his body, ten in his right hand, two in the chin, three in the side of his head, and one in the ear just above the lobe. One shot was taken out which had pierced the nail of the little finger on the right hand, but the others could not be removed.

He was rushed to the Lawrence hospital for further treatment as the shot in the ear is most dangerous, a half inch higher up meaning instant death.

While at his home Renna, when questioned by Sergeant Michael Curtin and Officer Robert Kessell, of the Westerly police, at first he said he could not tell who shot him, then changed it by saying that he wouldn't tell. His wife and five children also came out no information to help the officers. A search in the Pierce street district located the man who helped Renna find the bicycle but did not help in solving the mystery as to who did the shooting.

A further search on clues obtained will be conducted tomorrow morning and it is hoped that Renna will tell what he knows, if there is not something back of the shooting that he does not dare tell for fear of future attacks.

STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE ON WEST THAMES ST.

Charles Carbray, 70, who lives at the mill boarding house in Thamesville, was struck and knocked down on West Thames street, Sunday afternoon, by an automobile driven by State Policeman Watson, of Groton barracks.

According to the report made, the man stepped out from the sidewalk near the Thamesville fire station in front of the state policeman's car, which was stopped so suddenly that he blew a tire. Carbray was treated for a cut on the back of the head at the Backus hospital, to which he was taken in an automobile. The hospital ambulance was called for, but through some misunderstanding it went to Greeneville instead of Thamesville.

WEST END CELEBRATED FOURTH IN FINE STYLE

The Fourth of July celebration of the West End Community association went off in fine style Saturday, tennis, baseball, athletic events and the fireworks at night affording interesting entertainment for hundreds of people throughout the day.

Activities began in the morning when a number of tennis tournaments were held at the newly finished court on the recreation field, Lucas lot, at the city line on West Main street. In the early afternoon a baseball game was staged between the married and single men. This was witnessed by many people and both sides were backed by fans. The married men won this argument, much to the chagrin of the single men.

The athletic events were run off under the direction of "Sahl" Slosberg and E. J. Fritts. Prizes consisting of boxes of candy, baseballs, baseball gloves and bats, jack knives, flash lights, tobacco pouches, pipes and cigars has been donated for the various events and competition was keen in many of them the finals being won only after thrilling battles by the contestants.

The events on the athletic program and the winners were as follows: Boys' potato race, semi-finals, Anthony Sherefin and Sam Stockwell; Ray Johnson and Saul Rutchik; finals, first Saul Rutchik; second, Ray Johnson.

Younger Boys' 75 yard dash, semi-finals, George Lambert, first; Nathan Jacobson, second; Louis Zierler, third; Sam Stockwell, first; Harry Sherry, second; Ray Johnson, third. Finals, Sam Stockwell, first; Harry Sherry, second; George Lambert, third.

Older Boys' 100-yard dash, Arthur Armstrong, first; Aubrey Brown, second; Donald Royce, third.

Girls' 75-yard dash, Nettie Santos, first; Virginia Young, second; Hilda Thoma, third.

Girls' needle race—Margaret Williams, first; Mrs. Blanche Griffith, second; Phyllis Brown, third.

Mens' shot put—J. Goodrow, first, first, 38 feet 4 inches; A. Brauman, second; A. Brown, third.

Tug-of-war—Married men, Messrs Armstrong, Wilson, O'Neil, S. A. LaRochelle, J. R. LaRochelle, Royce, Alquist, Hicks, Cohen, Goldstein and Slosberg.

Nail driving contest—S. Goldstein, first; M. O'Neil, second.

Open relay race—won by team comprising Messrs Armstrong, Griffith, Royce, and A. C. Berberick.

At the conclusion of the athletic program the crowd gathered about the refreshment stand, in charge of Charlie Parsons, and enjoyed a treat, after which families enjoyed basket luncheons. At 7 o'clock the Italian Band opened the concert program of the evening and for two hours following a delightful program of the latest song and dance hits was played by the band, under the direction of Prof. Pasquale Puca, leader.

The fireworks display, which was set off on the recreation field entertained a big crowd when darkness came on. Colored fire, sky rockets, Roman candles, pin wheels, and other pieces were included in the attractive exhibit which was in charge of C. V. Pendleton.

BOY SCOUTS GOING TO CAMP TIPPECAN

Twenty boy scouts and officials leave for camp this (Monday) morning, as the first relay of Camp Tippecan, Norwich Council camp at Beach pond, Lake Pawcamac. This camp is expected to be the largest yet held. Over 45 boys have already registered and more scouts can be accommodated for the second and fourth weeks. Scout Executive Benton and a pioneer squad of men and scouts set up camp Thursday and L. M. Carpenter of Ashland Mills, Jewett City, transported the equipment. A fleet of rowboats has been newly painted, a new raft constructed, stone masons have been repairing the giant chimney for the fire place in the log cabin and everything will be in readiness for the scouts upon their arrival. Chairman E. A. Harris and the camp committee are planning to be in a prominent mess hall, that will also furnish a meeting place for the scouts in rainy weather. Plenty of activities are planned for the season. The Maine guide, Harry Jordan, will be there and Rev. William Prentiss of Plainfield will give illustrated lectures on birds. The Lions club and the Rotary club are to take care of a number of scouts at camp this season and the above clubs have been challenged by the scouts for baseball games. The staff consists of older and younger men, all of them trained and experienced in camping and scout work.

Three Fined In City Court

William H. Dearborn, Andrew Boyd, both white, and Percola Thompson, colored, who were arrested Friday afternoon after a fight in a house at East Great Plain were all fined in the city court Saturday morning. Dearborn went to jail when he could not pay fines of $15 and $5 on charges of intoxication and breach of the peace. His bill with costs made $30.63. Boyd paid a fine of $5 and $15.27 costs for intoxication. The Thompson woman was fined $5 and $10 for intoxication and breach of the peace, with $15.27 costs. She arranged to pay.

NORWICH GOT BY THE FOURTH WITH BUT TWO CALLS FOR FIREMEN

Norwich passed the grand and glorious Fourth without calling out the fire department for any fires to houses or other structures, due to fireworks, one of the few times in the history of the fire department when such a thing has happened.

The department was called out twice Saturday, however, for fires, one of which, in a tree in front of 34 Roath street, was caused by boys throwing fire crackers. The fire there was quickly extinguished by water thrown from a garden hose, put into use before the arrival of the firemen.

The second call came at 10:29 o'clock Saturday night for a blaze in the rear of 112 Franklin street, this fire having a fine start before the firemen arrived and giving them quite a fight before it was extinguished.

The blaze started in rooms to the rear of James Ellis Lunch room and the fire burned up into the floor above and flames were shooting out of windows on the second floor when the firemen arrived. Two lengths of hose were laid and entrance was gained into the rear of the lunch room, the fire being subdued within a few minutes after water had been turned on.

The brick building alongside of the wooden structure, and occupied by Treat's drug store and Allen's grocery store, received some damage to the roofing when flames jumped across the few inches between the buildings. The loss here was slight.

The situation of the building made fire fighting somewhat difficult and the dense smoke which poured from the structure made it impossible to gain entrance to the rear of the building at the arrival of the department.

The damage to the wooden structure probably amounted to over $1,000, and Mr. Ellis had a slight loss from fire and water. The building is owned by A. V. Covello, who also owns the brick building adjoining, which was slightly damaged at the roof.

The fire was discovered by Richard Pendleton, who lives nearby and the telephone call to the department saved a greater loss to the property.

THE KINDNESS OF CHRIST IS FATHER REILLY'S THEME

The gospel for the fifth Sunday after Pentecost, Matthew V. 20-24, which he had just read, suggested the theme from which Rev. John J. Reilly preached at the 10:30 mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday. In this gospel the Saviour admonishes His disciples that, except their justice abound more than that of the Scribes and Pharisees, they shall not enter into the kingdom of Heaven.

There has been a twist in human nature, the preacher declared, since the creation of man, which doubtless explains why the warnings which Christ uttered to His followers as recorded in this gospel, would apply with equal aptness to any congregation of today. There are those who profess themselves followers of Christ; yet while outwardly they are keeping to the letter of the law, in reality they are no better than were the Pharisees, for the reason that they totally lack that charity and love of neighbor which the Redeemer enjoins.

In the gospel, Christ points out the penalty of hatred and uncharitableness. "Whosoever is angry with his brother shall be in danger of judgment; and whosoever shall say to his brother, Raca, shall be in danger of the council; and whosoever shall say, Thou fool, shall be in danger of hell-fire. "Yet," said the preacher, "Raca, and Thou fool are mild terms, compared with those which one angry neighbor often utters against another; while some professed Catholics, in their rage will even call upon the name of the kind and gentle Saviour in expressing their curses against those who have irritated them."

The lesson was the obligation of trying to live nearer the example of the gentle Christ, whose heart throbs and burns for all mankind—sinners and saints alike, the salient characteristic of whose earthly ministry was kindness; Who, even with His last breath, prayed His Father to forgive those who had put Him to death, "for they know not what they do."

If only men would seek to imitate the great kindness of Christ, if, instead of bowing to the rich and powerful they sought out the obscure, showing kindness to those who lack success and recognition, how quickly this world of sorrow would change to one of happiness, was the preacher's thought.

The low Mass was read by Rev. Myles P. Galvin. The choir of the church has a vacation during the summer months, consequently there is no singing during this last Mass.

SIXTEEN PIGEONS STOLEN FROM WEST THAMES ST. COOPS

John Keczenski, of 244 West Thames street, had sixteen choice pigeons stolen from his cops Friday night. During Sunday he reported the loss to the police.

Mr. Keczenski is convinced that whoever took the birds knew enough about them to understand that four of them were homers, so the thief is keeping them shut up, otherwise these birds would at once fly back to their coop.

Last year, their owner went with friends on an excursion to New York and as an experiment he let loose his homers from Grand Central station. The birds did not delay long, but took their course to Connecticut, arriving back at their Thamesville roost within the day.

Their owner thinks the thief intends to offer the birds for sale, so is advertising their loss this (Monday) morning, as a hint to any perons to whom the stolen pigeons might be offered.

FIVE IN HOSPITAL FROM WATERFORD SMASH

NEW LONDON, July 5.—(AP)—Five autoists who are in Lawrence Memorial hospital following an automobile accident in Waterford last night, were reported as resting comfortably tonight and all are expected to recover. Those injured were: Miss Alice Hannon, 18 years old of 722 George street, New Haven; Mrs. Jeanette L. Paradise, 58 years old, of 23 Kensington street, New Haven; her two sons, Charles A. Paradise, 39 years old, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Leo Paradise, of 23 Kensington street, New Haven, and Barney Dutter, of Brooklyn.

STREET SWEEPER ON FIRE UNDER TEST

Engine No. 5, West Side, was called out about 10:22 o'clock Sunday morning when the motor street sweeper, owned by the city, caught fire while operated at Thames Square. The damage was slight and the fire extinguished without aid from the firemen.

A mechanic from the factory, from which the sweeper was purchased, had connected the new brooms and the street sweeper was being tested out when the blaze started, probably caused by back firing.

WEDDING
Roche-Frizzell

Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, at Christ church rectory in Westerly, Clarence Emerson Roche of Westerly was united in marriage with Miss Ethel May Frizzell, of Woburn, Mass. They were unattended and with only members of the two families present, the ceremony was performed by Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, the rector. Mr. and Mrs. Roche left for Charlestown Beach, R. I., where they will pass their honeymoon at the Hoxie cottage and on their return to Westerly will make their home at 9 George street. Miss Frizzel has been a teacher in the Westerly High school and the head of the mathematics department for the past five years. She is the daughter of William and Sarah E. Key Frizzell of Woburn, Mass. A graduate of Tufts college, she took a two-years' course in higher mathematics, before coming to Westerly. Mr. Roche is a practicing lawyer and for nine years was the clerk of the Third Judicial District court of Westerly.

STOPPED FOR SPEEDING, BEAT STATE POLICEMAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 5.—State Police Officer Joseph Bobnick, stationed at Groton barracks, and residing at 53 Blackhall street, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital as a result of the officer having been brutally beaten in Waterford, early Saturday morning while investigating the condition of the driver of an automobile, who had been complained against because of the alleged reckless operation of the machine. The men who inflicted the beating, Allen McDougall and Charles Stevens, Astoria, L. I., escaped, but they were apprehended about 1 o'clock this morning at Packer and are now prisoners at the New London police station charged with assault and battery and are being held in bail of $5,000 each, to appear in Waterford town court Monday.

Officer Bobnick was on duty between Jordan cemetery and the Golden Spur during the early morning hours Saturday and two or three autoists informed him of the reckless manner in which a Cadillac car, headed toward New London, was being driven. When the Cadillac car was observed approaching, the driver, Stevens, was signalled to stop and as the machine came to a halt, Bobnick ordered Stevens to alight from the car that the officer could determine whether Stevens had been driking. Stevens' condition appeared to be normal and when Bobnick made inquiry as to whether the car was transporting liquor because of several wooden boxes being in the rear, McDougall alighted and without warning, struck Bobnick a blow in the face. Stevens then took a hand in the fight. Bobnick was knocked down and was kicked, his face being the target for the blows of his assailants. Finally with the officer partially unconscious on the ground, Stevens and McDougall entered the automobile and speeded away. A woman, Mrs. Sadie Giberti, also of Astoria, and with a seven-months-old baby in her arms, was a passenger in the car.

The automobile succeeding in passing through New London without being held up, for the local police were not notified of the assault upon Bobnick.

About 3 o'clock, Bobnick returned to the Groton barracks and Officers Fred Caron and Giles Watson started to locate the car, which was finally traced to Packer, where the two men and woman were located and arrested. They were brought to New London and all three locked up. Later, because of no charge having been made against Mrs. Giberti, and because of the fact that she was caring for a baby, the police caused an attendant of the Day Nursery to come to the police station and provide attention for the infant, after which Mrs. Giberti was allowed to continue to her destination.

Bobnick was taken to the hospital early yesterday morning and his injuries, consisting of severe bruises about the face and head were treated. He will remain under treatment at the institution but a day or two.

ARREST FOLLOWS CRASH ON NEWENT ROAD

A new Chrysler roadster, owned and driven by George Thomas of this city, was badly wrecked late Saturday afternoon on the Newent road near the Lisbon school, when struck by a car owned by James Graham of Lisbon and driven by Elmer Crouch, 32, of Preston, who works for Graham.

The cars were headed in opposite directions and Crouch in making a curve swung to the left and failed to straighten out before reaching the Thomas machine, which lost a rear left wheel, had a fender crushed and a badly dented body, and drive shaft broken.

Crouch failed to stop his machine, it is claimed, but the car was recognized and Constable A. L. Potter of Lisbon went to Mr. Graham's home where he found the car, but could not locate Crouch. From there he went to Crouch's home in Preston, where he found Crouch with the car. Crouch was placed under arrest, charged with evading responsibility.

Crouch was brought to the Norwich police station and later obtained bonds from a friend in Mystic. He will probably be presented before the justice of the peace in Lisbon Wednesday night.

SOLD LOTS FOR $539,825 FOR NOYES-OAT SYNDICATE

A New York paper said Saturday: Every selling record of lots at public auction was broken last Thursday evening by Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, at the sale of approximately 1,000 lots on Sheepshead Bay-Harkness Estates in the new Flatbush section at Brooklyn overlooking the Gerittsen Beach Park.

Mr. Day, who conducted the sale in association with Charles F. Noyes as the agent for the owners, William H. Oat Syndicate, sold 752 lots for a total of $539,825 in little less than three hours of actual selling time. The average price established was $720 per lot, ranging from $500 to $3,200 per lot, the larger price being paid for six lots on Ocean Avenue between Avenues X and I and Y and Z.

Among the heavier buyers of the evening were Abraham Zatlowits of Brooklyn, the Adelphi Realty Company of Brooklyn, Morris Hanan of Coney Island, Meyer Silberstein of Manhattan, Basil Spiliades of Manhattan and the Shawsel Realty Corporation of Manhattan. The great majority of the buyers came from Brooklyn, with a generous sprinkling of buyers from all parts of New York and some from Long Island.

Letters Like This Prove the Reliability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Turtle Lake, Wisconsin. — "I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness, backache and nervousness. I had these troubles for years and had taken other medicines for them, but I have found no medicine so good as the Vegetable Compound and I recommend it to my friends who have troubles similar to mine. I saw it advertised and thought I would try it and it has helped me in all my troubles. I have had six children and I have taken the Lydia E. Pinkham Vegetable Compound before each one was born, for weakness, vomiting, poor appetite and backache, and again after childbirth because of dizzy headaches. It is a good medicine for it always helps me. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for the last eight years for constipation." — Mrs. MABEL LA POINT, R. F. D. LISBON MAN AND DAUGHTER ARE KILLED

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, July 5—A fatal automobile accident occurred Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock at Johnson's Crossing, about 500 yards east of the Lisbon station, on the Providence division of the New Haven road.

Carl Hoffman, 48, of Lisbon, and his four year old daughter, Mary, were killed. Two other daughters, Annie 7, and Caroline, 6, were sent to the Backus hospital, Norwich. Mrs. Hoffman was taken home and was reported to be in a dazed condition. The family had been in Jewett City to see the parade. Returning to their home, which is known as the John O'Neill place, they were struck by the afternoon train from Willimantic, bound to Providence.

Coroner Jeremiah Desmond of Norwich gave permission for the removing of the bodies by Hourigan Bros., of Jewett City, to their undertaking rooms here.

Witnesses and people sitting in a house nearby, declare that no warning whistle was blown as the engine approached the crossing. Dr. Harry McLaughlin responded to the emergency call and Mrs. W. A. Richardson, R. N., accompanied her husband to the location of the fatality. Her skill and aid proved invaluable.

At the hospital it was stated Sunday night that Caroline has a possible fractured arm, but the other child has only minor injuries.

The crossing where the accident occurred is approached on a very steep grade and it is impossible to get a view of the train coming in either direction. The automobile was hurled about 20 feet down an embankment and was a complete wreck.

SCANTILY CLAD MAN TERRIFIED EVERETT STREET

Ellis Eckstrom, 32, of Brooklyn, N. Y., a husky worker who is employed in Dredge No. 7, that is at work in the Thames river, terrified the Everett street neighborhood Saturday night, as he rushed about from place to place, clad only in an undershirt and drawers, and offering to attack every one he met.

The frightened residents telephoned for help to police headquarters and Capt. Thomas Murphy notified Constable Lucius Fenton, who went to the locality with Officers Gwizdowsky and Patrick Murphy. The drunken dredgeman gave the officers a hard fight before they got the handcuffs on him and brought him to police headquarters where he was locked up on charges of intoxication, breach of the peace and resisting officers.

HAD SHIFTED NUMBERS TO DRIVE AUTOMOBILE

Edward Jackson, 22, and Daniel Flannery, 40, of North Walpole, N. H., were arrested Saturday night at the Majestic garage where they were found with a Buick car on which were the number plates of a Ford touring car, belonging to Clark McCagg of Sprague. They had been operating the car with the plates N-6229 but neither had an operator's license.

The arrests were made by Officers P. Shahan and P. Murphy.

STOLEN FLAG FOUND ON TOP OF GAS TANK

Dennis Coughlin, 49, was arrested Sunday night by Sergeant Delaney, Officers Sharvan and Quinn on the charge of theft of an American flag from in front of the Odd Fellows building on Main street on July 4. The flag was found on top of the gas tank at the city gas and electric plant where Coughlin is employed.

Boy's Eye Injured

Joseph Mazzarcola, 11, was brought from Danielson to the Backus hospital early Saturday afternoon with his eye injured from a blank cartridge. It is hoped the eye may be saved.

Helpful Hair Hints

A leading hair dresser says—"I have found nothing as good as Parisian Sage to make the hair wavy, soft and lustrous and make it grow abundant and beautiful." Remember the name—Parisian Sage—best for the hair and scalp. It's guaranteed. Lee and Osgood's and all druggists sell it.

LAST WEEK WAS MOST EVENTFUL IN MAJORS DURING THE SEASON

NEW YORK, July 5.—(AP)—Daft pitching hands shuffled the major league decks in a new deal last week which tonight found Pittsburgh and Washington on top.

For the most part, the expert fingers were those of veteran players. In the case of the champion Senators in the American league, honors fell to the credit of the 38-year-old Walter Johnson, the battle-scarred Dutch Ruether, the veteran Stanley Coveleskie, and the ancient Van Gregg. For the New York Yankees the heroes were Shawkey and Pennock.

Brooklyn dealers of curve and fast ball collaborated with Pittsburgh in ripping up the National league deck. While Meadows, Aldridge, Sheehan and Morrison held winning hands against the Reds and Cubs, Petty, Vance, Hubbell and Grimes trumped Boston and New York for a complete turnover in the first division.

The new order prevailing tonight altered standings in the first division of both circuits which had existed since early May. The deposed Athletics had previously been threatened by several revolts only to pull their shattered cohorts together behind Mack and drive on. The Giants, on the other hand, gave up their once commanding lead slowly but surely from the start of their recent invasion against a well-fortified western front.

The fall of Philadelphia dates back to an injury to Sam Gray's pitching hand after Mack's new mound sensation had piled up an impressive string of victories. Although the club bore up temporarily, Washington began to whittle away the Quaker team's lead until it passed completely early last week in Washington as Stanley Harris's men took the closing games of their series with the Mackmen.

There was still hope for the Athletics against the wilted Yankees, but where Philadelphia had every reason to expect a submissive New York pitching staff, they ran into superb performances by Shawkey and Pennock which added two strong coats of whitewash to their previous reverses. From a two-game lead of a week ago the Athletics dropped two and one-half games behind the champions.

The Pittsburgh pace was almost as hot as that of Washington. Cincinnati and Chicago broke in rout before the steady Pirate push. The Giants, losing their lead early in the week under idleness caused by rain, returned to the field Friday and yesterday, only to drop three straight to Brooklyn. From a lead of one-half a game, they slumped two full games behind the new pacemakers.

The Brooklyn and Pittsburgh spurts pitched Cincinnati into the second division from third place and pulled the Robins back into the vacancy, while the Cardinals, profiting by the upheaval, stepped into fourth place after having battled their way from the bottom under the leadership of Rogers Hornsby. Philadelphia, Chicago and Boston brought up in the rear.

The new American league deal affected only the leaders, with no signs of a third contestant interfering with the two-team struggle between Washington and Philadelphia. The positions of all the other teams remained unchanged throughout the week.

BROWNS DOWN TIGERS IN OVERTIME GAME

ST. LOUIS, July 5.—(AP)—Thirteen innings were played today when the Browns got an even break with the Tigers by winning the final game of the series 6 to 5. A single by Rice brought home Van Gilder with the winning run. After the score was tied in the eighth, both teams tightened their defense and drew on heavy hitting reserves, Manush and Robin, pinch hitting for their respective teams, failed to get a safety. About 9,000 attended. Score:

KREMER PITCHES BRILLIANT VICTORY OVER CUBS

CHICAGO, July 5.—(AP)—Pittsburgh bunched hits off Bush in two innings today and defeated Chicago 3 to 7, in a game which was marked by Kremer's great pitching and all around play of Traynor, who, in addition to fielding spectacularly, made four hits, two of which were doubles.

Kremer did not allow a hit until the eighth inning and a double following a single scored a run. Heathcote's homer scored the other tally. Score:

V. D. ELDRED WINS FIRST TOURNEY OVER NEW COURSE

From a field of 61 entries, Dr. Vincent D. Eldred won the Fourth of July Handicap Golf tournament played over the new course opened on Saturday. Dr. Eldred had a gross score of 86 and with a 14 handicap his net score was 72. W. P. Austin and William G. Park tied for second with a net score of 73. The fourth best score was R. P. Morrissey 74, the other prize winners being F. F. Welch 75, Sam Wilcox 76, J. F. Rogers 75, L. G. Briggs 76.

It was an ideal day for golf and the club members made good use of the course which, according to the majority, is much harder than the old nine-hole course. One of the outstanding holes and one of the most difficult is the 14th, a 600-yard hole that requires powerful driving from the tee to clear the rough. This condition is true on a number of holes. Par for the course is 71.

The course record at the present time is 80, set by George Falconer, club professional who went a round in 81 and 80 on Sunday. It is expected that this will not stand for long when the players become more familiar with the course. The scores made Saturday were:

D. H. Morton	86- 5—81
J. D. Moulton	87- 7—80
F. S. Wilcox	88-10—78
W. H. Shields, Jr.	96-16—78

CLOSING DAY OF A. A. U. MEET

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—(AP)—In the closing events of the National A. A. U. track and field championships here today, New York Athletic Club made a clean sweep of the relay races. Harold Osborne, star of the Illinois Athletic Club, won the decathlon, the individual all around title.

The crack sprinters and middle distance men from the metropolis won handily all the relays, the 440 and 880 yards, one mile, two miles and four miles.

The quartet of dash men established a new world's record in the 440 when they ran it in 41 2-5 seconds. This team consisted of Frank Hussey, Jackson Scholz, J. Todd and J. O. MacDonald.

The old record 42 4-10 was made by another New York team in 1921.

The New York relay men tied another world's record, that of the 880 in one minute 27 2-5 seconds. These four were Scholz, McDonald, Allan Woodring and J. M. Tierney.

In the quarter mile Humboldt A. C., San Francisco, was second, Hollywood A. C. third, Olympic Club of San Francisco was runner up in the half mile. Hollywood third.

In the mile Olympic Club ran second, Hollywood third.

The two and four mile grinds were between New York and Hollywood only and Hollywood was forced to take second place on both occasions.

The final event, four miles was nip and tuck until the third lap, when Goodwin, New York, pulled up so far ahead of Shawhan, Hollywood that Unruh, Hollywood's anchor man had no chance to catch the fleet Connolly.

Osborne, one of the greatest athletes ever turned out by the University of Illinois broke the world's record for point score in the decathlon. He ran up 7,706.39. The world record 7481.69 was made up by Alex Klumberg of Esthonia in 1922.

Osborne won the high jump with a leap of six feet 6 1-4 inches. He holds the world's record in this event.

WHITE SOX RALLY IN NINTH TO BEAT INDIANS

CLEVELAND, July 5.—(A. P.)—A four run rally by Chicago in the ninth inning gave the White Sox a five to four victory here today. Thurston, Chicago's twirler, weakened also in the ninth but Connally stopped Cleveland. Up to the last inning Chicago had made but five scattered hits off Smith. Score:

ALBANY, N. Y., July 5.—(AP)—Springfield defeated Albany 4 to 3 in a 10-inning game today after tying the score in the ninth. Van Alstyne allowed Springfield only two hits until the ninth. With one out, Lebeau hit a long fly to Emmerich, but the latter fell as he was about to make the catch and the batsman got three bases. Singles by Bosse and Benes and a wild pitch followed which netted two runs. Herrera's home run broke the tie in the tenth. Van Alstyne accounted for Albany's runs by hitting a home run with one on in the fifth. Score:

HOME RUNS NUMBERED EIGHTY-SIX LAST WEEK

CHICAGO, July 5.—(AP)—A week of many doubleheaders in major league baseball resulted in eighty-six home runs, the highest weekly total since the season opened, and bunched three contenders for the home run crown close on the heels of Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Nationals, who leads with 22.

"Gabby" Hartnett of the Chicago Nationals, the early season leader, went on a rampage and connected for the circuit four times to land in second place with 20.

Ken Williams of the St. Louis American league, also collected four round trip blows, making his total 19, and Bob Meusel of the New York Yankees ran his string to 19 by hitting one out of the park.

Babe Ruth returned to the game and hit for the circuit three times, but it brought his total to only six.

LUQUE'S WILDNESS PROVES UNDOING OF CINCINNATI

CINCINNATI, July 5.—(AP)—The Reds were beaten by St. Louis, 3 to 1, chiefly because of Luque's extreme wildness. The Cuban gave eight bases on balls which is exception for him. Ralph Shinners helped the Cardina's to victory by hitting over the left field wall in the fifth inning. Score:

EAST ENDS AND CENTRALS TO CLASH THIS EVENING

This week will see many new surprises in the Twilight League, according to the latest dope as the St. Joseph's team and the Hallville team have been given permission to strengthen up and in their next appearance will have many new faces in their lineups. At tonight's game between the East Ends, champions of 1924 and the Centrals, now leading the league with three straight wins the fans are liable to receive the surprise of their lives as both teams are very strong and both predict a victory.

Rivalry between these two teams is greater than between any of the others in the league and tonight the rival managers will use only their best men. Another fact which makes it worse is the fact that Manager Holland of the Centrals last year, managed the East Ends and received the can this year which resulted in his organizing the Centrals and he claims that the real ambition in his young life is to beat the East Ends. Whether he will realize his ambition will be seen tonight as the East Ends have a real fast team which last week nosed out ahead of the hard hitting Yantic team by a 1 to 0 score.

Manager Pedace says that any team that can hold Yantic can do the same to the Centrals as in his estimation Yantic is now a good deal faster than Holland's team. Should the Centrals lose tonight they will go into a tie with the Palace for first place, while if it is a win they will get a stronger hold on first place.

Manager Holland has been saving his ace, "Lefty" Harrell of the Sub Base to do the twirling against the East Ends, which proves that he does really fear them. The remainder of his lineup includes Eccleston, catch, J. Dugas first base, Tombarello second, Gauthier short, Yerrington third and either Gaudette, Lefty Dugas, Gero, Murphy or Courbois in the outfield.

The Centrals have about the strongest pitching staff in the league and should Harrell go bad they still have Dugas, Gaudette and Gero to fall back on.

The East Ends will use the same team that last week beat Yantic. They will lineup as follows: White catch, Harry Mills pitch, Coughlin at first, Jimmy Murphy at second, Normandin on short, Roy Leonard at third, and either Duffy, Noel, Bill Austin or Gaudette in the outfield.

Should things go wrong for Harry Mills the East Ends premier slabster, Normandin, who last week relieved Mills, who had to quit with a sore finger and did a good job of it, will take his turn on the mound.

TAFTVILLE WINS BOTH GAMES OF HOLIDAY BILL

The Taftville A. A. proved beyond doubt that its team is far superior to the New London Tabs on Fourth of July when the locals twice defeated the Whaling team, the score of the first game being 10 to 2 and the second game 11 to 2. In the morning game played at Taftville Lefty Dugas held the visitors to 4 hits while he fanned 12. Dugas also featured with the bat getting 2 doubles and three singles in five times at bat.

In the afternoon game at New London Lloyd Jarvis held the Tabs to five hits while the Taftville team knocked Dickson off the rubber. The Taftville team collected 22 hits. The scores:

EX-FIRE CHIEF AND MRS. STANNERS NOTE GOLDEN WEDDING AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 5—Mr. and Mrs. John Stanners celebrated their golden wedding at their apartment in the Harris building, State street this afternoon and evening. Mr. and Mrs. Stanners received a number of their relatives and intimate acquaintances, who extended congratulations on the couple having attained the many years of married life. Mr. Stanners was formerly chief of the New London fire department. They have four children, Frederick, Joseph, John and Miss Madeline Stanners.

A group of Norwich youths had a lively time at Ocean Beach, Friday night. That is supposed to be what they came here for, so they had it—had more than they anticipated, as things turned out. They were near the station of the trolley company cars about midnight, when patrons of the dance hall were coming away. In the party from the dance hall was Richard Glidden and his wife and two other couples in the same company. The Gliddens reside on Front street and they were to start for home by trolley. The Norwich youths got snarled up with Glidden and his wife and a complaint for a breach of the peace resulted when the police court assembled on the morning of the 4th. Mrs. Glidden was the first witness. She was garbed in a printed gown that showed scrolls from neck to feet. She was tall and willowy and was self-confident when she told her story on the witness stand. She said her party was waiting for a trolley car when the notion seized her that she wanted some candy. She started after it by crossing the tracks and going to one of the places where sweets are sold as well as bitters. On the way she said she heard the group of Norwich fellows pass remarks about her. Mrs. Glidden resented that and inquired whether they were talking to her. She got a reply, she said to the effect that "such persons as she is should be locked up." Mrs. Glidden went on with her story and said that Harry Cohen hit her and that she responded by striking him. She said that Cohen then ran, but Mr. Glidden had witnessed what was transpiring and he came over to the candy store to take a hand. Cohen ran away but her husband pursued him and finally caught him at the Cohen car. She declared that her husband held Cohen till the latter was arrested. She also represented that Cohen called her a vile name that was most disrespectful. August Kraus, a sailor on the coast guard steamer Redwing, was right on the spot. He saw there was a mix-up, and of course he became interested at once. He said he has not the acquaintance of Mrs. Glidden, but he was a witness of the trouble and saw the girls there. He saw that Cohen was saying something as he witnessed the moving of his lips, but he did not hear what was said. He did see Mrs. Glidden turn and saw Cohen grab her. She pushed him away with force, her arm coming in contact with a pipe which Cohen was smoking and that fell to the ground. Then, Kraus said, Cohen struck the woman. A girl called Mr. Glidden and he rushed over. Cohen made a getaway but he was hotly pursued by Glidden and the latter caught him at the car. Cohen got on at one side of the car, but went right through and stepped off at the other side. Glidden grabbed him finally. Kraus said he didn't see Glidden strike Cohen.

Cohen declared that Mrs. Glidden called him "a Jew and a 'Fairy.'" This he resented and pushed her away, but he denied that he struck her, though she had struck him. James Gruskin, in the Cohen party, said the woman called Cohen a vile name. Cohen denied that he was passing remarks about the women. Edward Jacobson, Samuel Davis, Edward Shupak and David Goldberg, all Norwich young men, defended Cohen and told the same story in substance that Cohen told. Cohen was deemed guilty nevertheless and was fined $5. Glidden and his wife were acquitted of a breach of the peace.

Albert Goss, a driver for the Howard Street Coal company, was seeing things on the eve of the 4th. He thought he saw a chance to get into a roominghouse on Green street, late at night, and supposed he could make his entry through a window. He got his head and shoulders in when the window dropped on his body and he was held there. The glass was broken in the window. A call was sent to the police station and Goss was captured in tahis predicament. Of Course he was under the influence of liquor or he would not have been found in any such mess. His home is in East Haddam, but he has been working here for some time. It was explained that Goss was gassed while he was in the navy and that when he drank some liquor he was overcome. That didn't explain the situation to the satisfaction of the court and Goss was fined. He went to jail.

John Moriarty of Groton was found at the railway station in a helpless condition of intoxication. He said he was making his way to his home, he supposed, John's mistake cost him $5 and the attending costs of his bail.

Bert de Vault, former soldier who won up Patrick Reagan, a chance acquaintance, was sent to jail for a stay of three months. He says he is through with liquor now. Reagan was released as he had been in the lockup 48 hours and was punished pretty well for intoxication.

John Harrington was arrested while he was reeling drunk, Friday night. All the front was out of him on the morning of the 4th, when he was fined $5 and paid.

William S. Mathewson, of Gales Ferry, reported to the New London police this forenoon that his mother-in-law, Mrs. P. H. Richardson, Ansonia, had been missing from the Mathewson residence since 1 o'clock Saturday. Later Mr. Mathewson informed the authorities that his mother-in-law had arrived at Gales Ferry and that her delay of over night had been caused by an automobile accident.

The New London and Groton police were busy for some time, this afternoon, making a search for an automobile carrying New York registration and from which several young men exploded revolvers close to the heads of pedestrians as the machine passed through Thames street, Groton, earlier in the day. Though a diligent search was made here for the machine, it was not located.

A Cadillac touring car, owned by Arthur A. Fain, 226 Huntington avenue, Boston, was stolen from its place of parking at Ocean Beach Saturday night. When Fain discovered the machine missing he reported his loss to Patrolman Dennis Murphy and the police of surrounding cities were requested to be on the lookout for the stolen car.

Thomas Marshall, a soldier, stationed at Fort Wright, had a close call from drowning, early this morning, when he fell into the Thames river. He was rescued by railroad employes and after his clothing had been dried at the police station, Marshall was sent to the government pier, Water street, where he boarded a transport and returned to his post.

Marshall went to the wharf of the Fishers Island Navigation company about 1 o'clock and while prowling around there lost his balance and was precipitated over the side of the wharf and into the river. Marshall's cries for help were heard by W. T. Linehan and H. E. Hamilton, members of the yard crew of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, who ran to the pier and succeeded in pulling Marshall to the wharf. A telephone message to the police caused Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray and Patrolman Edward Daniels to respond. If Marshall had been drinking his plunge completely sobered him, but to prevent after-effects, the man was taken to the police station, placed in blankets and detained there until such time as his clothing permitted its being worn without causing ill effects to the owner.

An automobile owned and operated by Frank W. Allen, of Groton, collided with a tree Saturday night, corner of Jay and Franklin street. The machine was badly damaged.

An automobile owned and operated by Louis Velano, of Gallows Lane, and a Massachusetts car, the latter bearing registration, 209,303, were in collision Saturday night, corner of Howard and Woodbridge streets. Velano's car was damaged and he declared that the driver of the Massachusetts car evade responsibility by dirving away without stopping to ascertain the extent of the damage to Velanos car.

Andrew Nelson, of 23 ..... street complained to the police Saturday afternoon that while his automobile was parked in front of his residence, Friday night, a thief visited the car and stole a spare tire.

Celebrators of the Fourth caused considerable damage by their boisterout conduct. A gang of youths in passing through State street early Saturday morning demolished a plate glass window of the Army & Navy store, Crocker house block and another gang smashed a large window of the confectionery store of Isaac Katz, 47 John street.

Mrs. Wierzorick, of 32 Sixth street, has requested the police to assist her in locating her son, Bolack, 12, who has been missing from home since Friday noon.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Drago and son, Frank, Jr., and daughter, Miss Consuelo, Hartford, spent the week end with friends in New London. Mr. Drago formerly resided in New London, at which time he was employed on newspapers as Associated Press operator.

Harold Hick, 15, son of Police Sergeant and Mrs. Samuel Hick, 54 Blydenburg avenue, was seriously and painfully injured Saturday morning while participating in the celebration of the Fourth and as a result of the accident lost a portion of two fingers of his right hand.

An automobile owned and operated by Bastino Baude, 123 Jefferson avenue, and a car owned and driven by Theodore G. Gilliland, 16 Putnam Heights, Hartford, were in collision this afternoon on Pequot avenue. Both cars were damaged, but their occupants escaped injury.

HARVEY STORE, BOARD WALK, ENTERED AND $175 STOLE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 5—The store on the Boardwalk, Ocean Beach, conducted by John Harvey, was burglarized Friday night for when the place was opened for business Saturday morning it was discovered that the store had been entered and $175 stolen. Harvey reported the robbery to the police and Sergeant John Cavanaugh was assigned to conduct an investigation. Sergeant Cavanaugh found that when the place was closed Friday at midnight by Harvey, the latter left the money in a cash register. When Harvey's son appeared at the store Saturday morning he discovered that the place had been entered and going to the cash register found the money missing. A light of glass in the rear door was smashed and by the removal of the glass the thief unlocked the door as the key had been left on the inside of the entrance.

BIG CAR OVERTURNED PASSENGERS INJURED

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 5—An automobile, a big seven passenger touring car, owned by Charles Paradise, of Brooklyn, N. Y., where Paradise is employed by the American Sheet Iron & Metal company, and driven by Mrs. Luella Paradise, his wife, with Paradises mother, Mrs. Jeanette Paradise, of Kensington avenue, New Haven; Leo Paradise, his brother, George street, New Haven; Miss Alice Hanron, New Haven, and Bernard Dupper, Brooklyn, overturned near Jordan cemetery, Waterford, Saturday afternoon. All of the passengers were injured and all are patients at Lawrence hospital.

None however, is seriously injured, Charles Paradise having sustained a fractured copula and contusions and abrasions, Leo Paradise suffered a fractured rib and bruises, contusions and lacerations, Mrs. Jeanette Paradise suffered a fractured copula and abrasions of the face and eyes, Miss Hammond suffered a fractured ligament and shock, Mrs. Luella Paradise escaped with injuries of a superficial nature.

The autoists had been spending the day with relatives here and left New London about 4:30 o'clock to go to New London. Mrs. uLella Paradise was operating the car and when about a quarter of a mile east of Jordan cemetery, Mrs. Paradise either lost control of the steering wheel or else the steering gear became disabled, for the car suddenly plunged to the left hand side of the highway and overturned. When passing autoists reached the wrecked car, the injured were placed beside the highway and a hurry call was sent to the hospital for the ambulance. With the arrival of the ambulance and nurses the injured were given emergency treatment and then removed to the institution.

ONE DEATH IN BOAT FIRE AT THAMES SHIPYARD SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 5—One youth was killed, another seriously burned and a man also seriously burned, this afternoon, when one government boat undergoing repairs at the Thames shipyard was entirely destroyed by fire, the blaze being precipitated by an explosion, presumably caused by ons of the three victims. Another boat was damaged by the flames.

The dead youth is Tony Alfiero, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Casper Alfiero, 37 Orchard street.

The injured are Joseph Alfiero, 35, brother of Tony also of 37 Orchard street, and Peter Grillo, 18, of 35 Orchard street. The injured are patients at Lawrence hospital, suffering from second degree burns about the face, head, neck and shoulders.

All three were occupants of an automobile that was driven to the shipyard about 4 o'clock. They were seen to enter the yard by the watchman and one carried a pail. When inquiry was made as to their presence in the yard one of them replied that they were going to one of the boats to call on a friend. A short time later an explosion took place and in a few seconds flames were observed leaping from the L-15 alongside of which was the L-42. A resident of that vicinity, who had heard the explosion and had seen the flames issuing from the boat, also with having observed two of the youths on one of the boats, sent a call to the police station. The hospital ambulance was summoned and in a few seconds an alarm was sent in from Box 19, located at the shippyard, for the L-15 was then a mass of flames and it was believed that other craft would fall prey to the fire. With the arrival of the firemen the L-15 was doomed to destruction and the L-42 was starting to burn. The firemen directed streams of water on the L-15, but she burned to the water's edge, but the L-42 was saved.

With the firemen fighting the flames the watchman at the shipyard and some of the firemen cared for Grillo and Joseph Alfiero until the ambulance and a nurse arrived. The two were carried to the institution, but no trace of Tony Alfiero could be found. Early this evening and following the failure of Tony to return home, one of the fire department's pumpers was stationed near the destroyed craft and the hold of the boat pumped out, with the result that the lifeless body was found.

The youth was somewhat burned about the face and head and it is believed that the explosion rendered him unconscious and that he was then drowned water being poured into the burning craft. Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman was notified and gave permission for the removal of the body to an undertaking establishment, after deciding death to have been caused by accident.

It is believed that the trio boarded the L-15 for the purpose of stealing gasoline and that while this scheme was in progress a lighted match or cigarette caused the gasoline fumes issuing from the tank to ignite and cause the fuel in the tank to explode, cashing he prisoners aboard the L-15.

Both the L-15 and the L-42 were stationed at Fort H. G. Wright and were used by the quartermaster's department in connection with the laying of cables in the vicinity of the island forts. The boats were of wooden construction and about 50 feet in length.

UNCASVILLE BOY STRUCK IN NECK BY STRAY BULLET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON July 5—Lawrence Vera, Jr., 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Vera, of Uncasville, is perhaps mortally wounded at Lawrence hospital tonight as the result of the child being struck by a stray bullet while walking with his mother, along the main thoroughfare of Uncasville yesterday afternoon. The bullet lodged in the child's neck and has not been removed, nor will it be unless the bo's condition improves to such an extent as to make an operation advisable. At the institution tonight it was stated that the child's condition is critical.

It is believed that the bullet was fired by some one unknown to the Montville authorities and from a window of a house, the owner of the weapon not being careful in his aim.

JEWETT CITY CELEBRATES FOURTH WITH FINE COMMUNITY SPIRIT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, July 5.—From the time the Baptist church bell ushered in the day at 5 o'clock, Fourth of July, until the last aerial bomb had shot out its many-colored globes and streamers at Ashland park, the celebration of Jewett City's greatest day ever, was an unqualified success.

First off, the thrice-blessed weather man had not turned a deaf ear to local petitioners, and the day was fine, mostly clear skies, with moderate temperature, and light breezes from the south and west.

Antiques and Horribles.

The big day was off with the grand parade of antiques. The fondest nightmare of the horrible fans was realized, right in action before an admiring audience of thousands all along the line.

Ben Schlieffer and John Blake led the parade, both mounted, Old Cluey Watson, was a prominent figure in the line. His mount was covered with a deer skin-blanket. Cluey carried his famous "Ore Bed" rifle, with other trappings of the woodman's craft. Around his body he wore his Mt. Misery rattle snake skin. Those who failed to recognize him, can meet him most any day. Ask "Doc," he knows!

The leading attractions were: The animals from the Jewett City wilds, which included a wild man from Borneo shaking the bars of his cage.

The African wilds exhibit, showed the Brazilian swan, the Ozark fairy and other animals in a cage. The man with the suit of bottle caps, the Lisbon lovers, the "coon" bride and groom, the honeymoon trip, the fishing party, the street minstrals and Leaping Lena, were all a real scream from start to finish.

The first prize, $25, went to "The Covered Wagon." This was an ingenious arrangement, in which two horses were operated by four boys inside the burlap skins of their motive power. The forward boys were Lowell Shorey and Joe Perry, the rear pair were Matthew Solinski and Fred Cusick, with Daniel Shorey, driver. The wagon and horses were built by the Hill street boys, under the supervision of P. W. Chase.

Second prize of $10, went to Peter Flynn, the Two-in-one man. On one side of a six foot piece of card board he appeared as a dashing maid, as the reverse was presented, a nobby colored pusson was disclosed to view.

Honorable mention was given two group floats. Fatima, the dancing skeleton and, the "'49-ers," gold digging outfit.

The judges were Dr. G. H. Jennings, Miss Alice A. Brown and N. B. Parkhurst.

Tug-of-War Winners.

The tug-of-war was pulled in Post Office square. The Jewett City team got the decision in a nip and tuck contest over the Grange 5. Prize $20.

The winners are: Ross Hansan, captain; John Medik, Andrew Bellivance, Adelor LaPort, Horace Dawley, anchor. The Grange team for the occasion was Charles Campbell, anchor; Elmer Miller, captain; L. M. Carpenter, Patrick Weaver and Gus Campbell. The 100-yard dash for boys was won by Francis Liberte, $3; second prize to William Potts, $2; third, John McKenna, $1. James Dolan, starter; F. H. Gilbert, referee.

Afternoon Sports.

The afternoon sports at Ashland Casino park were witnessed by more than 5,000. The married men got trimmed, 4 to 0, in the big ball game, the bachelors were a little too peppy for the benedicts.

The men's swimming race prizes, $5, $3 and $1, went respectively to R. Guillette, J. LeClaire and C. Petersen. The boys' swimming race prizes, of $3, $2 and $1, were taken in order by Lowell Shorey, Antoine Belisle and Mathew Sadowski.

Girls' swimming race prizes, $5, $3 and $2, were divided between the only three contestants. Miss Helen Bekanowski was a wonder, winning in a whirl, with a 75-to-the-minute, long overhand dolphin stroke. Agnes Corby and Catherine Missanzek divided second money. The diving contest, decided on points, went to Roland Gillette, 1st with, 41 points; Theodore Raill, 2nd with 36 points; Cliff Peterson, 3rd with 34 points. These contestants were required to give, front, back and jack-knife dives, with two optional somerset exhibitions.

Evening Fireworks.

At 9 p. m, a beautiful display of fireworks provided entertainment for an hour, to Jewett City people. a thousand guests and visitors from all the country around. No pyrotechnic display in this section ever held a candle to the exhibition of Saturday night.

Floats in Parade.

The grand float parade at 2 p. m. was a wonderful display. It included municipal, civic, manufacturing, trade and personal features, all formed into one magnificent pageant, that served to delight the eye and excite the wonder of close to 10,000 spectators, who cheered and clapped in appreciation of the grand display.

From the financial standpoint, it is estimated that the 44 floats cost to build, ready for the parade, close to $5,000. One along was completed at the price of $400. Several cost over $200, with plenty a little above or close to one hundred dollars.

The division of state police with Deputy Sheriff J. T. Dolan and Patrolman Henry Vegiard took the right of line, then came, as the first part of the main division, Dr. J. H. Jennings, marshal of the day, with a detachment of his aides. S. A. Thornton and William Jennings, members of the G. A. R., rode together. Following them was Warden Matthew J. Geary and members of the borough and town government and members of the committee, accompanied by the Wauregan band of 28 pieces. Marshal Jennings and his aides, all mounted, Adrien Maynard, John Blake, David Bailou, S. M. Carpenter and F. W. Chase, were in velvet Colonial costumes and wore powdered wigs.

Won First Prize, $50.

The first prize of $50, with the judges unanimous, was awarded Andrew McNicol. His entry was a beautiful great white swan, prepared from architectural plans figured out by Mrs Alex McNicol. The body was 18 feet long, with its handsome head and gracefully curved neck, raised 10 feet above its breast. In the center a finely fashioned bower and wing effect, was trimmed with crimson rambler roses. Here on a lower seat rode Mr. and Mrs. McNicol, the former driving the car. Above, on a raised floral seat, sat their little daughter Bernice. From the great bird's beak there floated back two satin ribbons, resembling reins, which in all produced the pleasing effect that the swan was being guided by the little girl. The framework was made at the workshop of the Textile company, by its own carpenters. Then with infinite pains and skill, Mrs. Alex McNicol covered the body with gathered and tucked white muslin, making the touch of real feathers complete.

Won Second Award.

The second prize of twenty-five dollars was taken by the Baptist church. Their float was the plan of the pastor, Rev. E. E. Scates, executed and supervised by George H. Prior. It was a facsimile of the local church with the Holy writings as its foundation. It was placed in an outdoor surrounding of evergreen trees and of lattice work, filed with roses. Six girls dressed in white carried white banners topped with doves, and bearing gold letters signifying different organigations in the church. Beatrice Cathcait's banner represented the Sunday school, Winifred Scates, Women's Missionary Society, Vera McBroome's, Children's World Crusaders, Ellen Prior's the Christian Endeavor Society and Kathleen Dearnley's the World Wide Guild. On the white, draperies were the words Good Will to All.

The church was built by Samuel Cathcart, Lemuel Green and E. C. Tarbox and painted by R. J. Guy. The decorations were by Miss Mabel McBroome, Mrs. Nelbert Myatt, Miss Doris Myatt and Mrs. E. M. Swift.

Won Special Honors

A third prize of twenty-five dollars was donated by George A. Ross and went to Textile Novelty Co., whose float was an immense fifteen foot basket of roses filled with small children, over which was suspended the words American Beauties. A small Uncle Sam and little girls in fancy dresses added to the beauty of the float.

In the basket were Lucile Langlais, Agnes Connelly, Vivian Parissean, Arlene, Viola and Rita McKenna, Clarence Wheeler and William Purdon, Jr., Nor Bashaw was a page, and two little girls from Norwich, Lucille Bowen and a child named Bernadette, were Uncle Sam and a fancy dress character.

International President

Honorable mention was given the beautiful float of the local organization's of the King's Daughters. It had a feature which no other town or city in any country could have at present in any parade, a resident who is an International president. On a purple draped throne under a beautiful canopy of purple and white wistaria, was seated Mrs. George H. Prior, a resident of Griswold, and International president. Purple draperies on which were silver crosses, hung from the float. Arches and lattice work of purple and white were at either end, the emblem I. H. N. on a large silver cross and a motto "Be Not Weary in Well Doing" were on the sides and back. Four pages, members of Pathfinders' Circle, Doris Carpenter, Doris Bliven, Verna Tarbox and Arlene Sullivan with cross-tipped wands were a guard of honor. The president of Whatsoever Circle, Miss Alice A. Brown and Mrs. L. D. Howe, vice president of Dorcas Circle, and the driver of the float Mrs. Charles T. Armstrong a member of Whatsoever Circle rode on the float. The work was done by Miss Brown, Misses Ida Foster, Mabel Wilcox, Grace Olin, Ethel Fisk, Beatrice Read, and Lillian Barber.

The Very Rev. Michael McCabe council, Knights of Columbus, came in for honorable mention. An exact replica of theflagship Santa Maria was built in accordance with a scale of measured feet. Mounted atop a great truck, its length was 22 feet. On the deck, in velvet costume, just forward of the mainmast, Dennis Griffin, impersonating Columbus, stood leaning slightly forward, peering ahead, with eyes shaded by his uplifted hand. Timothy Shea stood upon the main deck, clad in the robes of a priest. The sailors were Robert Gelino, Earl Nichols, Edward Walsh, Joseph Guillotte, and William McGoven. The general effect was at once unique and appealing. They were accompanied by Philip Melady as mounted guard.

Won Honorable Mention

Wechler's self service grocery deserved its honorable mention. In the center a raised pillar with bunting streamers were a part of the decorations, white overhead, hundreds of vari-colored wistaria blossoms were fashioned to appear like the blooms on a twining vine. Madeline Raill, Laureta Symington, Grace Kolbus and Mary Kulas, were attractions not overlooked by the judges.

John Malek's bakery automobile cart was elaborately decorated, having a pyramid of rye and apples, and a windmill on the top with an eagle and decorated ring of bread made from dough in the front and rear of the cart, His son, Mitchell, rode with him.

Lague's barber shop float had two barber chairs, Irene Stewart being seated in the bobbed hair chair, Ransom Hanson in the hair cut and shave chair and little Rita Exley in the baby's chair. With Mr. Lague were his assistants, George Lucier and Joseph Rubis.

Undaunted lodge, K. of P., had a float decorated in yellow, blue and white with the national colors, carrying the third rank team in full regalia, a very striking outfit.

Earl E. Gilbert showed a house under process of construction. The men at work plastering and carpentering were Russel Cook, Henry Olson, Charles King, Ben Kolburg, Levi and Dona Dugas.

House on Wheels

Willian McNicol advertised his real estate and insurance business with Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Jaber, the "Midget's House on Wheels. The outside was covered in advertisements and inside rode Mr. McNicol, Donald McNicol and Robert Bliss.

Reliance lodge, I. O. O. F., and Ruthie Rebekah lodge had a Good Samaritan truck decorated in bunting in which rode Past Grands G. H. Thornton, Irving Thornton and Frank Mellitan their regalia. Noble Grand Ethel Fisk, Degree Mistress Esther Harr's and District Deputy Louise Holmes, representing the second degree team, with the second degree emblem I. N. N. in plain view.

The American Polish corporation's float was made in the form of a decorated store, with Stanley Skaradowski and Stanley Parcych as clerks.

The Jewett City Rock Water Bottling Works' float was arranged with shelves of numberless bottles of various kinds of soda. In the float rode Stella Adeline and Helen Glowacki. Rena Cassavant, Alice Paniski, John Jasinski and Mary Parcycn.

Maynard Bros' float carried toilet accessories and Delco light water system machinery, with Charles Downing as driver.

Fred Maynard's float demonstrated ice cream and college ices, driven by Alpherie Maynard, accompanied by George Gill.

Red Cross Float

Jewett City chapter, American Red Cross float, was all of white adorned with red crosses. Under a tent made of the chapter's Red Cross flag lay on a cot a patient, Josephine Hourigan, by whose side sat Nurse Margery Leyden, a member of the executive board. The chapter chairman, Miss M. A. Burdick, carried the American flag. Misses Ethel Rood and Arlene Burdick were also seated on the float. The words "We Serve" were on the draperies.

St. Jean de Baptist float carried Master Servule Maynard, wearing a lambskin representing the saint; a live lamb stood upon the float.

Lloyd Wechsler was in charge of Wechsler's sample truck.

Three-Year Old Driver

Adam Rojeski entered a brand new 8-cylinder Hupmobile, mounted atop a raised floor, on a large service truck. This machine was jacked off its wheels and was running under its own power. Seated at the wheel was his little three-year-old daughter Dorothy. Four little playmate passengers were her guests for the ride. The truck decorations were done in colored bunting.

Ashland Cotton Co.

The Ashland Cotton company put in a very attractive float, with Mary Sokuls, Odna Dugan, Mrs. Velo Asbey and Edwardina Boucher, sitting in a rustic bower of roses. The chairs were of ancient design, an old time spinning wheel being operated in the center.

Ferris Airemony and Son had a finely trimmed float, with rose bowers on top and floral and bunting shields. Betty Hourigan, Evelyn Carr, Lillian Bryant, Dorothy Exley, Beatrice Aremony, Jennie and Louise Rojenski, in attractive frocks, added to the beauty of the display.

Pachaug Grange.

The Pachaug Grange entered a small truck with red, white and blue decorations. The Graces of the order were passengers, Clara Hyde, Marion Frink, Edith Tift, Blanche Montgomery and Mabel Frink.

"King of Sports."

Attention was attracted to the float presented by the Ashland club, gaily trimmed, carrying the slogan, King of Sports. Mrs. P. W. Chase, the sponsor for the club, recognized as the champion for swimming and any out-of-door sport, was accompanied by the following sport and game representatives: Kenneth Carpenter, Wanda Solenski, Natalie Harper, Almira Perry, Agnes Corby, Kathryn Missaszek, Medos Raill, Joe Lamphy, Raymond James, Josie Gawronski, Nellie Missaszek, Louis Segal. Mrs. Chase attended little Kenneth Carpenter seated on a tiny throne, in the character of the King of Sports.

Seven Dancing Girls.

The A. C. G. club offered a float surpassed by none for daintiness of design and plan. The scheme of color was carried out in yellow and white with Chinese lanterns and balloons. Seven girls, who gave occasional graceful waltz figures, added a touch of beauty in themselves, that served to enhance their pleasing surroundings. The girls were Doris Burr, Julia Sayles, Gladys Jeffers, Flora Littlefield, Mildred McClusgage and Mildred Olsen.

Aspinook's Two Fine Floats.

The Aspinook company entered two floats, attractively illustrating in actual color the textile possibilities of this well known concern. The red, white and blue float was first, with Miss Ruth Rathbun, standing on a raised center, surrounded by fourteen other girls: Rose Grenier, Louise Wood, Violet Harris, Cleo Couture, Pauline Morency, Lipcard Couture, Ruby Gray, Mary Wilkinson, Anna McNally, Tillie Strabner, Mabel Burns, Ida Marion and Yvonne Mecteau. The second truck, was fitted with two high seats upon which rode, carrying gayly colored parasols, Misses Margarett and Madeline Gill. They are twins, and none could say that either was handsomer than the other. There were sixteen other girls, Norine Guillet, Agnes McGovern, Evelyn Wilber, Agnes Gill, Emma Richards, Irene Roberts, Vivian McLaughlin, Ora LeRue, Albina Richards, Eva Raill, Bridget Shippee, Dorothy Church, Orpha Church, Freda Sholes, Erline McNally, Mary Miss. The wonder of this display is seen, when it is known that each of these 33 girls wore a different dress, of many colors and many designs. The dresses were all made by Mrs. Kate Liberty, of Jewett City.

The materials, sateen, draperies, dress goods, voiles and silks were all printed and finished by the Aspinook company, John Jacobs, the boss of the finishing department, was in charge of the float design.

Chapman and Tripp, put in a truck trimmed in star print-bunting, with an exhibit of finished lumber products and house building material.

The Standard Oil Co. made an attractive business exhibit, answerable to the handsome decorating of a new model 1100 gallon tank wagon truck. The word Socony, in large letters on either side, were done in bridled silk letters, adorned with rambler roses.

F. J. Burr had an exhibition of speed trucks. The J. C. Auto Sales Co., had to show a neatly trimmed truck carrying a modern wrecking crane.

In Laurel Bower

F. H. Gilbert's float, was second to no other in the matter of the labor necessary to complete its construction. In size it approached the measurements of a small house. The outside and top were completed covered with small sprigs of laurel leaves, all attached and secured singly. Its appearance was that of an emerald bower.

Inside, Mildred Gilbert represented Jewett City, Marion Jeffers appeared as Connecticut and Wayland Frink in costume represented the U. S. A.

Edward Rousseau entered a truck upon which were displayed various samples from his stock in trade, including an attractive radio display.

Bellivance, the ice man, carried a load of 16 living, up-and-coming children, that commanded attention, with merrily tooted horns.

Joseph Kuszenas, put in a fine exhibit, gaily decorated, with piled up samples of trade. Riding in the back was a young man, and Miss Anna Ruszenas, busily making sandwiches.

Story of the Forests.

Court Griswold F. of A. won attention with a decorated truck, with a cargo of green white pine cuttings, telling the story of the forests.

R. W. Dearnley, entered an attractive trade float, serving to bring to the attention of the spectators, the many lines of merchandise he is able to supply.

The Durant automobile advertised their cars with a finely finished truck.

Finn Bros. were on hand with their delivery truck, looking fine in a suit of new bunting. A display was to be seen of various articles of trade.

The Palace Theatre of Norwich entered an advertising truck.

D. A. R. Prize Car.

Among the decorated automobiles Anne Brewster Fanning Chapter, D. A. R., received first prize, ten dollars. It was decorated in blue and white, the back of the car being covered with insignia and the front with the chapter name. In the automobile were seated the regent, Mrs. Charles E. Spicer, and Mrs. H. E. Olson, Miss Ida Foster and Miss Eleanor Stetson, all very fascinating in their Colonial costumes. The driver, Harold Faust, was also in Colonial costume.

D. F. Finn's automobile was entirely covered with pink rambler roses and received second prize of five dollars.

Another decorated automobile was that of the American Legion Auxiliary. The automobile was covered in bunting, with the flags of all nations on the engine. In the automobile were Mrs. LaFlamme, mother of the young man for whom the post is named, carrying a gold star flag, Mrs. Pechie, whose husband died during the World War, with a gold star flag, Mrs. Maynard wit hher five-star flag, and Mrs. N. J. Babcock and her grandson with the DesJardin three-star flag. James Dolan drove the automobile. A box filled with red, white and blue flowers was placed on each running board.

Abraham Zegeer drove a beautifully decorated automobile, three children Olga and Corinne Zegeer and Martha Gray being dressed in red, white and blue respectively.

Joseph Ruszenas, Elias Anthony and Mike David drove profusely decorated automobiles, carrying their families.

F. J. Burr had a decorated Star automobile with a large revolving star on each side. Dorilda La Fleche, Margaret Jordan, Stella Sidoski and Sarah Centerhar were in this car.

Lucy Culver, with a handsome mount, she being dressed in khaki, was an attractive feature of the parade.

The A. A. Young, Jr., Hose and Ladder Co. put in their truck, showing at its best, stripped for service. There was a detachment of 20 men, with Chief Thomas Wakely at the right; their presentation trumpets added color and class to their neat and business like appearance.

The boy scouts, Samuel Green, leader, came in for their share of honor in the great parade, there were 12 boys in line, all in regulation uniform.

The Polish societies, with St. Casimir in lead, turned out 420 men and 45 boys, the latter carrying flags, and having mortorboard hats and crimson sashes. They were accompanied by their own band, the White Eagle of Willimantic. Their appearance was fine, and was the cause for much complimentary comment.

The bands in the parade, were all excellent. A fine rearrangement of the music plan, at the last minute, seemed the right idea, and resulted in the best possible musical programs. The bands were Wauregan, St. James of Danielson, Klitie, of South Manchester, and the White Eagle, The East Side Drum Corps of Norwich, were the finest kind of drummers, they played all day, their work was of the best, and they seemed tireless.

The early evening block dancing was taken from the streets to Ashland park. Too much tar retarded the tripping of the light fantastic.

Fine Traffic Regulations

The police regulations were perfect. State Policemen Stremen and Williams acted with the local officers.

After the fireworks over 5,000 automobiles from all the surrounding country left Ashland Park. Traffic regulations were necessary at every corner and crossing. No accident marred the day.

Filming the Parade

Finn's Theatre Rad a moving picture man from New Haven at work all day taking views of the parade and different interesting events, places and people. They will be shown here and in several adjacent towns very soon. The operator said that he never had seen anything so exquisite in a parade as the Swan which took the prize and spoke in a most complimentary manner of the get up of the other floats.

Fanning Park Resplendent

Through the generosity of David Hale Fanning of Worcester, under the direction of Mrs. G. A. Haskell, Fanning Park was attractively decorated with lines of flags of all countries arranged from the monument to the sides of the park. Laurel garlands entwined the monument on which was a laurel wreath. Electric lights were added and flags made it a beauty spot.

Edmond Jordan's house received first prize and Edward A. Faust's house second prize for the best decorated houses in town. The houses all along the line of march were one blaze of color. Hourigan Bros. window had a patriotic feature, for it contained a large photograph of Orville La Flamme, with guns and helmet, the American flag waving above all giving a camp effect with its carpet of soft grass.

Judged the Floats

The judges of the floats, automobiles and houses were Mrs. George Briggs, of Voluntown, Miss Katherine Mallett of Norwich, William Kaufmann of Voluntown and George A. Ross of Lisbon and Wellesley Hills.

Energetic Committees

The general committee for the Fourth of July celebration comprised M. J. Geary, chairman, Maxcy Seymour, Alex McNicol, John T. Dolan and Edmund J.

DANIELSON

[illegible] to remain for the summer season.

GROTON STATE OFFICER ASSAULTED BY NEW YORKERS

(Special to the Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, July 5.—At Packer, late on the afternoon of the Fourth, State Officer Ross V. Urquhart of the Danielson barracks, rounded up three New Yorkers who will have to answer in Waterford, near New London, for a malicious and unprovoked assault on State Officer Bobnic of the Groton barracks.

Sunday papers carried stories relative to the incidents that led to the arrest of New Yorkers in what is perhaps the most serious instance of resisting a state officer that has developed in eastern Connecticut in years.

State Officer Bobnic was courteous in his treatment of the New Yorkers, and for his pains was beaten into unconsciousness by the two men, with the alleged assistance of the woman that was riding with them in a Cadillac sedan bearing New York registration. Charles J. Stevens of 39 Fulton street, Astoria, L. I., was driver of the car and riding on the front seat of the machine with him was Allen McDougall, of Long Island City. Sadie Gilberti of 101 Academy street, Dutch Hill, L. I., was occupying the seat in the rear of the sedan. All three of them will face charges of an assault on a state officer that has outraged the dignity of the state and challenges the authority of members of the state police department of Connecticut, in its efforts to control traffic and make a motor trip safe for the average person who uses the highways.

The usual inquiry of a state officer accosting a motoring party, stopped for any reason—as to where the party was from and its destination—gave the cue that led to the arrest of the three New Yorkers after they had beaten up the state officer and departed unceremoniously, while other motor parties that happened along and stopped to see the fracas stood idly by and offered no assistance to the representative of the state.

A message from the Groton barracks to the Danielson barracks told of how Officer Bobnic had been beaten into unconsciousness by a party of New York motorists and had been taken to the Memorial hospital at New London; also conveyed the information that upon regaining his senses the beaten officer had said that the party admitted its destination as Packer, in the town of Plainfield. This information was relayed to Officer Urquhart, who happened to be on duty at Plainfield. Officer Urquhart, with a relative immediately went over into Packer on a search for the wanted parties and was successful in locating them, the officer seeing the closed New York car parked in the rear of a house that has been rented for the summer by Mrs. McDougall, whose husband was on his way to spend the week end with her.

A family gathering was at the table for a meal when Officer Urquhart entered and placed the accused parties under arrest. They made no resistance and were taken in the New York car, driven by Officer Urquhart, over to Plainfield and held there until about 10:30 Saturday night, when they were turned over to officers from the Groton barracks and taken to New London.

The version of State Officer Bobnic's misfortune, as related here, is that he was riding his motorcycle on a patrol of the New London-Saybrook road when the New York car attracted his attention on account of the speed at which it was being driven and the manner in which it was "cutting-in," a regular stunt for New Yorkers when they are out in what they are pleased to call "the sticks." Officer Bobnic trailed the car for several miles, eventually overhauled it and ordered the driver to turn about and proceeded to the home of a trial justice in Waterford. Relenting on the way, Officer Bobnic reversed his decision and allowed the New Yorkers again to turn about and head in the direction of New London, warning them proceed as they should. All was amicable up to that point. Having released the party, Officer Bobnic again took up trailing them. It is understood that the driving again was of such a nature that the officer felt it his duty to order another halt of the car. This he did. Stevens, driver, is alleged to have told the officer a hard luck story about not having any money after being obliged to buy a new tire on the road. He got out of the car to show the officer the tire and McDougall also got out. In the meantime Officer Bobnic had expressed his intention of searching the car because of a number of suspicious looking packages and a suit case in the machine. To this arrangement the driver consented, but the woman violently protested. She, incidentally, had two children, age about two and four years with her.

While the officer and two men were out of the car, McDougall, it is alleged struck Officer Bobnic in the face with his fist and sent him sprawling over the officer's motorcycle, which had been jacked up for a park. The first blow was followed by a massed assault on the officer, the net result of which was being rendered unconscious and left beside the highway. He has cuts on the head and face and numerous abrasions. Some of the motoring parties who happened along, but offered no assistance to the officer, took the number of the New York car. This with the fact that Officer Bobnic later was able to tell that the party had said to him that it was destined for Packer enabled Officer Urquhart to get the members of the party and turn them over to the Groton barracks police.

visits after he lived in Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Chester E. May, of East Woodstock, knew him very well and Mr. May often called at his office when in Boston.

Justin S. Greene, of Center street, who was a boy in Woodstock at the time, remembers Mr. Wood very well. He was a bond salesman and Mr. Greene still has some securities that were purchased by his father from Mr. Wood.

Mr. Wood and the late Ebenezer Bishop, who maintained a summer home in Woodstock, were life-long friends and for several years were associated in business in Boston, as real estate and bond brokers. For a while they had adjoining offices on School street and later on Tremont street.

It is believed that Mr. Wood's intimacy with Mr. Bishop was one of the factors that led to his interest in the hospital here, which culminated in the bequest of a quarter of a million dollars.

His ashes were taken to Canterbury, the former home of his father and in his will $300 is left to the town for taking care of the lot in the cemetery there.

Mrs. Charles Maheu has been spending the past week with relatives in Pawtucket and New Bedford.

Mrs. Wallace Whitney spent the holiday and week end at Gloucester, Mass.

Miss Mary Wilmerding, of New York, is spending the summer at Pomfret.

TWO OF TEN CHILDREN MISSED WHEN BUILDING GETS AFIRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, July 5.—A fire believed to have been caused by an explosive thrown by boys who were celebrating the Fourth, partially destroyed the building in the rear of the brick block on South Main street occupied by the Motor Supply company and Williams' Fish Market, about 1 o'clock Saturday morning. The rear building, which was used as a storage room, was almost destroyed and a third business room on Main street, formerly used as a bowling alley, was badly damaged. The flames did not do much damage to the Motor Supply store and the fish market, but the contents of the former suffered from water and smoke. It is owned by John McArdle, whose home is in Worcester, Mass. The building is the property of Mrs. Samuel Smith, also of Worcester, whose husband, until a few months ago was the proprietor of the City hotel, just north of it.

The top floor was a tenement occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Jones and their family of ten children, the youngest but a few months old. Nearly all of them emerged from the burning building by the stairway but after the firemen arrived, one of the children was seen at a window and was brought down on a ladder. The cries of another child were heard and it was rescued in the same manner. Then the roll was called and all were found safe and unharmed.

The quick response and excellent work on the part of the department saved the City hotel, which is a wooden structure. An approximate estimate of the loss is from $8,000 to $10,000.

At noon Sunday, one of the department trucks was called to extinguish a blaze in the same building. It had been smoldering a day and a half.

The Day Kimball hospital had only one patient, as the result of indulgence in Fourth of July explosives. Karl Gaibbus, fourteen years old, of Woodstock, was shooting blank cartridges and a piece of a cap penetrated his hand. It was removed and the usual precautions taken to prevent the danger of tetanus.

MYSTIC

Extra precautions were taken July Fourth by having extra patrolmen on duty and Fire and Hook and Ladder companies were ready for a call. The stores selling fireworks have had good displays in the show windows.

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE
PLANS AND SPECIFICATIONS FOR STATE OF CONNECTICUT.
In conformity with the provisions of Section 64 of the General Statutes, Revision of 1918, "An Act Regulating the Employment of Architects on Public Buildings," architects are hereby invited to submit competitive plans for the following named building for the Connecticut Agricultural College, to wit:
Dormitory for men in Storrs, Conn.
to be approximately the same size as present dormitory building, or 30 ft. x 154 ft., with 2 ells 28 ft. x 54 ft. each, three stories, fire-proof, conforming to style of architecture of present buildings.
Not more than $158,000.00 will be available for building, including architects' fees.
An estimate of cost, from a reliable contractor will be required to be submitted with each plan.
Further details may be had of Agricultural College, Storrs, Conn.
All plans must be signed by the architect and deposited with the Comptroller of the State, at his office in the Capitol, City of Hartford, not later than Monday, August 3, 1925, at 11 o'clock, standard time.
The committee in charge will give, in accordance with law, a public hearing on said plans in Comptroller's Office, Room 3, on August 3d, at 12 o'clock, standard time.
The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.
Dated at Hartford, Connecticut, this thirtieth day of June, 1925.
FREDERICK M. SALMON,
Comptroller.

THE ABUNDANT LOVE.

"Who shall separate us from the love of Christ?"—Rom. VIII. 35.

"Love of Christ, it passeth knowledge"—
E'en as sunlight floods the air,
Fills all space with boundless volume,
Yet each tiny flower may share,
So the love of Christ, pervasive,
Makes the whole wide world its goal,
Pours its warmth and light and glory
Freely round each human soul.

"Love of Christ, it passeth knowledge"—
Like deep ocean tides that flow
Brimming every nook and crevice
The wave-echoing coasts may know—
So the love of Christ, outflowing,
O'er each human soul may sweep,
Satisfying, and bestowing
Joys to flood each bosom deep.

"Love of Christ, it passeth knowledge"—
As the circumambient air
Is for every sentient being
Source of breath and life, so fair,
So Christ's wondrous love, infinite,
Yields its free, life-giving power,
Inbreathed by prayer, by faith received
Life abundant is its dower.

Grant my soul, O Christ, to know
Thy surpassing love so free,
On my heart tis warmth bestow,
Cause my own heart flower to blow—
Life with swelling tides o'erflow,
Drowning every impulse low—
Sate my soul with breadth Divine,
Bid Thy life encompass mine;
Love so great, yet love so free,
Dear ever be the Christ to me!
—By Rev. George G. Phipps.

THE ARROW AND THE SONG.

I shot an arrow into the air,
It fell to earth, I knew not where;
For, so swiftly it flew, the sight
Could not follow it in its flight.

I breathed a song into the air,
It fell to earth, I knew not where;
For who has sight so keen and strong
That it can follow the flight of song?

Long, long afterward, in an oak
I found the arrow, still unbroke;
And the song, from beginning to end,
I found again in the heart of a friend.
—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

FITCHVILLE CELEBRATED THE FOURTH WITH ABOUNDING PATRIOTRIC SPIRIT

One of the greatest throngs ever assembled in this vicinity for a jolly time participated in the Independence day festivities at Fitchville on Saturday. The village surrendered unconditionally to as gay and merry an assembly of humans as ever got together. From all parts of the fair state of Connecticut, and from sister states as well, the crowd gathered for unrestrained frolicking.

The celebration really started tha "Night before the Fourth," if the noise of giant fire-crackers exploding and the terrific roar of the well-known Fitchville cannon can be taken as an indication. Through the wee small hours of the night and to the annoyance of many of the older villagers, the pandemonium was kept up, but when the sun tinted the eastern sky the noisy turmoil ceased as if by magic for the glorious Fourth had been ushered in according to old-fashioned form and tradition.

For a community celebration Fitchville is ideally situated. The trunk line from Hartford to Norwich runs through the hamlet which is the center of one of the most picturesque and entrancing sections of New England. The village is located on the shores of a beautiful lake and the water rolls up almost to the border of the back street of the "New Village." To the southeast of this newer section of the community Palmer hall is situated and stretching from the hall and extending to the Yantic river a grove of tall and stately pines, hemlock and deciduous trees afforded a suitable place for the erection of booths, tables and all the apparatus requisite for a day of enjoyment and sport. The decorations of booths, tables and hall were pleasing to the eye, the diversified color of the flowers, flags, bunting and other embellishments used made the scene of the midway and dinner one of beauty.

To start the day properly a league game between the New London and Fitchville teams of the P. B. league was played on the Cannon Hill grounds during the morning, Fitchville winning the spirited contest, 9 to 2. Following the game the players and spectators ascended to the "Pines" at Palmer hall, where a vigorous and well-directed attack was made upon the entrenchments of the clan Clam Chowder, but the latter, under the direction of the most efficient chef, Mr. Chappell, refused to be ousted entirely from the stew kettle and upon the consummation of the drive reinforcements were still in reserve.

Just prior to the moment when the gastronomists were satisfied, Charles Kingsberger, a local citizen with considerable experience in public speaking and platform work, in a short speech of welcome introduced George S. Palmer, of New London, president of the Palmer Bros. Co., to the gathering. Mr. Kingsberger, in his prefatory remarks, stated that George Washington is known, and rightly so, as the "Father of our Country" and that Fitchville was signally honored in having present the Hon. George S. Palmer whom he felt sure merited the appellation "Father of our Village." Mr. Palmer, although taken by surprise at such a manifestation of esteem, proved to be a most successful after-dinner speaker. After complimenting the general committee upon the excellence of the dinner the speaker humorously stated that he offered no apology for the showing of the New London team in the morning's game. Continuing his extemporaneous address, Mr. Palmer expressed his feelings of affection and hearty thankfulness for that the citizens of Fitchville had done for him and his brothers. He also paid tribute to the brave men and women who gave us Independence day. With feeling he elaborated eloquently upon the bravery and fortitude of the men who went forward in the World war to demonstrate that the men of today possessed the traits of character and self-denial possessed by our forefathers, and that ideals are worth fighting for, if worth having at all. With admirable facetiousness and to the huge delight of the gathering he alluded to the persons who predict that the country is going to perdition just because modern woman wants to exercise her new liberties.

Upon the conclusion of Mr. Palmer's address Mr. Kingsberger led the assembly in three hearty cheers for the speaker and followed this by introducing Mr. Johnson, president of the P. B. league, who in a short speech made fitting response. Then after leading in three hearties for the second speaker the toastmaster explained the several features of the establishment that had been set up for the delectation and entertainment of visitors and guests.

Previous to the afternoon game the midway did a rushing business but at 3 o'clock the hundreds made their way to the ball grounds where the Yantic ball club was sent home on the small end of an 11 to 3 score. The drum corps, duplicating last year's feat, led the march to the grounds. Unfortunately Col. Fowler, the hero of last year's parade, was not present for this occasion, much to the regret and disappointment of the crowd.

After the game athletic events were run off—suitable prizes being given in each event. The jumping in the men's running high jump was especially good, Webster, of Colchester, clearing at the top of the supports.

In the early evening the refreshments, supper and the midway were great attractions and at 8 o'clock a novelty act by the Arnolds and Betty of Hartford was staged in Palmer hall before a capacity crowd that could not all find admittance. Seldom do professional performers live up to the glowing tribute of the press agent but in this case the performance was superior to all advance rumors. Having starred for seven years on the stage in many of the larger cities of New England the juveniles gave evidence of thorough and complete training. From the intital number on the program the "full-to-the-door" house was captivated and thrilled. Betty, the toe dancer, was exceedingly artistic in her numbers and received generous applause. The Arnolds were apparently dancers naturally as well as by preference and their exhibition was surprisingly good. Their dances were new and full of "pep." The older Arnold made a very clever impersonation of a girl and completely fooled the hundreds present with his act. E. P. Frink, under whose management the troupe is performing, at the conclusion of the entertainment introduced each member of his company and in a few appropriate remarks gave the age and history of each. Although each number given was particularly good, the military number by the entire company, earned and merited the enthusiastic reception it received. Miss Mildred Arnold, concert pianist, played for the act, which added considerable to the performance.

After the entertainment the hall was cleared and the large crowd was entertained by an excellent display of fireworks. Many of the large sky-rockets carried clear across the pond and were seen to burst among the trees hundreds of yards away.

Although the midway attracted many throughout the evening a dance, featuring both round and square dances, proved to be popular. Prof. Edward, probably the best-known prompter in this section, was in charge and much of the success of the affair during the evening was due to his untiring efforts. Smith's orchestra, of Norwich, gave one of the best exhibitions of excellent orchestral music ever heard in this village. The music was full of pep and certainly took the crowd off its feet. One habitual frequenter of dances in Norwich stated that the music was the best he ever had the pleasure of dancing to. All such remarks helped increase the good nature of the gathering and the success of the event.

Fitchville can look back upon a glorious Fourth—such a retrospection will be one of satisfaction, for the knowledge that Fitchville's celebration was without doubt second to none in Connecticut should please all those who in any way contributed to the success of the day.

BRAKE TEST SHOWED MANY CARELESS DRIVERS

A check-up made by the state motor vehicle department of the records of approximately 400 automobiles the brakes of which were tested by the Hartford police department without warning, shows that 25 per cent. of those whose cars were found to have defective brakes are on record in the master file of the motor vehicle department for carelessness in operation. On the other hand, about 20 per cent., of those whose brakes were reported by the Hartford police to be satisfactory, have records in the motor vehicle department. It is believed that many in the latter class were impressed by their previous experience and took precautions, such as having their brakes adjusted, to avoid a repetition.

The Hartford police, in making their tests, took every car that came along, without discrimination. A distance of thirty-seven feet was marked off by white lines on a certain street. The driver of a car was then instructed to approach the first line at a speed of twenty miles an hour, applying his brake as he reached the line. If he failed to stop the car by the time he reached the next line, his brakes were adjudged defective. An independent test was made for the foot brakes and the emergency brakes. About 63 per cent. of the cars reported as having defective brakes had inadequate emergency brakes, about 30 per cent. had poor brakes and approximately 17 per cent. were found with both sets of brakes defective. Fifty-two per cent. of the cars were owned by Hartford people. In cases where defective brakes were found, the drivers were asked to have them corrected and to return for a further inspection.

Commissioner Stoeckel has written Chief Garrett J. Farrell of the Hartford Police Department that he believes the brake test did much good.

FIREWORKS TREAT IS GIVEN FOR FIREMEN

Through the kindness of "Jackie" Wilson, proprietor of Jack's Sport Shop, the firemen at Central Fire Station were given a treat Saturday night from 10 o'clock until about 10:30 o'clock. Beautiful set pieces, flower pots, roman candles, sky-rockets, fountains and many other night pieces were set off from the lawn adjoining the station much to the pleasure of the firemen, who were quick to voice their appreciation of the treat by Mr. Wilson. The display of fireworks was one of the prettiest seen in the center of the city in some time.

The display came to a close when the department was summoned to the Franklin street fire about 10:30 o'clock.

FARMER'S WEEK PROGRAMME PREPARED AT STORRS

Farmers' Week at the Connecticut Agricultural College is coming from August 4th to 7th inclusive.

The bookkeepers on Tuesday and Wednesday will discuss diseases, apiary methods and selling methods, led by experts from within and without the state.

The poultrymen will open their festivities with a banquet on the 3rd and will have a program stressing feeding and sanitation. They will dedicate a Memorial House that has been built by them to the memory of Judge W. H. Card, for many years one of the leading poultrymen of the state.

The fruit growers on Wednesday will dedicate the new Horticultural Storage Building and their program will naturally center about storage problems. Mr. Marble of the Rockgrit Orchards, Canton, Pa., and Professor Anthony of Penn State will be the leaders in the discussion.

The feed dealers of the state, who have held an annual conference at the college for five years, are this year combining with Farmers' Week and will co-operate in the live stock and dairy program.

This latter program will cover three days. On Wednesday the discussions will center about growing young stock, on Thursday about the feeding of producing animals and on Friday about milk producing and marketing. Several significant speakers including Mr. Sheets, Chief of the Division of Animal Husbandry, U. S. D. A., President Park of Park and Pollard Company, President Little of the New England Milk Producers' Association, Mr. Lewis of the Dairymen's League and Mrs. Hough of the Connecticut Milk Producers' Association will be on the program.

Last year's conference of rural religious workers was so successful that a second conference is being held this year under the leadership of Rev. George B. Gilbert, of Middletown, the Pastoral Parson. The topic of the county home will be discussed by rural workers representing the Catholic, Jewish and Protestant faiths.

In addition to these specialized programs there will be programs for home makers daily with topics varying from how to set up a sewing machine to how to choose dresses and hats. One day, Friday, will be devoted to the question of health, with addresses by Dr. Valeria H. Parker, Miss Nickerson of the state board of health, and Dr. Jackson of the New Haven children's bureau.

Even the children are not forgotten for there will be a playground for runabouts and care for infants during program hours at the college infirmary.

Two of the evening speakers are George L. Farley, State Club Leader of Massachusetts and Charles M. Gardner, formerly Master of the Massachusetts State Grange.

From first to last the program, as usual, will have "Something for Everybody Every Day."

GARDNER LAKE WILL HAVE FIREWORKS DISPLAY

The annual evening display of fireworks at Gardner Lake is to take place this (Monday) evening about 9 o'clock and will be a joint display by C. V. Pendleton of Norwich and Milo Light, director of Camp Cadaho, Gardner lake. It will comprise bombs and set pieces and will be similar to the beautiful exhibition given at Jewett City on the night of July 4th, in charge of Mr. Pendleton.

In past years the display has been set off from the island in the lake, but this year the display is to be touched off from the grounds of Camp Cadaho and therefore only the bombs will be visible from the west shore of the lake. People who visit the lake, however, will be welcomed at Camp Cadaho where parking space is available, and thus be able to witness the entire display which will last for over an hour.

BROKE NECK DIVING AT PLEASANT VIEW

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, July 5—Howard Gilmore, 24, of New Bedford, Mass., who is visiting his mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary P. Robinson of 52 Ledward avenue, Westerly, while in bathing this afternoon about 5 o'clock at Pleasant View, dived into shallow water, striking his head a glancing blow. He was helped ashore and in his bathing suit placed in an automobile and taken to his mother-in-laws home in Westerly, where Dr. John Champlin found that he had fractured the fourth and fifth cervicles vertebrae.

His son, Dr. John Champlin Jr., and Dr. Harry McCusker of St. Joseph's hospital, Providence, assisted Dr. Champlin in reducing the fracture and it is hoped that Gilmore will recover, but this will not be known for another 24 hours.

SUNDAY BAND CONCERT AT MOHEGAN PARK

The first of a series of band concerts was given Sunday afternoon at Mohegan park, by the Italian band, under the leadership of Prof. Pasquale Puca, and was enjoyed by hundreds of people who had gone to the park to escape the heat of the day.

Practically every boat at the lake was in use throughout the day and many family picnics were enjoyed, the swings, see-saws and other amusement apparatus in the park affording pleasure to many.

A number of local people who visited the park Sunday for the first time in a number of years remarked about the coolness of the air about the lake. They agreed that Norwich has a park of which it may well be proud and that Ocean Beach, with its teeming throng of humans, even to the rays of the hot sun, could not be compared with Mohegan Park as a place where people can go and escape the heat of the summer. This same thing has evidently been found to be true by numbers of Norwich people and the park will probably be used more extensively this year than in any year past. Close at hand and easy access by automobile or walking, they claim that Mohegan park could easily be converted into one of the finest in the state and become an attraction, not only to Norwich people, but tourists who would like it as an ideal place to camp for the camp.

MAN MAY LOSE RIGHT HAND JAMMED IN AUTO CRASH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, July 5.—Henry Gagnon, about 45, of New Bedford, may lose his right hand, as the result of an automobile accident at Brooklyn Center, about 3:30 Sunday afternoon. Gagnon was riding on the front seat of a Ford sedan, which his brother, Joseph, was driving. As the car headed past the Brooklyn town pump into an intersecting state highway, coming into Brooklyn from Wauregan, up the Wauregan road came a Ford touring car driven by Walter Wilson, of Pittsfield, Mass., and with his wife and two children as passengers. When Gagnon saw that a collision seemed evident he applied the brakes on his machine, but they had evidently burned out and would not hold. The sedan crashed into the left rear fender of the touring car and then overturned.

Henry Gagnon, riding with his right hand resting on the open front window of the car, had the member jammed between the ground and the glass and so severely cut that it was believed amputation will be necessary. The injured man was taken to a Providence hospital. Mrs. Gagnon, wife of the driver, and their two children, were riding in the car that overturned, but Henry Gagnon was the only one injured. State Officer Rust V. Turquhart investigated the accident.

Federal Judge Gore Declines To Issue Order Restraining State Of Tennessee From Prosecuting John T. Scopes In State Courts For Violation Of Evolution Statute — Counsel For Accused Failed In Effort To Have Federal Court Block State Prosecution—Scopes Scheduled To Go On Trial In County Circuit Court This Week.

COOKEVILLE, Tenn., July 6.—(AP) John T. Scopes, public school teacher, must stand trial by jury in the state court at Dayton, Tenn., on Friday, on a charge of violating the Tennessee statute prohibiting the teaching of evolution in the public schools, Federal Judge Gore today refused to grant [illegible] a restraining order to stop the [illegible] case. The appeal for an injunction asserted that Scopes' constitutional rights would be violated by the trial in the state court.

Hicks E. Neal, leading counsel for Scopes, said no appeal would be taken from Judge Gore's ruling now; but that he would soon apply to Judge [illegible], federal judge for eastern Tennessee, now in Detroit, for a federal court order in the case.

In his lengthy ruling, Judge Gore said he discuss the constitutionality of the Tennessee statute under which Scopes was indicted, but gave his decision on the question of his territorial jurisdiction. He cited the United States constitution and statutes and numerous precedents to uphold his view that he did not have jurisdiction in the case. One ground cited was that Dayton is in the eastern federal district of Tennessee while his district is in middle Tennessee.

In addition to the decision of Judge Gore, Scopes seemed unperturbed. He said he expected the trial at Dayton to begin next Friday, according to schedule.

Judge Gore at the outset of his decision pointed out that the petition showed that the petitioner is under indictment in Rhea county and that the case is pending undetermined. He said that he was of the opinion that he was not justified in granting the [illegible].

The petitions were presented, one in the name of John T. Scopes and the other in behalf of Robert M. Wilson. Both were directed to Governor Austin Peay, State Attorney General Frank Thompson and A. T. Stewart, attorney general for the judicial circuit of Tennessee, as defendants.

Scopes' petition advanced the claim that he was deprived, under the Tennessee law, of liberty and property without due process of law. Wilson's plea contended that the law deprived him of the right properly to educate his children. Both contended that enforcement of the law is not a valid exercise of the police power of the state.

Referring to the contention of counsel that it was the court's duty to grant a temporary restraining order to remain in force until a hearing and determination of an application for an interlocutory decree, Judge Gore said that even if he had the power to grant a temporary restraining order he was of the opinion that he should not do so upon the allegations made in the petition.

"The object of the injunction sought in this case is to restrain the officers of the state from prosecuting the petitioner for violation of an act which said officers are expressly charged to enforce in the only way in which they are authorized to proceed—by bringing criminal prosecution in the name of the state. This is virtually to enjoin the state from proceeding through its duly qualified and acting officers."

The petitions were signed by John R. Neal, Clarence Darrow and Bainbridge Colby of counsel for Scopes.

Dr. Neal's suggestion that the case will finally reach the supreme court, made before the court's decision was announced today, was a statement for his client in case of conviction by the Rhea county court. It was assumed that the state of Tennessee would have filed an appeal had Judge Gore's decision this afternoon been in favor of the plaintiff.

FLOOD OF BOGUS BANK NOTES IN STATE

HARTFORD, July 6.—(AP)—An [illegible] counterfeit bill, turned over [illegible] United States Attorney [illegible] Cohen today by the United [illegible] Security Trust company, is regarded evidence that "bogus" [illegible] makers are at work systematically throughout New England, it is [illegible] Several bills from various cities [illegible] sums of the state have been [illegible] to Mr. Cohen during the past [illegible] weeks, with complaints, growing [illegible] more numerous. "One a day [illegible] average," the assistant United [illegible] attorney said today.

The bills drawn on the federal Reserve bank, of Boston, as the majority of the flood of fake currency throughout Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Rhode Island, during the past weeks, have. The picture of Grover [illegible] was very poorly done as all other [illegible] apprehended bills have been. The counterfeits are all photographic reproductions, poorly done but capable of passing sales girls and others without a minute inspection. The figures on the reverse side of the bills are blurred and indistinct. The [illegible] ink used is lighter than the [illegible] used by the officials of the treasury at the United States mints and is grade of the paper, with no threads [illegible] paper. It is rough and can be easily detected by passing the hands over it. All the bills so far [illegible] as counterfeits in Connecticut [illegible] are ten and twenty dollar denominations.

The counterfeits are of the 1-A series. The latest reported bill is serial [illegible] B.

Secret service agents, sent out from Washington, are investigating [illegible] without the state.

BANKRUPT BROKERAGE FIRM TO REOPEN

NEW YORK, July 6.—(A. P.)—Plans for the prompt reopening of business by the brokerage firm of Dean, Onativia & Co., which failed Saturday for $3,000,000, today were agreed upon by the creditors' committee. Members of the firm, the principal creditors and the receiver attended the meeting at which the plans were adopted.

Representatives of the various interests will meet daily until the plans are put into effect, it was announced. Details of the reorganization plans were not made public.

The announcement of the congress was made shortly after officers of the [illegible] Title and Trust company, [illegible] system receivers for the firm, had announced from Chicago that negotiations were under way which it was hoped would lead to an early opening of the firm's office and full adjustment of all claims.

STAMFORD SALOON IS ORDERED PADLOCKED

Stamford, Conn., July 6.—(AP)—A building at the corner of Canal and Pacific street was padlocked for four months by order of Judge Samuel Thomas today because liquor had been sold in it. The saloon was kept by James Hinaldi who was fined $400 and costs and given 30 days in jail. The owner of the premises has been warned not to let or lease the place in the next four months.

A liquor selling charge against Joseph Hinaldi, 18 year old son of James Hinaldi, was nolled.

COL. COOLIDGE TAKES SHORT WALK

PLYMOUTH, Vt., July 6.—(AP)—Col. John Coolidge, aged father of the president, took a short walk after church this afternoon. On his return to the Coolidge homestead, he went to the barn to obtain a pitch-fork and then worked for a half hour removing shingles which had been left on the roof by carpenters who shingled the roof just before he became ill about 10 days ago.

EX-GOVERNOR WOODRUFF LEFT $500,000 ESTATE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 6.—(AP)—Worthy students in both Yale and Wesleyan universities will benefit by bequests made in the will of former Governor Rollin S. Woodruff which was offered for probate today. His wish expressed was that $50,000 be given to each institution for a Howard Perkins Woodruff fund. The income to be used through loans in helping students.

The estate of Mr. Woodruff is estimated at about $500,000 value. There are a number of public bequests provided for in the will. To the Presbyterian Board of Relief for Disabled Ministers, Widows and Orphans is given $20,000; to New Haven and St. Raphael's hospitals, New Haven Orphan Asylums, $5,000 each; to the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. of this city, $15,000 each; the New Haven Temple Association and the Masonic Charity Foundation $10,000 each; the United Church $10,000; the Little Sisters of the Poor and the Organized Charities $2,500 each.

Employes of the C. S. Mersick Company, of which Mr. Woodruff was the president, are to receive a portion of $20,000 set aside for distribution.

To relatives other than the immediate family about $70,000 is felt.

Life use of the residue of the estate goes to Mrs. Woodruff and at her death it will pass to Grace hospital of this city.

TROUBLE AHEAD IN ENGLISH WOOLEN MILLS

LONDON, July 6.—(AP)—The dispute over wages in the wool textile trade here has taken a serious turn. The National Operatives' association has declared any terms less favorable than those in the present agreement cannot be considered. The employers recently proposed a revision of the agreement.

Nearly 250,000 operatives would be affected if serious trouble ensued between the operators and the men in the wool textile industry. Ben Tuner, president of the National Operatives' association, has said that the average profit of the textile companies last year was nine per cent., or four points higher than in the preceding year.

YOUTH SERIOUSLY HURT BY BASEBALL BAT

ANSONIA, July 6.—(AP)—Andrew Morris, aged 19 years, of Basset street, this city, is at the Griffin hospital with a possible fracture of the skull as the result of being struck by a baseball bat which slipped from the batter's hand, at the ball game between the Liberty Bells of Ansonia and the I-A team of Bridgeport, at Pioneer field, Sunday afternoon. Morris was struck in the face by the bat and received a broken nose and lacerations and cuts on the face. He was unconscious when picked up and an x-ray will be taken to ascertain whether he has a fractured skull, symptoms of which were apparent after the accident.

U. S. SHOULD BUY PARIS OFFICE BUILDING

PARIS, July 6.—(AP)—Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, who will sail on Wednesday for his annual holiday in the United States, will take occasion while in Washington to draw to the attention of the department of state economies which could be effected in Paris if the United States owned an office building there.

The American government has eleven different offices in Paris for which a yearly rental of $30,850 is paid. This represents four percent. on more than $750,000. Ambassador Herrick, who has made careful inquiries, is convinced that an office building could be bought for less than this sum. He believes there would be a saving of many thousands a year through all these offices being served by one staff of telephone operators, doorkeepers, messengers and other minor employes, and heated by one plant.

GRAND JURY PROBING PICKWICK CLUB DISASTER

BOSTON, July 6.—(AP)—The Suffolk county grand jury went into evening session tonight in its investigation to determine the cause of the collapse of the Pickwick club building last Saturday on a crowd of more than 100 revelers. Word had come from the wrecked building that the last pile of debris had been removed without disclosing more victims, leaving the final list of dead at 43.

Forty-one bodies had been identified tonight. Of the eighteen persons who were injured, five were released from the hospitals today. The two bodies still unidentified are those of men, one of them mangled almost beyond hope of recognition.

District Atty. Thomas C. O'Brien today led the grand jury through the wreckage and described the collapse to them while a photographer made pictures which will be examined by the jury later. Gov. Fuller instructed Atty. Gen. J. R. Benton to begin an investigation for the state and men from the attorney general's office as well as from the department of public safety were sent to the building. The city investigation was being conducted through the police department and the office of John Mahoney, building commissioner.

No further statements came from the mayor's office today, beyond the announcement that a special appropriation of $25,000 for clearing away the ruins had been passed.

Before adjourning for dinner tonight, the grand jury had heard eighteen witnesses, among them "Tim" and "Dan" Barry. The former was the president of the Pickwick club. Barry declared he had "nothing to conceal" and testified that he leased only the second floor of the building from Henry Bloomberg of Winthrop. He had secured Bloomberg's permission to return to the premises after the fire last April which damaged the floor above the club.

Bloomberg said that he leased the building from D. Schulte and that the property was owned by the Rosenthal estate.

Joseph A. Tomasello of the firm of A. G. Tomasello and Son company, contractors engaged in excavating the next door into which the ruins of the Pickwick club fell, denied that his men had been digging too close to the walls of the club building and declared that his steam shovels were not within 100 feet of the Pickwick club at any time during his operations.

James J. Hendricks, a member of the building commissioners staff for 14 years, testified that he inspected the Pickwick club structure last Thursday and found nothing wrong.

Two witnesses who testified were survivors of the crash. They told of the creaking and swaying of the building and the sudden crackling which preceded the collapse.

Among others who testified were Secretary of State Frederick W. Cook who said he had granted the club's charter after the police had investigated and reported favorably on the character of the incorporators; Dr. Timothy Leary, southern district medical examiner, whose autopsies showed that many of the victims died of suffocation; "Mike" Hirschberg, the only club waiter to escape; Fire Chief Daniel F. Sennott, and several other fire and police officials who described the rescue work and the condition of the wreckage they found.

INDIANA'S GOVERNOR VISITS PRES. COOLIDGE

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 6.—(AP)—Gov. Jackson of Indiana called on President Coolidge today at White Court. His visit was purely a social one and it was said that politics were not discussed. The governor, who was on his way home from the governors' conference at Maine, was accompanied by Mrs. Jackson.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge remained in seclusion during the day and decided to remain here tomorrow night, the first anniversary of the death of their younger son Calvin, rather than go to Plymouth, Vt., where the boy was buried and the president's father resides.

It is the intention of Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge to spend tomorrow quietly, although the president expects to spend some time at work and during the morning will receive Mrs. John Jacob Rogers, just elected to congress from the Fifth Massachusetts district. He will also hold his semi-weekly conference at noon with newspaper reporters.

ENGINE CREWS TO MEET AT 'FRISCO

DETROIT, July 6.—(AP)—San Francisco was selected today by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen as the convention city for the next triennial meeting of the brotherhood, to be held starting the second Monday in June, 1928.

The board of directors elected includes J. T. Farrell, Hartford, Conn.

NEW HAVEN MAY BUY LAND FOR AIRPORT

NEW HAVEN, July 6.—(AP)—A recommendation that the city purchase 150 acres of land in Fair Haven Heights, part of which is in the town of East Haven, to be used for an airport and possibly a municipal golf course, was made in a communication by Mayor Fitzgerald to the board of aldermen tonight. The mayor's recommendation, which includes a proposal for a bond issue of $100,000 to purchase and develop the property, was referred to the committee on streets and squares and public hearing and report.

Denies Rehearing on Teapot Dome Suit

Federal Judge Also Dismisses Lease Annulment Suit Against The Mammoth Oil Co.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., July 6.—(AP)—Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy late today denied the motion of government counsel, Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts for a re-hearing of the Teapot Dome lease annulment on the ground that additional testimony for the government was available.

Judge Kennedy also signed a decree dismissing the lease annulment suit against The Mammoth Oil company, entering the dismissal as of June 19, the date of his decision in the case.

Judge Kennedy in his decree of dismissal, provided for the continuance of the Teapot Dome receivership until further orders while the appeal from the decision is being taken by the government to the eighth circuit court of appeals. The government is given forty-five days from June 19 to file its petition for appeal.

The government counsel sought to reopen the case to present additional testimony on the alleged transfer of Liberty bonds from the Continental Trading company of Canada for Harry F. Sinclair, to Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, who negotiated the lease for the government.

Their motion requested that depositions in connection with the alleged transfer of Liberty bonds be taken in Toronto, Canada, and filed with the court.

Before the trial of the Teapot Dome case, government counsel endeavored to secure these depositions in regard to the alleged Liberty bond transfer. Judge Kennedy granted the government a continuance of the trial from February 26 to March 9 for the securing of this evidence, but the refusal of the H. S. Osler Trading company president to answer part of the questions put to him defeated the government's move. The Canadian courts have since ruled that he must answer all the questions.

Judge Kennedy in his order dismissing the lease annulment suit against Harry F. Sinclair's Mammoth Oil company stated that the question of the validity, or invalidity of the executive order of May 30, 1921, transferring the jurisdiction of all naval reserves from the navy department to the interior department was immaterial.

In the evidence presented by the government in seeking the lease annulment, Judge Kennedy finds "nothing to show irregularity or fraud surrounding the transaction or execution of the lease."

The negotiation and manner of executing the lease, Judge Kennedy stated in his dismissal order show that it was "entirely immaterial so far as the lease annulment case is concerned whether the executive order of 1924 was ever made or not."

FRANCE SENDS GEN. NAULIN TO MOROCCO

PARIS, July 6.—(AP)—General Stanislas Naulin, commander of the thirtieth army corps on the Rhine, has been appointed supreme commander of operations in Morocco. General Naulin, who is now on leave, will proceed to Morocco at the earliest possible moment.

In announcing the appointment Premier Painleve said what was needed was a young and vigorous officer, well versed in the methods of both European and colonial warfares and thoroughly acquainted with the mentality of the natives. General Naulin possessed those qualities to an eminent degree.

The new commander, who will replace Marshal Lyoutey, is 55 years of age. He served for a long time in North Africa, was in command at Oran for a year and lived two years in Morocco. He was also in Syria during the European war, where he commanded the twenty first army corps.

General Naulin's appointment, the premier explained would relieve Marshal Lyoutey of the responsibility of the military operations and permit him to devote all his energies to his heavy administrative and political duties.

In conclusion, M. Painleve repeated what was said in the official note issued by the war ministry Sunday night, giving assurance that, though some of the loyal tribuces had seceded and numerous attacks had been made on the French by the Riffians who broke through the front line in the Taza region, there was no reason for alarm. He added that the French forces would be regrouped for new concentrations and that counteraction of an important nature would be taken against the Moors.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE AGAINST DRIVER NOLLED

ANSONIA, July 6—(A. P.)—Anthony Sauro, 24, of 20 Vine street, New Haven, driver of a car which figured in a fatal accident in this city on the night of May 22, near the point on the state road known as King's Cider Mill Hill, was found not criminally responsible for the accident in which one of his companions, Peter Sharlo, of 59 Stevens street, New Haven, was almost instantly killed, as the car containing six passengers left the highway, mounted a bank and turned over. Sauro appeared in court to answer to the charge of manslaughter, the charge being dropped when Prosecuting Attorney A. R. McCormond told the court that there was no evidence which proved that Sauro was driving recklessly or negligently and recommended a nolle, which was granted by Judge R. L. Munger. Attorney Harold Drew, of New Haven, appeared as counsel for Sauro.

TWO DEATHS FROM HEAT IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—Two deaths and several prostrations were recorded today in a new heat wave which for a time threatened to top the high temperature record for July 6. Zephyrs from the sea gave some relief later in the afternoon, but the excessive humidity caused much suffering in the congested districts.

The effect of the heat was so noticeable even in the lower harbor that the Honduras steamer Cholutecа raised anchor and steamed to sea for the night to save her cargo of fruit. The eleven passengers on board were sent to the city on a tug.

Heavy Death List As Flames Sweep City

Conflagration Destroys 32 Acres Of Buildings In Manizales, Colombia — 30 Bodies Found In Ruins.

BOGOTA, Colombia, July 6—(A. P.)—Thirty bodies are reported to have been found after a fire which started early Saturday morning, swept over the city of Manizales, 110 miles northwest of here, and destroyed thirty-two acres of buildings in the center of the city. The conflagration is under control, but the total death list is unknown.

All banks, business houses, hotels, the bishop's palace and the municipal buildings were burned. Search parties are busy among the ruins hunting the missing.

The fire started in a pharmacy where an explosion occurred and which caused a fire to spread to stores of gasoline, petroleum and other inflammable material.

Assistance is being given by the government and by all other parts of the country. The district has been placed under military control.

Manizales is a city of about 15,000 population, 7,000 feet above sea level in the department of Antioquia, Colombia. It commands the transit trade from the Magdalena to the Caucas river.

CLARK RETIRES AS HEAD OF ENDEAVORERS' SOCIETY

PORTLAND, Ore., July 6—(A. P.)—The Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark, familiarly known as "Father Endeavor" Clark, founder, and for the last 44 years the president of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, has retired from the presidency.

He announced his resignation at tonight's session of the thirteth International convention. He will retain the presidency of the World's Christian Endeavor Union.

Dr. Clark's successor, Dr. Daniel A. Poling of New York, was elected upon Dr. Clark's nomination at the executive meeting of the trustees held this afternoon. Dr. Poling for the last ten years has served as the associate president of the movement and is co-minister of the Marble Collegiate church of New York city. Edward P. Gates, who has served as general secretary of the movement during the last six years, was re-elected.

HOLIDAY FATALITIES REACH 250 MARK

CHICAGO, July 6—(AP)—The toll of holiday fatalities throughout the country mounted today to the 250 mark, with automobile accidents and drownings at the head of the list. This list does not take into account the Boston cabaret tragedy, in which 43 perished.

Although the Fourth of July passed with remarkably few deaths from fireworks and explosions, the abnormal traffic in suburban areas led to an unusually long list of dead and injured.

More than 400 were injured in the states which reported the heaviest death tolls.

Illinois reported 57 dead and more than 100 injured.

Other state totals follow:

Massachusetts 49; New York 26; Indiana 13; Ohio 29; Missouri 3; Connecticut 8; Rhode Island 6; New Jersey 5; Pennsylvania 6 Vermont 2; Minnesota 8; Iowa 4; California 10; Colorado 3; North Dakota 2.

HAS NOT YET MADE PROTEST TO RUSSIA

LONDON, July 6.—(AP)—The subject of the relations between Great Britain and Russia came up in the House of Commons today. Austen Chamberlain, secretary for foreign affairs, made it clear that the government had not yet made a protest to Russia regarding events in China, and announced that the government "reserved full liberty to take whatever action it might think was required."

This was generally understood to mean that such action be taken only in concert with other powers interested in China.

Mr. Chamebrlain further declared that the government considered speeches recently made by the soviet ambassador, M. Korakhan, in Peking, sufficient proof of the soviet influence in fomenting trouble, and he added: "I have evidence which I consider inexpedient to publish."

RUM SHIPS HAVE LEFT N. E. COAST

BOSTON, July 6.—(AP)—Virtually all rum ships lying off the New England coast have departed and no new ones have been sighted since the recent campaign of Coast Guard vessels it was asserted today at Coast Guard headquarters. The announcement was made in connection with reports that a new fleet of ships had anchored off Swampscott where President Coolidge is spending his vacation.

At the Nahant Coast Guard station, a short distance from Swampscott, it was said the only liquor vessels in the vicinity were three that were about half way between Cape Cod and Cape Ann, fully 20 miles from Swampscott. They have been there for several weeks. The only ship sighted from Swampscott today was a private yacht which entered Marblehead harbor.

WHEELS LOCKED AND AUTO TURNED OVER

GREENWICH, July 6.—(AP)—Niel O'Brien, of Greenwich, who had just returned from a visit in Broad Brook, Conn., is in the Greenwich hospital, suffering from injuries received in an automobile accident tonight. His left ear was almost completely torn off. He was turning his car from Mason street into Railroad avenue, when the wheels locked and the machine turned over.

DENIES TOWN DEPOSIT FUND WAS DIVERTED

NEW BRITAIN, July 6.—(AP)—Sections of State Commissioner William M. Blodgett's annual report which, it is claimed, implied that New Britain had diverted from its proper purposes the sum of $4,758.42, deposited with the town treasurer in 1847 and known as a town deposit fund, brought denials from New Britain officials today.

U. S. MOVES TO COLLECT WAR DEBTS FROM EUROPE

American Debt Commission Designates Periods In Which It Can Meet With Delegates From Debtor Nations—Treasury Prepared To Negotiate With Belgians Between August 5th And 16th—French Embassy Notified That Commission Would Be Ready To Meet Paris Delegation At Any Time Before Or After Those Dates—Rumors That Italian Negotiations Are To Be Further Delayed.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—The American debt commission, for the first time, has been compelled to arrange a program designating periods of time in which it can meet with representatives of debtor nations.

Announcement was made today that the treasury was prepared to negotiate with the Belgians for their government's debt here between August 5 and August 16, alloting less than two weeks to dispose of this funding arrangement. Notice was sent to the French embassy, simultaneously, that the commission could meet with the delegation from Paris at any time before or after those dates.

Ambassador Daeschner, of France, had requested the treasury to fix a time when the commission from his government could be received, and was informed by Acting Secretary Winston of the treasury, as secretary of the American commission, of the program that had been drawn up. No information was forthcoming from the embassy as to when the Paris delegation might be expected.

It was noted that in allotting the period from August 5 to August 16 to the Belgians, no time was designated for resumption of the Italian negotiations with the expected return to Washington of Mario Alberti, one of that government's commissioners. Officials declined to comment on this, and the result was a flood of new rumors that the Italian negotiations were to be delayed longer than was indicated when Mr. Alberti left for home to assemble additional data.

This turn in events has caused a renewal of speculation as to whether the American commission desired to reach an agreement with the Italians ahead of the French. It was suggested unofficially at the treasury that there would be time for conferences with the Italians between meetings with other groups, but to observers of the policy thus far, the suggestion did not carry conviction.

The treasury has resorted to the utmost secrecy in dealing with the foreign debtors and as each new negotiation has got under way an understanding has been arranged forbidding comment by participants in the conferences. There was no change in that plan with respect to today's announcement of the program of meetings, and comment was withheld on all phases except as to the dates set and the notification to the French ambassador.

FILES CHARGES AGAINST TEN MILLION DOLLAR CORP.

NEW YORK, July 6. (AP)—Charges that the Commonwealth Finance corporation, a concern with capitalization of $10,000,000, had made disbursal of approximately $80,000 to certain creditors in a manner held to be contradictory to provisions of the bankruptcy laws, were made in an involuntary petition in bankruptcy filed today in federal court against the company by three creditors.

The creditors, including the American Surety company, holding two notes aggregating $130,000, and the Krafft, Murphy company, of Washington, charged the disbursal had placed the recipients in the position of preferred creditors to the disadvantage of other creditors.

The alleged bankrupt corporation had operated under a Delaware state charter, with the right to engage in a mortgage loan, realty investment business and associated lines.

AMERICAN SAILOR SHOT CHINESE IN DISTURBANCE

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—Consul General Cunningham at Shanghai, cabled the state department today that Boatswain's Mate C. Dizick, attached to the American landing forces there, had fatally shot a Chinese during a disturbance while he was inspecting posts in the international settlement.

Naval reports quoted by Mr. Cunningham related that Dizick had gone to the assistance of a municipal police constable who had arrested a Chinese agitator and was being attacked by a mob. The constable's revolver had been taken from him and the mob was closing in from behind when Dizick fired.

An inquest will be held by a British assessor and a Chinese magistrate, who have been asked by American authorities to hear all the evidence the defense has to present.

UNIVERSAL STANDARDS FOR GRADING COTTON

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—Dr. H. C. Taylor, chief of the agriculture department's bureau of agricultural economics, who returned today from the International Cotton congress at Vienna, declared that the universal cotton standards problem had been settled harmoniously with the European associations, and that the bureau would now turn its attention to study of staples standards.

The universal standards now in use apply to the grade and color of cotton, while staple standards would be based on length and quality.

BOSTON TROLLEY CREWS TO VOTE ON STRIKE

BOSTON, July 6.—(AP)—A vote to poll the number of the Boston Street Carmen's union tomorrow on the question of suspending work was passed tonight by the wage conference committee which has been conducting negotiations with company officials for some time. The company had sought to change the method of arbitration of disputes. The men refused to consider the change and the vote tomorrow will determine whether they will strike if necessary to enforce their stand. The polls will be open for thirteen hours and the result is not likely to be known for another day.

FIRST SHIP TO DETROIT FROM EUROPE

DETROIT, July 6.—(AP)—The steamer Anders came into the Detroit river from Antwerp, Belgium, today, with a cargo of steel rails for the Ford Motor company. The first ship to come direct to Detroit from Europe. Passage of the Anders inaugurates monthly steamship service between Antwerp and Dutch cities and Detroit, Frank Lane, of New York, owner of the vessel, said today.

ANOTHER AUTO-EXPRESS TRAIN VICTIM DIES

RICHFORD, Vt., July 6.—(AP)—Ben Cummings died here today from injuries received when the automobile in which he was a passenger and a Montreal-Boston express train were in collision at Abercorn, Que. The driver of the car and three other occupants escaped injury. Cummings sustained a fractured skull.

ELECTRICAL WORKERS QUIT IN BOSTON

BOSTON, July 6—(AP)—Several hundred union electrical workers quit on Greater Boston buildings today when the electrical division of the Building Trades Employers' association refused to increase their wages to $1.15 an hour. The contractors affected by the strike announced that they would take immediate steps to fill the strikers' places and continue electrical work on the buildings under construction.

Unlike the majority of the Building Trades employes, the electrical workers did not sign an agreement to work for another year under the old wage scales. They demand a wage of $1.15 an hour immediately and an increase of five cents an hour every six months. In many places where the electrical workers struck, the common laborers were returning to work in large numbers. Their strike was declared off last week when federal arbitration commissioners announce that their dispute with their employers would be investigated.

DANBURY TRUCK DRIVER RECOVERS STOLEN AUTO

DANBURY, July 6—(AP)—An automobile stolen from a garage here last night was recovered by a Danbury truck driver after a fight with the auto thief on a country road near Armonk, N. Y., 35 miles from here.

The car was owned by Harry W. Hoyt, president of the Hoyt-Messenger Hat Manufacturing company and Mr. Hoyt did not know that his garage had been entered and his car stolen until he received a telephone call from McKinley Brown, the truck driver today.

Brown was stopped just outside of Armonk early this morning by an auto-ist who demanded that the truck driver haul him to the nearest gas filling station. Brown recognized the car as belonging to Hoyt and accused the driver of stealing the machine. A battle in the road followed and the thief was beaten, finally making his escape.

QUIET PREVAILS IN SYDNEY MINE DISTRICT

SYDNEY, N. S., July 6—(AP)—All was quiet in the colliery districts of Cape Breton today, where twelve thousand miners are on strike against a proposed wage cut by the British Empire Steel corporation. Progress was reported in the prosecution of court cases arising out of strike disturbances.

Tomorrow the investigation into the death of William Davis, miner, who was killed in New Waterford in a clash between miners and corporation police, will begin.

One man is now serving a thirty-day sentence and 21 are awaiting hearing on various charges of intimidation, rioting, receiving stolen goods, assault, unlawful assembly, breaking and entering and theft.

MORE EARTH TREMORS FELT AT SANTA BARBARA

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., July 6.—(AP)—Santa Barbara experienced a recurrence of the earth tremors today. Four or five distinct quivers were felt between 11 a. m. and 3 p. m., the most pronounced coming about 2:45. Two quick sharp jolts caused occupants of buildings to take notice but no damage or excitement followed.

WILLIMANTIC

In the police court Monday, Carl W. Seward of Mansfield Center, 20, pleaded not guilty to driving his machine in a reckless manner, Sunday night, when he rounded the corner of Jackson and Union streets at an alleged fast clip, estimated at twenty-five miles an hour. Seward said his Ford was geared to twenty miles an hour and he was sure he was not traveling at any such speed as twenty-five. Motorcycle Officer Arthur M. Hurley made the arrest and Officer Leo Piche was another witness to the speed. Judge Foss found the accused guilty and imposed a fine of $10 and costs, amounting to $15.15 which was paid.

The case of reckless driving against Richard Haddad, of this city, was nolled on payment of costs when State Policeman Edgar D. Abild, who made the arrest, explained that the violation was but a technical one. Haddad was represented by Attorney S. S. Harvey.

Joseph Bridges, of Meriden, entered a plea of guilty, when charged with reckless driving. His car demolished the silent cop at the head of Bridge street, on Main street Friday night. He did not stop at the time and when apprehended later he failed to have an driver's license with him. A fine of $10 amounting with the costs, to $16.15 and an extra charge of eleven dollars due to the silent policeman, was levied on Bridges and he paid up.

The fourth reckless driving case to be taken up was that of Oscar Reasenberg of 1856 Benson avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., who pleaded not guilty. It was Reasenberg's machine which struck and damaged another machine owned by Mrs. Camilla Navarro of 16 Exeter street, Boston, while Reasenberg was driving, turned his head around to look for a missing suitcase. Reasenberg stated that he had settled for the damage to the Navarro machine. The case was nolled on payment of the costs of $6.15.

Frank Nycek, charged with reckless driving drew the largest fine out of half a dozen similar cases, because the court had reason to believe that the man was not telling the truth on the witness stand. Nycek was arrested as soon by Officers Laramee and Larivee after his machine had been seen speeding up Jackson street at a dangerous rate. The numbers were taken and the officers secured another car and put chase but failed to locate Nycek until about two hours later when he was found lying, apparently in deep slumber, in his bed. Judge Foss fined him $25 and costs, amounting to $31.15 which he paid.

Newly enacted laws relative to speeding and reckless driving brought complications in the police court Monday which caused the granting of a continuance in the case of Charles Deschener of Winter street, this city, charged with reckless driving and evasion of responsibility. Deschener was driving a car which struck and injured Frank Larivee of this city, as the latter was crossing Jackson street on the crosswalk. Deschener took Larivee to St. Joseph's hospital, nearby, and saw to it that his injuries were treated. His identity was not known at the time as the automobile numbers taken by a witness showed that the car belonged to Alphonse Martineau of 30 Temple street. Martineau told the officers that Deschener took the car without permission.

With the conclusion of matins at 9 o'clock in the church in Hebron, the classes of the third annual St. Peter's school of liberal and humane study normally opened Monday morning. All the classes convened President Benjamin H. Bissell, instructor in English in the summer branch of the University of Connecticut, read congratulatory letters to the promoters of the school movement. Many of the letters were from such prominent educators as Edgar B. Osborne of Oxford, Ohio; Frederick M. Carey, University of California; Edna S. Brightman, Boston University, Joseph Warren Beach, President of the University of Minnesota, and William Lyon Phelps of Yale. Dr. Bissell read his opening lecture on Eighteenth Century Poetry, which was supplemented with a second lecture by Dean Austin Warren on the background of 18th Century Classicism, particularly to the poetry of Pope. At five o'clock evensong was held at the church, with Rev. T. D. Warren officiating and Dean Warren at the organ. The reception to President Bissell was held at the rectory in the evening.

The mystery of the note dropped from an automobile passing through Andover by a woman signed Mrs. Emma Bryce, in which it stated that she was being taken away by force and wished to have her lawyer, Judge Gaffney of New Britain and Richard Reid of New Haven notified, was cleared up by the family who stated that on that day Mrs. Bryce, a resident of Bristol, was being taken to the Norwich State Hospital, by her husband and her brother.

A list of the known injuries, all of minor nature, which resulted from close contact with fireworks July Fourth follows: Leona Gabowski, 13, of 63 Elm street, burns on hand from blank cartridge pistol; Mary DeMarchi of 1228 Main street, wound on side from explosion of fire cracker; Mary Lavigne, 10, of 14 Carey Hill, burns on hand from firecracker; Adolphus Rondeau, hand burned by blank cartridge; Andrew Gallou, burn in palm and hand pierced to bone by explosion of blank cartridge in pistol; little son of Samuel Ballon of Manners avenue treated for burns on one hand from firecracker; Donald Hawkins of Mansfield, treated for injury to his eye, caused by powder explosion; Fred Bertsch, 14, of Columbia, treated for burns on hands and face; Arthur Aronson, 8, of Wormwoodville, injury to one eye by powder explosion; Exsurias Decharme, painful injury to his left foot by a prematurely exploded sky rocket.

Twenty-seven automobiles from Willimantic, Columbia and Lebanon carried the congregation to the sunset service held at Columbia, Sunday evening. A few residents went on foot, making a total gathering of about one hundred and fifty, who greatly enjoyed the service. Rev. C. C. Haun had charge of the musical program, which featured a band orchestra selected from members of the Columbia orchestra and Columbia band, under the direction of Prof. Bert A. Lyman. Many well known hymns were played while the people gathered in a circle and sang. A new Crusader hymn, "The Call of Christ," was learned. The praise service was followed by a shortened form of evening prayer and sermon, by Rev. F. C. Williams, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Willimantic. The open air service, the second of its kind this summer, proved most enjoyable.

State Police Officers Morse and Carmody, attached to the Danielson barracks for several weeks past and stationed in this city during the American Thread company strike, have been transferred to Hartford where they are succeeding to Officers Parker of Waterbury and Foley of New Haven. Sergeant Albert S. Field of Danielson is in charge of the detachment of officers stationed here.

Officers of Natchaug Lodge No. 22, Knights of Pythias, were installed at the meeting of the Lodge in Case's Hall Monday evening. A collation and smoker followed.

With the breaking up of the two weeks' camp of Boy Scouts of the Congregational church at Crystal Lake, Eastford, the Scout Girls, numbering about thirty pitched their tents. They are in charge of Miss Olive Caswell and Mrs. William D. Talcott.

Mrs. Julia A. Rice Dunn, widow of Mayor Daniel P. Dunn, died at her home, 205 Summit street Sunday after a long illness. She was born in Hartford, a daughter of Thomas and Julia Canty Rice. She is survived by a sister, Mrs. P. J. Hurley of South Manchester; one brother, Michael J. Rice of Hartford and several nieces and nephews. Ever ready to serve others and spreading cheer and good will wherever she went, Mrs. Dunn stood high in the esteem of local people and had a generous share of the public love in which the late Mayor Dunn was held, as chief executive of the city and later in private life.

Rev. Frederick F. Foshay, pastor of the First Baptist church here for about two and one half-years, read his resignation to the congregation during the communion service Sunday, asking that the church take action so that the resignation might become effective August 30th. Church Clerk Russell A. Andrews had called a meeting of the parishioners for Thursday, July 1d. Rev. Mr. Foshay has accepted a call to the pastorate of the First Baptist church at Rockville Center, L. I., and he plans to take up his new duties early in September. He came to this city from Fairfield, Me. His departure is regretted by members of the church and hundreds of friends of various denominations. Although his term as pastor was brief, he was influential in bringing about many noteworthy alterations in the present church building. The edifice was recently completely remodeled at a cost of $15,000.

St. Mary's Boy Choir members left Monday morning for the seventh annual camping trip at Columbia Lake. The boys attended eight o'clock mass at St. Mary's church in a body, singing several hymns during the services. Mass was followed by a lunch and the loading into auto trucks for the trip. After the town council members had completed the drawing of jurors they went into executive session for the purpose of fixing a salary of Inspector under the Westerly Zoning ordinance. The salary of Inspector Louis J. Rossi was fixed at $900 a year.

Howard J. Douglas of Alton, R. I., was given a hearing at a special session of Third District court before Judge Michael J. Turano in Westerly Friday night on two counts by Hopkinton Police Officer William L. Kay, driving without operator's license and reckless driving. The charges grew out of the defendant's driving an automobile on Main street, Hope Valley, when several people were reported to have been struck. A plea of guilty was entered to the first complaint and Douglas was held in $200 bonds, with the case continued to July 10 for sentence. On the count for reckless operation the defendant was held in $2,000 bail, with Charles Brown of Mechanic street, Pawcatuck, as bondsman, with trial set for July 10.

A pyramid of cast-iron cannon balls was mounted on a cement block for the Fourth of July and placed beneath each of the barrels of the two brass howitzers on the west lawn embankment of the Westerly waiting station of the New Haven railroad. The guns, relics of the Civil War, were placed in position last Memorial Day and the "ammunition" secured by Sergt. R. J. Rooney, a member of Amos P. Chapman Camp, Sons of Veterans, adds to their warlike appearance.

Walter Carpenter, of Philadelphia, has been the guest for the past two days of the family of his sister, Mrs. Wilbur G. Cheever, in Westerly.

Joseph Crowley returned to his duties Sunday night after being the guest over the week end of Pawcatuck relatives and friends, being a Pullman car conductor on the New Haven railroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Hughes of Westerly and Mr. and Mrs. James Parkinson and daughter Frances of the West Side, were automobile visitors in Hartford on the Fourth of July

Miss Alice Burdick spent the Fourth as the guest of her sister Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Clay and family at Stonington.

Miss Eloise Kenyon of Providence, is the guest of her mother, Mrs. A. Kenyon of the West Side.

Following a search warrant, issued by Prosecuting Officer George R. McKenna, of Pawcatuck, the premises of Charles LaPresco, 55 Mechanic street, Pawcatuck, were searched about 7:30 o'clock, Friday night, when a quantity of wet goods was seized and taken to the Liberty street lockup. In the searching party were Patrolman Vernon A. Burdick and Constables Walter Kenyon and Rouse Clarke and their efforts were rewarded by the finding of two barrels of wine, at the time the occupants were discovered pouring such a quantity of liquid material from a window, that the officers, when they hurried to the outside, scooped up a quantity of the fluid into containers from the puddle which had formed beneath the window. This was added to the other wet goods taken away and subsequent analysis showed it to be moonshine; so the added evidence lists one pint bottle of moonshine found on the premises, as well as one partly filled bottle of moonshine. It was reported that the occupants claim to have federal permits for the wine. At all events public notice has been given that the owners appear in Stonington Town court July 11th at 9 o'clock before Judge William A. Wilcox to claim the moisture found on the premises.

Mr. and Mrs. Elisha C. Burdick, of Westerly, were automobile visitors in Providence, Friday night, guests of friends, en route to a summer camp in Washington, N. H.

Misses Bernice E. and Mary M. Whipple, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Whipple of 66 Elm stret, Westerly, sailed from New York Saturday noon on steamship Teno, of the South American Steamship Co., for a two months' visit in South America. The itinerary includes a trip by way of the Panama canal with stops in Peru, Chili Argentina, Uruguay and across the Pampas and Andes to Brazil. About September 1st they will return to the United States on the steamship Pan America from Buenos Ayres. Miss Mary Whipple has been teacher of elocution during the past year at the State Normal school of Mississippi and Miss Bernice taught Spanish in the school of New York city, completing her school duties about July 1st. Two years ago the sisters took a trip through the Mediterranean to the Holy Land. A few years ago, Miss Bernice Whipple was a teacher in Porto Rico and at the time made a short visit to South America.

Early trains on Sunday morning at the Westerly station of the New Haven road were sent east on the westbound track, the cause being the derailing of a freight car on an early morning east bound freight train, which did not wreck the train although nearly a mile of track and roadbed were torn up.

His Watch Hill cottage, The Point, having been gutted by the $20,000 fire of last Wednesday, Isaac T. Starr of Philadelphia has leased The Cedars, the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Perrin of Baltiore on Ninigret avenue, Watch Hill for the summer.

Thomas Fiddler left Westerly early Saturday morning for Boston, where he met friends and motored to Old Orchard, Me., for a short visit.

Drs. C. P. and H. S. Atwood were guests over the weke end and Monday of friends in Lee, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Chappell and son, DeWitt of Middletown, O., have been visitors in Westerly.

Mrs. William W. Bromley of Jewett City was a Westerly and Pawcatuck visitor during the past week.

William D. Cameron with his son, William Jr., of Glenbrook motored to Westerly for over the Fourth of July and on his return was accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Edward W. Pitcher and her daughter.

During week before last there were received postcards marked "Santa Barbara" from Miss Francis L. Burdick, formerly of Westerly, daughter of Rev. Claton A. Burdick, who visited the California city.

Usually the epitaph on a man's tombstone would read differently if his widow were to express her true feelings.

NATIONAL TEXTILE WORKERS' OFFICIALS CONFER ON STRIKE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, July 6—A session of the executive council of the United Textile Workers of America was held in this city at 10 o'clock, Monday forenoon, President Thomas S. McMahon presiding. All the members of the board were present but one, James P. Robertson of Moorseville, N. C. The council gave discretionary power to the emergency board committee to use its best judgment in determining whether or not a general strike will be called in all the other mills of the American Thread company, or to select one branch mill to carry on an intensive campaign of organizing for the purpose of securing an increase in wages for the operatives. This action was taken in sympathy with the strike of the 2,500 operatives of the local mills of the company who have been out 18 weeks, in protest against a 10 per cent wage cut, effective Jan. 12 last. The emergency committee was further instructed to place all its business before the council of the American Federation of Labor, in Washington, and to request the assistance of several organizers to carry out the plans of organizing in the following plants of the Thread company: Holyoke, Fall River, Mount Kisco, and New York city, New Yorwk, Westerly, R. I., and the old Carpet mill in Roxbury, Mass. Similar action to his being taken in the Dalton, Ga., Mill of the concern, where Vice President Hayne, of the Georgia state federation of the A. F. of L. is now located.

Executive council members present were: President Thomas S. McMahon of Providence, Vice President James Starr of Patterson, N. J., Sara A. Conboy, secretary-treasurer of New York city, John H. Powers of Pawtucket, R. I., Arthur McDonnell of Philadelphia, Tobias Hall of Philadelphia, John Manley of Lowell, Mass., William Coubertette of Manchester, N. H., John L. Campos of Fall River, and George Hayes of Patterson, N. J. National organizers who attended were: Thomas J. Reagan of Lowell, Joseph R. White of Cohoes, New York, Horace A. Riviere of Manchester, N. H., Francis J. Gorman of Providence, Alexander Marks of New York, and Mary Kelleher of Scranton, Pa.

The executive officers and organizers will remain in this city today (Tuesday) and act as a reception committee to William Green, successor to the late Samuel J. Gompers as leader of the American Federation of Labor, who will lead a parade here in the afternoon, and deliver an address before the local strikers at the tented city; where striking families evicted from the company tenements will make their home while awaiting a break in the present deadlock. President McMahon stated Monday that the local strike was the seventh which the executive board is supervising at present.

CASES OF THREAD CO.'S TENANTS CAME UP IN COURT MONDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, July 6—Another summary process case sesion was held in the town building Monday with Justice of the Peace Curtis Dean on the bench. Thirty-eight of the cases were against tenants of the American Thread company on whom notices had been served one week ago and seven were continued cases. Before the session convened, a check-up was made and it was found that twenty-two of the thirty-eight families served with dispossess notices had already moved, so their cases were dismissed, leaving a total of sixteen to be heard. But few of these tenants were present to respond to the calling of their names. Judgment was found for the Thread company in eleven of the cases and four were continued to Monday, August 17. Since June 15, over one hundred and fifty summary process cases have been served. As it stands today there are but fifteen in which judgment has been granted and four continued. Attorney Ralph O. Wells of Hartford represented the company Monday.

The cases in which judgment was found for the company, Monday morning were: Albertine and Leo Hebert, Steve Yagloski and Sophie Yagloski, Harry Bachura and Apolina Bachura, Eugene Bonin and Annette Bonin, Ismael LaChance and Peter LaChance, Joseph Vertefeuille and Arthur Vertefeuille, Edmund Theroux, and Annie Theroux, Alfred Bertrand and Docina Bertrand, Nelson Chamberland and Antonia Chamberland, Emile Chabot and Olivene Chabot, Joseph Boucher and Lena Boucher, Josephine Lalibert and Rose Laliberte, Charles Lucas, Joseph Sevenski, Mary Sullivan and Martin Zatalack. The continued cases are those of Lori Allbosek and Julia Allbosek, Adjutor Rondeau and Emma Rondeau, Alvina Bernard and Ida Bernard, Helen Sweet and Mabel Sweet.

The American Mechanics and Daughters of America held a picnic at Richard's Grove recently. The truck left with 70, and others were in automobiles. The day was spent with two ball games and races. At noon a fish and clam chowder was served. Dancing was enjoyed to music by The Roamers orchestra, of Norwich. American Mechanics from Norwich and New London attended. In the morning Noank baseball team played the Mechanics from Norwich. A 7-inning game was the agreement. Noank won, 7 to 6. Thompson pitched a fine game for his team striking out 18 men and allowed one hit, while Bush, from Norwich was hit heavily. The batter for Noank was Thompson and Phelps; for Norwich, Bush and Clark. After the dinner, New London and Noank played a 7-inning game. New London won, 7-1. Brennan, pitcher for New London, had the boys fooled on a fast ball, getting 12 strikeouts. Brown, for Noank was hit pretty hard, and his teammates did not back him. The battery for Noank was Brown and Phelps; for New London, Breeman and Flynn. The races was held at 6 o'clock. The 100 yard dash was won by Russell, from Norwich; 50 yard dash for women, was won by Rosaline Thursen, from Norwich, and the 50 yard run for girls under 15 years, was won by Roberta Buddington, of Norwich; relay team for men was won by Team 1, of Norwich, Russell captain; relay team for women, was won by Team A, of Noany, captain, Rosaline Thursen and the relay team for girls, 15 years of age, was won by Team B, Roberta Buddington, captain. Ice cream and cake were served. The truck left for home at 9 in the evening. The Daughters of America, from Noank, won two cups, for having the largest number there and winning the most races.

FUNERAL OF NOTED DWARF ATTENDED BY THOUSANDS

MANILA, July 6—Diki Diki, the Moro dwarf of Jolo, who was known throughout the Philippines as well as in Borneo and many other islands in the south sea, died recently in Zamboanga. He was visiting a friend there when he contracted a cold and died of pneumonia.

Diki Diki, despite his 49 years, was only 37 inches in height and weighed only 25 pounds. He is survived by his widow, Bunjung Fatima, who is 35 years old. 35 inches in height and weighs 20 pounds.

The wedding of this diminutive pair two years ago was one of the most noted events of its kind. Diki Diki's funeral, conducted according to Mohammedan rites, was attended by thousands of people.

For a number of years Diki Diki exhibited himself at carnivals in the Philippines and adjoining islands.

More people are willing to help bury a dead man than there are to lend a dollar to a living one.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The semi-annual report of the activities of the Danielson Building and Loan association is indicative of the fact that the organization continues to function with the same facility that was marked it from the beginning. The 19th series of shares was issued in January of this year and 375 were taken by subscribers. At the present time the association has about $125,000 out on loans on real estate. The demand upon it for loans for building purposes is always in excess of the amount available. The association has always paid dividends at the rate of 6 per cent. Now that July 1 is at hand, the association is issuing its 20th series of shares, this series commencing one week from next Monday. The association has made it possible for various people to build homes in Danielson and will continue to serve in this capacity.

SAFETY OF DANCE HALLS

The great loss of life attending the burning of a Boston dance hall calls for a most careful and thorough examination for the purpose of determining what was the actual cause of so much and to ascertain whether there are other places of a similar character which are equally dangerous.

It was only a few winters ago that heavy snowfalls in cities where it is not apt to be very great placed burdens upon the roofs of buildings which had not been erected to withstand anything of that kind. The result was a collapse of the roofs and a considerable loss of life. The best of the dance halls are built with a springy floor. They are expected to give under the feet of the dancers, but when amusement leaders declare that some halls go away to the point that people cannot remain in them it becomes evident that the weight of the crowd in the Boston amusement hall may have been responsible for the collapse and the killing of scores of persons.

But while the investigation is being made in regard to the Boston dance hall it will doubtless serve as the cue for the study of other buildings used for the same purpose in order to determine whether they are adequately protected against such a danger. That is found to be the outcome, it would seem quite the same as it was following the large loss of life in the Collinwood, O., school when so many lives were lost because the entrance doors opened in instead of out and the pressure of the mob eager to get out prevented it from being opened and a large loss of life followed.

Even from just such deplorable cases that lessons of prevention are learned. But for the Collinwood disaster there might have been no movement to require doors of all public buildings to open out such as swept over the country. It hadn't been thought of because the right emergency hadn't arisen. It has been known that dance halls were dangerous but it had not been believed that they might collapse. Now that one has different regulations may be established.

VACATION TIME

We have centered upon the vacation period of 1925, for while there are those who prefer to take their vacations at other seasons of the year the great majority of those who can like to get away from work and duties during the hot weather. They go in all directions, to the shore, to the mountains, to the lakes, to nearby and far distant resorts. Some go for a short time and others go for the summer.

At the present time many of the children are going to camps. This is a development which has taken place within the last decade or so where careful supervision permits the young ones to gather in numbers for a broadening of their ideas of pleasure and associations, where discipline is maintained, where more or less wholesome instruction is given and where precautions are taken for the safeguarding of the health.

The monthly bulletin of the New Haven department of health directs attention to the opportunities for boys and girls to enjoy the great out of doors during the vacation period, and in connection with the establishment of private or other camps it directs attention to the importance of protective measures such as:

Provision of water, milk and other foods from sources known to be safe. Boiling may always be resorted to in case of doubt as to the quality of milk or water.

Precautions to meet hazards that sometimes lurk in water-sports, by training children in swimming, and also in first aid.

Exercise of extreme care to prevent accidents of all kinds which are taking increasing toll during the summer each year.

Avoidance of poison ivy.

Encouragement to eat and play in moderation and to rest regularly.

The vacation period has its hazards as well as its advantages. It calls for the exercise of care from the beginning and the observance of the various well obvious cautions which experience has shown to be advisable.

COAL ANTHRACITE COMPETITION

After its consideration of the anthracite industry, the federal trade commission expresses the belief that more effective competition should be encouraged in the industry. It backs up this assertion by stating that of the 88,000,000 tons mined each year 50 per cent is reduced by eight companies, while the remaining 50 per cent is the output of 166 companies, the so called independents, and feels that if competition should be re-established to the point of insuring an adequate supply of coal there would be a reduction in the price to consumers.

The situation as it exists today is such as to encourage a shortage and that means an increase in the price of the fuel through speculative sales, which in many instances are not justified. There is plenty of evidence that coal consumers are giving thought to the use of some other fuel than anthracite. They are using certain substitutes, the smaller sizes of anthracite, bituminous and oil. This doesn't mean that there isn't a demand for anthracite or that there will not continue to be a good market for it, but there is a marked change taking place and one of the greatest reasons for it is the disgust and annoyance that comes from the uncertainty of the fuel situation every year or so.

For the purpose of preventing frequently recurring shortages the commission places due emphasis upon the education of the consumer in the use of economic substitutes, but it also directs attention to the buying of coal in the spring, the provision of statistical information (or the consumer, an earlier and more rational buying system by municipalities and other public agencies, an increase in storage equipment of mining and distributing companies and an enlargement of mine capacity to meet periods of extraordinary demand.

These are not so different from what has been advocated before, but thus far the consumer has failed to get much of anything in the way of the relief that he has sought.

USING AUTO TAXES

When the American Automobile Association declares that taxes levied upon automobiles should be used for road building purposes only, it is to be supposed that reference is made to state taxes and not local taxes, for it can hardly be expected that the taxation of automobiles as property should be applied to one particular object and the taxation of other vehicles should be for another purpose. The proceeds from a property tax go for general purposes, and that is as it should be. When it comes to levying special taxes upon the automobile it is quite proper that the revenue should be devoted to road building or highway maintenance.

That is the policy which most states pursue in connection with the gasoline tax. There are a few instances where this tax is not all devoted to road work, but where it is not it means the heaping of taxation in an unjustified manner upon the owner of an automobile. When the special taxes placed upon autos are devoted to highway purposes it means that those who get the greatest benefit from the highways, and especially the modern avenues of travel, are being called upon to provide what they seek. They are getting what they pay for, and in view of the small amount involved for the average owner there can be no objection to the levying of taxes for such a purpose. When such taxes are employed for general purposes there is reason enough for raising objection and the American Automobile Association may well anticipate strong opposition when it advocates the devotion of all taxes on automobiles, without making a distinction between property and special taxes, to road building purposes.

FARMERS' WEEK

For the past several summers Farmers' week has been one of the big attractions at the Connecticut agricultural college at Storrs for those of the state who are interested in farm activities, whether it is directly connected with tilling the soil, producing fruit, dairying, beekeeping or raising poultry.

Farmers' week has been a period of valuable instruction in all the various branches of farm life, and the announcement of the plans for next month indicates that those who are going to be able to attend have in store an unusual opportunity for getting in touch with the best methods of dealing with farm problems.

Being arranged for the farmers of Connecticut it is a time when as many members of their families as possible should make the most of the chance to profit by what is provided for their benefit, and in these days of good roads and fast and far traveling automobiles there is a chance for much greater number attending what amounts to a conference with experts upon subjects which are close to the heart and vital to the business of the farmer.

In view of the fact that Farmers' week has continued to be held each year since it was instituted it is to be inferred that it has been duly appreciated by those for whom intended, that their attendance has given encouragement and the results obtained have served as hearty endorsements of the idea. Even though it cannot be expected that all farmers will be in attendance those who are in the eastern half of the state should not be unmindful of their duty to themselves in keeping up with the march of progress in their particular line of endeavor. The importance of self help through such a conference ought not to be overlooked.

EDITORIAL NOTES

These are rare July days if for no other reason than they are not smoking hot.

The recent rise in rubber can be attributed to something besides the rebound.

The continued rocking of Santa Barbara cannot be attributed to any intimation that it likes it.

The man on the corners says: 'In the midst of summer are you getting interested in the fall and winter styles?"

Just because there are two bars in Santa Barbara will anyone attribute the earthquake to anti-prohibition?

Even though Oscar Underwood is to quit the senate race there's reason to believe there'll always be "27 votes for Underwood."

There are many reflections following the glorious Fourth, but somehow they are easily forgotten before the next rolls around.

Now that rubber has risen from about 20 to over 90 cents a pound are "old rubbers" going to be sought again by the "old rags" men?

In Canada there were 164,000 acres taken for homesteads last year, but none of them were reported to be on that territory claimed by the dominion just south of the north pole.

THE NERVE OF SOME PEOPLE!

The rather startling girl had green eyes and went through spells of thinking she was the exact image of about every movie vamp in sight. She slid into the chair next the cute little thing up to her ears in six big books and scribbling furiously.

"My dear," she began sweetly, "I don't know when anything has made me feel so bad as hearing that you and Howard have called quits and aren't even speaking. You were the most ideal couple!"

"Were we?" bluntly asked the cute little thing, with the ghost of a frown. "Who told you this scenario?"

The girl with the greenish eyes fell into a gracefully confiding position. "You will understand, I am sure," she said, "when I tell you what a splendid young man Howard is, to say nothing of his having the family car whenever he wants it and an unlimited check book! Almost any girl would have thought twice before she dropped—"

"I haven't dropped him," the cute little thing said shortly.

"Surely you don't mean to hint that he dropped you?" asked the vampish, girl in eager excitement. "He seemed so crazy about you—"

"He was," the other admitted flatly.

"Was?" echoed the first girl with even more eagerness. "Oh, don't tell me that your perfectly beautiful friendship is all over and that he has grown tired of you, Lucinda! I always did think you were too openly admiring of him for your own good, because a man never likes a sure thing—but next time, you will have had more experience and perhaps it is all for the best anyway. Somebody more sophisticated would be ideal for Howard, somebody who would understand his type and know how to manage him! I suppose you feel—"

"What a lot of time and thought you have devoted to my case!" the cute little thing remarked wide-eyed. "I had no idea anybody noticed what I—"

"My dear!" reproached the vampish girl. "When the most popular man in college was your apparent slave! I don't suppose you would like to tell me what you quarreled about?"

"Oh, we didn't quarrel," the cute little thing said with great frankness. "I suppose if he is the most popular man that explains why he was so upstage, but I couldn't stand any more of it. When he becomes a normal being Hoyard will be all right and so I am disciplining him a bit!"

"Well, I never!" the vampish girl stuttered. "What do you mean, disciplining him?"

"Oh," yawned the cute little thing, flipping the leaves of a fat book, "not seeing him or going anywhere with him or phoning him and always being busy or having a date—"

"Maybe you are right," the vampish girl agreed with great seriousness. "And I'd keep a stiff upper lip and stick it out even if Howard begins to take an interest in any one else. Don't weaken, Lucinda; keep to the line you have laid out for yourself—"

"Oh, I probably don't mean forever!" the cute little thing said suddenly.

"Now, Lucinda," her friend interposed gently, "don't make the dreadful mistake of trying to revive a past love affair. It is absolutely no use! Anyhow, Howard is not the type for you and you are not the type to keep Howard permanently devoted! That would take a far different sort of girl. Of course Howard is a nice chap and all that and I wouldn't want to see him unhappy, either; but don't worry, it won't last long.

"And now that you and Howard really have parted, I suppose it makes no difference if I asked him to go to the next dance, I'll telephone him now."

"Isn't that odd!" the cute little thing murmured as she rose and strategically closed all approach to the phone. She lifted the receiver and smiled ever so kindly at the girl with the green eyes, who was strangely flushed and perturbed of a sudden. "I was just thinking when you came in that Howard had been disciplined quite long enough and that maybe I'd go to the dance with him after all—he wrote and asked me this morning, you see! Hello, give me Midway XXXXX, please."

"Well," choked the young lady with greenish eyes as she stalked away, totally forgetting her vampish glide. "The nerve of some people! The nerve!"—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Alfred J. Pearson, who has been appointed United States minister to Finland by President Coolidge, is an adopted son of Iowa who had made quite a reputation in the middle west as an educator, teacher and author, before he entered the diplomatic service a year ago as minister to Poland. Mr. Pearson is a native of Sweden, but has resided in America since his early youth. His education was received at Yale, where he made foreign languages and international politics his specialty. After completing his studies he took up his residence in Iowa and for some time was professor of German language and literature at Drake University in that state. At the instance of Governor Carroll of Iowa, he made a study of the German school system in 1911. He is the author of a number of books on the study of the English classics, and the history and legends of the Rhine country.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Reply to Mr. Ouimet.

Mr. Editor: In my last letter of June 24th to you I pleaded for facts and a better understanding of history. For if we wish to know some thing of the past we must go to it regardless of what people think of it. Those facts with the historical evidence have not been given to me yet.

With great interest I have read Mr. Ouimet's reply. In his reply I found no adequate answer to my statements. As a son of the Roman church he could not but say about me what his church has always said about the great host of men who have told the truth and have left her. He classifies me as one who does not understand what I am talking about. When Martin Luther left the Roman church, the hierarchy accused him saying that he did that in order to marry a nun. Such teaching is done even today in the parochial school and in the church. But who does not know the reason why Luther left the church?

Few years ago two great Roman scholars, Romolo Murri and Salvatore Minocchi left the priesthood and both were accused by the church as being insane and knew not what they were doing. They have written many illuminating books where they set forth the reason why they left the church and also the policy of the Curia of Rome. In one of their writings they say that it was believed by most of the hierarchy of the Roman church that the progress of democracy would constitute a great peril for the church of Rome.

Two or three years ago Bishop Lorenzo Perosi, the composer of the Sacred Music of the Vatican, left the church and joined the Waldensian church in Rome. The Catholic prelates accused him as being insane and called him by every sort of name. But he, convinced of the new truth, boldly answered them saying that he had done so with an absolutely sound mind and that there he had found the real Christ that the church of Rome failed to give him. For the last two years he had been fighting hard within himself as to whether he had to remain or leave the church of Rome. This shows very well that his break was not done at all sudden, but had had its course. He had mediated and done a great deal of thinking about it.

Mr. Ouimet, I know what I am talking about; I have been a member of that church, I have read about it while in it, I left it when the battle of reasoning began within me. With my Catholic dogma and views of life I could not resist the challenge of the progress of our time.

It is not I who will portray the church of Rome as "blacker than a dozen and a half of chimney-sweeps," but it is history which does it. Pilate said: "What I have written I have written," what the church of Rome has done through the centuries has been recorded and it can neither be denied nor taken away from history. It is there to remain.

Mr. Ouimet accuses historians as antagonistic to the church of Rome and even calls Ranke and Orsal agnostics. Why does he call the former so? He does it simply because he was Protestant, but in the same time, in order to prove his case he quotes two Protestant writers. If he rejects one how can he accept the other? Does he know who Ranke was? He was one of the most brilliant historians that Germany has ever produced. He taught history at the University of Berlin. There he specialized himself in history. He wrote many historical works among which stands that great monumental History of the Popes which every good Catholic ought to read.

If he classifies the former as such because he was Protestant, what about the latter? I am surprised! Why are not all the Italians good loyal Catholics? Is not that the claim of the people in this country? Did not the priest say a few weeks ago to the Italians' home saying that the Italians are all Catholic and must remain so? This case shows the contrary, and I with legions of others am willing to be classified with Mr. Orsi for he reveals the true spirit of Italy. Regardless of what Mr. Ouimet thinks of him, Pietro Orsi and Guglielmo Ferrero still remain the two greatest historians of the modern Italy. I like this word modern, because Italy is not what she used to be. Thank God for it.

What does Mr. Ouimet mean for the ancient Rome? Is it the Roman empire or the Roman Catholicism? The glory of the Roman empire had passed away when the first pope came. That was six centuries after Christ. I am positive that Thomas Marshall, who "happened to be Presbyterian," meant the Roman empire.

Mr. Ouimet shows that he has no regard for history at all, nevertheless he mentioned some men who are deemed great by the church. But how can he reconcile the fact that if those men were Catholic and the church stood for progress and education she could have persecuted, tortured and opposed those I mentioned and many others who stood for the very same thing? He mentioned Abbot Mendel, can he tell me how much of Mendel's teachings are taught in the parochial schools?

About other points in Mr. Ouimet's letter I may have something to say in a future letter.

REV. V. PANIZZOLI.
Norwich, July 3, 1925.

Modern Dress.

Mr. Editor: I am writing in defense of the moral character of our modern mothers, sisters and sweethearts and I intend to make Uncle Billy see with 20th century eyes; for by his own admission he seems to be an ancient, riding the "ancient" hobby-horse. But it appears that our uncle has not spent his years in vain. He surely employed his time cultivating his tastes as shown by part of his own expression: "A woman's bare legs look well," but he only objects to the "time and place." He finally gives a parting thrust by mentioning "painting the face." Thanks, Uncle Billy! The word "painting" gave me an idea to revert to ancient history of which our uncle is so fond, and which I hope he has read, to prove the fallacy of his argument. Uncle Billy surely read that when the Bacchanalian priests saw the greatest work of art ever attempted by man, painted by the immortal Michelangelo on the ceiling of the Sistine chapel, Rome, they were shocked and offered to paint clothes around the figures, which were painted true to nature. I trust that Uncle Billy is not of such evil mind and I hope that he would not clothe the immortal Venus in cloak and hood if he were at liberty to do so. But he is greatly distressed by the influence which the modern Eve exerts upon man. Does our uncle know that aside from the dumb animals who do not enter into our argument, the world is populated by men and women, and that, ever since creation, the acts of man have proven worth while only in as much as they have been influenced by the gentle sex? It was the desire to please the tender sex that urged man to make sacrifices and do the things which made for progress and which helped in evolving our present civilization. During the evolution of man and progress woman has not stood still, and behold her today, beautiful, efficient, intelligent, moral and divine in her cleanliness! But Uncle Billy, riding his "ancient" hobby-horse, has a grievance because she makes herself too attractive; she displays too much of her God given beautiful form. And it is too much for his eyes. Her light dazzles him and makes him blink—and "back" he cries! "Turn back the wheels of civilization and let us go back to the somber, the primeval and the irrational." He wants to dull woman's light, drape her in a cloud and turn sunshine into darkness. No use, Uncle Billy, I surely respect age, but I am sorry for your "ancient" hobby. You can't sweep back Niagara Falls with a broom. Civilization is marching on, and our dear ladies—God bless them—are lighting the way—and the future of mankind and of civilization is very promising.

UNCLE MAX.
Norwich, July 6, 1925.

Supports Rev. V. Panizzoli.

Mr. Editor: Permit me through your columns to congratulate Rev. V. Panizzoli for his just criticism of a local preacher's statement which was: "The church of Rome for 20 centuries has kept burning the lamp of learning, sacred and profane; its schools have stood for truth and right."

To collaborate Rev. V. Panizzoli, I herewith submit a few propositions (of which there are 80) of the Syllabus:

(a). The science of things philosophical and moral as well as the civic laws neither can nor ought to be free from divine ecclesiastical authority.

(b). The Roman pontiff can not and ought not to be reconciled to or compromise with progress, liberalism, modern civilization and education.

(c). The ecclesiastical power must exercise its authority without the permission or assent of the civil power.

It is evidently seen that the Roman church condemns every political, social and educational idea that an American citizen of any country holds sacred.

Rev. V. Panizzoli, of Roman extraction knows the vicissitudes through which his nation has passed. His knowledge of the language, traditions, customs and ideals, naturally, enables him to be able to give an authentic account, as well as true historical facts as they are. Indeed, he is qualified to criticise an unjust statement.

Mr. Ouimet's reply to Rev. V. Panizzoli, is the most presumptuous and trenchant as well as the most clever article that was ever written against conventional enlightment and truth. The point I wish to make clear is this: Mr. Ouimet, with all his literary and breadth of historical knowledge, shows himself in his letter typical of a ratio of mental attitude which is all too common this modern day. There is no room here for doubt or questioning.

Mr. Ouimet, does not with a show of modesty even say, "I think," or "It is my opinion." No: Mr. Ouimet is most positive and most certain. By what standard does he judge and render his decision? His illogical mind is too complicated for solution. Mr. Ouimet should remember this: If certain speakers or preachers do not wish to have their speeches or sermons criticised, they should avoid publishing them, and, especially when they are contrary to the truth, be it scientific, historical, political or what not.

Steel and flint are hard and useful per se, but only when they come into impact do they strike off the incendiary spark of truth. Destructive criticism clears the ground for the foundations. Many intelligent and forceful people stop at that point. The writer, however, is not afraid of the axe, but has also a respect for the trowel and trip-hammer.

Such wise phrases as "Dozen and a half of chimney-sweeps and a stack of black cats" denotes how an intelligent person's mind runs. Ridiculous and nothing else. Such a person may fool all the people some of the time, and some people all of the time; but he cannot fool all of the people all of the time.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter Learns About Digger the Badger.

Keep this before you all the while:
The world is better for a smile.
..Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit, sitting in the brambletangle on the edge of the Old Pasture, with Digger the Badger sitting just outside, could hardly believe that the thing he had wanted for so long was now really his. It was the opportunity to ask Digger the Badger all about himself. He had said that for a long time he had wanted to ask him questions, and now Digger had told him that he never would have a better chance.

"It is true, Mr. Badger, that you are a weasel!" was Peter's first question

"Is it true, Mr. Badger, that you are a Weasel?" was Peter's first question.

Digger grinned. "I suppose that in a way it is," said he.

"You don't look it," said Peter bluntly. "If I had been asked to guess and had had a thousand guesses, I never would have guessed that you are a Weasel. You are so broad and flat, and and Shadow the Weasel is so slim and long, that it is hard to believe you are truly related."

Digger chuckled. "I must confess," said he, "that Cousin Shadow and I don't look much alike. Nevertheless, I am a member of the Weasel family, although I have nothing to do with any of the other members of it."

"Then that means that you are related to Billy Mink and Little Joe Otter," said Peter.

Digger nodded. "Yes," said he, "and to Jimmy Skunk and Spite the Marten and Pekan the Fisher and Glutton the Wolverine. We are quite a family when you come to name us over. I must agree that there isn't much family resemblances between some of us. What more is on your mind Peter?"

"Is it true," asked Peter, "that you came from the Far West?"

Once again Digger nodded. "It is quite true, Peter," said he. "I am told that the Badgers used to be rather widely distributed, but we're all home now only in the Far West. My, what wouldn't I give to be out there now!" Digger gave a long sigh. It was a homesick sounding kind of a sigh.

"If you feel that way about it, what did you leave there for?" asked Peter bluntly.

"I didn't there because I wanted to," replied Digger. "I left there because I couldn't help it. I was taken away from there. I was only a youngster then, not half grown, but I remember it just as if it were yesterday," Peter Rabbit, never be foolish enough to think you know all there is to know. Any one who is foolish enough to think that is heading straight for trouble. I thought I knew all there was to know, but all the time I didn't know enough to know how little I did know. Do you know what I mean?"

Peter bobbed his head. "I know," said he. "The ones who know the most are the ones who know how little they do know."

"Exactly," replied Digger the Badger. "Exactly. The trouble with most young folk is that they haven't been to the school of experience. If I had know then what I know now I wouldn't be here, Peter Rabbit. No, sir, I wouldn't be here."

"But how did you get here? Please do tell me, Mr. Badger. I don't mean to be curious, but I'm just aching to know how you happen to be here and why." Peter's voice sounded very, very eager.

"It's a long story," replied Digger the Badger.

"But I have all night in which to listen," pleaded Peter.

And so Digger the Badger finally promised to tell Peter the story of how he came to the Green Meadows and the Old Pasture.

From Small Beginnings

Sol Smith Russell, the Drummer Boy, a Great Actor.

Every one in the great regiment laughed at the little drummer boy who had "come from Missouri." "Sol" Russell was always "up to some trick." He was as full of mischief as 20 boys should be. It was always good-hearted fun that added to the joy of life and not a thing to increase its misery. In particular he was clever in the taking off of personal mannerism. "He's a young monkey!" more than one soldier exclaimed as he watched the youngster imitate one of the men, or especially one of the officers. "Sol" Russell was only a youngster of 13, just at "the monkey age," and he was slight as compared with others, but he had a quick-thinking brain and marvelous power to imitate others.

Occasionally there were regimental "shows" during times when camp life grew dull. At all such occasions the merry-hearted little drummer boy "from Missouri" was drafted into service and took a principal part. He was a born mimic, a born actor, and a man born with a happy heart. Thus early in life, and because his natural talents pulled him up, Sol Smith Russell, one of the most loved of American comedians, entered into his work as an actor. It is said that any man who can make the world laugh can gain many millions of dollars. Certainly any man who can give the world innocent pleasure is certain to gain a substantial reward.

In a little theatre in Illinois the drumer boy went on the stage as a professional actor, and won hearty applause.

After the war he went to New York City, and looked about him for employment in his chosen work. He was only 26 when he had the good fortune to gain admission to that remarkable company of actors and actresses gathered together by Augustin Daly, one of the most clear-seeing of all American play-producers. Daly brought together a company such as the American stage has never been able to duplicate since Daly's time. In that brilliant body of actors Sol Smith Russell, the comedian, found a welcome place. Under the tutelage of the clever and highly gifted Daly, Sol Smith Russell shook off the Western roughness and took on a delicacy that is always the accompaniment of the highest type of humor. With it he united touches of pathos, which is also associated with humor. The result was the development of humor of so high a kind, that he won wide popularity. In Sol Smith Russell's case it was the heart with a smile that won.

Stories That Recall Others

Job for a Contortionist

Sam, a janitor, boasted of being somewhat of a philanthropist, but seemed short on his judgment. In his one small room he shared his bed and board (such as it was) with a friend, who professed to be out of work and penniless. When he suddenly discovered that the "friend" had had a job all the time, and was simply using him as an easy mark, Sam's indignation knew no bounds. He called the miscreant on the telephone and yelled loudly, "From now on, big boy, you can eat yourself and sleep yourself."

Rough and Ready

Phil was a first year pupil in one of the schools, and though small was "in Dutch" for fighting on numerous occasions. One day his teacher called his mother on the phone to say she would have to send him to see the principal. The mother asked her not to do that as it would be too humiliating, but to try to reason with him and it would be more effective. "Reason with him," the teacher said. "I tried that for 15 minutes at my desk and thought I had won him over, but before he got back to his seat, he had hit a small boy in the nose who was smiling at him."

The Oldest Sorority

The Alpha Delta Pi Sorority, the oldest women's Greek letter organization in the United States, will celebrate its 75th anniversary next year. The society was organized at Macon, Ga., in 1851.

A Royal Etcher

A collection of etchings executed by Queen Elizabeth more than 30 years ago is now being exhibited in London for the first time. Landseer was Queen Victoria's art tutor, and his influence is strongly marked on her work.

RHEUMATISM

Torturing Pains and Swollen Joints Vanish When Rheuma is Used or Money Refunded.

If you want relief in two days, and gratifying relief, take one teaspoonful of Rheuma every night and morning.

If you want to dissolve the uric acid poison in your body and drive it out through the natural channels so that you will be free from rheumatism, get a bottle of Rheuma from your druggist at once.

Rheumatism is a powerful disease strongly entrenched in joint and muscles. In order to conquer it a powerful enemy must be sent against it. Rheuma is the enemy of rheumatism—an enemy that must conquer it in every instance or your money will be refunded.

Rheuma contains no narcotics — is harmless and thoroughly reliable because it is the one remedy that has relieved the agonizing pains of rheumatic sufferers who thought nothing would give relief. It should do as much for you. Lee & Osgood Co. will supply you on the no-cure-no-pay plan.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John Harrigan

Margaret Reardon, widow of John Harrigan, died at her home, 148 Cliff street, Monday evening after a short illness. Mrs. Harrigan was one of the older residents of the Cliff street district. Her husband died fifteen years ago. She is survived by three daughters, Anetta and Helena, both of this city, and Mrs. Henry O'Donovan, of Hartford. She also leaves two granddaughters, Miss Margaret O'Donovan, of Hartford, and Miss Josephine Harrigan, of this city, daughter of the late Albert J. Harrigan.

Harvey L. Muzzey.

Friends in Norwich have received word of the death of Harvey L. Muzzey, which occurred Sunday at the home of his daughter, in Providence, following a lingering illness.

Mr. Muzzey was born in Norwich 80 years ago and had made Norwich his home until a few weeks ago when he moved to Providence to live with his daughter, following a breakdown in health. Mr. Muzzey was twice married, his second wife, Lillian Ray, having died in Norwich on March 16, 1924.

Mr. Muzzey enlisted in the Civil war as a musician. His enlistment was in Norwich and he joined Company I, 18th regiment, on May 30, 1862. He was taken prisoner by the rebels at Salem, Va., on June 20, 1864, and was paroled on December 10, 1864. His honorable discharge from the army was received on December 10, 1865. For many years Mr. Muzzey was the efficient employe of Rawson & Whipple on Water street and later was employed by the late George H. Pratt. He retired from active business several years ago.

Besides his daughter in Providence, Mr. Muzzey is survived by several nephewa and nieces.

MAYOR WATERS NAMES ZONING COMMITTEE OF FIVE MEMBERS

At the meeting of the court of common council, held Monday evening in the council chambers, Mayor Milo R. Waters announced his appointment of the zoning committee for Norwich, under authority granted him by the general assembly. Members of the zoning committee are Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney, chairman; Alderman Albert G. Lillibridge, Councilmen W. H. Aldrich, N. J. Spellman and Lee Clegg.

Complaint from Lake Street.

A petition was received from residents near the Lake street playground requesting that something be done to rid that section of the city of the nuisance which prevails during the hours the playground is open, but more especially after it had been closed for the night. The petitioners claimed that people in charge of the playground are not showing sufficient authority and that indecent language and actions are resorted to by boys and girls using the playground. They request that the swings and other playground apparatus be locked at night, or removed from the grounds after 7:30 o'clock at night on week days and all day Sunday. The petition was read before the council and referred to the recreation commission.

Sidewalk Hearings.

The meeting opened at 8:15 o'clock when Mayor Milo R. Waters opened the hearings on grades and width of sidewalks on Carroll and Hedge avenues, but as no one appeared the hearing was immediately declared closed. A resolution was then adopted fixing the grades and sidewalk widths on the two avenues.
